Remodelling and Horticultural News

Handsome, professional-looking cupboards like those shown above can be made in the basement workshop. Methods for both open shelves (left) and enclosed cupboards are outlined by Peter Whittall.

Do It Yourself

Here's How

TO DO IT — TO MAKE IT — TO FIX IT

By PETER WHITTALL

These Shelves Easy On Eyes, Easy To Make

This is one of a series of columns by Peter Whittall on expertly-designed major projects by which the handyman can add beauty and utility to every room of the house.

If you can read, saw a straight line and drive a nail, you can build basic shelves and cupboards.

They're neat, attractive and useful. These are definitely not makeshifts — they're permanent home improvements of professional calibre.

Care is required to make them, of course, but the design is simple and straightforward. Any amateur can do it, and do it well.

As you'll note by the accompanying pictures, there are two distinct styles — the open shelves and those with sliding doors. In method and measurements there are slight differences, so to keep things straight I'll deal with them separately.

OPEN SHELVES

The open style is the simpler to make. Here's how:

The first step is to saw an eight-foot sheet of ¾" fir plywood into four strips, three of them 12" wide and the other 10" wide.

Second step: Cut the narrow (10") strip into four pieces 22½" long for partitions.

Third step: Mark and notch the four short lengths at a line drawn acros sthe centre of each piece. Cut the notch a fraction less than ¾" wide and 5" deep.

Fourth step: Mark and notch the long centre shelf in the same manner, marking the two end slots 12" in from either end and the other two notches each 24" farther in.

Fifth step: Assemble the seven pieces of plywood you've cut, attaching the top and bottom shelves to the partitions with 2" finishing nails 4" apart (or use No. 8x1¾" flat-head wood screws slightly countersunk for puttying). With the notches you've cut, the partitions will be flush at the back.

Final step: Hang your basic shelf unit by toenailing into the wall with 2½" finishing nails. Alternatives, use brackets, or leave the unit free-standing with wrought-iron legs.

When doing the work, of course, it's wise to double-check your measurements and fit as you go along. Otherwise a fractional variation in saw cuts for example, could cause unnecessary problems.

This notching of "egg crate" shelving system is designed for building with a minimum of tools and experience. Accurate cutting and fitting of the notches is the secret of the unit's rigidity.

You can easily vary the measurements given here if you want a shelf unit of a different size or with a different number of compartments.

SLIDING DOORS

An enclosed shelf unit with sliding doors is illustrated above. You'll note these differ from the open unit just described:

(1) You need three 10" by 22½" partitions and two 12" by 24" ends. Thus your eight-by-four sheet of plywood isn't quite enough — another small piece is needed. An alternative would be to eliminate the centre partition, making the extra wood unnecessary.

(2) The partitions are notched in the same way, but the end pieces are untouched.

(3) For four equal compartments in the enclosed unit, the partitions are set 24" apart.

Door pulls can be cut from scraps of ¾" plywood and glued and screw-nailed to each door. Or one-inch holes can be bored in the doors to provide a "finger-pull." Brass or chrome metal pulls, which look like miniature ash trays and come in a variety of sizes, can be pressed into the holes.

When loading the doors into the tracks or grooves, alternate them so that one fits into the front track and the next one into the rear track. This permits them to bypass each other.

And be sure to place the door knobs or recessed pulls in positions where they don't interfere with the bypassing action.

The grooves will have to be cut with a power saw. The top groove must be deeper than the bottom groove to permit the loading operation. The doors should be cut about ¼" less than the total height of the opening from the bottom of the bottom groove to the top of the top groove.

An alternate grooving method is to cut the doors to fit the frame (again ¼" short of the total height) and then tack on strips of ¼" x ¾" moulding to form the grooves.

HINGED DOORS

If you would prefer conventional hinged doors, here's a tip that can simplify the job.

Hinge the doors to the stiles before attaching the stiles to the basic shelf unit. Nail them in place one at a time, making sure of the fit of each before you do the next one.

If you wish to dispense with door pulls, cut the doors and the stiles about one inch deeper than the shelf unit, and let this extra inch extend below the bottom shelf to provide a finger space.

For detailed plans of shelves and cupboards, see your nearest plywood dealer or write me in care of Box 338, Vancouver, B.C.

Harris Asks Canadians To Help Smash Inflation

Retirement Savings Plans By Canadian Tax Payers Will Be Given Break by Government

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's tax-payers have been given a new tax encouragement to finance their own retirement savings plans.

Effective immediately, deductions will be allowed of up to 10 per cent of earned income for annual outlays on annuities and other retirement savings plans.

The scheme, designed with encouragement as a side effect, will especially benefit doctors, lawyers, accountants, store-keepers and other self-employed persons hitherto unable to deduct the cost of their pension plan payments.

But it will also help a wage-earner who might take out his own annuity plan, perhaps through an insurance company, in addition to his employer's — employee contributions already are tax-exempt.

HELPS ANNUITIES BUYER

And it would permit the thousands of people who are in companies without a joint pension scheme to help cover the cost. To deduct their costs from taxable income, just as the self-employed will be able to do.

Deduction of pension plan contributions from taxable income is limited.

It may be applied on new contracts for certain forms of insurance and plans, provided the start of the premium paid for them or annuity can be separated from the part paid for insurance protection.

Mr. Harris said that, on existing annuity-insurance contracts, he will take up with insurance companies the question of whether premiums can be separated in the same way and contracts rearranged so the policy-holder can elect to receive the endowment part of the contract in the form of an approved retirement annuity.

There were "some real difficulties in the way of doing this," he said.

DOLLAR LIMITS

The allowable deduction—a maximum 10 per cent of earned income—will have dollar limits. The limit will be $2,500 a year for those who are not members of a registered employer-employee pension plan. The limit will be $1,500 for employees paying both an employer-employee plan and his own private plan.

Provided that there is a lower ceiling for employees because employers pay part of their pension costs.

Officials said they expect the type of contract which would qualify for tax deductions will be sold by insurance companies, the Government of Canada annuities branch and perhaps by trust and financial companies.

Mr. Harris indicated he does not expect the proposal will make much impact on his revenues for the fiscal year starting April 1. It would take insurance companies some time to design policies to fit the new tax law.

But if widely adopted, the scheme could reduce federal revenues by as much as $40,000,000 in later years.

RESTRICTIONS IMPOSED

The annuities may not be redeemed for cash or used for borrowing. They can be payable in equal annual amounts for a taxpayer's full life.

After he dies payments may continue to his widow, but to no one else, not even children. The buyer of the annuity may arrange that payments continue for at least a set number of years up to 15 years. Payments may begin whenever he arranges, but not beyond the age of 70.

Benefits, when paid, will be taxable. But in most cases a retired pensioner, with an income less than it was when he paid for the annuity, would be paying a lot less tax.

Mr. Harris said the new scheme may be regarded as an indication of the increasing steps Canadians are taking to free themselves from worry when their earning power is reduced.

Mr. Harris also had a concession for motor enthusiasts.

He announced that the special 10 per cent excise tax on motor-cycles and all other two- or three-wheeled motor-driven vehicles is repealed. The repeal also applies to motors for attachment to bicycles.

AIDS MUNICIPALITIES

Municipalities got a few concessions from Mr. Harris in his budget.

The budget exempted from sales taxes all road, railway and special concrete shapes purchased by municipalities for building bridges in public highways.

Exemption from sales tax for municipal purchases of road-making, road-cleaning and fire fighting equipment costing more than $1,000 each will be changed to allow the exemption for each purchases costing more than $500 a unit.

Of more municipal concern is a provision exempting from sales tax all desks and chairs specially designed for the use of students.

Printing produced by a school or university for its own use also will be exempt from the 10 per cent tax now applied.

OTHER CONCESSIONS

The list of sales-tax exempt building materials was increased by adding chimney caps, circulating pumps for use in forced hot water heating systems, for heating buildings, door and window screens and septic tanks.

The sales tax exemption permitted on special diesel powered trucks used at mines or quarries is expanded to include gasoline-powered trucks used for the same purpose.

Five Billion Revenue Seen

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris said Canada's revenue in the coming year will total $5,170,000,000 after tax changes proposed in his budget. He expected federal spending would reach $5,018,000,000.

This is where the money will come from and where it will go:

Revenue: personal income tax 30 per cent; corporation taxes, 23; sales tax, 13; customs duties, 11; taxes on alcoholic beverages and tobacco, 8; other excise taxes, 2; non-tax revenue, 4.

Expenditure — national defence 33 per cent; interest on the national debt, 11; family allowances, 8; veterans affairs, 5; transport, 4; public works, 4; agriculture and colonial affairs, 2; tax rental grants and other social services, 2; post office, 2; Canada Council, 2; unemployment insurance, tax collection, external affairs, northern affairs 1 per cent each; other government departments, 11 per cent.

Auto-Trailer Age Recognized By Minister

OTTAWA (CP) — The auto-trailer age was recognized by Finance Minister Harris in his budget Thursday night.

His changes in application of the 10-per-cent sales tax, all effective immediately, included one to provide tax exemption on 75 per cent of the cost of trailers purchased for use as homes.

The minister said this will put trailers—increasingly popular as homes—on a basis of tax equality with houses. Almost all materials going into house building are tax exempt.

Mr. Harris also had a concession for motor enthusiasts.

He announced that the special 10 per cent excise tax on motor-cycles and all other two- or three-wheeled motor-driven vehicles is repealed. The repeal also applies to motors for attachment to bicycles.

Succession Duty Tax Reduced in Ontario, Quebec

OTTAWA (CP)—Estates of Quebec and Ontario residents soon may be exempted from half the federal succession duty.

Finance Minister Harris proposed in his budget a 50-per-cent reduction in the federal succession duties on taxable estates in provinces which apply provincial succession duties. The reduction would apply to estates of persons dying after March 31. At present the reduction may not exceed amount of the provincial tax paid.

Ontario and Quebec are the only provinces planning to collect succession duties.

A further provision would permit deduction of all charitable gifts from the total value of the estate before applying the duty.

Finally, he had hoped to introduce a bill revising the succession duty act but "it has been impossible for me to do this."

The federal succession duty applies to all estates over $50,000. The rates of tax vary depending on the relationship between the deceased person and the beneficiary.

Many Provinces Will Rent Tax Fields to Govt.

OTTAWA (CP)—All provinces except Ontario and Quebec have indicated they will continue to rent their tax fields to the federal government in return for annual payments for the next five years.

Their payments for these rentals will amount to $240,000,000 in the new fiscal year opening April 1, up from $230,000,000 in fiscal 1956-57, Finance Minister Harris said in his budget speech Thursday night.

Ontario will levy and collect own corporation income tax and succession duties, though it will continue to rent its personal income tax field to the Dominion.

Quebec will continue to collect personal and corporation income taxes and inheritance duties.

The new agreements have not yet been formally signed, but Mr. Harris expected this will be done before the new time for the first payments—April 1?.

Mr. Harris observed that Ontario Treasurer Porter had stated that Canadians "are entitled to a contributing a large portion of this payment to other provinces. Said Mr. Harris:

"Canadians living in Ontario pay exactly the same rates of tax as are applicable to all other Canadians and Canadians living in Ontario derive their incomes in considerable part, directly or indirectly, from consumers and producers in other parts of Canada, just as Canadians elsewhere may derive parts of their incomes from business activity that takes place in Ontario."

THREE CHEAT DEATH

SUTTON (CP) — Three fishermen escaped with only a soaking Thursday when their light truck went through the ice of Lake Simcoe a half mile off-shore. Kyle Wright, 30, Ernest Wright, 34, and James Wight, 29, were on their way to pick up their ice fishing huts when the ice failed.

Fiscal Highlights

OTTAWA (CP)—Highlights of the economic portion of Finance Minister Harris' budget speech to Parliament:

Canada's gross national production may rise to $31,250,000,000 in 1958.

Canadians need to save more to overcome inflation and reduce the need of foreign supplies.

Inflationary forces may begin to moderate this year.

Consumer prices may show some further rise as a result of the 1956 boost in wages, freight rates and material costs.

Prolonged continuation of record 1956 foreign trade deficit of $1,400,000,000 could cause "real problems" for Canada.

Canadians achieved significant improvement in real earnings in 1956. Average farm income this year may reach record.

New Device Aimed at Slicing Paper Work in Tax Returns

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris has come up with a new income tax device aimed at slicing some paper work from the filing of tax returns. It may also thin the ranks of taxpayers by perhaps 150,000 persons.

The proposal, outlined in his budget Thursday night, is: Allow everyone a minimum $100 "standard deduction" from taxable income to cover medical expenses, charitable donations and membership dues to unions and professional groups.

The change will take effect when taxpayers file returns next spring on 1957 income.

Taxpayers still will be able to claim deductions of more than $100, if they have the vouchers to prove the full amount.

If they make such a claim, the automatic $100 deduction does not also apply to their tax returns.

But Mr. Harris said a survey has shown the claims of more than half of income tax-payers whose combined claims of deductions for charitable giving, medical costs and union and professional fees total less than $100 a year.

For those, it would end the "considerable inconvenience" of saving and filing vouchers for those costs. For the revenue department, it would "eliminate handling millions of pieces of paper."

The change was one of a dozen in the income tax law—most of them increasing allowable deductions—which were announced in the budget. Altogether they are expected to cost the treasury some $10,000,000 in the fiscal year starting April 1, and $80,000,000 in a full year.

Although most of the changes will apply to 1957 incomes, some will take effect immediately as returns being filed now for 1956 incomes. Any person affected who may already have filed his 1956 return will have to seek an adjustment.

Two of the immediate changes extend the list of medical costs which may be claimed as deductions from income for tax purposes: Outlays on year - round nursing home care for a taxpayer, his wife or dependents, and also for dependents certified as being mentally retarded children.

Also effective in 1956 income, employed professional people such as doctors, engineers and accountants will be allowed to deduct from taxable income their annual dues to professional societies, regardless of whether they are required by their contract of employment to pay the dues. Up to now the dues have been allowable only when the contract requires payment.

From 1957 on, a taxpayer's dependent may earn up to $250 a year, instead of the present $150 limit, and still enable the taxpayer to claim the $400 deduction for dependents. This does not apply to wives, but Mr. Harris said it may help a few children who are working to help pay their way through school.

Also allowable deduction will apply to 1956 income for a few Canadians. An amount of up to $250 paid by teachers going to teach in another Commonwealth country on an exchange arrangement. The payments are made from a fund established by the Canadian Education Association to help teachers coming to Canada on exchange from Commonwealth countries.

Another change in the tax law will correct a situation under which farmers and fishermen, who receive payment over a five-year period, have been unable to spread assessments for the fifth year in the period if no tax is levied in that year.

Cut Tariff on 15 Products, None of Major Importance

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has decided to seek a review of the trade treaty with Australia in the hope of reducing Australian curbs on Canadian goods.

Finance Minister Harris said in his budget speech Thursday night that Australia has already been informed of Canada's desire for new trade talks.

He also announced immediate tariff reductions on some 15 products—none of any major importance — and hinted at possible changes later in Canada's tariffs on steel, pipe, rubber and potatoes.

Canada has already opened negotiations with the United States with a view to reducing Canada's duties on potatoes. But U.S. officials only completed their public hearings on the case last week and have yet to make a recommendation to indicate their attitude."

The Canadian tariff board had also been asked to review import duties on iron and steel, pipes and tubes and rubber footwear. The board's reports now are "well on their way to presentation."

There will be a round of world tariff talks at Geneva next fall—under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade — and at that time there will be an opportunity for tariff "bargaining" generally.

The budget contained tariff changes on 87 items but most of these were technical amendments having no effect on rates.

The 15 items on which rates are reduced or eliminated range from foreign railway freight cars to equipment used for packing fresh fruits and vegetables.

A Canadian duty, now eliminated, previously applied on freight cars from a number of American freight cars in Canada over the number of cars exported to the U.S. Officials said the change will mean a revenue loss of about $1,000,000 a year.

Also eliminated are tariffs on such musical instruments as harpsichords, recorders, xylophones, clavichords and autoharps; metal engravings; some equipment used in the packing of fresh fruits and vegetables; materials used in the manufacture of planos and organs.

The duty-free entry of materials used for training mentally retarded children is being extended to cover imports of these items by any educational institution.

On the Australian situation, Mr. Harris said Government wants to discuss the impact of the new Australian - U.S. - U.K. trading agreement on Canadian exports to Australia.

FERRY TACKLES ICE

KINGSTON (CP) — The ferry boat Wolfe Island operated the 1957 navigation season in Kingston harbor Thursday night by attempting its first run from Kingston to Wolfe Island, three miles away. The ferry had to return after encountering thick ice two miles from Wolfe Island. Another attempt was to be made today.

Taxes Abolished On Wide Range Of Commodities

OTTAWA (CP) — Abolition of taxes on a wide range of consumer commodities, including tea, coffee, soft drinks, candy and chewing gum, were announced Thursday night by Finance Minister Harris.

However, the finance minister, who neither smokes nor drinks, left unchanged current taxes on liquor, cigarets, cigars and cut tobacco.

Mr. Harris announced in his budget speech the repeal of the 10-per-cent excise tax on soft drinks, candy, chocolate, confectionery and chewing gum as well as on tea, coffee and a number of food items, effective immediately.

Mr. Harris indicated that repeal of the tax would result in big price cuts. "It seems to me we should now give some help to the housewife on her purchases of some widely-used items."

However, he said the "tax on soft drinks is being repealed, because it is not being suppressed with the increasing difficulties which members of the soft drink bottlers appear to be facing from coast to coast."

CAREER COFFEE, TEA

The tax on soft drinks amounts to less than one cent a bottle. The 10c per pound on coffee and tea is between six and seven cents. Repeal means the entire amount will be passed to consumers.

Another food item on which the sales tax is repealed are baking preparations. The exemption operates for beverages other than soft drinks, cocoa, cocoanut, dessert powders, gelatine, flavoring extracts, meat tenderizers, pickles, pickling spices, sauces, olives, horseradish, mustard, pie fillings, prune juice, grape juice, vinegar, yeast, soups, salad dressings, sandwich spreads, spices, seasonings and extracts.

Mr. Harris estimated loss of annual revenue from repeal of the tax on these grocery items will amount to $19,000,000.

Repeal of the excise taxes on candy, soft drinks and also motorcycles "takes off the books the bulk of the remaining special kinds of taxes imposed to help finance the defence expenditures made after Korean outbreak."

Also abolished was a tax of 15 cents a pound on carbonic acid gas, used in preparing soft drinks to be served by the glass.

Tax Exemptions For Charitable Gifts Extended

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris has relaxed the income tax law for corporations and individuals whose charitable giving in a single year exceeds the ceiling allowed for deduction from taxable income.

In his budget Thursday night he said the excess of donations will be allowed as a deduction from taxable income in future years.

The present law provides that charitable gifts may not be for more than 10 per cent of net income and corporations five per cent of net income in any taxation year.

The change will be effective from 1957 on.

Thus a Canadian earning $10,000 could make a gift of $1,000 and deduct it from taxable income in two successive years—$1,000 the first year and $500 the second.

The change did not go as far as requested by the Canadian Bar Association and the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants which asked for a three-year deduction of the excess in any of five succeeding years.

The budget also added a new class of gift to the list of deductible charitable donations. Gifts to certain limited - dividend corporations which provide low-cost housing for the aged.

This change had been requested by a committee of Parliament from British Columbia.

ASK CONCILIATION

KINGSTON (CP) — The Ontario labor department Thursday was asked to appoint a conciliation officer to negotiate in a dispute between the Kingston General Hospital and 500 of its employees. The contract of Local 22, National Union of Public Service Employees (CLC), including orderlies, maids, cleaners and kitchen help, expired Dec. 31.

Appeals For More Saving To Cut Need For Foreign Capital

Gross National Production May Increase 5 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Harris appealed to Canadians Thursday night to save more, to reduce Canada's need for foreign capital and to help smash the spiral of inflation.

In proposing his pre - election budget to Parliament, he estimated that gross national production—value of all goods and services produced—may rise by another five per cent this year to a record $31,250,000,000.

But he warned that the estimated big new capital investment program of $8,500,000,000 will impose a "substantial strain on our resources."

"If we are to succeed in an effort of this magnitude, we shall either have to save a good deal more or borrow more abroad a good deal more even than we did in 1956.

"I earnestly hope that Canadians will themselves save more and invest it profitably in their own future."

SEES INFLATION EASING

There was a real possibility that inflationary forces which spread throughout 1956 "may begin to moderate during the coming year."

But, at the moment, price pressures were still present. Not all of the 1956 cost rises in wages, freight rates and materials had yet worked through to the retail level.

"Consequently, it may well be that the full effects of the heavy spending program of 1956 will only reveal themselves in the prices of finished goods during 1957."

Heavy imports, particularly from the United States, helped restrain the rise in Canadian prices by making more goods available. But these heavy imports pushed Canada's deficit in foreign trade in goods and services to a record $1,400,000,000, double that of 1955.

Mr. Harris warned that a big continuation of a deficit of this size would "raise real problems" for Canada. It was "an inevitable accompaniment of our extraordinarily rapid rate of development."

"It could be moderated by further increasing our own domestic rate of saving."

IMPORT PRICES EASED

Helping also to restrain rises in roadblocks on price advances was the four-per-cent increase in the exchange value of the Canadian dollar, which, in turn, eased prices of imports.

But, warned Mr. Harris, "we can hardly count on a similar further gain in the external value of our currency in 1957 and the necessity for our own domestic adjustments remains.

He therefore strongly supported the Bank of Canada's credit restraint and "tight - money" policy.

His forecast of a gross national product of $31,250,000,000 for 1957 compared with $29,900,000,000 last year—was conservative in the views of some federal economists who have suggested production this may actually climb to more than $32,000,000,000.

SURPLUS UNDERGUESSED

In his budget last year, Mr. Harris underestimated production by about $1,900,000,000 and underguessed the government's revenue for the year by about $600,000,000.

His budget surplus for the fiscal year ending March 31 is estimated at $152,000,000, more than double his original forecast of $73,000,000.

He intimated his surplus might have been perhaps $100,000,000 higher. He had made two unanticipated charges of $50,000,000 each to pay for workers' share in "significant improvement in real earnings."

Farmers also shared in the rise. Prairie cash income was increased by bigger grain harvests and increased sales.

"If natural growth and markets remain as good in 1957, per capita farm incomes could equal our surpass the all-time record of 1951."

The momentum of Canada's economic advance would continue, said Mr. Harris, though perhaps at a more moderate pace "but possibly enough to assure further increases in production and employment and a continuation of rising standards of living."

Exports likely would continue to rise. Purchases of goods and services by all three levels of government in Canada — which provide about one - sixth of all spending in the country — likely would increase "moderately." So would consumer spending.

"There is no guarantee, course, that the sale of consumer goods will be easy or as profitable. Costs have been rising and in many lines competition will be strenuous.

"Corporate profit margins show some signs of narrowing, as both competition and consumer price resistance stiffens."

TWO PRICE FACTORS

The extent to which Canadians could curb prices would depend largely on increasing production and the keep of workers.

Mr. Harris did not expect that the rise in the labor force this year would be as great as in 1956. But it would be greater than normal because of an expected increase in immigration.

"Further, while industrial capacity is unusually growing, some industries may not have an increased requirement for manpower. All in all, there is a good possibility that the inflationary pressures which have been present throughout the last year may begin to moderate during the coming year."

Raw Tobacco Gets Measure Of Tax Relief

Finance Minister Harris announced in the budget speech that the excise tax on raw leaf tobacco is being reduced immediately. Taxes on cut plug, cut rag and cut tobacco remain unchanged.

The raw leaf tax, an excise tax of eight cents a pound is repealed and the excise duty is reduced from 20 cents a pound to the pre-war rate of 10 cents. The taxes on cigars and cut tobacco leaves warehouses.

The raw leaf tobacco is tobacco grown in Canada and sold for consumption in its natural state. It is not processed further than the curing stage.

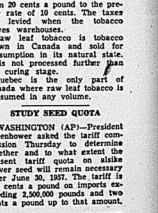
STUDY SEED QUOTA

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower has asked the tariff commission Thursday to determine whether and to what extent the present tariff quota on shelled clover seed will remain necessary after June 30, 1957. The tariff is now based on imports exceeding 2,500,000 pounds and two cents a pound up to that amount.

Opposition Critic Assails Trivial Nature of Tax Cuts



OTTAWA (CP)—J. M. Macdonnell, Opposition financial critic, expressed disappointment at the "trivial" measure of tax relief proposed by Finance Minister Harris in his budget.

Speaking Thursday night immediately after Mr. Harris, Mr. Macdonnell said the minister had "a wonderful job of distracting our attention from the main fact at issue."

This was the fact that despite the surplus he announced for the current fiscal year of $282,000,000, he hadn't given the taxpayer any income tax rates.

The "trivial" reductions amounting to $128,000,000 in a variety of sales and other non-income taxes was not "a responsible action."

The Progressive Conservative financial spokesman was cheered by his colleagues when he said the minister had given "an elab-

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT

An inspired Chevies team, illness and "Snipes" oulja board raised hob with the Mac's chances of cleaning up this Cornwall business down east last night. The Chevies grew hot, the Macs unsteady through player shuffling and the "Oulja" off the beam. Patsy's "spirits" didn't have a ghost of a chance. Neither did "Snipes" firecracker.

But a gang of rowdy spectators did. With certain victory in sight they started pelting Gordie Hall with boot rubber of all sizes. The rest bawled their approval. It must have been the night of the policeman's ball. Only one was in sight —and he sat. The rowdies chose the rhubarb between Macdonald and Bingley to stage their every demonstration and they were not quieted until a threat of the game award to Belleville was announced.

But tonight's another night. The Mac's are determined to wipe out last night's defeat and settle this semi-finals business once and for all.

UP, THE SAINTS!

Newly-crowned champions of the Central Ontario Secondary School Association senior boys' basketball championship, Johnny Hayman's Quinte Secondary School Saints journey to Toronto today where they will aim their sights on the Ontario Secondary Schools Association title.

Quinte Secondary School students, and staff, are mighty proud of the achievements of their senior hoop champions, and they have every right to be so. It is not every secondary school in Ontario that can proudly boast a senior champion basketball squad in its first year of competition.

Win, lose or draw in the tournament of OSSA championships being held in Toronto over the weekend, the "Saints" compiled a season record that compares with the best in the province. It is doubtful if more than a few schools of this nature can claim such achievement in inaugural years of senior "A" competition.

However, the Saints face a severe test in the upcoming tournament. They are pitted against the best secondary schools teams in the province, all of them veterans of tournament play. They meet the NOSSA champions from Sudbury in their initial battle tonight. Meanwhile, champions from other branches of the OSSA will cross court raplers in quest of the provincial championship.

Scoring records of the Saints indicate they rank among the top scoring schools of the province. Their record over the Bay of Quinte District COSSA schedule was 86 points for, and 26 against, a fine mark in any basketball league. This record was made up of six consecutive victories. They defeated Napanee 112-35, a Quinte points record, and 52-31. The took the measure of BCI 86-12 and 72-34. They defeated OSD 106-38 and 90-27.

They capped this fine achievement with a stunning 80-26 victory over Picton Collegiate for the COSSA Bay of Quinte championship.

In their march to the COSSA title, they swept aside the Peterborough C.I. semi-finals threat by a score of 44-23, then went on to win their first championship by defeating the powerful Oshawa C.I. court five by a close 44-42 score, a game that was won in the dying seconds.

Two outstanding players have spearheaded the Saints' drive to basketball honors. They are Ted Batchelor and Billy Dickie. They compiled an average of 26 points per game over the season while Billi was just two points behind. It is more than likely that Batchelor's mark is a record or near record in secondary schools activities of the campaign. The two top points-getters is what could be called a friendly duel over the season with Dickey having a slight edge until the latter stages. In fairness to him, he was sidelined for a short period with an injury.

Both boys gave outstanding displays of courage and stamina in the final game with Oshawa when both were handicapped with injuries but gamely stayed in the fray until victory was assured.

And coming up with splendid supporting efforts were other members of the squad. Dick Pearce, who had an average of seven points; Eric Beeby with seven; Jim Green with five; Bob Elliott with four and Ted Strome a guard. And while not perhaps in the spotlight as much as the players is Coach Johnny Hayman, who has done an outstanding job in mentoring his squad to their first title in top bracket competition.

The Saints left today for Toronto with the best wishes of their school and the COSSA Bay of Quinte District. Coach Hayman, allowed a squad of ten players, took three members of the school's junior "B" Saints with him. These included Roger Walters who had a points average of 25; Brian Hobbs, 8, and Ron McBride, a guard.

Hold Chihawks for 3-2 Win As Canadiens Whip Leafs 8-4 To Ease Rangers Into Playoffs

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Detroit Red Wings are two victories away from their eighth National Hockey League championship in nine years.

The most consistently powerful team in the league's history has but sewed up the top spot Thursday night when they survived a third-period surge by Chicago Black Hawks and took a 3-2 victory in Detroit.

Montreal Canadiens kept hot on their heels with an 8-4 trouncing of the Toronto Maple Leafs—which assured New York Rangers of the last playoff spot—but even if Canadiens win all of their remaining four games two Wing wins will still keep Montreal in second place. Wings could ensure first place in a single game by defeating Canadiens at Detroit Sunday.

INDIVIDUAL RACE HOT

Gordie Howe scored a goal to stay three points ahead of winger Ted Lindsay in the scoring race as Lindsay collected an assist, but Canadiens' great Jean Beliveau had a goal and four assists to draw to within a point of Lindsay.

Despite the win, Canadiens' Jacques Plante had into a tie with Detroit's Glenn Hall in the goaltending race. Each has allowed 150 goals.

The Detroit game was almost a replay of the Red Wings' victory Tuesday which Detroit won 4-3. Red Wings took a 2-0 lead, then Chicago roared back with two third-period goals.

Johnny Bucyk and Lorne Ferguson and Gordie Howe scored the Detroit goals—Howe's 42nd this year—and Jack McIntyre and Eddie Litzenberger scored for Chicago.

Litzenberger's goal was his 31st this year to make him the first Black Hawk to reach that total since Bill Mosienko in 1951-52.

At Montreal, before 14,356 fans, Leafs played wide-open hockey in a desperate attempt to keep their playoff mathematical chances alive. But the strategy backfired, as Canadiens got 38 shots at Ed Chadwick. The 12 - goal total equalled a 6-6 tie between New York and Chicago as the highest-scoring game this season.

Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion, who recently returned to action, had Canadiens' goals by Doug Harvey, Beliveau, Maurice and Henri Richard, Dean Prentice, Claude Provost and Don Marshall scored the rest. For Leafs it was Tod Sloan, Ed Sandford, George Armstrong and Tim Horton.

Floyd Curry, veteran of nine seasons on the Canadiens' right wing, was given a "night" by Montreal fans who collected everything from a new car to a year's supply of pickles, but he didn't get a point during the game.

Denies Fighter Was Not Paid For Toronto Bout

TORONTO (CP) — Manager Emmanuel Villar, whose fighter, Pedro Jiminez, was reported in the legislature to have received nothing for a fight at Maple Leaf Gardens earlier this year, has denied the whole story.

Villar backed up statements made by Athletic Commissioner Mervin McKenzie in reply to Harold Fishleigh, Progressive Conservative member for Woodbine.

McKenzie denied that Jiminez, who speaks only Spanish, had a contract with Villar. Fishleigh's aide called for a cut of the gate only if the Spanish middleweight champion won.

"As his manager," Villar said, "it was paid $1,000, representing a 17½ per cent of the Gardens' gate as stipulated in the contract, win or lose."

Jiminez lost the fight and according to Mr. Fishleigh's statement, was found to be suffering from a mental illness which put him in hospital, and his wife and family were left with no support because Jiminez received no part of the purse.

NOT IN HOSPITAL

But Toronto boxing matchmaker Jack (Deacon) Allen said earlier that it was not true that Jiminez fought for nothing. Neither was it true, he said, that the fighter was being cared for in a mental hospital. However, he had received out-patient treatment from such an institution.

Allen said Jiminez and his fiancee came to Canada about six months before the Martinez fight and up until then, Villar paid him $60 a week. The fighter would have amounted to $590 more than Jiminez' purse.

He said commission physician, Dr. Tom Somerville barred the Spaniard from the ring for three months after he tangled with Martinez, because of two cuts he received in a knockdown, not because of any mental aberration.

The matchmaker said Villar was seeking another fight for Jiminez last week but no opponent was available.

Sarnia May Yet Have Grid Team

SARNIA (CP)—This city may field a team in the Ontario Rugby Football Union after all.

Maurice Chilton, ORFU vice-president and Sarnia businessman Joseph Cohen met Thursday with the parks board and reached an agreement whereby the football club could use Athletic Park for a flat $3,500 rental for the football season.

Chilton and Cohen held talks with other citizens, discussing the purchase of the club franchise from the present owners. They said new owners would reorganize the club and decide on proposals to be made at an ORFU executive meeting on Saturday.

The present owners Tuesday announced their decision to withdraw because of poor support at the gate.

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Calvin Griffith, president of Washington Senators, says he and Chuck Comiskey of Chicago White Sox are getting close to a deal. Comiskey agrees.

Eddi said Thursday they had reached agreement on a tentative trading list, but the names were not disclosed. It was learned, however, that Chicago is interested in third baseman Eddie Yost, outfielder-infielder Roy Sievers, and pitcher Jim Constantine.

Washington was reported to be holding out for a "first-line outfielder" and possibly some young pitchers.

When Brooklyn Dodgers were offered polio shots this spring, they were advised the shots weren't particularly necessary for persons over 40.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — An attack of the mumps put Brooklyn Dodgers Thursday, sidelining pitcher Roger Craig for an indefinite period. Also stricken was Pete Christianson, pilot of the Dodgers' private plane.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — New York Yankees first baseman Bill Skowron became the first major casualty of baseball's spring training season. X-rays revealed he suffered a fractured right thumb in the second inning of a game against Philadelphia at Clearwater.

Doctors estimated Skowron would be lost to the world champions for about a week. The husky slugger was hit on the hand by a pitch from Jack Sanford, a Phillies' rookie righthander, in the fourth inning.

BRADENTON (AP) — "Don't count me out," declared Detroit Tigers' catcher Andy Pafko said Thursday after he cracked a grand slam home run to lead Milwaukee Braves to a 12-9 exhibition victory over Brooklyn Dodgers.

The 36-year-old outfielder added "I'll be around as long as my legs hold out. I feel as if I could play maybe 75 or 100 games this year."

Ah, Thursday Was a Sad Day For Top-Rated Lefthanders

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Five Dye proven National League southpaws, Thursday was a day they would probably rather forget.

Three of the lefthanders—John Antonelli of New York Giants, John Podres of Brooklyn Dodgers and Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell of St. Louis Cardinals—are among the top-rated in the league.

Veteran Paul Minner is trying to make the grade with Pittsburgh Pirates after an accident apparently ended his career and Chicago Cubs' second baseman, Jackie Collum, is with his third different club in as many seasons.

Antonelli, a 20-game winner in 1956, made his first spring appearance as the Giants bowed to Baltimore 7-6. He was the victim of a five-run third frame. He allowed three hits—including a home run by Gus Triandos—and walked four.

Podres, who beat the Yankees in the seventh game of the 1955 world series and then was drafted into the U.S. Navy, was shelled for eight runs in the fourth inning by Milwaukee. The young hurler, discharged from service last fall because of a bad ailment, gave up a pinch grand-slam homer to Andy Pafko and a three-run blast run by another pinchhitter, Jim Pendleton.

Podres was the losing pitcher as Milwaukee won 12-9. In two innings he yielded five hits and allowed three bases on balls.

Once again Mizell's wildness led to his downfall as Boston scored all four runs off him in the first inning to beat St. Louis 4-0. The big speed-baller, who had a 14-14 record last season after two years in the U.S. Army, walked four men and failed to get a batter out. He gave up an infield hit, but only two runs were earned.

Cincinnati sent five runs across the plate in the first inning against Minner before he could retire a batter and went on to hand Pittsburgh its first setback after five exhibition victories, 7-4. Art Schult's homer with a man aboard was the big blow.

Collum played with Cincinnati in 1955 and was traded to the Cards, who dealt him to Chicago for the 1956 season. He pitched three innings of relief for the Cubs and defeat at the hands of Cleveland in 13 innings. He was touched for five runs.

Eisenhower Allen Rivera and Jim Landis each slammed a pair of homers as Chicago White Sox trimmed Washington Senators 13-2; Gil McDougald's triple and Tony Kubek's single gave the Yanks a 3-2 triumph over Detroit in 10 innings, and Bobby Morgan's ninth-inning homer—his second of the game—enabled Philadelphia Phils to edge Reds Cincinnati 7-6.

ENTRIES ANNOUNCED

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Six definite entries were lined up for the summer schedule of the International Baseball Association Thursday night.

They are Detroit, Saginaw, St. Thomas, Pontiac, Toledo and London. Another possible entry is Flint.

Association directors will meet again March 24 to draw up a schedule.

It was announced that pitcher Dizzy Trout and catcher Mike Tresh, formerly of Detroit Tigers, would hold pre-game schools for sandlotters when Detroit plays in St. Thomas.

Chevs Beat Macs 7-3 In 5th Game

Rowdy Fans Pelt McFarlands With Rubbers, Paper Near End; Kwong, Savards Spark Chevies

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

CORNWALL—An inspired bevy of Cornwall Chevies sent 1665 of the faithful into paroxysms of joy here last night when they turned back the Belleville McFarlands 3d for four straight victories with a decisive 7-3 triumph over their erstwhile conquerors.

The victory sent the Eastern Ontario senior "A" semi-finals series into its sixth game scheduled for Belleville tonight with the McFarlands leading the affair three games to two.

The game lacked 20 seconds of its finish when fisticuffs broke out between the McFarlands' Keith MacDonald and the Chevies' Bingley, a climax to an all-evening feud. Irate spectators at the other end of the arena started pelting McFarland Gordie Bell with rubbers while teamgoers used water pistols. Showers of paper cups and programs littered the ice.

The MacDonald-Bingley feud ended but the spectator demonstration continued. Gordie Bell skated to the boards after being rubber-showered and threatened rowdy fans with his stick. The rubbers continued to fly until Referee G. Pranschke of Ottawa announced he would award the game to Belleville if the pelting was not stopped.

The Cornwall gendarmerie was conspicuous by its absence except for one who sat in the penalty box. However no physical damage was done and the game went to its finish. The McFarlands again met a shower of paper as they left the ice for the dressing room.

The Belleville team while outplayed by a Cornwall team that, born of desperation could do nothing wrong, was minus Lionel Bottrell in bed with the flu. Coach Bep Guidolin was suffering with the virus but gamely went on to play.

He was forced to shuffle the entire lineup using various forward combinations and playing himself as an aid to Moe Benoit and Floyd Crawford who did yeoman service behind the blueline.

And penalties did not help the Macs' cause. They had nine of the fourteen handed out by the officials with MacDonald and Bingley drawing majors for fighting. Three of the Macs' miscues proved costly.

All of which takes nothing away from the fine performance staged by the Chevies. From the first whistle it was evident they were out for victory "blood." They skated hard going both ways, checked fiercely and availed themselves of every opportunity that presented itself. They spotted the Macs a 2-1 lead in the first period, went on to tie it up and take the lead, and from then on were never headed.

The Macs battled gamely in a lost cause but it was the Chevies' night to howl — and howl they did. Their passing was clicking and they defended Devaney nobly with a stubborn, almost tight defence.

Larry Kwong and the Savard brothers, Moe and Rheal were the sparkplugs for the riverside team. Kwong got himself three goals, Rheal Savard, two goals and two assists, and Moe four helpers. The other Chevie goals were scored by Ron Muir and Rheal St. Jean.

Minnie Menard sniped a pair for the Macs with Rene St. Hilaire getting the other and an assist. Bobenie, Willie Menard and Bep Guidolin also had helpers.

The Chevies had an edge in territorial play in the opening period and from the start it was evident they were victory — bent. It was wide open hockey with the shuffle in the lineup definitely affecting the Macs' play.

They incurred two of the period's three penalties and in the latter session scored one of their goals with the manpower advantage.

Larry Kwong got his first goal of the night while Benoit was off teaming with Moe Savard and Burke for the counter. At 7.32 Rene St. Hilaire climaxed a fine passing play with Willie Menard to knot the count and 41 seconds later Minnie Menard broke from a Chevie power play to race in on Devaney and beat him cleanly to put the Macs one up.

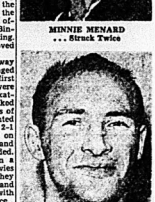
Midway through the period, Bobenie was chased and Kwong tied the count with his second goal of the night with the Savards assisting.

Plamondon got chased but the Macs were not clicking around the Chevies' goal. At 17.10 Ron Muir batted in the puck from a goalmouth scramble and with 15 seconds to go Rheal Savard gave the Chevies a 4-3 lead with those two Moe and Limoges in on the play.

The Chevies did not let up their heavy pressure in the second period with Kwong and the Savard brothers spearheading a fine offensive.

Bell was good despite the pair of goals, stopping Chevie attackers twice on his doorstep.

Guidolin had his first penalty of the period and for the third time the Chevies took advantage of manpower. Larry Kwong fired his third goal at 7.30, helped by Rheal Savard and still the Chevies maintained their offensive.



At 15.10 MacDonald and Bingley got the gate for mild fisticuffing and the Macs took over. They failed to penetrate the tough Chevie defence with Devaney being brilliant at times.

With 44 seconds to go Rheal Savard got his second goal of the night on a short goalmouth passing play. Guidolin got the gate just before the gong rang.

The Macs regained some of their earlier form in the third period but it was too little and too late.

MINNIE MENARD
... Struck Twice

RENE ST. HILAIRE
... One and One

They whittled the score to 6-3 on Minnie Menard's second goal from Guidolin but penalties again hurt their offensive efforts. Benoit and Guidolin went off within minutes of each other but the Macs held the fort.

The Macs fought back hard after Menard's goal but the Chevies got it back when Crawford overskated a goalmouth puck and Rheal St. Jean pounced on the rubber to fire it home.

Then came MacDonald - Bingley rhubarb and the fans' rubber-tossing reaction.

Had Broken Collar Bone, Didn't Know It

KITCHENER (CP) — Halfback Bobby Kuntz of Toronto Argonauts played the last six games of the 1956 Big Four football schedule with a broken collar bone he learned Thursday.

Nobody was more surprised than Kuntz.

The Canadian player was having his shoulder x-rayed for an old injury which had been treated here.

"When did you break your collar bone?" a doctor asked.

"Never," said Kuntz.

But the x-ray plates showed a clean break, now completely healed.

Kuntz said he hurt his shoulder last fall, but it was diagnosed as a damaged muscle and he played out the schedule.

Toronto Rink Takes Trophy

TORONTO (CP)—Earle Hushagen's rink from Toronto Royal Canadians Curling Club won the Harvey J. Sims Trophy and the Ontario Curling championship with a 14-4 victory Thursday night over W. Nelson of Brampton.

In the consolation final for the Albert Dunker Trophy, Jack Hastie's Kitchener-Waterloo won 15-7 over H. S. Michie of Barrie.

The game went an extra end after Michie had scored a three on the 11th end and one on the 12th.

Harris won his semi-final match with Ted Sanders of Peterborough, 13-6, and Michie defeated Reg Merritt of Grimsby, 12-8.

Weill Blocks Rocky's Debut In Night Club

CHICAGO (AP)—Rocky Marciano's proposed career as a night club performer has been blocked by Al Weill, Marciano's manager during his ring reign.

A night club announced Thursday Marciano, retired heavyweight boxing champion, will not make his debut Tuesday night in an act bandlining comedian Jimmy Durante.

David Halper, club owner, said contracts were signed three weeks ago with Marciano and Durante but without Weill's consent. Then Weill notified him Marciano could not appear in the act.

Halper said he does not know Weill's present relationship with Marciano, but assumed Weill is serving as Marciano's business manager since his retirement.

New League Will Highlight Baseball Confab

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — Agreement over the newly-formed Great Lakes Baseball League is expected to be one of the highlights of the annual convention of the Ontario Baseball Association being held here Friday and Saturday.

Two clubs from the apparently now disbanded Intercounty Senior Baseball League — London and Brantford—together with Hamilton aim to operate the new Great Lakes Baseball League, play an interlocking schedule with the Niagara District Senior League, and send their winner to OBA playdowns.

It is reported that the continuing Intercounty association, which operates senior B and lower groupings, will ask the OBA not to accept affiliation with Great Lakes until classification of players and territorial rights are clarified.

Littler, Casper Tourney Tied

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) Bill Casper, Jr., 25-year-old pro from San Jose, Calif., fired a five-under-par 66 to tie with Gene Littler of San Diego, Calif., in the first round of the $12,500 St. Petersburg Open Thursday.

Four Teams Will Compete for Bata Trophy

CAMPBELLFORD — Although there is officially no Trent Valley Hockey League, four district teams have decided to hold a round - robin series to compete for the Thomas Bata Trophy, which used to be symbolic of the league championship. Some of the teams that played in the TVL in former years, entered OHA Intermediate "C" competition this year, with the result that there was no contest for the Bata Trophy.

The four teams that will compete are Campbellford, Brighton, Frankford and Hastings.

Dates for future games have not yet been announced, but will be decided upon by the executive of the four clubs taking part. The series will be completed as soon as possible, because the teams will have to use natural ice rinks for their games, and with the spring weather on the way, the life of the natural ice rinks is limited.

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — James Stewart, one of the all-time top stars of the movies, lives in an English-style home on Roxbury Drive in Beverly Hills.

It is a roomy, comfortable house but not a mansion by Hollywood standards. It sits side-by-side with other 30-year-old houses on the tree - shaded street while its inner stars live in homes surrounded by acres of grounds.

After Jimmy and his wife, the former Gloria McLean, bought the house, they moved out in front and gazed at the ivy-covered exterior. "Oh, dear," she gasped, "it looks like a dormitory!"

"Well, isn't it?" Jimmy deadpanned.

For a 42-year-old bachelor, Stewart certainly acquired a family in a hurry. His wife has two boys by a previous marriage, 12 and 11, and the Stewarts have twin girls, Judy and Kelly, nearing 6.

After retakes for his new western, Jimmy Stewart sat in his den one late afternoon, nursed a scotch and soda and answered a variety of questions. The answers came slowly and earnestly, interrupted by young Mike and Ronnie, home from military school, and Judy, recuperating with her sister after a double tonsilectomy.

Q. If you didn't act, what do you think you'd do?

A. Probably fly. I'd be an air-

THEATRE FEATURE TIMES

AT THE BELLE — Eddie Fisher, Debbie Reynolds, Adolphe Menjou, Tommy Noonan in "Bundle of Joy" — in Technicolor — 2.30-7.30-9.25.

AT THE McCARTHY — "The King and Four Queens" in CinemaScope with Clark Gable, Eleanor Parker — 2.35-7.40-9.45.

AT THE PARK — First Showings — "Rebel in Town" John Payne, Ruth Roman — 1.30-4.25 — "Emergency Hospital" Margaret Lindsay, Walter Reed — 3.15-6.10-9.05.

Q. When did you get the flying bug?

A. I guess I've always had it. I first learned to fly in 1935 at Mines Field, now Los Angeles International airport.

Q. What are your favorite pictures?

A. Certainly The Glenn Miller Story. Harvey is a sentimental favorite, maybe because I played it on the stage first. I'm sure even 10 years from now I would pick The Spirit of St. Louis, because the Lindbergh story is very close to me. I suppose I'm identified with Mr. Smith Goes to Washington as much as any picture.

STARTED IN COLLEGE

Q. How did you happen to become an actor?

A. I did a little stuff in college (Triangle Club, Princeton). Then I was lucky to hook up with an outfit that included Hank Fonda and Josh Logan (Provincetown Players). When you go on the stage and people say you're doggone good, you know that's what you want.

Q. Do you resent people saying you always play Jimmy Stewart?

A. No, because I AM playing James Stewart. There's nothing wrong with being typed. The bad thing is when you develop a set of mannerisms and rely completely on them.

Q. What do you think of your future?

A. Eventually I'd like to direct. I'd like to use the tools I've developed in my years in the movie business. If I haven't learned enough in all this time, I'd better quit and go back to my father's hardware store.

GOVT. SPREADS

He made no change in the 10-per-cent excise tax on automobiles, but pulled out the levy on motorcycles, fountain pens, ball-point pens and similar items, as well as on gold-plated and silver-plated ware, earthenware, crystal and glassware, china figurines, porcelain and pottery.

Cigaret smokers get no tax break.

THREE DAYS' SHARE

The entire tax cuts were estimated to involve the amount to be about three days' share of the record government spending of $70,170,000,000 and expenditures of $5,018,000,000 forecast for the fiscal year 1957-58.

Mr. Harris forecast another hefty surplus and said he would be tucking away $100,000,000 to further increase the civil service superannuation fund and build up the federal reserve against writeoffs and losses.

This surplus was based on a gross national product-value of $34,000,000,000 for 1957, instead of $31,250,000,000 for 1957.

The budgeted debt now is just under $11,000,000,000, the lowest in 13 years and it appears it may be cut further in the year.

Mr. Harris argued this was approved by the fact that more Canadians had to save more and reduce the need for imports to stave off inflation.

OTHER PROVISIONS

Other tax changes include:

1. Permitting a widow to a nursing home for full-time care of an all-ing taxpayer. The wife or dependent may be included in medical expenses. This is an extension of the current allowance for full-time attendants for those persons confined to bed or wheelchair.

2. Also qualifying for medical expenses will be payments made for full-time care in a nursing home of a dependent certified as a retarded child.

3. Individuals and corporations aiding in the building of rental housing for elderly persons may include such payments in charitable donations.

Reaction to Budget Contains More Barbs Than Bouquets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Initial reaction to the federal budget, as generally publicly expressed, contained more barbs than bouquets.

Criticism was directed on one hand at what the budget didn't do —chiefly that it did no relief to personal or corporate income-tax rates; and on the other hand, at much of what it did do, on the ground that it did not do enough.

Initial reaction to the budget was too scattered to make an assessment of the attitude of the average Canadian to the scattered tax cuts and increased social benefits.

Perhaps the most positive "thumbs" came from the Atlantic Provinces where Howard A. Mann executive manager of the Maritimes Transportation Commission, said he was "delighted" with the increased freight-rate aid for the Maritimes. He described it as "the first real break in our freight-rate will in 30 years."

This did not mean, however, that the Maritime Freight Rates Act had been brought up to date.

"NOTHING FOR PRODUCER"

On the critical side, J. N. T. Bulman of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said the budget could be summed up in a slogan for the young, a tip-of-the-hat to the old, and nothing for the producer."

The Toronto Daily Star editorialized "the government's paternalistic attitude that people can't be trusted to use their own earnings wisely."

The finance minister's failure to grant at least some relief in the personal and corporate income-tax fields, and his failure to afford industry any tariff relief, left W. Arthur Gladstone, president of Consumers Glass Co., highly disappointed by high taxes, and competition from imports.

Harvey Perry of Toronto, director of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said, however, that while the budget in this area, basically, could not expect much considerations, it got some. Several items in the budget, this year, would be exempt from sales tax and a few minor concessions were made under the income-tax rate.

PHRASE-MAKERS BUSY

The budget at least seemed to offer a field-day for phrase-makers.

Mr. Bulman called it a "sunrise and sunset budget" in that practically its only dollars-and-cents gestures were directed at "the kiddies and the older people."

Mr. Perry described the finance minister's description of a "family budget" a remarkable.

"Father is going to be encouraged to put away more for his retirement; he is going to find it easier to make out his income-tax returns this year, and to claim allowances for charitable donations and other expenditures he may not have made otherwise; is going to find that tea, coffee and soft drinks will be cheaper; liquor products will be slightly cheaper; and the kids will get more for their money from the makers of drinks, candies and chewing gum."

Premier Bennett of British Columbia described it as "a chewing gum budget," adding that economically increase in old age pensions should be at least $20.

FROST NOT PLEASED

Premier Frost of Ontario said the budget failed to foster economy plus and no relief to municipal and provincial taxpayers. The federal government's share of total Canadian 1957 expenditures will be $2,000,000 while the people of Ontario "groan under direct taxation which is forced upon us by Ottawa."

Frank G. Hogan, vice-president of Chrysler Corporation of Canada, said failure to eliminate the special 10-per-cent excise tax on automobiles would be viewed with alarm by many many Canadians.

The tax had been levied as a war time emergency, but last year 11 years after the emergency had been ended, collections totalled more than $72,000,000 from it, and, since the war, Canadians have been collected more than $370,000,000 for this special tax on motor vehicles.

The tax, he said, was not only inequitable but economically unsound.

NO INSURANCE COMMENT

Insurance companies withheld comment on a budget feature which might greatly expand their opportunities in the pension field —the provision which allows income-tax reduction for all Canadians buying annuities or paying into other retirement - savings plans.

Insurance spokesmen indicated that the matter required study before they could comment on it.

Francis R. Gregory of Leamington, president of the Canada Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Board, expressed disappointment that cigaret taxes were not cut.

"Apparently," he said, "our industry is the victim of the current inflation scare."

Senator J. Gullett, Toronto dentist, said income tax concessions announced for doctors, lawyers and other self-employed persons will relieve government discrimination against professional men.

Self-employed persons will be allowed deductions for money invested in annuities and other forms of pension planning.

PENSION PLAN LIKELY

Dr. Arthur D. Kelly, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said:

"It's quite likely that we'll soon create a pension plan. This change is something we've been trying to get for a long time."

R. M. Sedgewick, secretary of the Canadian Tax Foundation, said in Toronto the budget has few changes that will affect the average person.

Mr. Sedgewick said he "expected the government could have done more than it did without getting into trouble over inflation."

Union Official To Be Questioned On Fund Handling

WASHINGTON (AP)—Frank W. Brewster, Teamsters Union official who defied one Senate investigation, faces questioning at another on how his handling of welfare funds.

Brewster, president of the western conference of Teamsters, has been named by other witnesses as the man who sent two Seattle gamblers to Portland, Ore., in an effort to muscle in on gambling and prostitution there. He has been accused also of misusing union funds for personal interests.

His appearance before a special Senate committee investigating labor-industry racketeering followed his refusal two months ago to answer questions before the Senate rackets investigating committee. He was cited for contempt of Congress.

SECRECY CHARGED

Meanwhile a federal grand jury was to resume its investigation of charges of secrecy in the Teamsters Union vice-president, James R. Hoffa.

Hoffa was arrested Wednesday night by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on charges he hired a New York lawyer, John J. Kenny, to try to get the Senate committee staff and feed Hoffa committee secrets.

Kenny reported the situation to the committee, joined its staff, and underwent several FBI interviews before he turned some documents to FBI's.

Hoffa was arrested with the papers on him," observed Senator John McClellan, (Dem., Ark.) committee chairman.

IMPORTANT FIGURE

McClellan described Hoffa's importance this way:

"Mr. Hoffa practically controls all Teamsters except railroads between the Atlantic Ocean and Pacific Coast. He is the key figurature of his figure in the Teamsters Union according to the best information I have."

Hoffa's position as international vice-president of the Teamsters gives him jurisdiction over Canada's 26,000 members in 26 locals, as well as over eastern and southern states.

Hoffa, who was seized by the FBI late Wednesday night, read the committee reporters and said he will "fight this case until I am cleared."

Pearson to Make 'Strong Protest' To Washington

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson said today Canada will make "a strong protest" to Washington over a report released by a U.S. Senate subcommittee which he said contained "slanders and unsupported insinuations" against Canadian Ambassador E. H. Norman.

Mr. Pearson, in a statement to the Commons, said that a 1951 Canadian security check of Mr. Norman, former ambassador to Egypt, gave him a clean bill of health on accusations that he was a Communist.

Mr. Pearson said the 1951 check was carried out with Mr. Norman's consent and co-operation. As a result "my confidence in Mr. Norman's loyalty was not weakened in any respect."

He said in the report of the U.S. Senate internal security subcommittee did no more than repeat the charges that were made before 1951.

Nothing that Mr. Norman had done since 1951 had affected the government's confidence in him unless it was to increase that confidence. The minister said the ambassador "has my complete continued admiration."

Mr. Pearson spoke scathingly of the sub-committee's action in issuing the report which, he noted, was released on the eve of the budget speech.

"It will not be the first time that a report of a committee has been published at the time of important parliamentary proceedings in the United States in order to prejudice them," he said.

Statements in Thursday's report by Senator Jenner (Rep., Indiana) referred to in the press and radio as "evidence," he said. Senator William Jenner is chairman of the committee, had stated that it was a report of the staff and counsel of the sub-committee and yet it had been made public.

Mr. Jenner said "we have very little respect" for the methods of Mr. Jenner and his counsel, Robert Morris.

Banks' Housing Aid $150,000,000 In Coming Year

MONTREAL (CP)—The Bank of Canada, promising a new money pool of $150,000,000, announced Thursday from chartered banks to make a "reasonable number" of housing mortgage loans this year.

The accord, reached at closed discussions between Bank of Canada Governor James Coyne and chartered bank representatives, gives some help and hope to Canada's house-building industry, currently caught in a slump.

The Bank of Canada said in Ottawa approved housing loans this year should reach 15,000 units —20,000 less than in 1956.

Mr. Coyne gave assurances that the Bank of Canada would stand ready —up to the target of $150,000,000—available to the banking system for government - assured housing loans. This would ensure the loan money would not be drawn away from other available for other banking operations.

BOOKKEEPING EASIER

"With this assurance ," said President F. W. Hicks of the Montreal City and District Savings Bank, "the chartered banks should be able to make ,a reasonable number of mortgage loans in 1957."

His statement was released after Thursday's discussions.

He also revealed that "no early conclusion" can be expected on another Bank of Canada proposal for investing over long terms bank holdings of government savings.

Mr. Hicks said this would involve "time and careful consideration," indicating the far-reaching proposal would be dis-cussed for months.

Mr. Coyne's plan, tantamount to a fundamental change in banking practices, would tend to free more money for mortgages in periods of tight money conditions create stiff competition for available capital.

Canadians Newborn or 70-Plus Get Something Out of Budget

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians from the newborn to the 70-plus get something out of the big federal budget.

There are boosts in federal family allowances and universal old age pensions. And there are increases for war veterans and their dependents, and prospective higher pensions for the blind and disabled.

Ottawa estimated that all these increases would affect about 3,-000,000 persons, not counting the youngsters who get family allowances that go to their parents.

Most spectacular single increase in social benefit payments is that of an expected $40,000,000 a year to the universal old age security 70-and-over pension, which will be raised from the present $40 a month to $46.

Another $40,000,000 a year would go to swell family bonuses; $25,-000,000 a year for various boosts in payments to different types of war veterans and dependents and a possible $6,000,000 for higher federal contributions to the blind, disabled and needy persons in the 65-69 age bracket.

COSTS ESTIMATED

A government tabulation issued with the budget estimated these benefit payments will total $85,-000,000 in the government fiscal year that starts April 1 and $133,-000,000 a year after that.

Family allowances increases start April 1 and the old-age security April 1, 1958.

For those parents receiving family allowances, there will be a $1 a-month boost in the current payments for each child under six years and $2 a month for those between 10 and 12. This will have the effect of cutting to two from four the present number of categories of the baby bonus payments. It will not affect the intervening group with the 6-8 year group that now gets $3 a month. It also will equalize the 10-12 group with the 13-16 group that gets $4 a month.

BOOKKEEPING EASIER

The upshot will be $6 a month for those under 10 and $8 for those over that age, up to 16 years. The move appeared to simplify government bookkeeping while spreading around a little more money.

For the 70-or-over citizen, there is an unequivocal pension boost of $6 a month.

For the 65-69 group, the federal government splits the 65-69 old age assistance payments with the provinces. The budget announcement adds a maximum $3 a month, provided it is matched by provinces, and it is on a means-test basis. A recipient has to be in the needy class.

The various types of payment increases to veterans and dependents are on sliding scales. But the maximum amount will be about 20 per cent in each of the various categories.

VETERANS' INCREASES

A single pensioner with 100-per-cent disability will receive $150 a month instead of the present $125. A married pensioner with similar disability will receive $200 a month, up from $168.

A pensioned widow will receive $115 a month instead of $100. Maximum award for veterans with one dependent parent will be raised to $135 from $120 and for two dependent parents to $115 from $100.

Disability pensions assessed at varying rates from five to 100 per cent will be increased proportionately.

Helplessness allowances — for veterans who require the attention of a constant companion—will be increased to $120 from $106 a month. The allowance for single men will remain at $60 a month.

Ceilings on income which a needy veteran may earn and still receive the allowance will be raised to $360 a year from $240 in the case of single men and to $1,020 from $1,440 for married veterans.

There now are 54,000 persons receiving war veterans allowances.

Question of Authority

By ROY L. SMITH

The bitterest battles of history have been fought over the question of authority. Who has the right to rule, to make laws, to exercise police powers, to manage the economy of a nation, to choose the rulers?

And in similar fashion the bitterest battles in the field of religion have been fought over the question of authority. Who has the right to enter the temple, to interpret the word of God, to act as God's spokesman, to dispense the benefits or organized religion?

AUTHORITY AND LIVINGS

Quite unfortunately, the question of authority is so many times mixed up with the question of some men's livings, or the economic advantages of classes or groups.

No less than 22,000 priests depended upon the Jerusalem temple system of their living, and they were all easy livings. No priest was expected to give more than about two weeks' service out of the year, and for that pittance of labor, he was provided with economic security for life.

individuals were immediately and seriously concerned.

No one need be surprised if a crucifixion occurs after the lush livings of 22,000 individuals are threatened. It is so easy to drag the question of authority in after an offense like that.

AUTHORITY AND TRADITION

There is no more powerful authority on any community than tradition. And inside a church it can be something very deadly. No one can even estimate the number of good plans that have been killed the moment someone has said, "We never did it this way before, in this church."

It is a fact, of course, that time honored precedents and programs have a right to be considered very seriously. There is no virtue in change when changes are made only for the sake of changing.

But suppose that Cyrus McCormick's reaper had been greeted with the same kind of reception that is given to some of the suggestions of the new preacher's "We have always done it this way. We always got our wheat cut all right. We have no need to change our plans for cutting our grain just because this man McCormick has moved into the neighborhood with his new-fangled ideas."

There is the story of the old churchman who confessed to his pastor one day, "There have been a lot of changes in our church since I joined it 40 years ago, and I have been opposed to every one of them."

Jesus refused to be drawn into an argument by the religious authorities of His day. On one occasion some of John's friends came to him with the trouble-some question of authority and Jesus answered, "Go back and tell your Master what you have seen; the lame are walking, the blind are seeing, and the poor are having the Gospel preached to them." He was willing to rest His case on the facts as what was happening to the people.

Any church whose work is making saints out of sinners, whose preaching is making better men out of bad men, whose services are sending plain people out better equipped to meet the day's needs, does not need to worry about its authority. It is proving its authority.

Toronto Couple Die Of Injuries In Marmora Crash

Train Crew Rescues Them From Drowning in Swamp

MARMORA — A young Toronto expectant mother and her husband were saved from death by drowning near here Friday, only to later die of injuries received when their late model sedan skidded into the side of a northbound CNR freight train on No. 7 highway east of Marmora.

Mrs. Nancy Warrington, 22, of 80 Clairview Heights, Toronto, and her 25-year-old husband, Douglas W. Warrington, were thrown from their car into a swamp when the train ripped the side out of their car.

They were pulled from two feet of water by members of the train crew and were rushed to St. Joseph's Hospital at Peterborough where they later died of injuries.

Doctors in Peterborough failed in a desperate attempt to save the young mother's unborn child but the baby was stillborn.

ON WAY TO WEDDING

The Warringtons were on their way to Montreal to attend the Saturday wedding of Mr. Warrington's brother Thomas when, on the fog shrouded highway two miles east of Marmora, their car crashed into the side of the Canadian National freight on a fog shrouded level crossing.

Police said that apparently Mr. Warrington failed to see the train in the fog and he smashed through the car to the right and applied the brakes but failed to stop before crashing broadside into the side of the locomotive.

The train was travelling slowly at the time and was stopped within the length of the locomotive.

SPILLED INTO SWAMP

The two occupants of the car were spilled from the crushed vehicle into the water — filled swamp and CNR Fireman Arnold Hall, 30, of Macdonald Ave., Belleville, jumped from his engine and waist pulled the unconscious woman from the water. He was assisted by other crew members of the train.

"Mrs. Warrington would have drowned in the swamp if it hadn't been for Mr. Welch and other members of the crew," OPP Cpl. Douglas Sears of Madoc told newspapermen.

Engineer on the train was Arthur Brown, 303 Ann Street, Belleville, and the conductor was Lloyd W. Garrow, 51 Canniffon Road, also from Belleville.

Mrs. Warrington were treated at the scene by Drs. R. C. Shatford and E. E. Parkin, both of Marmora, and were then taken to Peterborough by Flouden's Ambulance but doctors were unable to receive them.

Mrs. Warrington's still - born child was born shortly before she died. The baby was expected in April.

Mrs. Warrington suffered a fractured skull, broken ribs, internal ruptured spleen and liver and internal injuries.

Word from Toronto that the Warrington's three-year-old son Stephen might have also been in the car was sent police to investigate the accident scene.

"We thought the child might have been missed in the swamp," said Cpl. Sears.

However, word was later received that the child had been left in Toronto with the mother's sister.

Most Provinces Ready to Assist In Helping Needy

OTTAWA (CP)—Spokesman for a majority of provinces have indicated they are prepared to go along with the federal government in raising maximum payments on their joint programs of aid to the needy aged, the blind and disabled.

That was the reaction to Thursday night's announcement in Finance Minister Harris' budget that the federal government proposes to boost the maximum payments in those three programs which are shared with the provinces. Top payments, under a means test, would be boosted from $60 from $40 a month effective July 1.

The shared payments to the needy aged apply between ages 65 and 70. Like disability allowances, their cost is split 50-50 between the two levels of government. For blindness allowances, the federal government pays 75 per cent and provinces 25 per cent of the cost.

IN LINE

The increase is in line with the budget's announcement that old age pensions to all 70 and over, financed wholly by the federal government, also will be raised to $46 from $40 on July 1.

A federal official said increases in the shared welfare programs could not be disclosed to the provinces in advance of the budget, but that a telegram went out Friday to all provinces requesting their views.

In six provincial capitals, premiers or other spokesmen publicly announced willingness to go along. For old age assistance to those 65-69 and for disability allowances, each level of government would bear $3 of the increase. For the blindness allowances, the provinces would have to shoulder $1.50 of the $6 hike.

Provincial indications of acceptance Friday were New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Premier Matheson of Prince Edward Island said a statement will be issued next week following cabinet discussion.

Officials of Newfoundland and Quebec could not be reached immediately for comment.

CALLS IT DISGRACE

In Victoria, Health Minister Eric Martin of British Columbia termed the $6 increase in old age pensions totally inadequate and a disgrace to the government of Canada." He said federal government should match the B.C. bonus of $20 a month—after a means test—to make the maximum pension $100.

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: The low pressure trough will produce showers and scattered thunderstorms to Southern Ontario Friday as forecast. Lighter precipitation spread across James Bay and westward during the weekend. Winds and air mass behind the night bringing snowflurries here and there. In the north overnight temperatures were generally in the low 10s. A slow improvement throughout northern regions is expected for tonight and Sunday. However, temperatures will be a little lower.

FEDERAL ELECTION MAIN DEBATING POINT IN HOUSE

Oliver Says Premier's Speech Political Dud

TORONTO (CP)—The projected federal election has been a main debating point again in the Ontario legislature.

Premier Frost said his speech Thursday attacking federal government fiscal policies was interpreted with "no intention of engaging in federal politics."

A storm of noise from both sides of the House brought the intervention of Speaker W. Downer, who said much latitude has been allowed and he suggested Liberal Leader Oliver—the new Liberal—debate.

Mr. Frost said Mr. Oliver had always scrupulously adhered to this and he suggested that indulgence be granted. The Speaker agreed.

Said Mr. Oliver: "I would rather proceed with the indulgence of the premier."

DENIES INTENTION

Mr. Frost hastened to denied any intention of plunging into a federal politics debate, said he had called for discussion of budget estimates for the planning and development of resources, and invited him to speak on federal policies.

Mr. Oliver said the premier's speech Thursday was a political dud." If the premier wanted to discuss it, he could then with the Liberals would co-operate. If he wanted an election the federal election the Liberals also would co-operate.

Police said that apparently Mr. Warrington failed to see the train in the fog and he smashed through the car to the right and applied the brakes but failed to stop before crashing broadside into the side of the locomotive.

Policeman, Accountant Shot By Gunman in Bank Holdup

VANCOUVER (CP) — An audacious bank accountant and a rookie police constable who refrained from shooting because "I was afraid I might injure someone in the crowd" are in hospital here with wounds inflicted by a gunman.

Shot in the chest when he grappled Friday with the gunman after following an attempted holdup of the downtown main branch of the Royal Bank of Canada was accountant Ronald Compston.

Shot in the face from a distance of less than two feet was constable K. C. Miles, 27, who chased the bandit after he emerged from the bank at the intersection of Hastings and Granville Streets. Both victims were reported in satisfactory condition.

Police said a 42-year-old man will be charged in the attempted holdup, which took place shortly after 2:30 p.m. They did not specify the charge.

Several pedestrians helped subdue the gunman after he had shot constable Miles.

Mrs. Shirley Waller, a teller, said the bandit presented her with a wicket and pensenced her with an envelope, then muttered: "This thing she could not make out. When he produced a revolver she stepped back and screamed.

The holdup man fled, with two accomplices, including Compston, in pursuit.

At the door Compston grappled with the bandit and was shot in the 22-calibre bullet entering his of it.

chest and lodging near the 12th rib barely missing his heart.

Compston staggered towards constable Miles, who was ticketing an over-parked car. Miles said later he remembered hearing a "small explosion."

The constable pursued the fleeing bandit some 100 yards along the sidewalk unbuttoning his holster as he ran down the sidewalk. Miles said later: "As far as I could see he was unarmed. I contemplated drawing my gun, but I was afraid I might injure someone in the crowd that had gathered."

Miles added: "I thought I could get him without gunplay."

He said he was less than two feet from his quarry when the gunman drew a "small nickel-plated revolver" and fired point-blank into his face.

"I just reared back and he missed," said in hospital. "I struggled to my feet and grappled with him. Then the civilians jumped in. It was a brave thing to do."

The policeman said he handed the cuffs to those holding the bandit—"Then I drew my gun and held it on him until the police, in a matter of seconds. I just didn't know what a man like that might do."

The struggling bandit was finally disarmed by Jim Almas, 35, a bank customer who had joined the pursuit. Almas was nearly hit by a third bullet when the gun went off as he and the bandit man fought for possession

Egyptian Spokesman Declares Gaza Accord With UN Reached

GAZA (AP) — An Egyptian spokesman says agreement has been reached "in principle" on the function of UN troops in the Gaza Strip. He did not elaborate, but it was understood in most they would be restricted to positions along the Gaza-Israeli border.

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Gumhurriya reported that Egyptian troops will occupy two points inside the Gaza Strip to protect the state of affairs existing before the Israeli aggression."

The newspaper said Egyptian forces would occupy Rafah and Abu Aueigila, two points just inside the strip.

Officials at Egypt's Palestine department said they had no information regarding the movement of troops into Gaza.

Al Gumhurriya quoted a "responsible source" in Gaza that UN Emergency Force troops would withdraw completely. from the Gaza city area and take up positions along the armistice lines within 48 hours.

Israel expressed alarm over the speedy return of Egyptian control in the Gaza Strip, against which Israeli forces reluctantly evacuated after a campaign under strong UN and U.S. pressure.

Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir was en route to the United States for urgent talks with State Secretary Dulles and UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold. She called the situation in Gaza "extremely disturbing" and said her main purpose is to "contact the American government" before Israel makes any decision on the new crisis.

Hammarskjold, who had planned to fly to the Middle East today, postponed his trip until Monday.

Mr. Meir conferred with French Premier Guy Mollet today during a stopover in Paris.

The Egyptian comment on the UN Emergency Force agreement Force was made by Brig. Amin Helmy, army division officer with the Egyptian delegation. Helmy he had discussed with UN Undersecretary Ralph Bunche and Major-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, UNEF commander. UNEF's new position was not disclosed. Burns assumed administrative responsibilities.

"We have reached agreement on this position," Helmy said.

While he left it at that, there was no doubt among other informants here that Helmy meant the Egyptian position as laid down by President Nasser has decided to allow passage to Israeli ships through the Suez Canal when it is reopened.

Otherwise, the dispatch says, Egypt is prepared to settle the canal problem on the basis of Secretary-General Hammarskjold's six principles. These principles—endorsed by Britain, France, the United States and Egypt—call for free access to the waterway, recognition of the sovereignty of Egypt, and insulation of the canal from the politics of any country.

HUGE AIR BRIDGE FROM LONDON TO CANADA STARTS

British, Hungarian Emigrants in Flights

LONDON (CP) — Two planes carrying British and Hungarian emigrants left Britain Friday, forming the first span in a huge transatlantic air bridge to Canada.

A four-engine DC-4 took off from London for Vancouver and a second chartered airliner left Prestwick in Scotland for Toronto. The British Overseas Airways plane carried 46 Hungarians and 29 Britons; the second plane carried 60 Hungarians and 18 British subjects.

The flights marked the start of the Canadian government's "airbridge to Canada" plan—one of the greatest airlifts in times of emigration. By August 25,000 British emigrants will have flown to Canada in 350 flights.

Gordon Cumming, London head of the Canadian immigration service, saw the emigrants off. Grahame Mitchell, first secretary at British Columbia House, also was present along with representatives of the inter-governmental committee for European migration, which is organizing the airlift.

THE ONLY WAY

"A mass airlift was the only way to deal with the problem of the mounting backlog of would-be emigrants to Canada so they can get a start in establish themselves before next winter. Regular sea and air facilities cannot meet the demand for space because they are heavily booked with tourists."

The majority on Friday's flights were Hungarian refugees, but subsequent flights will be booked solid with British subjects.

"There wasn't enough time to fill the planes with British emigrants and get the first flight away on time," said Cumming. "Some Hungarians are in transit camps and ready to leave at a moment's notice."

The Hungarians on the initial flights are the first of 5,000 soon to the United Kingdom who will go to Canada before the end of the year. Most others will travel by sea.

At least three more flights will be made by the airliners this week, two to Toronto and one to Vancouver. Later, flights will also be made to Winnipeg and Edmonton.

WEST IS BEST

"Western Canada now is in the best position for the arrival of emigrants," said Cumming. "There is a great shortage of labor in agriculture, lumber and the professions."

Given the airlift will not handle the rush of Britons anxious to get away before the end of the first two months of this year, more than 80,000 Britons completed application forms and passed the required medical examinations at Canadian immigration offices in London. Cumming said it looks now as though close to 100,000 Britons will emigrate to Canada this year.

The fares for the airlift is a flat rate of £71 10 shillings (199) for adults regardless of destination in Canada.

People of Irish Descent Dusting Off Green Ties for St Patrick's Day

BY THE CANADIAN Press

The O'Briens, the O'Haras, the Flynns and the rest of Canada's 1,500,000 people of Irish descent are dusting off green ties and shamrock cutting sprigs of shamrock for Sunday is St. Patrick's Day, March 17 when the Irish dead of the missionary who converted the Irish to Christianity in the fifth century have developed varied forms.

The date of St. Patrick's birth and even the date of his death vary and Holy Trinity Church Almanac 17 marks the presumed anniversary of his death about 461 A.D.

It is agreed he died at Abbot Down, Ireland, but several Irish counties have pictured him variously as a native of Ireland, England, Scotland or France.

There also are those who assert that Ireland's patron saint was really a Scotsman, born at Kilpatrick, near Dumbarton.

It is generally accepted he was born in 389 in England and was educated as a Christian. Kidnapped at the age of 16 from his father's farm by pirates, he was sold to a Druid chieftain in county Antrim in Northern Ireland.

Six years later he escaped from captivity and returned to France where he became a monk, first at Tours and later at Lerin, one of the most celebrated monastic schools in Europe.

St. Patrick is said to have gone to Rome in 431 and later was sent to Ireland by Pope Celestine to preach in Ireland. Irish biographers say he founded 300 churches there and personally baptized 12,000 persons.

Legend has it that St. Patrick made the shamrock immortal when explaining the Holy Trinity. Druid priest challenged the mystery of the Holy Trinity. The missionary plucked a shamrock from the ground and held it aloft to show that three leaves were on one and one in three.

Today, Ireland boasts a church and monastery in County Armagh which was to become the cradle of learning for scholars from many parts of Ireland England.

One of the foremost religious group services on St. Patrick's Day is broadcast by the BBC from Down Cathedral, the ancient memorial church at Saul in County Down. The church stands on the spot where the saint is said to have preached his first sermon to after rearing from Rome in 432.

Believe More Canadians Will Join Force in Gaza

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Pearson has warned that lack of co-operation by Egypt can wreck United Nations efforts to bring peace to the Middle East.

The Gaza Strip, from which Israel recently withdrew her forces under UN urging, is the "immediate field of conflict," the minister told the Commons Friday. He helped progress would be made toward finding "a reasonable balance between the practical position and the legal position of Egypt in the administration of Gaza."

Speaking during an all-day debate on foreign affairs, he also said Egypt's co-operation with the movement of Canadian reinforcements to the UN force in Egypt would have "serious effects" on how any further Canadian participation and therefore for the force as a whole.

CONFIDENT WILL JOIN

But he was confident the reinforcements—144 members of the Canadian Army now at the Naples base—would join the force "as soon as Egypt's attitude in the normal way."

Mr. Pearson's statement brought from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker the charge that the minister still has "abiding confidence" in Egyptian President Nasser, a dictator of a man who had torn to shreds every suggestion of international responsibility.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Pearson in effect gave "tacit approval" to the entry of "Nasser and his legions" to take over the civil administration of the Gaza Strip. This despite the fact there was nothing in Nasser's record to indicate he now would "become good or do anything instead of a ravenous individual to whom appeasement is simply support and encouragement to a further challenge to the free world."

Alistair Stewart, CCF foreign affairs spokesman, said UNEF administration of the Gaza Strip and passage of Israeli ships through the Gulf of Aqaba should be the object of Canadian policy in the Middle East.

If the UN accepted an Egyptian blockage of the gulf, "Israel is bound to fight." This could lead to general war.

NOT ITS FAULT

Soon Low-Leon Credit leader said if Canadian policy hasn't achieved its aims it wasn't the government's fault. Some conflicting statements by cabinet ministers might lead one to believe Canada had no policy.

After listening to various opposition views on the Middle East situation, Mr. Pearson took the floor just before the debate's end to say that abusing Nasser would set Canada nowhere.

If Russian arms were pouring into Egypt, as some claimed, it would not be wise to attack Nasser in such a way as to drive him

NEW YORK (AP)—A Staten Island bank manager gnawed his way to freedom after being handcuffed to a sapling Friday by kidnappers.

Raymond M. Fynn, 47, manager of the Mariners Harbor branch of the Richmond County National Bank, was accosted Thursday night as he walked along a Staten Island street.

After driving around with three men, Fynn said he was taken to a wooded area and handcuffed to the bottom of a sapling about an inch thick. All the while, Fynn said, the men quizzed him about the bank, the safe combination and the alarm system.

The men left and Fynn gnawed for three hours, finally weakening the sapling enough to snap it in two.

No attempt was made to enter the bank but about the time Fynn called police, a gunman robbed a supermarket several miles away of $5,000. Police today are questioning Fynn about the $5,000 kidnapping may have been a ploy to cover the supermarket holdup.

Beck Is Given 24 Hours to Produce Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate racket investigators indicated today they have fixed a 24-hour deadline for Dave Beck, Teamsters Union president, to comply with a demand for his 1949-55 personal financial records.

While hearings in recess until Tuesday, committee sources said they intend to subpoena Beck's records unless the Teamsters chief quickly gives them to the committee voluntarily. A similar request for Beck's records went out nearly a month ago.

There have been allegations that funds of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters of America were used to pay some of Beck's personal expenses.

Beck left Washington Friday he hadn't received the committee's new request. Added: "I am not taking a position on this until I see what the committee wants and then I'll make up my mind."

The special committee was set up to investigate alleged racketeering in both labor and business.

Its hearings to date have dealt with the affairs of the Midwest Teamsters officials to take over rackets in Portland, Ore.

Maple Syrup Makes Debut At $6 Gallon

Fresh maple syrup, making its appearance of the season, was the centre of buying interest on the market today.

Response to syrup from newly tapped maples of the vicinity was good at 90c a pint, $1.75 and $3.25 a gallon.

Vegetables presented in the popular berry boxes also got a good play. Potatoes, carrots, onions and beets were selling for 15c, 15c, 20c and 20c respectively in these convenient size containers.

All other staples maintained the same steady prices which have prevailed with few breaks throughout the winter.

Capons, chicken and fowl asked 60c, 50c and 45c.

Eggs and Russets topped the assortment and flavorful apples at 80c with Macs Delicious and Sweets trailing closely at 75c.

After a momentary one-cent spurt two weeks ago, eggs fell back to the long prevailing price of 47c for extras 43 for large and 40 for medium, last week and continued to hold this level today.

Home made pastries, jams, clothing, and needle work at bargain prices drew much of the indoor crowd.

Potted plants were popular by customers seeking to brighten their homes before the snow has grown flowers come into bloom.

Belleville Pair Wins Consolation Finals Events to Be Played Tonight

The booming slashes of big Stan Reston in the backcourt and the smart set play of partner Bill Bonnell enabled Belleville to capture the first completed event in the Ontario Badminton Association championship played at the armouries last night.

Reston, who is also one of the leading golfers of the district, and Bonnell, fought their way past Slessor-Champ Cowley, Dulmage-Collver and Jim Hatfield-Jeff Rose of Trenton to win a hard-fought men's doubles consolation finals.

Loreen Potts and Betty Walmsley came within an ace of giving Belleville a second title in the women's doubles but tired in the final stages as Kay Measurvey and Roma Brindle of Peterborough rallied strongly to take the crown.

In the male events of the men's and women's doubles, favorites came through as expected.

Ivers, campaigning for Grant Henry playing in improved form and partner Ken Crowe, built up a thoroughly impressive two strong teams from Oshawa, Long-Long and Smith-Mellon, to qualify for the finals in straight sets.

On the other side of the draw Central Ontario champions Gallagher and Tighe also swept through without loss of a set turning back Ayer-Charlton of Peterborough and the highly rated pair of Martindale-Slyver in the semi-final.

Defending women's doubles champions Hayman-Rice of Oshawa, overcame a stiff challenge from Oshawa's Hopkins-Mayas and will clash with another Oshawa team, Beamish-Reddick in the finals today.

Neither team scored in the first period last night but Madoc jumped into a 2-0 lead early in the second. Marmora came back with a pair to make it 2-2 but again Madoc scored for a 3-2 margin.

The homesters then applied the pressure, netted a pair for a 4-2 lead by the end of the second and wrapped it up with four unanswered in the final twenty minutes.

Jim Trumble and Brooks led the Marmora attack with two goals each and Jack Jones had one. Three points on a goal and two assists. Trumble had one goal, and Earl Cousins while Lavender bagged the other marker. Jones had two assists.

MacLellan potted two for Madoc with Hickle getting the other. Jud Semark claimed a pair of helpers with one each going to Wardell-Hickle and Brown.

There was a full attendance at the annual meeting of this organization, and was well attended by the people from the seven counties of Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Hastings, Prince Edward, Northumberland and Durham which it services.

Mr. Stanley Mackin of Cobourg, president of the association commended the Directors, namely Mr. Aylmer Petherick of Campbellford for being the breeder of a herd of Ayrshires that produced the Tone, one of the unit sires that was selected to be displayed and sold at the International Dairy Show in Chicago in 1956 and also at the Royal Winter Fair. This animal was Reserve Grand Champion at both of these shows and along with her maternal sister which was sired by Regaboone Sir Royal Supreme Quinte Unit sire, made up the winning group for the Quinte Unit in 1956 at the Royal Winter Fair shown by the same breeder. Mr. R. Bell Brown of Belleville was also congratulated for being the breeder of a Holstein cow, Pinehill Pocket Tycoon a third Quinte Unit Holstein sire, which was the first prize aged cow in milk at the 1956 Royal and All-Canadian aged cow for 1956.

Dr. J. M. McLean, manager of the association in making his annual report stated that the Association had bred a total of 53,697 cows in 1956 which was the largest volume of business conducted since the initiation of the Association. By breeds there were 24,188 services to Holstein bulls, 2,022 to Jersey bulls, 529 to Ayrshire bulls, 375 to Guernsey, 1,019 to Dual Purpose Shorthorn, 4,329 to Scotch Shorthorn and 4,299 to Herefords. The average number of services per conception was 1.85 which is a very good record. This fact emphasizes that the proof on this work is always four to five years in obtaining. He stated that a much higher percentage of services was being conducted by the Artificial Insemination than was done in those early years.

He also stated that frozen semen is being used more and more every year. In 1956, 265,000 ampules of frozen semen were distributed at the Ontario Veterinary College in Guelph, which was 100,000 more than in 1955. He recommended the installation of equipment at the Guelph Laboratories to provide selective service to sires at an additional service fee.

Concerning the control of disease, he reported that artificial insemination was serving as one of the most effective means of control of diseases such as bibrio fetus, Brucellosis and Trichomoniasis, all diseases which can consistently be spread through the use of sires naturally.

The election meeting for the afternoon was introduced by Ralph Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland county.

Mr. W. P. Watson, the livestock commissioner for the Ontario department of Agriculture, in his address first dealt with the subject of insemination in Ontario in the past eight years. In 1948 only 5,000 cows were bred artificial in this way in Ontario. In 1956 very close to three hundred thousand dairy cows were bred in this manner. This is a figure that is by far the largest for any province in Canada, and is only exceeded by a few states in the United States such as Wisconsin, New York and Minnesota. Mr. Watson stated that this progress of recognized and considerable receptive characteristic in cattle as well as the domination of certain bulls. Every precaution should be taken to prevent the spread of these undesirable characteristics. Properly observed in the procedure of artificial insemination a reduction in these characteristics can be achieved.

Mr. Watson also urged the Association for 1957 which was approved is as follows: Napanee; Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield; James Broad, Hugh Wilson, Kingston; William Simpson, Kingston; William Hume, Campbellford and Harold Detlor, Stirling.

IN MEMORIAM

KELLY — In loving memory of a loving husband and father, Charles Kelly, who passed away March 16th, 1938.

There's a sad but sweet remembrance,
Memories fond and true,
There's a token of affection,
Dear Father, left by you.
A heart of love and kindness,
Oh happy hours we spent,
Dear Father memory still;
Sweet memories are priceless,
The world can never fill.
Sadly missed by wife of God, in the valley of rest so fair;
Sweet memories are left to mourn me,
When I am gone.
I will meet my dear husband there.
—Sweet memories are always treasured by his wife Gertrude and family.

ISALENT. — In loving memory of a dear mother, Antoinette Isalent, who passed away March 16th, 1956.

Sweet memories are left to mourn me,
Dear Father, Vincent Paul Isalent, who passed away March 16th, 1941.
We little knew when we woke that
The sorrow the day would bring;
Before the sun had sunk to rest,
Our mother lay dead.
To part with the ones we loved so dearly
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Courage and faith we have found,
But in His wisdom God has planned,
Beyond our power to see.
God gave me strength to fight it,
But what's the use, I know now;
For what I've done to lose Mother,
I'll never know.
—Sadly missed by daughter Fermina, son-in-law Mike and grandsons.

Police Blotter

Family quarrels and arrests arising out of LCA interactions kept the police busy during Friday night.

Just half a dozen men were charged with drunkenness or for having liquor other than at their residence.

A family quarrel between two brothers at 4 Station street, Frederick sent one of the brothers to hospital with a shoulder injury. Another quarrel was reported between two men at a Dundas street service station.

Two windows were reported broken at Dussell Brothers plant on Station street. Police said no entry was made and reported the damage breaking apparently was the result of activity on the part of a prankster.

A Life For Living

The Narrow Gate of Discipline

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Did you ever watch a butterfly in a garden? I do not know how life looks to a butterfly, although I sat next to a young lady at dinner some time ago and ever since that time I feel I know more about what a butterfly sees and thinks.

Watch the little fluttering thing as it flits over a garden, first in this direction and then in that, starting toward one flower and then suddenly distracted by another. Somehow or other I feel that a butterfly's view of the world is far less satisfying than that of the eagle whose flight sweeps in mighty swings from crag to crag. The eagle gives the impression of going some place, and yet his eye must revel in gorgeous vistas on the way.

The godly man gets the viewpoint of the eagle, not the butterfly. He cultivates singleness of eye, but that does not mean narrowness of mind. He is not meant to be a narrow fanatic projecting his world on his way to heaven. But he should have an eye single to the essentials of life so he does not miss the truly great things in gaping at the trifles.

HOTEL IN NAZARETH

Some years ago I spent a night in a hotel in Nazareth. It lacked all the luxuries and most of the conveniences of an American or Canadian hotel. I pitied anyone who had to stay in such a tawdry little place. Then I got to thinking about a carpenter who lived in Nazareth 19 centuries ago. The town was far more primitive then. Yet the Nazarene Carpenter lived such a full, rich life men have been seeking His secret ever since. Some make so much out of so little. Others of us make so little out of so much.

Strangely enough, the way to fullness of life is through self-restriction. So often I think the broad, self-indulgent life is the way to happiness. But I think at the moment, if I want the full, free use of my body which the athlete enjoys, I must forego some midnight suppers and follow the strict rules of eating at the training table.

If I want the full enjoyment of the musician whose fingers can dance up and down the keyboard while his mind dreams in the theme of the composer, I must shut myself in and practise those finger exercises. I might want to forego them—and my neighbors might wish I would—but musicianship requires discipline and practice. Truly, fullness of living in any realm is through the narrow gate of discipline. If only young people could understand the good life is not the narrowness of asceticism but of athleticism.

There is a fullness of life which comes with self-discipline. Some time ago I heard a noble man tell his views of life on reaching his 80th birthday. He said life was growing simpler to him as he reached the end of the road. He realized some of the things that once worried him no longer really counted; but he was finding that fundamentals counted for so much life was growing richer.

FOCUS ON FULL LIFE

Growth is more than mere "moreness." It means organizing life on higher levels. It means seeking first the kingdom of godly ends and then finding earthly essentials are added. In this way Christ taught His followers to focus their eyes on the full life.

Here are three suggestions for living the full life: singleness of eye, strictness of discipline, simplification of ends. Yet something more is needed.

Just to hold counsels of perfection before people is not enough. It is all very well to set up ideals as our goals. But if the ideal goals seem too far away, men fall into cynical doubt and often give up hope of reaching them. We need standards as well as ideals. An ideal is something to aim at; a standard is something to take hold of. And unless we have something to take hold of here and now, we may never see our aim.

The Chinese have an ancient proverb to the effect that even the longest journey starts with the first step.

Thomas Carlyle joined in the same injunction. He said if we do the duty near us and then the duty next to that, it is amazing how the light begins to break on the ultimate duty.

On my visits to schools and colleges I am convinced the youth of today have better social ideals than in my boyhood. But ideals must be developed into standards. That is the task of the local community. And my next duty in helping my country to the full life is in my own neighborhood—maybe in my own home.

Days And Customs Of All Faiths

St. Patrick, Patron of Ireland

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Sunday, March 17 — Today is the day of the great patron of Ireland, St. Patrick himself, who was born on March 17 in or about the year 389 and died on March 17, 461. He was not an Irishman, but the country of his birth—England, Scotland, or France, whichever it was—has nothing like the claim on him that Ireland has.

Patricius Magonus Sucatus was the son of a deacon and the grandson of a priest, but as a young lad he had not much interest in religion. It was not until the age of 14 when he was carried away by raiders who sold him as a slave in Ireland that, as he put it, he "found God."

For six years he served his master as a shepherd, and out there in the fields and hills of northern Ireland he began to pray and meditate and to develop the spiritual resource that later were to make him God's instrument in the salvation of a whole country. Finally he ran away from his slavery, caught a ship and returned home. But it was not long until God called him, in a dream, to go back to Ireland. His preparation was long—30 years of it—but this time he was going on the Lord's business and he must go properly equipped. He was 43 years old when he began his great mission.

REAL CHARACTER OBSCURED

The rich accumulation of legend about St. Patrick has obscured his real character, presenting him mostly as a wonder worker, a sort of religious wizard, rather than the affectionate, sensitive and statesmanlike priest he actually was. Fortunately, there are still enough of his own writings extant to give us a true picture of the man. From them we see that he went to work with wisdom and imagination.

He addressed himself first to the leaders, the tribal chieftains, as the quickest and most efficient way to reach the whole population. He rode up and down Ireland in his chariot for 30 years and in that time, according to his own testimony, converted the entire island. He established 365 churches, and beside each one he erected a school.

ANGLICAN CLAIMS TO PATRICK

Most of Patrick's work was done in the north of Ireland, the part that is now mainly Protestant, and though much of the world is accustomed to think of him as a Roman Catholic saint, the Church of Ireland, which is Anglican, claims him for itself.

Patrick's headquarters was at Armagh, which is now the seat of the Anglican Primate, the Archbishop of Armagh. St. Patrick's Cathedral in Dublin is the Anglican cathedral.

Patrick is almost always shown in Christian art holding a shamrock. The reason for this is the legend that, in explaining the doctrine of the Trinity to the heathen (Druid) priests, he customarily used the little three-leafed plant as an illustration of how three may yet be one.

There are three patron saints of Ireland. The position is held jointly by St. Patrick, St. Brigid and St. Columba.

SHUSHAN PURIM

Also Sunday — Yesterday was the 14th of Adar in the Jewish calendar, the date of the great happy festival called Purim, which commemorates the time when Esther, Jewish queen of Persia, outwitted the evil prime minister Haman who had plotted to destroy the Jews.

Today, Adar 15, is known as Shushan Purim because of the statement in the book of Esther which says the Jews in Shushan, capital city of Persia, did not celebrate the occasion until the day after those outside the city had done so.

Not much is made of this any more. If it were a school day, the children would get the day off. And of course there are still some of the Purim delicacies left over to be eaten. These are called "Purim crumbs."

Everyone hates to let a joyous time end abruptly. Shushan Purim affords a chance to hold on to the glad holiday just a few hours longer.

THE BUDGET

Hon. Walter E. Harris, Canada's minister of finance, may be wrong — but he is honest.

That was evident after he presented his budget to the House of Commons Thursday.

Very few Canadians were jumping for joy after they had finished perusing newspaper reports of his submission.

When a pre-election budget produces this reaction, its author deserves compliments on putting convictions ahead of the coming campaign.

This does not mean that there is not room for legitimate criticism of the financial theories on which Mr. Harris, and the Liberal party, base their fiscal policies.

It does mean, though, that Canadians have escaped their greatest peril, a budget designed to please everybody now at the expense of certain disaster later.

It is not difficult to draw a picture of the type of dishonest budget which Canadians were spared. It would be one which cut taxes drastically, increased spending considerably, particularly in the field of welfare benefits; a budget which would produce a deficit instead of a surplus.

To describe an honest budget is somewhat more difficult, for there are two distinct theories as to the type of policy which is best designed to meet the present inflationary threat.

The Liberal party's theory is that consumer spending is best curbed by maintaining a high level of taxation and by budgeting for a surplus.

The Conservatives, on the other hand, are espousing the argument that high taxes are in themselves an inflationary influence and that the road to economic stability lies in the government sharply reducing taxation, while at the same time maintaining restraint in spending to avoid that deficit which all agree would add fuel to the fires of inflation.

Mr. Harris did, in the words of The Canadian Press, "spread a thin layer of tax cuts before the Canadian taxpaying public," but these tax cuts do not appear to be extensive enough to either endanger the economy, if the Liberal theory is correct, or to curb inflation, if the theory of the Conservative theory that tax cuts would help prevent prices rising.

Support for this view may be found in the initial reaction of manufacturers and distributors of items affected by repeal of the 10-per-cent sales tax on tea, coffee, cocoa and prepared desserts and of the 10-per-cent excise tax on soft drinks, candy and chewing gum. The Canadian Press says that there are indications that consumers of most of these articles will not benefit in the form of lower prices. Some price reductions, it says, will be cut-and-dried, and Coffee prices will go down, tea prices will be cut soon, and candy bars may be lighter, but that is all. This gives the Liberals cause to smile. But the Conservatives can also point to the contention of soft drink and chewing gum manufacturers that the tax cut will enable them to hold prices firm in the face of rising costs.

On the other side of the balance, the budget did provide for some increases in expenditures, such as age pensions, family allowances and allowances for veterans and their dependents. In the face of the rising costs of living, these increases do not seem to be overly generous, however, no government with a conscience could have avoided some increase in benefits for the old age pensions and veterans' allowances, for example. Indeed, if criticism is to be levied here, perhaps it will most reasonably take the form of a protest that a $6 increase in the old age pension is wholly inadequate. It is estimated that this will cost an additional $60,000,000. To raise the pensions to $50 would have cost $40,000,000 more. This $40,000,000 could have been found without increasing total expenditures further than does the existing budget, by the simple expedient of leaving family allowances unchanged. Most Canadians will be convinced old age pensioners are the more needful of much greater need of an additional $4 than are the parents of children under six and of children between 10 and 12 in need of additional help.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce, in a statement issued from its headquarters in Montreal, says that: "The significance of the budget brought down last night by Mr. Harris is to be found, on the one hand, in the inescapable fact that high government expenditures allow little leeway for reducing the burden of taxation."

This is the type of observation which is open to more than one interpretation, with all interpretations the subject of lively controversy.

The Chamber's own statement does not help us much in interpreting the meaning which it desired to be given to the sentence quoted above.

"In the light of the government's appeal to Canadians to save in order to combat the evil of inflation, the chamber feels that little has been done to apply that principle to government expenditure," reads another sentence.

How does one reconcile that with the earlier assertion that there is "little leeway for reducing the burden of taxation?"

Perhaps the Chamber meant little leeway without a change in government policies. There is a hint of this in the statement that "except for the aged, the indigent and the unfortunate, Canadians should be encouraged to provide for their own futures." This could imply criticism of the increased family allowances for children in certain age groups. The entire elimination of these allowances though, would not automatically allow the government to cut tax rates by a proportionate amount, for an upward readjustment in the exemptions allowed income tax payers with children would then become imperative. For most Canadians, family allowances are no more than income tax exemptions in another form.

One thing, though, does appear true — even if the government can do little to cut expenditures, it has not done that little which it could do.

A thorough-going adherence to the theory that budgeting for a surplus is the best way to fight inflation would have the effect of making this surplus as big as possible — concentrating savings in the field where the inflationary pressure is worst, that is in capital expenditures.

This would mean the postponement of work on new public buildings of all kinds, except in that minority of cases where immediate action was essential to maintain efficient services.

That, however, would be asking too much of any government on the eve of an election.

Perhaps we ought to be content with the fact that the Liberal budget is a reasonably honest presentation of the Liberal party's monetary theories and provides an excellent issue for the various political parties to debate in the election which lies ahead.

Can't reduce council nor engage manager, The Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature in Toronto on Tuesday refused to grant this city the right to reduce the number of aldermen from twelve to six and also decided against the city engaging a city manager. A clause in the bill giving Belleville the right to hold its elections on the first Monday in December carried unanimously as did the bill clause confirming a by-law for the creation of a Public Utilities Commission. With regards to the reduction in the number of aldermen, Hon. David Croll, Minister of Municipal Affairs, said frankly a way Belleville can accomplish this and it is through a Board. The Nations' Airy Navies

Ottawa Journal

A major general of the United States army is predicting that "several decades hence"—good that, we must to have the horror upon us at once—air battles will have moved upwards to the outer reaches of the world and all the wonder that would be. Saw the heavens filled with commerce, argosies of magic sails,

Pilots of the purple twilight dropping down with costly bales;

Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rained a ghastly dew

From the nations' airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Lord Tennyson wrote that when airplanes in the air was no more than a dream of the dreamers, when an overnight flight from New York to London would have seemed as impossible to the Victorians as it now seems to this generation a battle in outer space.

Windows May Kill Birds

Stratford Beacon-Herald

The ordinary song-bird faces many hazards in its life, but no one has been added. A California organization, Friends of the Birds, Inc., calls attention to it.

Many modern homes have picture windows, and we either like the reflection of a mirror, or another window revealing fields or trees beyond, much as birds are tempted to fly against the window.

This is dangerous to migrating birds, especially. Local birds seem able to avoid the hazard, according to the Friends of the Birds. But in spring and fall there are large numbers of birds taking part in their annual migrations, and such things as picture windows take their toll.

All that is necessary is to use the drapes or blinds, with which most of these windows are equipped. A mirror could be draped, or the shade pulled down on a window that allows too clear a view through to the other side of the house

THE GOOD MAN

They hired me when I was a boy,
Not over-kind they've failed to keep me on
For tasks they had.

Here year by year I've come and gone,
Through good and bad.
I've worked for what my strength could earn,
Wage slim or low.
And I am one they still employ
Now I've grown old.

This business I have tried to learn;
Its needs I know.

They've prospered as the years went by
And shared with me.
They've called me, said, good man am I,
I've tried to be.

India's Italian Shakespeare

By Srimati S. Rajoo in Unesco Features

Anywhere else but in India, where present history is largely affected by the unexpected, it would be unbelievable to imagine that the finest poem ever written in the Tamil language is — an 18th Century Italian priest.

Constanzo Giuseppe Beschi was born in 1680 near Mantua and educated in Rome, where his aptitude for languages and his interest in India soon destined him for missionary work. He became a member of the Society of Jesus in 1698 and, four years later, landed in Goa. There he learned Indian languages and he was trained in holy duties before being sent to the Madura Mission.

The Madura Mission had been the subject of bitter debate in the hierarchy of the Church for nearly a century. Robert de Nobili, an Italian-born noble, a relative of two popes and a nephew of a cardinal, had established this mission on rather unorthodox lines. He claimed to be a Brahmin from Rome, where Brahma the God of Creation originated, and a direct descendant of the Roman Brahmins, to order the sending of missionaries to work in the Indian country and save the high caste Brahmins. Two papal bulls were won from over by him, taught him his Tamil and Hindu manners and customs and he became Regent of Madura. He was received as a Brahmin and allowed to preach.

De Nobili took the Indian name of Tatwa Bodhaka Swami — the Teacher who Teaches the Truth — and darkened his skin. Clad in ochre robes, he wore sandalwood ash on his forehead in the Saivite manner and wound the sacred thread of the Brahmins around his chest. He abstained, in his mission zeal, he spoke the Tamil language fluently. He translated into it hundreds of high-caste Hindus to Christianity, the Church protested and finally, in 1744, banned it. But he persisted and Rome finally capitulated. Pope Benedict XIV confirmed the privileges of the native but, unlike his predecessor, he was never reprimanded. He was respected by many of the Indians of Madura, both as a spiritual leader and as a man of the world. Beschi, at one time, served as minister to Chundah Sahib at Trichy — the grandson named Nawab of Arcot in their struggle against the British for control of South India. Beschi had to flee Trichy in 1740 when the Maharattahs defeated Chundah Sahib. He died in Ummal still his death a 18,000 rupee annuity from the French, four villages given to him by his prince.

But his honours did not stop with Chundah Sahib's death. In the name of a Muslim saint, Italian Banyan, he founded his own the privileges of a noble of his court. Beschi was even presented with a Christian palanquin of Chundah Kaleb's grandfather.

Beshi lived like a Hindu religious leader. Everyone respected him as a Saravasi of the highest caste, and few, if any, knew him as a foreigner during his lifetime. He was still in demand as a missionary. In addition to Italian, his mother tongue, he acquired Hebrew, Greek, Latin, Portuguese, Spanish, and French. In India he learned Sanskrit, Persian, Telugu, Hindustani and Persian, the last two being the sacred languages of Chundah Saheb, Tamil and Telugu being the spoken languages of the Nair and Malabar peoples. In all of them he was equally at home, fluent and scholarly.

Beschi's missionary, who taught Beschi the intricacies of Tamil grammar, was a noted lover of literature and a mastery of the written and the spoken Tamil language. Tamil is a Dravidian prose and verse proves that he was a master of this language perfectly.

"In 1784", writes a modern historian of Tamil literature, "there appeared Beschi's great Tembavani, a work of considerable merit in verse vying with the five epics of yore. It is a long relating in the form of an incidents, historical and traditional, drawn from the Old and New Testaments. In beauty of diction, in sweep of imagination, and in flights it seem to soar, it does not still, which is their way of expressing ourselves, appear to be packing up; the birds are agitated.

But here is unforseen, accidental. Its fury is contained, by wind, by changing wind, by the influence of rain, and at last by inevitable rain.

Flood, on the other hand, is expected. All nature knows it will come, in some measure, before it arrives. Sometimes it will come in a rage, tearing and destroying when it does, but the rainfall over a wide area builds up its strength. Other times, it will come more moderately, but violent and destructive nonetheless.

In spring, the smallest brooks become engines of construction and destruction, even in the true sense of the word. They uproot trees, bulldoze, smash out new channels, build their own dams to increase their power, cut out old dams in sudden devastation, and whatever life they encounter in their time of power, whether animal or plant, is lucky to survive.

But in the river, in which massive ice accumulations are added to the destructive power of the debris, the full might of flood as nature's most destructive force is unleashed and there is it terrifying to watch some of the big northern rivers in their annual passage. No power on earth can restrain them. No change of direction can be made, and man's ingenuity can do more than prolong their fury.

Like humans, the wild creatures can flee to high ground and wait out, if they are quick enough. But it is a sad time for the wilds, since at this very season of the year the females of so many kinds of animal, from moose to mouse, are in mating and the tiny shrew are heavy with their young.

Spring is just around the corner. But what a fateful corner it is that has yet to be turned.

POTENTIALS

There are potentials in us all—hidden possibilities to be discovered and developed that are not apparent. Often it takes failures to light a spark that brings them to the subconscious. Often it is a turn of events that reveals them. Sometimes they are in all of us, and only await our discovery.

I wonder what Edison was thinking about as he worked at his telegraph instrument? Did he have dreams of the many inventions that he later revealed? Undoubtedly not. He was just experimenting, not nothing that he didn't later test out and discover. He even installed an empty set of phonograph records and only await our discovery.

Edison cared little for money. Apparently he was more than full out of early inventions that left to others to carry out and perfect. He put his mind to scores of other things, and he was looking ahead to newer inventions. His many inventions have enriched all mankind.

These potentials, that are a part of us, are the most interesting of all our gifts from the Creator. By the use of imagination, we can see possibilities men and women have revealed themselves, little by little, as the years have passed, to be outstanding in others the desire to be outstanding.

Happy is that one who has blessed others through his own discovery. Perhaps many a teacher, in school or college, has helped a student to discover himself. Edison himself I like that line from Emerson where he said, "No matter how much knowledge you have been stilling in others the desire to be outstanding.

Please Understand Precisely What Rheumatiz Means

Most readers will have forgotten by now, I hope, that once, (and only once, thank heaven), I printed here a piece in praise (no cracks, please) of the effect of one of the new "miracle" medicines in a case of chronic joint disability. Under the influence of two or three doses of the drug the patient, long crippled, actually got up and danced around the room. Elementary knowledge of pathology gave way to emotion, and by the time the analgesic (pain-relieving effect of the "miracle" medicine wore off and the patient was over the spree, my half-baked testimonial had been printed.

Ever afterward did I learn about the grave or even fatal effects the drug had produced in some instances, and I prayed that no one would be encouraged to take the medicine because I say that so far as I am aware no one did.

Of the numerous "wonder" or "miracle" medicines for "arthritis" introduced in recent years, we must admit, with the arthritis and rheumatism foundation, that it has shown that it can allay the natural course of the disease.

I'm not pessimistic about this I'm optimistic, for I believe we can prevent or retard or arrest or cure chronic joint disability in most instances by correcting or preventing nutritional deficiencies (malnutrition), not for a week or a month, but through the years.

The term "arthritis" is properly applied to joint inflammation due to joint tissue infection of one kind or another, such as pneumococcal arthritis, streptococcal arthritis, tuberculous arthritis, gonococcal arthritis, (another name for chronic undulant fever). These are usually acute, and the classical signs of inflammation are present — calor, dolor, rubor, et tumor — heat, pain, redness, and swelling. Acute means sudden, sharp, quick — the disease or illness begins abruptly or comes on at once, continues for days, weeks or sometimes a few months, and then the patient gets well.

So I say the doctor who calls his patient's disease of longer in duration "arthritis," without specifying the infection by name, is not only bringing the poor geek alcohol until he, the geek's patience money is exhausted.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Flood is probably the most destructive of all the forces of nature. It is perhaps the more terrifying, because its menace is more visible from afar. It is something that humans than of other forms of life. When a bush fire sends its first warnings of smoke to scent the air and lights the night sky with its lurid glow, the whole animate kingdom becomes restless and uneasy. Even trees seem to move more than still, which is their way of expressing uneasiness. Birds appear to be packing up; the birds are agitated.

But here is unforseen, accidental. Its fury is contained, by wind, by changing wind, by the influence of rain, and at last by inevitable rain.

Glitterjet, Car of 1966

By John G. Knecht, in the Atlantic

The most magnificent automobile in the world (1966 model) was put on display November 17, 1965.

The culmination of more than a half century of design and manufacturing experience, it embodied every mechanical advancement and every decorative refinement known to man, woman and child—and many more besides.

The new Glitterjet V-32 was introduced in Detroit, Mich., before the largest audience ever publicity campaign in history.

All windows and the windshield were chrome coated in such a way that the occupants of the car could see but people outside the car could not look in.

Inside, the Glitterjet was a miracle of brilliance, too. The upholstery was a special synthetic material resembling burnished brass. Glued on to the fabric were circular pieces the size of dinner plates, painted purple. On the floor was an imitation Persian "carpet" with an early American spatter-dash pattern.

The engine, a 101 feet 6 inches long and 75 feet wide—larger by an appreciable margin than any car produced up to that time. Fins attached to the rear fenders extended 6 feet into the air. Yet, thanks to 7 inch wheels, the roof was only 3 feet 2 inches.

Although the Glitterjet had but limited rear wheels, 27 feet of its length was overhang. It was said that this was just long enough to hold a 1929 Ford roadster and a seat at the very end of the extended rear fin, a monument of the old model A rumble seat. The seat was called the interests of sales appeal, a Happy Seat.

The Glitterjet's 32-cylinder engine developed 1,000 horsepower. That ending was not for the horsepower race which had been raging for some 15 years.

With this engine, the Glitterjet could go from zero to 60 miles per hour in 2.3 seconds— in reverse.

Top speed was 336 miles per hour, and gasoline mileage "at the 98 miles per hour cruising speed" was one-fourth mile per gallon.

Best all this speed, driving the Glitterjet was remarkably simple. To put the Glitterjet in motion, the driver had only to touch electronically operated gray, rubber-like pedal, a 2 inch low button. To turn, one had to shift its rear by an appropriate direction; and to stop, simply shoot "Glitterhalt" into a dash mounted microphone.

Man Who Could Blow up the Earth

By Nicholas Mika

It began about a hundred years ago, when a young man from Sweden shocked the world with the announcement that he could blow up the earth. If he did not blow up the earth, at least he proved his ability by causing several disastrous explosions, one of which destroyed a ship and killed sixty people. Another one demolished one of his several factories where he manufactured his powerful explosive—dynamite. After a blast in San Francisco had wrecked a whole block of buildings, he was treated like an outcast. People who knew him carefully avoided him on the street for fear he might carry some of his explosives with him and hotel managers even refused to give him a room.

Nevertheless, he made a fortune out of his invention. Failure and disaster did not discourage him, but made him all the more determined to find a way to tame the unpredictable power of nitroglycerine.

When he first began to experiment with this heavy oily liquid nobody suspected its tremendous possibilities. Doctors used it as a medicine to relieve headaches and pains caused by heart ailments. But the young Swede, encouraged by his father, had other ideas in mind and night he experimented and tinkered with the dangerous stuff in his cellar. It is not known if he knew that he played with his life, but he seemed fearless and his brother was killed in an explosion, he worked harder and more fervidly.

FLOATING FACTORY

When he was forbidden to manufacture any more of his explosives, he set up a factory on a barge in the midst of a lake and continued to work. Fanatic, and perhaps mad man, he shut himself up with, in the four walls of his laboratory, tins and bottles of nitro and fearlessly became careless. He did not bother with precautions. If he did not succeed this time, he was willing to be the next and last victim of his invention. He did not offer sacrifice himself or convince the world that his explosive could be used safely for the benefit of mankind, that it could blast roads and tunnels, build roads and waterways and help miners conquer the rock-bound areas. He went about it differently, nothing happened of dynamite received the advice of an eye specialist.

Mr. H. J. Pole, chairman of the fund raising campaign showed in his report that an increase of $1,758.33 was realized this year. However the Board is still operating with a deficit due to the heavy care loads and the mounting costs of services.

Chairman, J. J. Furey received a report from the Board of Governors that the cost of supplementing the residents of the Quinte -St. Lawrence home had risen from $21 a month to $25, for those people who receive the blind pension.

Mrs. H. Rollins, in presenting her report for the admissions committee, stated that there were four residents from Hastings county at the home, and a total of twenty-one in the residence.

The treasurer's statement given by Miss E. Roblin summed up all the expenses for the past year.

The use of educational posters was discussed, and it was decided to order two of these to publicize the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and to educate people in the prevention of blindness.

Messrs. H. J. Pake, A. D. Archibald and A. J. Boorne were appointed Board of Governors of the Quinte-St. Lawrence residence in Kingston; and Mrs. H. Rollins to the admissions committee. A nominating committee was named to bring in a slate of officers at the annual meeting in May.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. G. Wishart.

...ers distributed on the anniversary of his death, was Alfred Nobel.

Spark Knock Has Several Causes

By EUGENE MILMOE

When the combustible mixture of gas and air burns much too quickly, it sets up an excessive engine vibration. The resultant sharp pinging noise is commonly known as spark knock or ping.

A badly overheated engine can cause this too-rapid combustion, but very often there's another reason: Ignition timing may be too advanced or low octane fuel may be used in a high compression engine.

Carbon formation in the combustion chambers of faulty exhaust valves can also be responsible for spark ping. They bring on a condition called pre-ignition.

In brief, pre-ignition is the premature igniting of the combustible mixture by a very hot carbon deposit or exhaust valve before the spark actually takes place. Usually, pre-ignition is correct diagnosis when spark knock develops gradually rather than suddenly.

K.B. asks: "Is it better to drain and change oil when the engine is cold or when it is warm?"

(A) You will drain off much more harmful carbonic sludge by changing the oil when the engine is warm.

W.W. writes: "With the brake pedal and hand brake completely released, the rear stop lights on my car will stay on. Do you think a defective switch on the master cylinder is to blame? The car is a late 1953 four-door model."

(A) Yes, I would suspect a clogged stop-light switch, especially since they have already proven to frequent cause of trouble on your particular car make and model. If it is not the switch, check the brake pedal clearance.

From L.D.: "My 1948 car uses quite a bit of oil, but aside from being an oil burner it runs well, and it's in good-looking shape. I like the car and would like to keep it. I'm wondering if a motor overhaul or a valve and ring job would be worthwhile in this old car."

(A) Why not have a guaranteed rebuilt engine installed, instead? This would be a much better investment in the long run.

Mrs. H.Mc. writes: "I am having trouble with the automatic transmission on my car. When the transmission oil is low, it loses power, I have been to four different mechanics. Two advised that I can use the car as is a while longer. One said to flush it filled with oil (this amounts to one quart a week) and the other told me to have it looked after just as soon as possible, because if I keep using it in this condition something else will start wearing out—then it will cost a lot more. Who is right? Would like your honest opinion."

(A) The fourth mechanic's advice makes the most sense. It's evident that fluid leakage exists,

Garden Notes

Testing Seeds for Germination

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Did you collect flower seeds last summer? You saved a few dry marigold heads from one garden you visited, and were given a few choice double cornflower seeds from another. There were several envelopes with the names Persian carpet zinnias, asters nasturtiums like them. Now you are wondering if they will grow, or if you should buy seed from the regular sources.

Test the seed now and save time and disappointment later. Place a layer of sand one inch deep on a shallow pan. An aluminum, or glass pie pan is suitable. You can sterilize the sand by baking it in the oven, or pouring boiling water over it allowing it to cool and draining off the water. Place on top of the sand a square of wool or cotton flannel. It should be a little larger than the pan. Mark the flannel into six to ten sections depending upon the number of different kinds of seeds you wish to test. Number the sections. Lay the cloth on the damp sand, and tuck the corners down into the sand. It will act as a wick and carry moisture to the seeds.

From the different varieties pick out ten seeds and place one kind in each section. Make a record of the sections and what seeds are in each. Over the seeds place another piece of damp flannel and cover with another pan or plate to make the container almost air tight. Blotting paper may be used in place of the flannel. Keep the seed pan where the temperature will average 70 degrees.

After five days you will find that some of the seeds have sprouted. Annuals usually sprout sooner than perennials but some annuals and several of the perennials take up to 25 days, or longer. A few and since insufficient fluid causes the majority of automatic transmission troubles, you can appreciate how important it is to have this condition attended to immediately, and only by a mechanic who specializes in this type of transmission.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

seed catalogues carry a table of time for germination of seeds. Keep the seeds moist and warm for three to four weeks to give the slower types a chance to prove themselves.

On the record note how many seeds sprouted in each group. If that of the seeds in a section sprouted that is a fifty percent average and they are well worth planting. Where less than half of the seeds sprout it would be more profitable to buy packaged seed.

Some annuals and many of the perennials will sprout more readily if they are planted late in the fall just before the ground freezes. The action of frost on the seed cracks the covering and the plants from these seeds make sturdier plants than those planted in spring. Annual larkspur and calendula also known as Scotch marigold are two examples of such seed. Lettuce is another seed that seems to need a cold start to sprout.

GARDEN SEEDS

Delphinium, blue salvia, pansy and sweet pea seed will sprout earlier if they are frozen. A good method for handling these seeds is to fill small size ice cube pan half full of water and freeze. Drop one to three seeds in each cube according to the size of the seed. Allow them to stay frozen for one week then plant the ice cubes with the seeds inside. Have the seed bed ready before taking from freezer. Plant these as soon as ground can be worked, mid-March or any time in April or May, the earlier the better.

Faster seed germination is brought about by the use of the new wonder material gibberellic acid. It is not for sale to the public yet but it is promised soon. Up to now it has been available only in minute quantities for research projects. It has been found useful in breaking the dormancy of seeds, will stimulate the growth of cabbage to produce heads 12 inches high. Used on bush beans they became as tall as pole beans. Fruit, vegetable, greenhouse and nursery stocks have been tested.

Since it is a biological material it must be grown as is penicillin and it is now being produced by a leading pharmaceutical house for commercial use only.

Advisory Board Blind Institute Holds Meeting

With one hundred and thirty-six registered blind people in the country including fifty-three in Belleville, many problems arising and these were dealt with at the meeting of the Hastings County Advisory board held on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Wishart.

Field-Secretary P. I. Timmins and his assistant Bob Padden gave their reports on radio visits to the blind in this district and the progress of the new welfare and comfort. The ages of the blind ranged from infants to the elderly people were also discussed as well as blind. Their requirements varied with some needing plastic eyes, some new glasses, others eye service care, clothing, shoes, radios and radio visits, talking books, Braille watches, tool, supplementary assistance, and examinations. A father and son who were blinded by a blast of dynamite received the advice of an eye specialist.

Mr. H. J. Pole, chairman of the fund raising campaign showed in his report that an increase of $1,758.33 was realized this year. However the Board is still operating with a deficit due to the heavy care loads and the mounting costs of services.

Chairman, J. J. Furey received a report from the Board of Governors that the cost of supplementing the residents of the Quinte -St. Lawrence home had risen from $21 a month to $25, for those people who receive the blind pension.

Mrs. H. Rollins, in presenting her report for the admissions committee, stated that there were four residents from Hastings county at the home, and a total of twenty-one in the residence.

The treasurer's statement given by Miss E. Roblin summed up all the expenses for the past year.

The use of educational posters was discussed, and it was decided to order two of these to publicize the work of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and to educate people in the prevention of blindness.

Messrs. H. J. Pake, A. D. Archibald and A. J. Boorne were appointed Board of Governors of the Quinte-St. Lawrence residence in Kingston; and Mrs. H. Rollins to the admissions committee. A nominating committee was named to bring in a slate of officers at the annual meeting in May.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. G. Wishart.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

THE WHITE PELICAN

Few Canadians know of our pelicans, and fewer still have ever seen these truly magnificent birds. Not that our white pelicans are too small to see, for they are up to 70 inches long and have a wing spread of from 8 to 10 feet. But we must be at the right spot. That, they are holidaying in Panama or the southern states. Fortunately, being so conspicuous, they are protected in a number of wildlife refuges. Sometimes 4,000 congregate in one, where they have the habit of floating on the water in groups of one or two hundred, thus giving the impression of a snowdrift.

Fishing is difficult for such heavy birds, but once in the air nothing could be more graceful. They often ride on an updraft, and remain aloft for an hour or two, in military formation, taking their cue from the leader. Or, when one spots a fish, or when sail. All their movements, even on the ground, are apt to be synchronized.

PRAIRIE HOMES

Before long our white pelicans will add variety to our prairies, where they breed in the districts of large shallow lakes, chiefly the area north of Regina. Though found occasionally on some large lakes of B.C., they are rare outside the Prairie Provinces.

Even individuals are spectacular. The bright yellow of the enormous beak (which, incidentally, for holding several quarts) is visible at quite a distance; the black of the wingtips reaches 2-3 of the way up to the glistening white LIVE IN when a close view is possible at breeding time, a hook may be seen adorning the long yellow bill. Onlookers are not entirely agreed; but the majority think this excrescence, though not present on all birds, is common to both sexes, and shed at the autumn moult. The short legs and big, webbed feet are yellow.

THEIR HOMES

These birds live in colonies, often associated with cormorants, black terns, gulls and other waterbirds, the babies emerge from their eggs naked, blind, and later a white fuzz appears. Being exclusively fish eaters, they pass their young on partly digested fish.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Retired Man With Small Pension Has Several Forgotten Blessings

By THOMAS COLLINS

You who face retirement on income of about $100 a month are pretty bitter about it.

You look over the fence at the fellow who has a pension, and figure how splendid things would be if you had all that money.

Maybe you have a couple of blessings you have forgotten to count:

1. The man with $250 a month may not have a pension but a tranquilizer pill;

2. The man with $100 has the priceless incentive to scratch.

The man who retires with $250 a month has enough to get by on. So he procrastinates about tackling a new life. After a while he loses his nerve. Before long he becomes just another old pensioner. All across the country you can find men and women with just enough to live on—between $175 and $275 a month—who are sitting life out, and fossilizing.

But not the man with $100 a month. He's hungry, or soon will be. He's got to scratch. And nine times out of ten the man who scratches in retirement will come closer to the Golden Years than the one who doesn't.

Take Jim B. Baker can prove it to you.

Mr. Baker retired at the age of 65 with an income of $94 a month. There were some misfortunes involved. For many years he wasn't under Social Security in the U.S. Then his company merged and he lost out. Finally he found a job and held it only four years before he was unexpectedly, at 65 that he had to go.

The $94 a month, plus $2,200 cash value on his life insurance policies, was all he and his wife had.

"I had three choices," he says. "I could sweat it out until I became a public aid case; I could move in with the children; and I could scratch.

"I didn't want to go into the job jungle again—it's brutal on a man of 65. I had to find an idea. And the idea that kept recurring to me was 'The Big Fix.' I think it's the title of a movie or something, but I was thinking of it in terms of my wife's washing machine, the TV set, and all the gadgets around the house which were always breaking down—and staying that way until a repairman eventually did us the honor of calling.

"What this country needed was not a cheap cigar for men but 'The Big Fix' for the housewife."

Mr. Baker began driving out to the neighborhood shopping centers—it was only two weeks after retirement and he still owned his car—and looking for a store that would give him a job.

"I looked for two things," he says. "First, a store that sold things which would have to be repaired, but had no service department—like an appliance store, a pet store, or even a hardware store. This was to get acquainted with the neighborhood. Second, I needed a store that would pay me $25 a week. This was a ridiculous salary for a bruiser, but it would make a job easier to get and would tide us over until I figured a way to branch out with my idea: a repair shop for housewives I would call 'The Big Fix.'

Mr. Baker got his job — in a hardware store with a good business in small appliances all year and a rush business in electric trains at Christmas. He remained there 16 months.

Then, with $1,400 from his life insurance, he opened "The Big Fix" in a cubbyhole down the street. He knew how to repair electric trains, plastic toys, bicycles, small kitchen appliances, and leaking faucets. He had the names of six firms that could repair everything else in the book and would accept service calls, for a commission, in the name of "The Big Fix."

Mr. Baker apparently is doing all right. He has a 1957 car and a comfortable apartment. He belongs to the Chamber of Commerce. And he seems to have more friends, at least among the kids and the housewives, than the mayor has.

An attractive St. Patrick's tea was held recently by 60 C.G.I.T. girls of Bridge Street United Church in the Sunday School assembly rooms.

Receiving were: Mrs. H. M. Davis, wife of the pastor; and Mrs. Arthur Clare, president of the W.A. assisted by the C.G.I.T. leaders: Mrs. Herb Hasley; Mrs. H. G. Hunter; Mrs. H. Cumming, and Miss Ruth Gunsolus.

The small tea tables were appointed with white cloths, green shamrocks, Irish Cobbler potato mints, and little St. Patrick cakes.

The long tea table was centred with green and white carnations, flanked by green candles, little potato men, and green shamrocks.

ATTRACTIVE POSTERS

On the walls were attractive posters depicting the harps; horseshoes; and potato men drinking white ale under the shamrock. The room were banners bearing the word, "Welcome."

The C.G.I.T. girls were responsible for teamroom arrangement; and loaning after the tea.

Those presiding at the tea table included: Miss Pat Hasley, vice-president of the Evening Auxiliary; Miss Ethel Morden, church secretary; Mrs. Ken Murray, Mrs. Clare, president of the Coronation Club; Mrs. V. C. Adsett, president of the W.A.S. and Mrs. R. E. Barry, president of the local Girls' Work Board, and Miss Margaret Milk, superintendent of the C.G.I.T.

Candy was also sold by the Explorers.

Pupils of Queen Victoria School Hold Attractive St. Patrick Fair

Last evening the doors of Queen Victoria School were opened wide to the many friends and parents who came to enjoy the children's St. Patrick Fair, gay with its garlands of green, and splashed with shamrocks and golden daffodils and highlighted with colorful posters.

There was something to please every one of the five senses; soft, lilting Irish music; pretty Colleens in new dresses, as they curtsied to their partners; soft drinks to cool the driest throat; delicious cakes and cookies to whet the most jaded of appetites; fish ponds to lure the wary; games, stalls and movies to thrill while tired feet rested, and bargains galore for the "once canelle sout" who delighted in getting much for little.

Over all was the mingled hum of pleasantries and greeting passed from friend to friend, and the glad shrieks of running children clutching their prizes won at the fresh popcorn as they scudded in and out among the thronging guests.

In the various school rooms, attractive with gay, cutout flowers; frieze of skaters on long, snowbanked narrow ponds, were booths of merchandise which included one for candies, with Mrs. Charles Leckie in charge, assisted by Mrs. R. Schryver, Mrs. W. Hurst, Mrs. F. Robinson, Mrs. H. Keller, Mrs. J. Punchard and Mrs. Burley

Here, stretching the entire length of the long table were bags and bags of maple creams, peanut brittle, chocolate fudge, seafoam candy, boxes of maple creams, chocolate and divinity fudge. Tuftish delight in all shades, cherry centred fudges, bundles of colored suckers, butterscups, and minks, and standing at intervals along the table were little brown-faced Irishmen with tall black hats banded with Paddy green.

In another room the homecooking was displayed upon a "U" shaped counter, laden with all kinds of good things, and centred with a papier mache Irish lad complete with green tie and hat, tall black hat, smoking a white clay pipe and wearing a most ingratiating smile. Around him, spread between green shamrock leaves, were apple, lemon and berry pies; chocolate loaf cakes topped with broken nutmeats; fancy cup-cakes decked with green icing; cocoanut bird's nests; sponge cakes, cookies of many kinds, dream cakes, raspberry tartlets, smiling gingerbread men with bulging silver buttons; shamrock cookies glistening with sugar, date and nut breads, date squares, taffy and mincemeat tarts.

In charge of this delectable array were Mrs. J. Kingston, Mrs. Walt, Mrs. N. Hallam, Mrs. H. Simmons, Mrs. Ross Hamilton, Mrs. Eastwood, Mrs. R. Prindle, Mrs. J. Dunlop, Mrs. W. Adam.

The white elephant booth and the apron booth drew a goodly crowd, and brisk was the business done.

BARGAIN HUNTERS' MECCA

The white elephant table, of a truth, is the mecca for bargain hunters, for here, was a motley array of almost everything imaginable: ribbon covered shoe trees; stuffed animals; dolls; doll's blue satchel; a bevy of books, new and harebacks; lamp shade; pincushions; glass and shamrock grape wall plaque, with green leaves and luscious looking big, purple grapes; a doll's cupboard; cups and saucers; vases in porcelain and white metal; jardinieres and costume jewellery of all kinds; pearl beads; earrings and brooches; bracelets; dinicloths and towels; and hanging fern baskets. In charge of Conveying these was Mrs. Benson, assisted by Mrs. A. Rowbottom, Mrs. J. Cook, Mrs. Kilbank, Mrs. W. Briscoe, Mrs. Argue, Mrs. R. Potter, and Mrs. Ross Hamilton.

Nearby was a snort table of an excellent selection of colorful ball aprons, some of which could be had gay flowers on white grounds, some in green and white ginghams, some in red pebbly material with cretonne pockets, some, pretty plastic floral aprons in yellow and blue, a circular apron in beige tone with sprinkled flowers, and one in tiny squared batiste. Mrs. R. Bateman was the convener, with Mrs. A. Dowell, Mrs. Bell and Mrs. Hall assisting.

Going Places

Captain We-Catch-Plenty-Fish Missed the Boat on This Trip

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

"If you hook a big one, remember to let him run — don't fight him. We catch plenty fish."

Reassuring us was Capt. Ivan Alexander, a wizened 40-year veteran of Western Hemisphere's seas and a Jamaican who talks in the high-pitched, clipped English of the calypso singer.

Ivan is skipper of the Smalley brothers' smart 33-foot Chris Craft "Small E", the boat the auto rental business bought. It was tied to the Coral Reef Yacht Club, as we stepped aboard for a glorious Friday day of deep-sea fishing.

"Got flags aboard for marlin, sa'fish and tuna?" we asked.

"Nah, I don't bother. We catch too many fish."

Alec got out the poles and skillfully cut up the bait as we steered the "Small E" past the breakwaters at the main entrance of Miami's harbor and out to the steadily deepening blue of the Atlantic. Passengers can drive one of these boats — Alec seldom does — when there are guests aboard. It's like handling a car with power steering on a broad highway with no traffic.

We loafed along at five knots and Alec showed us how to bolt the poles in the sockets on the afterdeck chairs, the left hand on the "in" one and the right hand on the bottom. Another pivot held a smaller pole over the side—"Oh, we catch lots of fish with this one"—and Alec stuck a short one with a sturdy wire line in a socket on the railing.

"That's the we-catch-em pole," he explained. "Anything come in on that belong to everyone. Others are catch-em poles—belong to whoever holding it."

"Where we heading?" we asked.

"Oh, We'll see. We catch plenty fish."

INTERSHIP RADIO

Alec turned on the intership radio. It is a sportsman like device carried by fishing boards in the area so the skippers can advise each other where the schools, if any, are keeping.

"Skipjack to Popeye, Skipjack to Popeye." It crackled. "You got big fish yet, Charlie? Over."

"We saw a sail and a couple of dolphin but nothing yet. There is a patch of seaweed as big as a golf course out here about ten miles off the Reefs. Think we'll go out and take a look."

"O.C. Popeye. Very good sign." Alec explained. "Lots of little fish come up to eat the seaweed and the fish eat lots of fish then."

A few miles out we turned north along the coast, the long vista of sparkling white hotels spreading out before us. The sun beat down pleasantly, the "Small E" trolled along and we sat dutifully in our chairs gripping the catch-em poles.

The lines remained taut as the morning wore into afternoon. Soon the heat and the rocking and the drone of the radio lulled us into inevitable dozing.

"Reward to Dolphin. Reward to Dolphin. Got anything yet, Chet?"

"We heard someone got a kingfish about ten miles north of Key Haulover, but. . . ."

Alec turned lazily toward the mouth of the harbor and circled Number 8 buoy awhile. "This a very famous spot. We catch lots of fish here!"

SEAWEED ONE

Once Alec pulled in the line and found a chunk of seaweed, and another time a very big fish" took his off half the line — one of the lines but missed the hook by an inch.

Toward midafternoon we headed up the coast again, and through Baker's Haulover to Biscayne Bay, down past the beautiful harbor islands and their fashionable palms shaded residences, and once again into the slip on the Miami River. Now and again a porpoise or flying fish would pop out of the water to see what was going by.

With the boat tied up again, we stepped ashore and turned to say, "You come out again and we catch lots of fish next time," he said.

The man in the next room to ours at the hotel had gone out to the dock across the street and come back with a pompano, trout, sand perch, and a couple of little snapper's chotce.

It's very generous and fortunately the people we had invited to dinner didn't know inland fish from deep-sea fish.

M. McGonigle as assistant.

ENTICING AROMA

From another room which opened on the hall, a most enticing odor of fresh popcorn emanated, which when followed up, and many did, especially the smaller fry, there were mounds and bags of the delicious white fluff with golden, melted butter. Mrs. R. Hamilton was chief popper, assisted by Mrs. R. Scott, Mrs. K. Williamson, Mrs. R. Knox, and Mrs. C. Agar.

Guided by the green arrow to the basement one found here the movie room where those who chose to rest and eat, might pass the minutes away, and many there did so. Mr. and Mrs. Dowell with Mr. J. Carswell assisting, were in charge.

Back to the fish pond, always a drawing card to future Izaak Waltons, where every nibble meant a fish. In charge were Mrs. S. Savage, Mrs. S. Mulholland, Mrs. D. Graham, Mrs. G. Jenkinson, Mrs. E. Levitt and Mrs. S. Else. Should the fishing deplete the pond, delicious and filling hot dogs were sold by Mr. and Mrs. F. Walsh, with Mrs. E. Beatty, Mrs. G. Booth, Mrs. W. Robinson and Mr. J. Dunlop keeping things on hand.

The ice cream did a rushing business guided by Mr. and Mrs. Goodfellow, with Mrs. S. W. Luck and Mrs. Ivan Wright as helpers, as did the soft drinks in charge of Mr. and Mrs. R. Stalker, aided by Mr. and Mrs. McGrath and Mr. S. McCaul.

The tea room was especially appealing where each guest table was appointed with a pink cloth and had its own little shamrock shaped garden of real grass with tiny flowerbed centre. Here the guests were served delightful refreshments and refreshing cups of tea. Convening this was Mrs. J. Sherwood, assisted by Mrs. H. Arthurs, Mrs. W. Wills, Mrs. F. Locke and Mrs. W. Reid.

In the auditorium with its pretty backdrop of potted daffodils and shamrock leaves, its tall pillars wound with erins-cross garland of Paddy green and spaced with Ireland's native flower, the tea-garbed girls who had been teen-agers once upon a time, glided and bowed, twirled and marched in the old time square dances to lovely Irish airs, a carefree and pretty sight.

Mrs. J. Browning and Mrs. R. McBride were directors assisted with Harvey Homan calling the square dancing.

An attractive and sparkling St. Patrick Fair, bringing much acclaim to its convenor, Mrs. R. Young, and co-convener, Mrs. J. Dunlop, also to the makers of the lovely shamrock aprons, Mrs. R. Carswell, and to all those behind the scenes whose willing assistance made it the success desired.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A weekend thought for us who accept freedom as our birthright: If we refuse to stay silent. I refuse to recognize Nasser because I have freedom!"

T & T thanks the March-April edition of the B and F magazine for one for the story about Dr. Dora Shafik who spoke our thought for this month. Dr. Shafik is an Egyptian journalist who would rather face death than resort to convenient expedients or compromise with her conscience. She is, the story tells us, rich and was educated at the Sorbonne in Paris and her husband have two daughters and they have been fighting for freedom in Egypt since the days of King Farouk. Recently Dr. Shafik announced that she will not sit again "until there is an end of dictatorship which is leading our country to bankruptcy and disaster." She exists on tea and sugar.

She fought for women who became practically slaves because they had no money; for her fight today has broadened into wider fields. She has said: "I fight for dangers, but the whole Arab world must know there are people in Egypt who still stand for courage, morality, dignity and truth."

It requires no courage for T & T to pass along this account of a courageous Egyptian woman. When Nasser is recalled as an accident — history, that will have given something of lasting good to the Egyptian people.

Birds, birds, birds — welcome the birds. The grove of trees near the house seemed alive with music. The Calypso crane had obsessed the birds. We wished we knew more about them. What are birds? The encyclopaedia tells us they are "a class of animals uncommonly different from all other classes that they can be confused with any of the singers. Of yet, there was no sign of life in the pond the deep bass of the perennial bane, the crow, was distinguishable. Spring and the birds are indivisible.

There is one thing for which we are very grateful. The older we grow the more we are conscious of how little is our knowledge. We are sure there is eternally to seek to know. By the same token, we hope that our ignorance will be lessened in small measure. In this sense, we welcome the spring and look to a field there is often something close to home which has been overlooked and which is well without little notice.

We wonder how many people are aware that on Lake Consecon, a few miles from Belleville in Prince Edward County, a wonderful children's camp has been operated for over 25 years. The late Taylor Statten who was possibly the Noush American authority on boys and girls camps visited the Consecon camp. He was genuinely impressed with the camp from the point of view of location, beauty and proficiency.

The idea of a camp on Lake Consecon originated in a Sunday School class at Picton. The late Mr. Edward Cronyn conceived the idea and acted accordingly. After a few years the camp was turned over to the Victoria W.C.T.U. Today, the camp is equipped with accommodation for 65 girls and a staff of 10.

For years the ladies who have devoted their labors for this camp have carried on under the impression that they were protected by a 99-year lease. Strangely enough the Taylor Statten camps in Algonquin Park have a 99-year lease from the provincial government. However, it appears that the lease cannot be located. There is a real danger that the property may be lost so the women interested throughout this whole area are working feverishly to raise enough funds to buy the site and retain it for the girls of the district.

Mrs. Ivan Mrs. Farnsworth of Belleville is thank for the report about a fine girls' camp so close to Belleville. Our community has much to thank women's groups for in the field of public service throughout the Bay of Quinte. It was a group of dedicated women who nourished our General Hospital in its infancy. We wish the group striving for the Taylor-Statten Consecon Camp success in its efforts and on its tag day.

After reigning in Russia for 304 years, the Romanoffs abdicated 40 years ago yesterday, or March 15, 1917.

Thursday we were in a local shop which had its front door wide open. Someone, who was chilly exclaimed, "please close that door." Another replied, "Oh no, that's fair, that's spring." We spent all yesterday out in the air washing my windows outside," and she took a great draught of spring air into her lungs. We didn't remain to see whether the door was left open or was closed.

Catholic Women's League Will Assist in Equipping School

At the regular monthly meeting of St. Michael's subdivision of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, chaired by the president Mrs. Ben E. Burley, it was decided to purchase equipment for St. Michael's High School amounting to $100. Funds remaining in treasury after all obligations have been met, will be handed to directress Rev. L. B. Garvin, for the Building Fund of St. Michael's Parish.

Mrs. J. E. Boyd will replace Mrs. Cornelius Lynch as recording-secretary for the remainder of the term. Reports were heard from Mrs. K. Bisind, secretary, Mrs. J. Kropinak, treasurer, and Mrs. Carl Casey, 2nd. Vice-President, Mrs. T. C. Young, Girl Guide convenor and Miss Gallagher St. Michael's 8th Belleville Company, reported the company now has 27 girls enrolled with 3 patrol or group flying up from Brownies next month. Mrs. L. Rorabeck, spiritual convenor stated that study groups would engage in monthly meetings during the Lenten season to study "Religious Instruction in the Family." Next Sunday is Communion Sunday, 8.30 Mass, for members of the League.

The president mentioned the very enjoyable Communion Breakfast held recently by St. Joseph's subdivision at Queen's Motel. She said it was so fitting that one of our honorary members, the Reverend Sister M. Teresa had been guest speaker and the topic "Vocations" was most interesting. Mrs. V. P. McIntyre and Mrs. J. J. O'Connor were delegates to the Provincial Convention Ward for the Red Cross on Monday, next, March 18th. Canvassers for all members of the League in that ward. They are Mrs. Ben Burley, Mrs. Michael's High School after they are finished. Coffee will be served.

Our citizenship convener urges us to write to Dr. McKinnon asking him to reconsider. We didn't remain to see whether the door was left open or was closed.

WHEN MARRIAGE ANNOUNCEMENT IS ISSUED BY COUPLE THEMSELVES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am divorced, and am to remarry soon, with the very smallest wedding. Please tell me a proper form for the formal announcements to relatives and friends. — K.

Unless you are young . . . in which case your parents may issue the announcement of your marriage . . . you and your husband may issue your own announcements. Like this:

Mrs. Thompson Blake
and
Mr. George Alan Clark announce their marriage on Friday, the third of May Nineteen hundred and fifty-seven
New York

(Correctly you use the surname of your former husband prefixed to the surname of your ex-husband.)

GROOM-TO-BE ASKS ABOUT WEDDING PLANS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I'm the bridegroom-to-be, and my bride-to-be and I would like to ask you some questions about our wedding. We have many friends here where we both now live, but our wedding is to be in a place some distance from here, and therefore not many of our friends can come. Would you suggest we send them invitations or announcements? What would be the proper way? If invitations, how soon before the wedding should they be sent out?

2. We to have a maid of honor and a best man, ushers, a flower girl and a ring bearer. What is the order of the Processional? — W.

1. You may do what is very often done today: send only formal invitations, to all relatives and friends . . . and no announcements. Or the bride-to-be's mother, the hostess of the wedding, may write notes of invitation to those especially dear to the bride and groom, and then send formal marriage announcements to those not included to the wedding. The notes of invitation would be mailed two, better, three weeks before the wedding date. The announcements of the marriage should be mailed as soon as possible after the ceremony has been performed.

2. Processional: first, the ushers, two by two; next, the maid of honor, alone; next, the flower girl, alone, followed by the ring bearer, alone; and last, the bride and her father, or whoever is to give her in marriage.

GIRL AT DANCE TIPS CHECKROOM ATTENDANT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I'm going to a large dinner dance to be given soon in the ballroom of a well-known New York hotel. (1) When I leave my wrap in the checkroom, should I leave a tip for the attendant? If so, how much? (2) If my escort offers me the somey to give the attendant, is it all right for me to accept it? — Joan T.

(1) Yes . . . you give the checkroom attendant a tip, a quarter, leaving it on the plate which will be prominently displayed, and on which there will be several quarter "decoys." (2) Yes. But you really should carry your own tip-money.

WHAT "G.P." MEANS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What does "G.P." mean? A friend of mine used this expression, I thought sarcastically, about a very expensive present a mutual friend of ours gave her donor. I didn't want to show my ignorance by asking her to explain the initials. — Reader

"G.P." means "Grateful Patient."

Halloway Kum Double Club Plans Activities

On Monday evening the Halloway Kum Double Club met in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Embury Hough.

Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Wellman were in charge of the devotional period, taking as their theme, "Duty".

Mrs. Wellman gave the call to worship and the hymn "Pass Me Not O Gentle Saviour" was sung.

Mrs. Herry Horgan read the Scripture lesson taken from Exodus 31-1-11.

The meditation, "The Consecrated Mind", was given by Mrs. Wellman, and Mrs. Harry Morgan and Mrs. Coleman Townsend favored with poems "Work" and "Tomorrow". Mrs. Wellman led in prayer.

Mrs. Ed. Emerson took charge of the business period.

The highlight of the business was the plans for the "Pancake Supper". At that time, the men are to have full charge of the meeting. The Progressive Supper, to be held later on was also brought to the Club's attention.

Mrs. Wellman led in a contest "Irish Bingo", for which Mrs. Earl Snider was the winner.

A social time was much enjoyed as Mrs. Hough served refreshments.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Aunt Fanny" Crosby, whose song-brightened gospel song collections in the years when mass evangelism was having its day, was much interested in city mission work in New York.

One night in midsummer while she was giving an evangelistic address before a great rally of working men, the thought came to her that in her message that evening lay the only opportunity for salvation for many of those who were listening.

"I made a pressing plea", she recalled later, "that if there were a boy present who had wandered from his mother's home and teachings he would come to me at the close of the service. When the last song had been sung, a youth of 18 came forward and said: 'Did you mean me? I promised my mother to meet her in Heaven but as I am now living that will be impossible.' We prayed together and he finally arose with a new light in his eyes and exclaimed: 'Now I can meet my mother, for I have found God' "

Fanny Crosby went home with the first lines of "Rescue The Perishing" singing through her mind. Before she went to bed that night, she had completed her great soul-saving hymn. The very next day William H. Doane, the composer,was at work on the melody.

Soon after it was published, it was taken up by Moody and Sankey in their famous revival services and Frances E. Willard found it a favorite in her stirring temperance meetings.

RESCUE THE PERISHING

Rescue the perishing,
Care for the dying,
Snatch them in pity from sin and the grave;
Weep o'er the erring one,
Lift up the fallen,
Tell them of Jesus, the mighty to save.

Tho' they are slighting Him,
Still He is waiting,
Waiting the penitent child to receive;
Plead with them earnestly,
Plead with them gently,
He will forgive if they only believe.

Down in the human heart,
Crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore;
Touched by a loving heart,
Wakened by kindness,
Chords that were broken will vibrate no more.

Rescue the perishing,
Duty demands it;
Strength for thy labor the Lord will provide;
Back to the narrow way
Patiently win them,
Tell the poor wanderer a Saviour has died.

Readers' Saturday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I was wondering if you have a recipe for "Fagots and Peas". I enjoy your column very much. — Mrs. A. F.

ANSWER:

Those few words set a lot of people searching. The only item called "Fagots" in over 100 cook books consulted in this:

FAGGOTS

(Something called Savory Ducks) (I have not tried this recipe.)

1 1/2 lbs. pig liver (pork), 1/2 lb. fat pork, 2 eggs, 1 large onion, breadcrumbs, pigs' caul, nutmeg, sage, thyme, salt, pepper, dried. Chop liver and onion finely. Cut pork in small dice. Put together in stewpan. Add seasonings to taste. Cover closely, and cook slowly 1/2 hour, but do not brown. Drain off fat. Cool slightly, beat and add egg, nutmeg to taste and enough breadcrumbs to form stiff mixture. Form into squares and enclose each in piece of caul fat. Bake in tin with some gravy (or water) until nicely browned. (About 45 minutes at 375 deg.) This amount serves 7 or 8.

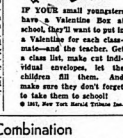
Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

SATURDAY

Corned Beef (brisket point) and Cabbage, Riced Potatoes, Celery Hearts, Gingerbread, Spiced Applesauce, Coffee.

Or could you mean Peas cooked with sprigs of mint tied into a bundle like faggots? If so this is the method: To 1 quart shelled fresh green peas add 3 sprigs mint tied together, 1 head lettuce shredded, 1/2 cup ground smoked ham (from butt end), 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 small ground onion, 1/2 cup water. Cover and cook 20 minutes, shaking almost constantly to prevent scorching. Meat and onion may be left whole and removed before serving. Add cream just before serving. This sounds wonderful to me even if it does overcook the peas. If neither of these is right write again describing what you would like.



QUESTION:

Would you give me a recipe for a nice soft fluffy gingerbread . . . I use boiling water and baking soda but perhaps too much flour. Mrs. L. J. B.

ANSWER:

Here is my pet gingerbread recipe. (It goes in a 9 x 9 x 2-inch pan, but if you would like some leftover double the recipe and bake in 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan 40 minutes.) One and two - thirds cups sifted cake flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon each salt, cinnamon, ginger, 1/4 teaspoon cloves, 1/4 cup each sugar, shortening (room temperature), 1/2 cup each molasses and water, 1 unbeaten egg. Measure sifted flour into sifter (using measuring cup and accurate measurements for all things), and add baking powder, soda, salt, sugar and spices. Stir the shortening in the mixing bowl just enough to soften it and sift the dry ingredients over it. Combine water and molasses, and add 3/4 cup of this liquid, mix with wooden spoon until flour is dampened, then beat 2 minutes at low speed on electric mixer or 300 vigorous strokes by hand. Add remaining liquid and the unbeaten egg and beat 1 minute longer in mixer or 150 strokes by hand. Sides of bowl should be scraped with rubber scraper during this beating period. Pour batter into greased and floured pan (see above) and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 minutes. Lovely served warm with spicy applesauce or whipped cream.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

THERE'S ALWAYS SOMEONE WHO WILL HELP SOLVE PROBLEMS

One of the reasons, I think, that many people get to feeling their problems are unsolvable is because they try to work them out all by themselves.

Inside their minds, they keep brooding over the problem, turning it over and over and wondering what to do. Instead of making any progress toward a solution, they only become increasingly bewildered and more and more hopeless, until finally they are in complete despair, seeing no hope of ever getting out of the trap in which they feel they are caught.

All too often, the trouble is that these people simply don't know where to turn for help and because of this, I like to point out that, in almost any town of any size there is some one whose business it is to help people in distress. Where the town is so small, or so remote that it is without any such person, there is always a way of reaching someone in another area.

For those who can afford to pay for advice on their problems, there are private consultants with whom they can talk, and for those who have no money to pay for private consultations, there are various welfare organizations to which they can go and talk over their worries without charge.

A letter that I have just received from a woman who is in this very position of not knowing where to turn, reads as follows:

Some time ago I read in your column where you advised a young unmarried woman to go to Baltimore to go to a different city to find employment, letting her stay with relatives until she found a nursery while she worked."

"I have a baby girl, and would very much like to follow the advice you gave to the above-mentioned woman, for some time, I've been able to pass myself off as a widow, and am supporting my child and myself on savings. However, it's now necessary that I work, and I, therefore, am to go about it. Who, for instance, would rent an apartment to an unmarried woman, and if I say that I'm married, would I still not have to state the correct status at a place of employment?

"I don't know how a woman can go to work, keep her child and still hide a secret from mine, though I know there are those who do. Could there possibly be some law of which I have no knowledge that helps women like me to give their children a decent life? I don't wish to do anything unlawful and live under constant threat, but I do want to give my child a decent life, and be able to keep her with me."

"Sometimes I think I'll go crazy if I don't get started on a new path soon. I'm sick and tired of thinking and getting nowhere."

Now if this woman just realized that in the town where she lives there are agencies that are ripe which, as I've already said, exist for the very purpose of helping people with problems, wherever they may be, she wouldn't have to go on "thinking and getting nowhere." Instead, she would know that she could go to one of these agencies, tell her whole story frankly in the knowledge that no one would criticize or condemn her, or reveal anything she said, and that she would then be shown how to organize her life in such a way that she could live confidently, purposefully and with a mind at rest.

What this woman can do to find the right place to go for help would be to ask any of the following people in the town where she lives: the priest or minister of any church; the editor of the local newspaper; anyone in the mayor's office at the city hall. All she needs to do is to ask the name and address of the local social service organization. She need give no reason why she wants to know. Or if she prefers, she can send me another letter, this time giving me her name and address so I can get in touch with her personally and I will give her the information she needs.

The chief thing for her—and anyone else who is in trouble—to remember is that there is always someone near at hand who will be glad to help with problems, and there is always a way to find out who that person is.

HOW TO GIVE YOUR EYES "OOMPH"

Mascara helps to dramatize the eyes but its effect should be a silky one—never "painted."

"Girls who don't use mascara are passing up the surest way of dramatizing their eyes, for even lashes that are dark at the roots may pale to near invisibility at the tips ends, and here is where this cosmetic gets in its loveliest work. In using it, however, application must be careful and this takes practice. Each lash should be covered right to the end and it must be done with a silky effect. The slightest trace of "beadiness" produces an artificial effect.

To avoid this beady look, you must take into consideration the type of mascara you're using. If it's the cake type, you'll need a brush. Apply one coat and let dry. Then apply another coat while that one's drying, clean off your mascara brush carefully. Dry it carefully. Now, with the clean and dry brush, go over the lashes again, stroking the full length. This eliminates all risk of smearing and is the only way you can be sure that no "beading" is evident.

If you use the creme type mascara, one coat is usually enough but, here again, it's important that you follow up the application with a dry brush to prevent caking. No matter which type of mascara you use, however, be sure to brush the lashes upward so that they will curve prettily. Where lower lashes are concerned there are two schools of thought about mascara application. One school recommends use on the lower lashes if they are very pale; the other insists lower lashes should be left alone.

From experience and observation, we're inclined to go along with the second school. If the lower lashes are really so pale as to be almost invisible, we consider a light stroking of an eyeliner sufficient to lend color. Most persons do not realize that heavily colored lower lashes tend to make the eyes look smaller and that, we insist, is no beauty asset. As for mascara color, in most cases brown's the best bet. Black is inclined to make the eyes look hard, and colors such as blue, green, purple, etc., while lovely to look at, should be reserved strictly for evening occasions—and even then, they're not for conservative types.

The Experts Say

Standard Sizes for Utility Clothing Close to Reality

Experts faced with the problems of developing standard sizes based on body measurements say children's clothing — particularly boys' wear—is nearing the long-sought goal.

Such garment sizes now are based on age, weight or height, which for years has promoted a budget - upsetting problem for shoppers finding it difficult to buy either children's or adult garments ,under such labels with assurance it will fit.

But the final answers and solutions to standard sizes are still somewhere in the future.

WOMEN SPURRED MOVE

"We hope everyone eventually will obtain in terms of size," says M. L. Staples of Toronto, chairman of a federal committee on standard garment sizes and a member of the Ontario Research Foundation.

The working committee, which includes houtewives, science and research experts, garment manufacturers, retailers and governments officials, was established in 1952 by the Canadian government specifications board of the National Research Council.

Formation of the committee was spurred by the Canadian Association of Consumers. CAC members are the housewife and consumer committee members.

"Our first years were spent doing missionary work," Mr. Staples said in an interview recently.

First step was to collect and analyze size data and to establish 17 size groupings inclusive enough to fit 90 per cent of those in Canada's four-to-17 age bracket.

UNDERWEAR FIRST

Now, two types of knitted underwear for boys — a shirt and pants — are nearing "the final stage of approval," Mr. Staples said.

Specifications for the underwear now must receive formal ballot approval from the 22 - member committee and then be reviewed by the trade department's standards branch.

If the size specifications are approved, garment manufacturers wishing to comply with the standards branch regulations can use a Canada Standard label on their products.

So far the committee has been concentrating on boys' clothing but work will begin soon on girls' and women's wear, Mr. Staples said.

Garment trials for girls' clothing were recently held by volunteers with some 10 girls between eight and 14 modelling garments — tested on live models.

The committee also hopes to study such items as lingerie, blouses and dresses in women's wear and men's overalls, work trousers and shirts.

Victors in a hard-fought semi-finals series with the powerful Cornwall Chevrolets, the Macs stand poised ready for their roughest assignment of the year. They meet the redoubtable Whitby Dunlops, favored by many to take the All-Ontario championship, in what should be a gruelling best of seven series for the Eastern Ontario "A" title. The McFarland's have proven, especialy in their semi-finals, that they are a hard-fighting crew which does not know the meaning of defeat until the last whistle is blown. Coach "Bep" Guidolin and his fighting crew will give the best they have got in the upcoming series and win, lose or draw, the fancied Dunlops will know they have been in hockey battles before the series ends.

Headed by Gordie (Shutout) Bell, the McFarland's defence of Maurice Benoit, Floyd Crawford and Lionel Botley was one of the mainstays of the club in the recent Cornwall series with Bell recording two "one-goal" games. Offensively the rest of the team played outstanding hockey to carry their share of the load. The team is confident it will extend the Bowmby Dunlops to the limit and if it is at all possible, send them down to defeat and earn the right to meet either the Windsor Bulldogs or the Kitchener Dutchmen for the Ontario Senior "A" championship. The best wishes of a large crowd of loyal city and district fans go with the Macs in their first quest of a senior "A" title.

COULD BE!

Fhlery Phil Watson may be all the name implies but doesn't his periodical tirades, like those of other National Hockey league brass-hats smack of something called publicity. True the ebullient Phillip is a natural "fire-shooter" but like resultant coup in the circuit sheets, not to mention those of the hinterlands, hasn't done his Rangers any harm.

It makes good reading in any event. Much more colorful than that which accompanied the much-blasted "Battle of the Bulge" the operational orders of which were issued by Generalissimo Conny Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Hockey News current edition carries the dialogue of the Watsonian verbal blast which followed the 6-6 game between the Rangers and Hawks a while back. It could be headed "Quick, Watson, The Needle." And the Blues "pinacushion" was there splenty.

Said Watson, "You can't play goal with a beer-belly." No comment from Gump Worsley, the object of Phil's affections, "when a dope like Lalande scores three goals in one game, how good can the goalie be" tried Watson. Said the Gump, "Uh," a cousin of Phil's from the Mohawks.

Watson: "Every time I hop on this fellow (Worsley) everybody accuses me of unjustly attacking him. But the same guys who go in after the game and pat him on the back are the guys who are busting him the beer."

The Gump says nothing. Looks around for offers.

Watson: "Worsley is the most unco-operative player on the club dressing-room. He refuses to work, even though he knows he's overweight. He should weight 165 pounds but he's over 176."

The Gump, still silent, pats tummy.

Watson: "I'm not going to replace him. But I'll tell you this, brother. I'm going to ride him hard from now until the end of the season."

Gump mutters: "I played a lousy game."

Watson overhears the remark and snickers: "He was even lousier than that."

Worsley: "From me to Phil. He's full of baloney."

A few days later Watson had his laughs. Chicago's Tommy Ivan struck back in defence of Lalande. Boston's Lynn Patrick rose to the defence of Worsley. Snapped Ivan: "Watson should concern himself with his own players. Worsley is his business but Lalande is not. Lalande is by no means a 'dope', but an improving young player for whose future we have high hopes."

Patrick sallied: "Watson had better find out what brand of beer Worsley drinks, then serve it to the rest of his players."

But, said a bystander, "That's not original. Lincoln used it referring to one of his players, Ulysses S. Grant."

"That's all right," came back Patrick. "Watson never heard of Grant and I'm sure he doesn't know who Lincoln was, either. Worsley has been Watson's meal ticket for the past two years, and if the Rangers didn't have him they would be in last place instead of fourth."

Later when the New York team skated on the ice against the Bruins, a strong-voice from the pews asked loudly, "Hey, Worsley, waddle you have?" Then a beer can clattered to the ice in front of the Ranger goalie's net.

But the Bruins had another inning. They emulated their Revolutionary sire forebears but instead of pinching the British tea, they pilfered the Rangers Fan Club's banner right under its president's nose. Jacques Schiff was the club prexy.

The next night a new banner hung over the Madison Square Garden balcony reading — "It's time for a change. Vote for Norman McLean as president of the Ranger Fan Club."

Calder Trophy and Cool 1,000 Might Go to Either Player; Bruin Formerly With Pembroke

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A nerveless goaltender and a 20-year-old centre who didn't figure he would ever make the National Hockey League are the 1956-57 co-favorites for the Calder award for the league's outstanding rookie.

The calm goaltender is sturdy Ed Chadwick, just about the only member of the Leaf youth movement that has come up to expectations.

The centre is Boston Bruins' Larry Regan who wrote himself off as a hockey player last season and prepared for a quiet old age running a service station.

Chadwick left the poll for the Calder award taken at mid-season, but Regan was not far behind and the trophy—and the $1,000 that goes with it—might go to either one on the basis of their performance over the last half.

Chadwick, a 23-year-old native of Fergus, Ont., was in the happy position of being Leafs' netminder even before this season opened. The Leafs looked at him for five games last year and when he turned in two shutouts and allowed a total of three goals their minds were made up.

Consequently Harry Lumley was sold to Chicago Black Hawks this season's end and the 184-pounder was called up from Winnipeg Montreal Canadiens of the Western Hockey League.

He lived up to his promise and after 65 games has a workmanlike 2.67 goals-against average behind one of the league's weakest defences.

If Regan wins the Calder, the North Bay, Ont., native will be the oldest rookie since Jimmy McFadden won it at 27 with Detroit Red Wings in 1947-48 season.

His presence in the NHL is probably due solely to sheer coincidence and Regan's decision to otherwise.

Last winter, after four seasons at right wing in the Quebec Hockey League he thought he had gone just about as far as he could go and though he was playing a few games with a senior team—Pembroke Lumber Kings—he joined his recently-purchased service station to provide him with a livelihood.

Then, three games before the end of the QHL schedule, punch Imlach, Quebec Aces' coach asked him to rejoin the team for the finals, and when the regular centre was injured Imlach called on Regan to fill the spot.

Regan agreed—luckily for him. For in his first game at the positive against Montreal Royals, Milt Schmidt and Lynn Patrick of the Bruins were watching.

Schmidt liked Regan's style—he has a goal and assist—and Patrick like his cousin, Lynn, he was one should know centres." Regan was drafted at the end of the season.

This season he has scored 14 goals and assisted on 19 others and his two wingers, Leo Labine Marckell and Jerry Toppazzini, have been two of the team's leading producers. His playmaking and stickhandling ability have caused him to be rated with Bill Cowley, one of Bruins' all - time great centres.

Balding Fires Five-Under 66 In Golf Tourney

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Al Balding of Toronto fired a flashy five-under-par 66 in the second round of the $12,500 St. Petersburg open golf tournament but it was good enough only to put him into a four-way tie for ninth place.

Balding, Canadian PGA champion who recently gave up his pro job at Toronto Eglinton to follow the tournament trail full time, recovered from a one-over-par 72 on the first round to make up a 36-hole total of 139—three strokes off the pace set by Jackie Burke.

Burke, a Texan playing out of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., put together two rounds of 68 for a one-stroke margin over-Cary Middlecoff and Pete Cooper.

Gene Littler, Billy Casper Jr., first-round leader, Jay Hebert, Dallier had 66-71—137 and was in a five-way tie for fourth while Casper was among those tied with Balding on a 66-72—138.

Gerry Kesseling of Kitchener, was the only other Canadian to qualify for the final 36 holes. He had a 76 to go with Thursday's 72 for a 143.

Miss the 16 golfs qualifying mark were John Kozak of St. Catharines, with 73-71—145, and Bob Wylie of Calgary, 74-77—151.

Tigers Starting on Sour Note Pirates Win Six Out of Seven

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A contributing factor to Detroit Tigers' dismal start last season was their lack of hustle in the spring training exhibition games. Tigers participated in 28 games against major league opposition, winning only eight, losing 18 and tying one.

After the first month of the regular season the Tigers were last in the American League standings and had a long haul before they started clicking. As it turned out, they wound up with the best won-lost record in the league during the second half of the campaign and finished fifth.

Rookie manager Jack Tighe, who replaced Bucky Harris during the winter, was anxious to get his club off to a quick start this exhibition season. The 42-year-old skipper stated: "The exhibition games are going to count this year. We're going to play them as hard as mid-season games."

DROP FIVE IN A ROW

It hasn't exactly worked out successfully, however. Detroit routed Boston 10-1 in the opener last week ago, but since then the Tigers have dropped five in a row against five different teams.

In succession Tigers have bowed to Kansas City 13-4, Milwaukee 3-2 and Washington 3-2 and New York Yankees 3-2. Friday the batters snapped out of their slump, but the pitching went sour as Chicago White Sox prevailed 17-12.

Four Detroit pitchers were touched for 16 blows including a three-run homerun by Minnie Minoso that knocked in four runs and a single combined with two on by Walt Dropo, who had five RBIs.

Chicago landed on starting pitcher Paul Foytack for an eight-run uprising in the fourth inning. Third baseman Reno Bertoia's error, one of three committed by Detroit, paved the way for the big blast. Jack Crimian, Hal Woodeshick and Mel Simmons were the other Tigers' mounds-men.

Bonus outfielder Jim Small and rookie catcher Charley Lau were the shining lights for the benguls as they drove in six runs with a homer and bases filled triple, Lau also homered.

Pittsburgh posted its sixth victory in seven starts by downing Washington 5-1. . . . Brooks Lawrence pitched five scoreless innings in Cincinnati's 4-2 triumph over Kansas City. . . . Hank Sauer smacked a pair of three-run homers and Willie Mays hit one as New York Giants whipped Cleveland 12-7. . . . Eddie Mathews erupted for a five-run outburst in the sixth inning as the Braves the Yankees 7-4 as Mickey Mantle unhurled his first spring homer for the losers. . . . Milwaukee edged Philadelphia 3-1, scoring the winning run in the ninth off Robin Roberts. . . . Chicago Cubs, piloted by Stone Baker's four hits, won an homer, whipped Baltimore 8-2 in a night game at Los Angeles—and rain washed out a night game at Miami between Brooklyn and Boston.

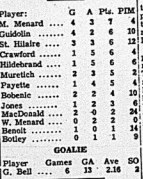
Fort Wayne Interested in American League

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ernie Berg, president of the Fort Wayne Comets of the International Hockey League, attended a meeting of the board of governors of the American Hockey League Friday and declared Fort Wayne is interested in an AHL franchise.

Th. board of governors concerned themselves mainly with details in connection with the draft in expanded hockey. They approved a more liberal system offered by the National Hockey League.

Hereafter, a player on the NHL reserve list, loaned out to a minor league club, is subject to draft unless he has played on the parent NHL team in the last 28 days of the season. Previously, a player on the reserve list was immune from the list.

The league boosted its waiver price from $3,000 to $7,500. This is the same amount an American League club must pay when it drafts a player from a league of lower classification.



The governors also went into the matter of a prospective pension fund for players. The league now has a fund reported to be around $35,000 for emergency purposes in case of injuries. The fund was built up through a portion of receipts from playoff games.

'Die-off' of Moose in N.S. Due in Part to Brain Damage

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

HALIFAX (CP)—Officials of the department of lands and forests here say they have discovered part of the answer to the "die-off" of moose in Nova Scotia in the last 20 years. They say the moose sickness is due to damage to the brain.

But, despite constant research, the experts have been unable to detect the cause of the brain damage.

D. A. Benson, provincial wildlife biologist, has made an extensive study of the problem since money went on the year - round protected list in 1931. At present he sees a ray of hope that the moose herd may be again on the increase in the woodlands of the province, but says the "die-off" problem is far from licked.

HUNTING BLAMED

He says there is practically no evidence to support the idea that hunting had anything to do with the decrease in the moose population. Ten years after the closed season went into operation there was nothing to indicate that the herd was growing.

For study purposes more than 50 cases of moose sickness were classified in the years 1949-1955. Detailed records of 47 animals were prepared from this large body material from 28 animals.

Mr. Benson says it is easy to tell the symptoms of the moose. They lose most of their fear of humans and often run in small herds. Life is often near farce. A cow chased they almost always circle and come back to the starting place.

When first found a sick moose may be in fairly good condition, active and capable of surviving for ten days to two weeks later the animal may have died. However, if the animal survives it is cured of that recovered.

Of the animals checked more than two out of every three were cows and more than half of all cases studied were between 1½ and three years old. Some sick moose examined were apparently capable of mating and producing young.

APPETITE DIES

Mr. Benson said that early in the study it was observed that the food taken could not be considered normal. The more sickly animals eat little and in the final stages will even nibble on spruce, a dangerous titbit for a healthy animal. He said the moose finally die from starvation.

Many animals acted as if their sense of sight was poor. Some would attempt to run but could not avoid obstacles. One ran into a tree, collapsed and died there. In most of these cases there was no evidence of anything wrong with the eye itself.

Ticks are often blamed for the moose illness but research does not completely support this theory. Ticks were found on many but not in the summer months when the death rate is highest.

Mr. Benson is definite about the breakdown of the moose's brain. In 15 cases examined 11 showed a physical breakdown in brain tissues. Many of the brain linings were congested with blood and the vessels on the surface were enlarged and top full of blood. Brain tissue once harmed will not heal as muscle tissue will.

Finally, no disease or virus was found which could be considered to be a cause of sickness.

Win Sixth Game by 4-1 Score Before Record Crowd of 2748; Defensive Work Features Win

By Geo. H. Carver
Sports Editor

The MacFarlands, staggering slightly from illness, injury and fatigue from a strenuous semi-final series, will meet the Whitby Dunlops for the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" lacrosse championship and the right to battle for the all-Ontario title.

The Macs, with a sensational defensive effort, and opportune offensive thrusts, eliminated the Cornwall Chevies here last night, defeating them 4-1 to take the semi-finals four games to two before a seasonal record crowd of 2748 cheering fans.

The Chevies, inspired by their 7-3 victory over the Macs in Cornwall the other night, threw everything they had in a desperate wide open early-period effort. Highlighting the fast furious battle and which eventually turned the tide of victory was the MacFarlands outstanding defensive work in the first period when they were two men in the penalty box, they hurled back everything the Chevies threw at them.

Gordie Bell, the outstanding hero of the series, aided by the outstanding penalty-killing efforts of Paul Payette, Maurice Benoit and Floyd Crawford and later Rene St. Hilaire, held the Chevies to a blank not only on this occasion but another when they were two men shy. The game, as far as the Chevies were concerned, was lost in the first period.

The opening chapter was a scoreless affair and it was not until 2 minutes had gone in the second frame that Paul Payette scored his first goal of the series to put the Macs one up. They flung home two more in the first six minutes of the third period before the Chevies scored their only goal and the first to be scored on Belleville ice in the series. Then Davy Jones, harassed by Chevy defenders, raced in alone to beat Chevy netminder Ed Kinsey to make it 4-1 lead. It was Davy's second goal of the season.

With Lionel Bolley back in harness from his sick bed, the Macs' lands iced a better balanced team than that which was beaten earlier in the Soo Schmidt's for the other night, was in harness and added his quota of service.

The Macs hit the penalty parade again collecting eight of the thirteen minors handed out by Referee Gordie Fevereau of Toronto. One of the exceptions saved the way to be the Cornwall goal but in reverse the Macs scored a beauty when they were a man short in the third period.

Paul Payette, Bep Guidolin, Benoit, St. Hilaire and Davey Jones picked up the goals for the Macs with Minnie Menard, Floyd Crawford and Ike Hildebrand being credited with assists. Larry Kwong who sparked the Chevies to their 7-3 victory, was the lone marksman for the visitors.

The Chevies battled desperately in a lost cause and they missed several chances from close in, nicking a post or missing completely. The rest except one, was well taken care of by Bell.

Outstanding defence work in the part of the Macs featured a fast furious period with the Guidolin power getting five of the seven penalties handed out.

Gordie Bell was terrific, when Bobenic and Hildebrand were off together and with Payette, Benoit and Crawford helped later by St. Hilaire did a sensational job of penalty killing.

The Macs had manpower advantage twice but they were held scoreless by the packed Chevies defence. The checking was close in a top-speed period.

Benoit got the gate for hooking at 10.35 and Paul Payette followed in his twenty one seconds later. The Macs held on however until the gong sounded.

The Macs weathered the manshortage storm in the opening minutes of the second period and Paul Payette marked his return to the wars in payoff manner.

The tricky centre, going in on a power drive whisked the puck from the Chevies' Bingley and his low hard drive caught the far corner for the only goal of the period.

The play maintained its fast tempo with play surging from end to end and both defences standing out.

Joannette drew a tripping penalty at the five-minute mark and the Macs swarmed around the Chevies' net but failed to hit pay dirt. Two minutes later they again had the advantage when Plamondon was chased but again the opposing defence held.

Hildebrand was given the heave-ho for elbowing and the Chevies took one but failed to capitalize on their advantage. The Macs outshot the Chevies 8-7 in the period.

The third period was only 55 seconds old when Hagyard was chased for holding and the Macs raced in to the attack. Two minutes later Rene St. Hilaire tipped Crawford's pass waist high into the net past Bingley to put the Macs two up.

Johnny Muretich was chased for hooking and he had 46 seconds to serve when Minnie Menard joined him in the hoosegow. The Chevies poured to the attack and gave the Macs' defence a busy time. Then Guidolin and Hildebrand chased the rubber into the Cornwall zone and Ike flipped a pass out to the coach who stood unmarked in front of the Cornwall net. Bep made no mistake and the Macs had a stranglehold on the game.

But the Chevies came back strong with a man advantage and Larry Kwong slipped past Benoit to beat Bell for the only Chevy counter of the pastime. Sparked by the goal the Chevies exerted tremendous pressure and hemmed the Macs behind their own blueline. The crowd got on its feet as the defence corps battled when, with two players to keep the goal intact.

The final stanzas of victory came after 14 minutes when Davy Jones broke away. He raced down centre, chased by Chevie backcheckers but got a shot away that beat Devaney to put the Macs three goals up, and the game was in the bag there and then.

The counter took some of the sting out of the Chevies' efforts and while they battled gamely to the end, the Macs kept them safely at bay until the final whistle.

The Guidolinteers almost mobbed Gordie Bell after the game as the big crowd stood and cheered. The Chevies like the fine sportsmen they are, mingled with the Macs shaking hands all round and wishing them success in the forthcoming finals.

Gordie Bell was named the player of the week while Paul Payette was given the player-of-the-week award. Harold Wellers of Carlings Breweries presented Johnny Muretich with the silver tankard award, the first player to win two.

Biltmores Edge St. Michael's 4-3 Take 3-0 Lead

GUELPH (CP)—Bill Sweeney, who led the Ontario Hockey Association junior A league in scoring during the regular season, continued his sharpshooting with a pair of goals here Friday night as Guelph Biltmores edged Toronto St. Michael's College Majors 4-3 to take a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven semi-finals series.

Bob Boucher with his second two-goal performance of the series and Gino Ubaldo were the St. Michael's marksmen.

Frank Mahovlich, showing no ill effects of an illness that hospitalized him earlier in the week, had assists on all the Toronto goals.

PLAY SHORT-HANDED

St. Michael's opened scoring on Ubriaco's goal in the second minute of play while Guelph was shorthanded but Sweeney got it back in less than three minutes with Toronto two men short.

A second-period goal by Danny Belisle put the Biltz in front and they were never headed.

Sweeney had the score early in the third period on goals by Chambers and Sweeney put Guelph two goals up. Boucher closed out scoring with one second remaining to play.

Before the start of the second period Ed Shack was presented with the Thumbs Memorial Trophy as Guelph's most valuable player. Ron Howell, last year's winner, made the presentation.

Senior A Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

North Bay Trappers are in the finals of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, senior A southern group, but even a 13-game round-robin hasn't decided who they will meet.

Trappers defeated Sudbury Wolves 3-2 Friday night to assume themselves of a place in the final, but the loss left Sudbury tied with Sault Ste. Marie. Ont., Greybounds for second place in the three-team series, so now a two-game total point series has been called to decide Trappers opposition.

The finalists in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A eastern division were settled Friday night when Belleville McFarlands defeated Cornwall Chevries 4-1 and took their best-of-seven semi-final series 4-2. McFarlands will play Whitby Dunlops for the Championship.

PENALTIES AHEAD 3-0

And in a third senior playoff, South Porcupine Porkies took a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven series for the Porcupine Mines Senior League title as they beat Timmins Flyers 5-3.

A crasco's record Sudbury crowd of 6,586 fans watched Trappers take a 2-1 first-period lead and go ahead 3-1 at the end of the second. Art Stratton, George Gosselin and Bobby Harlow scored for North Bay; Jimmy Logan and Frank O'Grady got the Wolves' goals.

NOHA secretary - manager Lorne Miller said after the game that the total-point series between Wolves and Greyhounds will be home-and-home, with the site of the first game decided by the flip of a coin.

BIG SECOND PERIOD

At Belleville, the McFarlands went ahead 3-0 in the second period after a scoreless first period and built up a 3-0 margin before Chevies scored once, then added another goal.

Paul Payette, Rene Hilaire, Bep Guidolin and Davey Jones were the McFarland marksmen; Larry Kwong counted for Cornwall.

At South Porcupine, Lina Dimarchi scored twice for Porkies and Doug Hunter, Billy Pirie and Eddie Kulik scored the others. Walter Pars scored for Timmins.

Saturday night the OHA western division final continues with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen down 1-0 in the best-of-seven series, host to Windsor Bulldogs.

Hank Sauer Far From End

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Big Hank Sauer, the National League's most valuable player of 1952 who turns 38 Sunday, may still be able to do the cleanup batting job New York Giants want him to do.

Outfielder Sauer, after going hitless in seven trips during three exhibition games, blasted across seven runs during three exhibition games, blasted across seven runs on two homers and a double Friday as the Giants whipped Cleveland Indians, 12-7.

The six - time - three 195-pound Sauer, acquired from St. Louis Cardinals after batting .298 in 75 games last season, was more or less a desperation grab by the Giants, crying for power to back up their one-man attack, Willie Mays.

With Mays batting the No. 3 position, manager Bill Rigney is banking on the 4 to 6 a respectable job in the No. 4 spot. Friday, Hank gave a robust hint he hasn't lost his old RBI touch.

"I'm not through yet, not by a long shot," Sauer said after his hitchcut work on the Indians. "I can still do what has to be done at the plate—maybe not as often as I used to, but enough.

"I'm in good shape and I'm sure my batting eye is as good as ever. After my first three games, I knew my timing wasn't so good. So I had a good batting practice session Thursday with Reuben Gomez giving me pitches, real stuff to work on.

Baseball Moguls Reject Entry Of New League

CLINTON, Ont. (CP)—The new Great Lakes Baseball League got the cold shoulder from the executive of the Ontario Baseball Association as it opened two-day annual sessions here Friday.

The executive decided not to place the Great Lakes' application for OBA affiliation on its agenda. Developments from that move at Saturday's delegate sessions is a matter of conjecture.

The Great Lakes loop is a successor to the apparently defunct senior Intercounty Baseball League and aims to operate with London, Brantford and Hamilton. Another plan is to play an interlocking schedule with the Niagara District Senior League, with one winner to go into OBA playdowns.

No official statement was made by the OBA executive, but it was reported that Great Lakes affiliation hinges on settling of territorial and player rights as they affect the "senior Intercounty League" which is expected to continue its usual groupings.

ANOTHER SNAG

In London Friday, veteran London outfielder Russ Evon hit a snag on a bid for senior B booking at London's Labatt Park when city utilities board decided that the Great Lakes' London Majors and the London Lords football team had already filled the park schedule.

The OBA executive also decided to:

Increase the entry fee for minor associations operating 50 teams or more from $100 to $150.

Raise the entry fee to $25 for any individual club wishing to enter any of the senior or intermediate leagues.

Favored Sarnia Blue Devils Defeat Quinte Saints 81-42

TORONTO (CP)—Sudbury Tech Bluedevils and the Spartans of London's Beck Collegiate were to meet today in the semi-finals of the Ontario High School basketball tournament.

In a second semi-final series, Toronto East York and Toronto Runnymede collegiates were to battle for a position in the finals, to be played tonight.

Three out-of-town and one Toronto high school make up the semi-final competitors in the consolation round of the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations competition.

Ottawa's Nepean High school was to play Jarvis of Toronto and Belleville's Quinte Collegiate was to meet Welland Notre Dame in the other semi-final set.

The Blue Devils, favored to go all the way to the title, after an undefeated season in Northern Ontario, had too much height and experience for their young opponents from the secondary as they won 81-42 Friday night.

FIRST TEAM CREDIT

The Belleville team, Quinte Secondary School's first senior squad, had a comfortable 17-3 record before the tournament.

The six-foot-six giants who played only three-quarters of the game led the Bluedevils. John McKibbon dumped 31 points through the hoop before he was benched and John Tymchuk ran up a total of 17.

Ted Batchelor, a stim five-footseven guard, was Belleville's high man, using his left-handed shot to good effect for 24 points.

London's win was the most exciting of the tournament as Westland, which had trailed through most of the game, suddenly jumped into a 50-49 lead and only Jerry Wibberen's last second basket put Beck up 51-50 at the end.

Barry Howson led Spartans with 22 points; Wibberden had 11 and Brian Laird 10. Steve Gelgeor was Welland's big man with 21 points and Jim Mulligan sank 13.

Runnymede led only 13-12 over Ottawa Nepean at the end of a low scoring half, during which the lead changed hands seven times. But after the interval the Toronto school took charge and won 41-35 with a well-balanced attack.

Ross May led Runnymede scorers with 11 points; Ted Clarke had 10 and John Christie and Bob Little each had nine.

Clarry Lay was high man for Nepean and high man on the floor as he sank a total of 17 points. Jim Prebble collected 11.

East York defeated Jarvis, 50-32 to make the semi-final round. Carl Christie had 16 points.

helps bring better ways of living

Out come the first precious drops of a new chemical. It may be an ingredient for a life-saving drug . . . or a powerful fungicide to help farmers produce better and more plentiful crops. It could be the stepping stone to a brand new industry.

FOR THE FRONTIER of industry today is in the inquisitive mind and in the skilled hands of the scientist as he seeks new ways to put the elements of nature to work for us.

CHEMISTS at Union Carbide Canada Limited, for example, are constantly taking apart the raw materials of nature and putting them back together again in entirely new patterns. This rebuilding of atoms and molecules has created hundreds of amazing chemicals, which are starting materials for practically every industry and end up in everything from detergents to anti-freeze for our cars.

THE SOFT FEEL in women's hand lotions is imparted by a substance that in another form makes possible the modern plastic squeeze bottle. Another chemical, basic to the manufacture of synthetic textile fibres, is also an essential ingredient of dynamite. All told, Union Carbide provides nearly 400 chemicals that are helping to satisfy our basic human needs.

Don Campbell First Full-Time Curling Pro

TORONTO (CP) — Don Campbell of Avonlea, Sask., member of a famous curling family, was signed Friday by the Royal Canadian Curling Club of Toronto as the country's first full-time curling professional.

Campbell, second on the Campbell brothers rink that won the Canadian championship in 1955, will take charge of all club competitions and bonspiels, give lessons and act in much the same capacity as a golf club' professional.

Campbell, 35, has played in three Canadian championships since he took up the game in 1935. In this year's championships, as in 1955, the Saskatchewan rink was composed of the four Campbell brothers.

Training Camp Notes

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Talk of a possible Washington — Chicago trade has increased with an indication the White Sox might be willing to give up outfielder Minnie Minoso.

Chuck Comiskey, Chicago vice president, says he'd like to get outfielder - first baseman Roy Sievers and catcher Clint Courtney, a lefthanded hitter, from the Senators. And Comiskey was quoted Friday as saying he is willing to part with "any of last year's regular outfield except Lory Doby."

Griffith said he planned to speak with Comiskey again Sunday but that any deal would be held up until Washington manager Charlie Dressen hashes out the potentials with his coaches.

CLEVELAND (AP)—Al Rosen, told general manager Hank Greenberg Friday that he will not play baseball for Cleveland Indians.

"He misses baseball and not being out in Tucson," Greenberg said, "but he feels he made the right decision and he's entitled to his mind."

Rosen, 32, a hard hitting third baseman, is working here as a stock broker, a career he started while a player.

Quebec Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Annable fired a pair of goals to pace Ottawa Junior Canadiens to a 5-1 triumph over Trois-Rivieres Lions in a Quebec Hockey League game Friday night.

The game wound up in a last minutes fracas only a few hours after Frank Carlin, general-manager of Montreal Royals said he would protest a rough play in a Thursday night game.

In Friday's game Jean Picard and Norm Corcoran drew five-minute penalties for the brief battle with less than two minutes remaining in the game. Lions goalie Jacques Marcotte and Ottawa forward Brian Anderson received the gray briefly and got minors for their troubles.

PROTESTS INJURY

Carlin said he would protest the "unprovoked attack" by Quebec goalie Al Millar on forward Andre Corriveau of the Royals.

Corriveau required 17 stitches in his face after being knocked unconscious in a collision with Millar in a game at Quebec City. Millar received a major penalty for charging and for drawing blood.

Corriveau was in pursuit of a loose puck in the Quebec end of the rink and Millar left the cage out of his ne ttotry to clear it when the collision occurred. Corriveau was carried unconscious from the ice.

In Friday's game Claude Richard, Dave Reid and Andre Tardif scored singles for the junior Habitants, who now have a record of seven wins, eight losses and a tie in their QHL performances.

Rene Pepin spoiled Claude Dufour's bid for a shutout in the Ottawa nets by scoring the Lion's lone goal at 15:10 of the final period.

Red Wings Win Squirt Title

The Red Wings took a double header from the Maple Leafs at Memorial Arena this morning to capture the squirt minor hockey championship.

Jimmie Pointer and Carl Hannah prevented the scoring punch as the Wings took the first game 3-0 and the second 4-0 thus winning the goals-to-count series 9-0.

Pointer was outstanding for the winners as he fired four of the shutouts in the first game and added a pair in the second. Goals to the two players.

Maple Leafs were in contention during the initial fixture but could not keep pace during the final game. Larry Wylie, Lee Loft and Gerry Stewart each scored once for the Leafs.

Carol Heiss Wins Third Skating Title

She combined poise with speed and acrobatics to win the free skating after taking a commanding lead in the compulsory figures, which account for 60 per cent of the scoring.

Miss Heiss, who succeeds now-retired Tenley Albright of Newton Center, Mass., received only less than 9.4 from any judge based on 10 for perfection in her free-skating program.

Second place went to Joan Schenke of Tacoma, Wash., also 17, while Carol Lewis, 19, of Colorado Springs, Col., was third.

Dave Jenkins, also world and North American champion, had a commanding lead in the men's competition which concludes today.

SPORT IN BRIEF

RULE CANADIANS OUT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — A third Canadian was ruled off the University of Chicago hockey team, competing in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships here, for having professional connections.

NCAA officials said John Rendall of Toronto last December renewed an option agreement with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League.

Two days ago the NCAA ruled that Wally Maxwell of Toronto and Mike Buchanan of Ottawa could not play in the tournament because they accepted expense money from the Leafs during a tryout.

HORSES GO ON BLOCK

TORONTO (CP) — Thirty-one thoroughbreds owned by the late James Fair will be sold Monday at auction at Cainsville, near Brantford, it was announced Friday.

The sale will include 12 horses in training, 11 by Vibrator and one by Sweet's Flair winner Lady Mark. Boss Ator, full brother to this year's stakes favorite Boss Cat at the plate, Lad Ator, and four other two-year-olds and three yearlings complete the racing stock. Tebbet, dam of Lad Ator, is in foal. A dozen broodmares to be auctioned.

GALT RINK WINS

GALT (CP)—Mrs. James Babcock's Galt rink won the annual fifty bonspiel Friday. Rinks from Simcoe, Grimsby, Hamilton, Oakville, St. Catharines, Toronto and Welland were among 20 competing.

Mrs. Babcock won the second draw and was over-all winner with three wins and a loss of 24. Mrs. M. Biro of St. Catharines won the second draw with three wins and a plus of nine.

Ike Chestnut Verdicts Cadilli

The 26-year-old New Yorker, who had dropped a close split decision to Cadilli last October, forced the fight against the jabbing Californian and that was the big difference. Cadilli contented himself with staying back and waiting for Chestnut to come to him.

A solid right to the jaw that made Gilly's eyes blink in the sixth round was the best punch of the fight. Chestnut followed that blow with two more rights to the jaw to draw the loudest cheers of the night from the slim crowd of about 1,500.

He took the play from the slow-starting Cadilli in the first three rounds and that proved the difference in the final stories.

The victory was Chestnut's 24th at 23 eight defeats. Cadilli took his ninth loss. He has won 27.

Barons Renew Playoff Bid

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

One of the things that keeps the American Hockey League race interesting is that, although the four playoff berths have been settled, any one of those teams has a mathematical chance to finish first.

Cleveland Barons renewed their bid Friday night with a 1-0 victory over the last-place Springfield Indians in the league's only game. The victory moved Barons into a second-place tie with Rochester Americans. The two clubs have 64 points behind the first-place Providence Reds. Rochester and Providence each have four games to play while Cleveland fourth-place Hershey Bears, eight points out of first, have five apiece.

The interest in the tight race was indicated by the attendance at the Cleveland game—7,262.

Defenseman Bert Bourassa, who seldom gets more than two or three goals a season, scored at 16:42 of the third period to give Barons their win. He beat Claude Evans from directly in front of the net on a passing play with John McLellan and Cal Stearns. Evans made 29 saves and Marcel Pallie 22. It was the sixth shutout of the season for Pallie who leads in that department.

TV Academy Awards Show Feature Top Entertainment

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The television industry will find out its top honors tonight in a 90-minute colorcast which aims to "turn a ceremony into a show."

That's the purpose of Bill Kayden, who is producing the TV academy awards show over NBC. He's got his work cut out for him. Critics have long blasted the awards shows as being an endless parade of dull speeches.

How can Kayden get entertainment into the show when 25 cameras are to be presented?

"For one thing, we're having three singers present awards—Peggy Lee, Nat King Cole and Julie London," the producer said. "Each will sing a song before making the presentation.

"Also, we will have Phil Silvers, Ernie Kovacs and Jimmy Durante and they will do some standup comedy. Plus which the whole show is being written in a light vein, with the accent on entertainment."

BENNY NOT PRESENT

Kayden said that "99 per cent of the nominees will be present." Only those who are out of the country or working at telecast will be missing. Most prominent nonattender is Jack Benny, reported to be in Mexico. If he wins—and he quite possible—Don Wilson will claim the gold statuette.

Fortunately, none of the nominees is on opposing shows at the time of the NBC telecast.

These are the ninth annual awards and the first to be telecast in color. The unwieldy banquet of previous years has been abandoned for presentation in an NBC studio in Burbank.

Desi Arnaz will handle festivities here; Phil Silvers will be in charge of the eastern portion originating in NBC's Colonial Theatre in New York. Both are CBS stars, if you want to make something out of that.

2,400 IN ACADEMY

There are about 2,400 members of the TV academy (compared with 1,770 in the 29-year-old motion picture academy). They vote on 29 awards, but five are technical and won't be announced on the show.

What is an emmy?

She's a golden babe in scanty drapery holding forth the electronic symbol of interlocking circles. The name comes from Immy, short for an early TV camera called the image orthicon. Now you know.

BROOM FOR LONG ARM

OTTAWA (CP)—The long arm of the law takes up the broom next Monday and Tuesday as 159 curlers, representing points throughout Canada, get the second annual Canadian Police Curling Association bonspiel underway.

AT THE McCARTHY — Ray Milland dishes out strong, barbed questions while Ernest Borgnine does mental gymnastics to recall the "whole truth" in this tense scene from Twentieth Century-Fox's revealing CinemaScope drama "3 Brave Men", which opens Monday at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. him irrevocably into the Russian camp. The Conservative charge that Canada was "catering" to Egypt would not be borne out by any Egyptian figures.

Earlier he said Egypt should give maximum co-operation to the UN force.

"If it does not do so, its action could result in the abstention of the UN Emergency Force entirely and even in the withdrawal of the UN relief agency in Gaza and that would mean chaos.

AT ODDS AGAIN

"It could result in the Israeli and Egyptian armies facing each other again in bitterness and hostility, with nothing between them."

He added that Canada's cause would not be improved by "hiss-ing at any of the governments or personages involved with whom we have to negotiate."

Mr. Diefenbaker said the government's Middle East policy was "a hodgepodge of inconsistencies —one policy one day and a different one tomorrow." The Commons had been "long on the thing the trail of contradiction."

A speech by Prime Minister St. Laurent referring to "the superi-men of Europe" had created Commonwealth disunity, the Canadian policy shouldn't consist of casting disparaging remarks at the leaders of "France and Great Britain and placing them in the same category as Hitler, Mus-solini, Bulgania and Khrushchev."

Mr. Stewart opposed "pamper-ing feudal Arab monarchs" and said "we should beware of the propaganda of the oil companies who keep them in office."

Mr. Low could not discount what the UN had done in the area. But Britain, France and even Is-rael should be recognized for the peace contribution they had made by moving in despite a huge Rus-sian arms buildup in Egypt. No one should forget that Russia's main aim still was to split the alli-tion.

Health Minister Martin said Mr. Diefenbaker's speec was so out of touch with Canadian public opinion that he probably would want to reamp his thinking.

No one at the table had worked harder than Mr. Pearson to keep the peace in the Middle East and help UN efforts to get the Suez Canal back in operation.

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) said Mr. Martin's speech indicated the "end of complex" of the federal cabinet. The fact was that, rightly or wrongly, the gov-ernment had Canada deeply in-volved in a Middle East situation so explosive that "it may result in young Canadians losing their lives."

Yet when the opposition tried to question Mr. St. Laurent about the situation he "lost his tem-per."

TORONTO COUPLE

Today's scheduled wedding party in Montreal was to be a big fam-ily affair for the Warringtons.

Mr. Warrington's father, also from Toronto, left the city early Friday morning to drive to Mont-real. Douglas and his wife left later and travelled by the less congested No. 7 route only to re-ceive fatal injuries at the Marmora crossing.

Late Friday afternoon police were still striving to locate Mr. Warrington's father to inform him of the accident.

Residents living near the scene of the accident said visibility was very poor at the time. Fog and smoke from nearby Marmoraton mines filled the swampy hollow and also rain was falling.

Provincial Police Cpl. Douglas Sears and OPP Constable G. E. Lebow investigated.

Margarine Color Is Hot Subject In Legislature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The question of margarine, al-ways a hot one in provinces where the dairy industry is in the forefront, came up in the Mani-toba legislature Friday. A govern-ment member promptly tried to have the matter dropped.

Continued debates on the color-ing of margarine can only "widen the cleavage between rural and urban areas," said Dr. S. O. Thompson (LP—Gimli).

He accused city members of the legislature of perpetuating the de-bates because they felt, on the basis of referendums held 10 years ago, that colored margarine was a strong issue in the minds of the voters. Margarine now is sold uncolored in Manitoba.

Roger Teillet (LP—St. Boniface) said that while the dairy farmer needed help, he didn't feel it should come at the expense of the poor family who needed mar-garine to help cut down its bud-get.

AIMS AT CLEANUP

Public works, health, social wel-fare and crown corporations were discussed as the Saskatchewan House moved into the second week of budget debate and almed at a cleanup by next Thursay.

Isaac Ellis (SC — Rosthern) said crown corporations of the CCF government could drop an immense burden on provincial taxpayers should there be a busi-ness recession.

He said Provincial Treasurer Fines' own words in the budget speech admitted that conditions could develop, through mismap-agement or economic change, un-der which the corporations could become losing propositions.

Sir Frederick Louis J. Robi-chaud (L—Kent) made his first address as financial critic of the New Brunswick Opposition. He said the Progressive Conserva-tive government's budget offers "absolutely no relief or encour-agement to our people."

Pay increases are involved in a bill introduced Friday in the Al-berta legislature by Provincial Treasurer Hinman.

Premier Manning's salary would be increased to $13,000 a year from $11,000 and cabinet ministers' and public depart-ments would get $10,000 instead of $8,500.

Kelso Roberts Acts to Save Life of Terrier

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Kelso Roberts interested personally today to save the life of a little terrier which ran at large and got his master's mother in trouble in the law.

Mrs. Ethel Porter, who said she gets only $30 a week for the sup-port of herself and her son, ap-peared Friday before Magistrate R. C. Taylor after police found the terrier running loose.

The magistrate levied a $10 fine with the option of five days in jail but said he would suspend sentence if the dog were de-stroyed. Mrs. Porter said she had no alternative but to have the dog put away.

Mr. Roberts, who acted as soon as he read newspaper accounts of the court hearing, said "that dog is not going to be destroyed." His action was to direct because the animal was not known to have harmed or menaced anyone.

Mrs. Porter said someone must have left the gate to her yard open and the dog slipped out. She said she and her son searched the streets and called the Toronto Humane Society in attempts to find it.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Budget day is always a field day for phrase-makers, and it was no exception when Finance Minister Harris brought down his pre-election budget in the House of Commons.

"It was a sop to the young, a slap-of-the-hat to the old, and nothing for the producer," declared J. N. T. Bulman of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

It might be called a "sunrise and sunset budget," he said.

A more irreverent wit termed it the "bubble gum budget." It had something for oldsters receiving old age pensions and also for the bubble gum set. Excise taxes on soft drinks and chewing gum are to be repealed.

But there will be no change in personal and corporation income tax rates.

Family allowances — "baby bonuses"—are to be boosted $1 monthly and old age pensions $5 monthly to $46. War pensions, for disability and "burned-out" veterans, are to be increased.

Harris predicted a surplus of $122,000,000 for the fiscal year.

GAZA TANGLE

Israeli sanity and common sense had hard going against hysteria and hatred in the Gaza Strip.

Arab demonstrations called for the Egyptian administration of the 25-mile strip while United Nations troops strove to maintain order and hold their ground without bloodshed. One Arab was killed by a UN bullet.

Egypt sent an administrative governor to the area, but the military position of the UN was undisturbed. Israel, meanwhile, reminded the world that she removed her troops from Gaza only on the assumption that Egyptian forces would not enter.

Egyptian newspapers showed resentment against Canada's role in the crisis, but relations appeared to mellow as the week went on. A Canadian soldier, Sapper Rene Vezina, 30, Rolotheil, Que., died from a heart attack trying to rescue Egyptians from a minefield.

EXPLOSIVE HEARINGS

The FBI arrested one of the most powerful labor leaders in the United States, James R. Hoffa, who also has union jurisdiction in Canada, on bribery charges.

Hoffa was picked up in the most sensational development of a headline-making Senate investigation of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

The FBI said that a lawyer employee of the investigating committee acted as a "double agent" in a dangerous game to trap the union chief, who is sometimes described as more powerful than the elusive Dave Beck, Teamster president.

The lawyer, John Cye Cheasty, testified he was paid by Hoffa to steal documents from the committee's files. Hoffa was freed on $25,000 bond.

CUBAN REVOLT

Seething unrest in Cuba broke into an open fight when students stormed the presidential palace in an attempt to kill or capture dictator Fulgencio Batista.

A government announcement said 40 persons were killed and 60 wounded in the short-lived uprising. Tanks and machine-guns were stationed around the palace —while tourists gawked.

NEAR-TRAGEDY

A group of Hungarian refugees who had never seen the sea before were aboard the Halifax-bound Dutch liner Waterman when she collided in the Atlantic with the Italian freighter Merit.

The 9,171-ton Waterman was holed above the waterline and sent out an S O S. But Captain J. C. Flag later reported the ship out of danger and heading for Brest, France, much to the disappointment of 312 Hungarian refugees and a contingent of Dutch settlers en route to Canada.

SEAMEN SURVIVE

Nine Nova Scotia and Newfoundland seamen survived 44 hours in an open boat on the cold Atlantic after their ship, the Patricia Sweeney, keeled over and sank because of a cargo shift.

Captain William Crouse of Lunenburg was ready to admit that his men were suffering greatly from cold and exposure when they sighted the U.S. coast guard cutter Castle Rock. Of the rescuing ship he said:

"My God, what a sweet sight—black and beautiful in the night."

J. Albert Langlois won an appeal against an order dismissing him as head of the Montreal police department.

The order was issued in 1954 after a vice inquiry found Langlois guilty of dereliction of duty. The case had been hanging fire ever since.

The Quebec Court of Appeals reversed the vice-inquiry judgment and Langlois said "I was always sure of what the judgment would be." He returned to his office.

Pacifique (Pax) Plante, key figure in the vice inquiry and bitter enemy of Langlois, has filled the post of police director for a year.

JET AGE

A jet passenger aircraft streaked 3,235 miles from coast to coast in the United States in three hours, 48 minutes, an average speed of 612 miles an hour.

Actually, the Boeing 707 hooked a ride on a high wind part of the way, but even allowing for that its top speed on its own power was 596 miles an hour on the hop from Seattle to Baltimore. Fifty-two persons were aboard on the history-making flight, which gave a glimpse of jet travel in the future.

VISCOUNT CRASH

A British European Airways turboprop airliner crashed at Manchester's Ringway airport in England, killing all 20 persons aboard. An official government announcement said there was no indication of error by the pilot.

It was the first Viscount to crash during a passenger flight. BEA said Viscounts have flown more than 150,000,000 miles and carried more than 6,000,000 passengers.

SEATO TALKS

The United States and Australia reported they are concerned that Russia may be engaged in other activities in Antarctica under the guise of building scientific bases.

State Secretary Dulles of the U.S. made the statement after member nations of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization met in Canberra, Australia, to discuss the fight against communism in that part of the world.

Britain, France, the U.S., Australia, New Zealand, Pakistan, The Philippines and Thailand, members of SEATO—issued a communique stating that the threat of Communist aggression has lessened, but by no means disappeared.

PAPAL ANNIVERSARY

Pope Pius XII, despite his 81 years and illnesses, looked strong and vigorous when he went to Saint Peter's Basilica to celebrate the 18th anniversary of his coronation.

It was a double celebration, since the leader of 400,000,000 Roman Catholics had marked his birthday only 10 days previously. He was cheered by 20,000 persons on his way to the basilica.

Centenary

WORLD DAY OF PRAYER

CENTENARY—With the theme "When Shall Separate Us?" the World Day of Prayer service was held at Centenary Church on Friday afternoon with a good attendance. There were several friends from Bayside and Avondale attending.

Mrs. Hardid Hancock, assisted by Mrs. Byron Harder, Mrs. K. Bird and Mrs. L. Hunt lead in the order of service with Mrs. E. Ray playing accompaniment for the hymns.

Mrs. Hancock introduced Mrs. Blythe Lehman, who was the guest speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. Lehman, a missionary, soon to return to the mission field in West Africa, brought a most heart-felt message. Taking as her text the story of the raising of Lazarus, "And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave clothes" likened the peoples of the world as bound with tradition, custom and sins.

She told of the women of the East who are little more than slaves and of the heavy burdens that they were forced to carry—how that tradition has bound them for centuries, and that it would be thus until Christianity became the ruling factor in these lands. She added that personal witnessing was an important factor in bringing true Christianity to the lives of all peoples. Mrs. Lehman asked for prayers as she and her husband go back to their work in Africa.

Mrs. E. Windover of Bayside, sang "Open the Gates of the Temple."

Mrs. R. Edmondson thanked the ladies who assisted with the service and on behalf of the congregation assured Mrs. Lehman that the thoughts and prayers of all were with her in her wonderful work among the African people.

Mr. Robert Percival closed the service with prayer.

Old Theatre Purchased by Gospel Church

FRANKFORD

FRANKFORD — The Emmanuel Gospel Church, whose pastor is Rev. R. P. Spurrell, has recently purchased the old theatre in Frankford which has been used as a grist mill in the past years, from Mr. O. Leavitt, and will be commencing extensive alterations in the near future. This will be a wonderful asset to the work of the Lord, in as much as it will accomodate a large gathering with facilities for infants and children when they become restless.

Also for the aged and out-of-towners, there will be a rest room, and accommodation to prepare lunches in the kitchen downstairs.

The main auditorium will be quite spacious as the building is 90 feet by 40 feet. There will be a lower auditorium with individual Sunday School rooms, washrooms, lounge and kitchen. The building will be steam heated and will have fluorescent lights.

Pussy Willow (Salix), one of the first harbingers of spring, can be grown anywhere, and withstands lowest temperatures. Foliage, appearing after bloom, is lovely gray-blue-green. The silvery, fury "catkins", always associated with Pussy Willow, open into attractive flowers. Branches are easily forced by cutting and placing in water.

PICTURES OF ICE FIELDS

This year acres of Ice Fields were formed in the Moira River bed between the C.P.R. Bridge near the Bay and College St. Bridge. Fortunately the weather conditions permitted the slow break up of this huge expanse of ice and with the river opening up at its approach to the Bay, there appears now, no likelihood for any damage of an ice block forming. An early rapid thaw however could have produced a very serious Belleville flood.

Let me emphasize once again it is the large ice fields that form in the Moira in its Belleville area that provide the menace, the ice that may come down from the upper reaches of the river are only secondary.

Enjoy rooms 8° to 15° cooler . . . lower air conditioning costs!

Hot sun rays striking window glass carry quite a punch during summer months. They send room temperatures soaring, boost air conditioning costs, and damage interior furnishings.

The smart thing to do is to stop sun heat outside your house before it can do its damage. Stop it with colorful canvas awnings and rooms stay cool and shady . . . draperies and rugs fresh and unfaded. And because there's less heat to handle, air conditioning units cost less to buy, less to operate.

Let us show you our wide selection of smart canvas colors and give you a free estimate on the low cost of canvas awnings for your house.

Philippine Isles President Dies In Plane Crash

Journalist Only Survivor As 26 Die in Cebu Jungle

MANILA (AP) — Vice-President Carlos P. Garcia took over the reins of government today as the Philippines and the free world mourned the death of President Ramon Magsaysay with 25 others in a mountainside plane crash.

Garcia flew in from the SEATO conference in Australia several hours after Magsaysay's charred body was found in the wreckage of his plane on Cebu Island.

The 60-year-old vice-president took the oath of office as fourth president of the Philippine Republic. He will serve until after next November's presidential elections.

The new president said he plans no changes in the cabinet and will himself continue to fill the post of secretary of foreign affairs he had held under Magsaysay.

ONE SURVIVOR

Only one passenger, a Philippine newspaper man, survived the crash which killed 26 lives, including several leading governments officials and members of Magsaysay's staff. The survivor was returning from giving two commencement speeches in Cebu.

A close guard was placed around the wreckage as officials made clear they feared there was the possibility of Communist sabotage. As defense secretary, Magsaysay had wrecked the Communist Huk rebel movement in the infant island republic.

Messages of condolence poured in from abroad.

From aboard the cruiser Canberra, President Eisenhower said the people of the Philippines, the United States and "the entire free world have lost a valiant champion of freedom." Magsaysay, he added, "will be greatly missed in the fight against communism."

South Korean President Syngman Rhee and Nationalist President Sukarno were among the first to express sorrow and regret. Both Houses of India's Parliament observed two minutes of silence.

The vice-president said the pontiff "recognized the trend toward self - government and economic progress in Africa and the very substantial efforts" he would have on the situation in the world between the forces of freedom and communism."

Nixon came to Rome during a goodwill tour of North Africa.

Employment Shows Decline In February

OTTAWA (CP) — The government reported today that total employment in Canada showed a moderate seasonal decline between mid-January and mid-February.

A joint monthly statement issued by the bureau of statistics and the labor department said the number of persons with jobs at Feb 16 was an estimated 5,362,000, about 1 per cent less than mid-January but 146,000 higher than a year earlier.

The bureau said the number of persons without jobs and seeking work at Feb. 16 totalled 323,000, compared with 303,000 at Jan. 19 and 308,000 at Feb. 18, 1956. The increase over last year was 15, 000.

Registrations for employment at National Employment Service offices at Feb. 4 totalled 576,000, an increase of 48,600 over Jan. 17 and 59,500 above Feb. 16, 1956.

British Doctor Pleads Innocent In Poison Trial

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. John Bodkin Adams, 58, family physician charged with poisoning a wealthy patient, pleaded not guilty when his trial began today at Old Bailey, London's central criminal court.

Adams is charged with murdering 81-year-old Edith Morrell, a wealthy widow who was his patient for 20 years. He faces a second charge of murdering Mrs. Morrell's husband, Dr. Cyril Morrell, in 1954.

Mrs. Morrell died suddenly and unexpectedly in Adams' home. Her husband died in a nursing home.

Adams, a bachelor, is a well-known figure in the fashionable, prosperous section of Eastbourne, Sussex, where he has practiced medicine for 30 years.

Adams was charged with murdering Mrs. Morrell, her husband and Mrs. Gertrude Hullett, 71, and his wife Gertrude, who died within four months of each other last year. But the doctor has not been formally charged in these deaths.

The crown charged that the doctor, over the years, had overdosed drugs because he knew he would benefit from their wills.

Wins Money on TV for New Nose But Daughter Likes Mummy as Is

LONDON (AP) — Mrs. Terry Phillips, who won the price of a new nose on TV show, said today she has decided to keep her old nose and give the money to charity. Her small daughter likes her the war she is.

Mrs. Phillips, 40, appeared last week on the television show State Your Case, during which viewers were asked to give hard-luck stories should be rewarded with the prize of £100.

The viewers looked at the mighty Phillips nose, heard her tell of her yearning to have it bobbed, and voted her the winner in a poll held by mail.

Meanwhile, eight-year-old Shirley Phillips got into the act.

"She changed my mind for me," Mrs. Phillips told a reporter. "She cried bitterly and said 'Mummy, you don't have your nose cut off.'"

Mrs. husband agrees with her, so the money goes to four charities, including one in my home town of Twyford."

MRS. GOLDA MEIR MEETS DULLES ON GAZA CRISIS

Israeli Envoy to Ask U.S. to Keep Promises

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dulles scheduled an urgent meeting today with Israel's Foreign Minister Golda Meir to hear her plea for U.S. action to curb Egyptian moves before war erupts again in the Middle East. Mrs. Meir flew from Jerusalem in a bid for American support. She arrived Sunday at the same airport and almost at the same time as Dulles, back from the Far East.

Mrs. Meir made her flight after Egyptian President Nasser ordered Egyptians to take back control of the Gaza Strip from United Nations forces which had replaced withdrawing Israeli troops. Nasser is shipping arms against Israel in shipping, ran counter to Israeli assumptions on which the withdrawal was based.

SAME SITUATION

"I am quite convinced," Mrs. Meir told reporters at the airport Sunday, "that with the Egyptians in the Gaza Strip we have re-created the same situation that we had before Oct. 29."

That was when Israel attacked Egypt last fall, reporters noted. Did that mean, she was asked, that Israel might fight again if Egypt assumed what Israel considers too much authority in Gaza?

"I can't say at this time," she replied.

Besides seeing Mrs. Meir and studying reports on Middle East developments during his 11-day absence, Dulles was to confer with arranged afternoon appearances before the House of Representatives foreign affairs and Senate foreign relations committees.

The committees assembled for a report from Dulles on two conferences—the one he attended at Canberra, Australia, of ministers of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO) and one he leaves for Wednesday at Bermuda where President Eisenhower will confer for four days with Prime Minister Macmillan.

SOVIET ACTIVITY

Authoritative sources said Mrs. Meir came to impress on Dulles Israel's determination to act to "spells danger to the security of Israel" and endangers Middle East peace. She is also known ready to ask the United States to keep which Israel says were vital promises made by President Eisenhower.

1. In a Feb. 20 radio-television address, Eisenhower said no nation had the right to use force, that Egypt should "desist with firmly" by the society of nations if it tries to keep Israel out of the Gulf of Aqaba.

2. Eisenhower said, in a March 1 letter to Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion, that Israel's hopes and expectations were "reasonable," and that the U.S. would seek that they "prove not to be illusory."

Mrs. Meir wanted to know: What will the U.S. do to implement those pledges?

As one Israeli spokesman put it: "Israel has no doubt where the American policy stands, but it interprets the recent Washington talks as going into action, not merely of attitudes."

The Israelis noted that unless Nasser is stopped in Gaza he will be encouraged to "act recklessly" in other areas of dispute, such as future operation of the Suez Canal. UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold is expected to go to Cairo this week for Suez talks with Nasser.

Millions of British Workers Considering Joining Strikers

LONDON (Reuters)—Millions of workers were talking today of joining 200,000 shipyard workers who are on strike in Britain.

The possibility that a railway by 400,000 railway men arose as nearly 3,000,000 factory workers waited for strike orders.

Reports in industrial circles are that the railroad staff's national tribunal will recommend a three-per-cent wage increase in reply to the National Union of Railwaymen's demand for a 10-per-cent boost.

The union already has rejected a 3½-per-cent increase offered by the British transport commission, which operates the state-owned rail system.

Jim Campbell, railway union secretary who flew back from Germany Sunday, told reporters at London airport:

"I cannot say that I expect the railway men to strike or not. I'll have to wait for the tribunal's recommendation. But I say that things are certainly very serious."

"Now 200,000 men are on strike and by the end of the week it may be half a million."

Almost all jobs in the British Isles today felt the full impact of a strike which started at noon Thursday when 22,000 engineers and craftsmen walked out.

From the vast Clyde-bank works in Scotland to small Thames-side repair docks silence reigned instead of the clang of metal and the chatter of rivet-guns. The walkout halted the construction of more than 300 vessels and stalled repair work on some 300 more.

Meanwhile, skilled and unskilled workers throughout the British manufacturing industry — known here loosely as "engineers"— awaited the result of a meeting Tuesday at which they will ask the form of strike action starting next Saturday to back another demand for a pay increase of 10 per cent.

Leaders of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions—embracing 40 trade groups —meeting Tuesday after already rejecting a pay offer of 4½ per cent. But they have not yet announced whether the stoppages will be a country-wide walkout or a series of strikes in key centres.

U.S. Govt. Repudiates Action Smearing Canadian Official

WASHINGTON (CP)—In what amounts to a public apology to Canada, the United States government has repudiated the action of a U.S. senate investigating sub-committee which attempted to smear a senior Canadian diplomat with the taint of communism.

The state department Saturday took the unusual step—for the first time in history—of issuing a statement saying the sub-committee's allegations against E. H. Norman, Canadian ambassador to Egypt, "do not represent the opinions of the United States government."

The statement added:

"The United States maintains the friendliest relations with Canada and has every confidence in the Canadian government's judgment in the selection of its official representatives."

The statement was issued following a verbal protest delivered here by Canada's ambassador, Arnold Heeney and a statement issued in Ottawa Friday by external Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson which expressed "contempt" for the "slanders and unsupported insinuations" against Norman and complete confidence in the Canadian envoy.

In tough, undiplomatic language Pearson branded the committee and announced Canada intends to lodge a "strong" protest with the U.S. government against the sub - committee's action in making public the transcript of a hearing accusing Norman of being a Communist. The accusation was made by Robert Morris, committee counsel.

The state department statement disclaimed responsibility for the allegations by emphasizing that the investigation being conducted by the Senate Judiciary sub-committee—its entirely within the control of the committee."

Counsel Morris declined comment on the state department statement. He said Pearson's charges "will be fully considered on the Senate floor Monday by several senators.

The Washington Post and Times Herald took the sub-committee to task in an editorial entitled Senator Inc., accusing it of embarrassing Canada "and indeed the Western alliance" at a time of extremely sensitive relations with Cairo."

"Entirely rightly, Canadian foreign secretary Pearson has reiterated that the 'slanders' and 'unsupported insinuations' of the subcommittee will be treated with contempt. The strong protest to the United States which he promises is thoroughly justified."

"When," the editors asked, "is the Senate going to put a bridle on this sort of rampaging irresponsibility?"

Writers Claim Day and Meeker Are Through

TORONTO (CP)—The two Toronto evening newspapers — The Star and The Telegram speculate that executive changes will be made in the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey organization.

In New York-detailed stories on Sunday's press conference held by president Conn Smythe, sports editor George Dulmage of The Telegram says "the real cause of the shakeup in the 30-year history of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey club is in the works."

Dulmage says "it is possible that Smythe . . . will step aside from his role as boss . . . to concentrate his efforts on the operation of the Gardens. With him will go Hap Day, general manager. Smythe likely will remain as president.

"But the team of Stafford Smythe and Harold Ballard, who are in a little more than 20 years have built the Marlboro amateur team to the most powerful unit in the Junior hockey fraternity, will continue. will now have their chance to operate in the open and receive the players they have developed."

Red Burnett, writing in The Star, says Smythe may turn over to his board of directors regarding the future of the Leafs. He has did nothing, however, to dispel the feeling that Hap's days are numbered.

"The writers and radiomen left the conference convinced that Day and coach Howie Meeker are through," Burnett adds.

RESCUE TENANTS

TORONTO (CP)—At fire Saturday night in a second floor apartment forced 11 boarding house tenants on Spencer Ave. into the street. Damage to building and contents was estimated at $3,000. Firemen helped five tenants, including an 18-months-old girl, to escape by ladders.

3 FOUND DEAD, 2 OTHERS ILL IN STALLED CAR

Found on Bush Road Northwest of Ottawa

WALTHAM, Que. (CP)—Three persons were found dead, and two others critically ill in a stalled car discovered today on a road through deep bush 30 miles north of here. Police said reports indicate the group may have been in difficulty for two days or more.

Loggers Ovila Roy and Danac Tremblay reported to police today finding the car on the bush road, Northwest of Ottawa. Roy and Wilham borders on the Ottawa River 120 miles northwest of Ottawa.

The victims said two women and a man, all unidentified, were dead in the car. Another man and a woman were ill and the loggers took them to a 30mile nearby.

The bodies were found on the nearest logging centre summoned Quebec provincial police and doctors from Fort Coulonge, Que., 20 miles east.

But police said it is impossible for their vehicles to drive over the rocky roads and they will have to go in by foot. It was the condition of the road which led them to believe that the car had been there for several days. It had been driven in before the latest thaw set in 48 hours ago.

Jewish Mayor Of Dublin Gives Cardinal Rosary

NEW YORK (AP) — Dublin's Jewish lord mayor presented a rosary to a Roman Catholic archbishop Saturday.

Lord Mayor Robert Briscoe, an Orthodox Jew, made a morning walk to the residence of Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York. He presented the archbishop with rosary beads made in Jerusalem.

Briscoe told Cardinal Spellman that his shop was at a synagogue.

"Be sure you have all those rosary beads here," said the cardinal, smiling.

Still walking—because orthodox Jews do not ride on the Saturday Sabbath—the Dublin mayor attended a "Sabbath of remembrance" service at a nearby synagogue 16 blocks away.

Later he was guest of honor in a St. Patrick's Day celebration featuring a Fifth Avenue parade of 122,000 cops and daughters of the auld sod.

29 HURT IN RIOT

CALCUTTA (AP) — Opposing factions clashed during the counting of election returns in the Howrah district Sunday and 29 persons, including two policemen, were injured. As counting neared its end, a faction supporting a Communist party candidate began arguing with supporters of a local Congress party candidate. Soon the surging crowd became rowdy and police charged with batons. Tear gas bombs were used to disperse the crowd.

Thousands of Snakes, Animals Die Each Year so Humans May Live

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — On the outskirts of Sao Paulo, spread over the floor of green hills, is a farm, of death.

Each year thousands of snakes and animals die on the Pinheiros Institute farm so that thousands of humans may live. The farm produces snake bite serums, desperately needed on the frontier where Brazilians are fighting the jungles, developing the land. The institute is also the largest producer in Latin America of vaccines, antitoxins, vaccines and serums. More than 100,000 persons yearly roam the deep pits on the farm. Here they are milked for their venom and the complicated processes for making anti-snakebite serums begin.

Pereira said that deep in the jungles, hidden from the eyes of frontier plains, hundreds of men, armed with a rod and noose, are searching for snakes. They receive money for their labor but they are saving many lives.

"Once the snake is captured—whether it's the deadly coral snake or the common rattlesnake —it makes the long journey in a crate to this farm."

Pereira demonstrated the milking of a rattlesnake and a jararaca—another poisonous jungle snake.

He went into the pit and pressed a hook-shaped rod on the snake's neck. The steady, angry clack of the rattle drowned out all other sounds as Pereira deftly lifted the reptile by the neck and tail.

The four-foot snake, fighting to strike, suddenly found his two fangs over the lip of a glass dish. The pressure of the rim on the snake's neck forced out the deadly, milky venom into the dish.

Pereira, casually tossing the snake back into the pit, said: "At first, a mild dose is used to dilute it in a salt water solution. Then we'll inject it into the blood of horses."

There are 800 horses on the farm, four hundred of these will die each year and be replaced. At first, a mild dose is injected into the horse. By the end of four months, if it lives, the horse can take a lethal dose without danger.

The snakes are fed on mice. Experimentation is made on guinea pigs —there are about 1,000 in a former chicken house on the farm. The institute also makes a special serum, a vaccine-serum for the bite of the caranguejeira, an enormous spider with a leg span of about eight inches.

UN Forces Move From Gaza Strip To Border Posts

Canadian Armored Troops Leave Naples for Egypt

CAIRO (AP) — United Nations forces appeared today to be withdrawing from positions they had taken up throughout the Gaza strip and deploying along the Gaza-Israeli border.

Maj.-Gen. L. M. Burns of Canada, commander of the UN Emergency Force, said his troops "are already partly deployed between the borders." However, he indicated the UNEF had not withdrawn completely from the Gaza strip.

Gaza dispatches said the UN force had pulled out of road check-points in the southern part of the strip but that Egyptian troops had not moved in.

CANADIANS TAKE OFF

UNEF officials in Naples, Italy, said the first contingent of Canadian armored corps troops left there by plane early today. The size of the contingent was not announced, but transport officers said it probably would be one of the 80 Canadians awaiting Egypt's approval for their entry.

There already are 1,100 Canadians serving with the UNEF, mainly administrative officers and RCAF men handling the shuttle service between Naples and the Middle East. Egypt had been hesitant about admitting more Canadians.

UN undersecretary Ralph Bunche and Lt.-Gen. Carl Von Horn, a UN legal expert, shuttled back and forth between Gaza and Cairo. Bunche said he felt confidently that the Egyptians had taken over Gaza's administration "because that implies many things."

ALREADY IN CHARGE

In Jerusalem, there was no doubt the Israelis consider the Egyptians already administering Gaza strip, Israeli troops pulled out of that strip and Sharm-el-Sheikh under strong UN and U.S. pressure, on the assumption that the UN force would take over civilian and military responsibility in the two areas.

Last Thursday Egyptian officials, including a governor-general, Maj.-Gen. Abdel Hadi Ibrahim Abdel Latif, moved in only a day after the Israeli withdrawal.

Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion repeated to the Israeli Parliament at an emergency session of his cabinet. He interrupted the session to receive Egypt's ambassador Edward Lawson. Details of his talks were not disclosed, but it was assumed Israel's course would not be set until Foreign Minister Golda Meir returned for her talks today with State Secretary Dulles in Washington and later with UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold in New York.

CONFER WITH ENVOYS

In Cairo, Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi conferred separately with U.S. ambassador Raymond Hare and Soviet charge d'affaires Vladimir Vinogradov. There was speculation Hare may have discussed the role Hammarskjold might play when he arrives here Wednesday.

Senate Probe To Be Extended Into Management

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators said today their rackets inquiry already is reaching into certain management practices as well as labor union operations.

Robert Kennedy, chief counsel of the committee which is searching for evidence of racketeering in labor and industry, said later hearings will study payment of Union funds to Nathan W. Shefferman, a Chicago labor relations man, and to Sam Solomon in Teamsters funds to Nathan W. Shefferman, a Chicago management consultant. "I will look into certain companies," He did not name the companies.

The first three weeks of the committee's hearings have dealt mainly with alleged Teamsters officials in "muscle in" on the profits in Portland, Ore. The hearings resumed today with more testimony from Frank W. Brewster, west coast Teamsters boss.

Eleven Sealers Stranded on Ice When Ship Sinks

HALIFAX (CP) — The 100-ton sealing vessel Beater sank in the Gulf of St. Lawrence Sunday night but her 11 crew members clambered to safety on an ice floe and today were waiting to be picked up.

Capt. Karl Karlsen, owner of the ship, said here there were no casualties and the men would be picked up "shortly" by the ice-breaker Baffin, which left Louisbourg, N.S., late Sunday night.

The Beater, under Capt. Lauritz Brandal of LaHave, N.S., was hunting near the Magdalen Islands when the vessel became gut caught in heavy ice. The sealer left Curling about five miles away, but couldn't reach the men because of heavy ice.

Police Blotter

With the "do it yourself" trend developing to include a large variety of activities, city police today are wondering just what use a set might have for a service station tow truck reported missing.

This morning employees at Trudeau Motors on Station street reported that a company tow truck was missing, having been taken some time since Saturday night. The truck had been left on the garage lot.

City and provincial police combined unsuccessfully in a hunt for a stolen car which eluded cruisers on a Sidney township sideroad.

City police spotted the vehicle reported stolen in Toronto while cruising in the Wellington and Bridge street areas but the driver made good his getaway into the township. Provincial police joined in the hunt with two cruisers but could not locate the wanted vehicle.

Children in the East Moira Street area were reported throwing barrels from the Parquet Packers plant into the Moira, while a Southview Ave. resident reported his car was stolen. The stolen car report was then cancelled when the owner learned his brother had taken the vehicle.

Two Deaf Mutes From OSD Have Fine Business

TORONTO (CP) — In the silent world of the deaf mute, two Toronto brothers do $70,000 business yearly in a silk-screen process printing plant started in the basement of their home.

Arthur and Donald Hazlitt, deaf mutes since birth, employ three similarly-handicapped persons but they report the problem of communication with five unhandicapped employees doesn't affect plant operations.

The brothers use sign language or written messages to communicate with employees. Both are graduates in commercial art of the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville. They worked at it plants similar to theirs for 10 years before starting their business venture.

In thanking the meeting for their confidence, Les Digby mentioned that this would be his ninth year in the presidential chair.

Four teams definitely signified their intention of entering the league this year: Belleville, Trenton Merchants, 6 RD and Campbellford, while it is expected that most of last year's entries will be back to form either a six or eight team league. The league schedule will commence during the first week of May and will run Sunday and Saturday afternoon games.

ALL-STAR GAMES

It is hoped to put on exhibition all-star games against the Oshawa and other leagues during the season. The team entry fee will be $10 per team and each player will have to be registered on Football Association of Canada forms for the season. The fee for referees will remain at $2.50 per game payable by the home club.

Some time was given over to the discussion of the minor situations in Belleville, and was made chairman of the minor promotion committee with George Roelfsema assisting. $50 was voted to the minor associations in that city for the use of the game. 6 RD, Campbellford, and Trenton also may might be added to the junior ranks or teams this season besides the usual Belleville entries.

A further meeting will be called around the middle of April to approve the schedule.

Firemen Douse Blazing Gasoline Pump Fire

A blazing gasoline pump set afire when knocked over by a motorist who was forced to swerve to avoid striking a car, brought out city firemen during the noon hour Saturday.

Leo Charlebois, 167 Albert St., was driving on East Dundas St., when he was forced to swerve to avoid a taxi which turned into Charles St. His car went out of control into the Regent Service Station lot and struck a gasoline pump, knocking it over and setting it ablaze.

Firemen were called and extinguished the blaze with foam.

It was a busy weekend for firemen with no less than two calls since Saturday noon.

This morning the reels were called out to the city where tires on a highway transport were ablaze.

Several tires on the transport had gone flat and become overheated, setting them ablaze.

At two o'clock this morning firemen were called to 87 Everett Street, where a T.V. set was afire. The householder had called the reels when smoke started pouring from the set.

Other calls answered by firemen were for hot stove pipes at 27 Cannifton Road, and a marsh fire at the city dump.

Weather Balloon, Instruments Found On Sidney Farm

You never know what is going to happen next. On Saturday afternoon Clarence Cook of R.R. 5, Belleville, was going about his affairs in the Cannifton, Holloway district. The day was very exciting. A few minutes later he found himself forwarding information on upper air conditions to the U.S. Army.

Mr. Cook found the information to be an expert on air conditions came about in this manner. He was walking across a farmer's field on the 6th of Sidney when he was amazed to find a torn and deflated rubber balloon which must have measured 20 to 30 feet in diameter before bursting, an open five foot parachute made of oiled paper with wooden ribs and a small plastic box housing delicate weather instruments all attached together.

The inscription read "This radiosonde transmitter was developed by the U.S. Army, Buffalo Signal Corps, Contract No. 97, for the purpose of obtaining weather information for altitudes as high as 14 miles. Your assistance may make it possible to re-use the instrument or parts, thereby saving a considerable part of the cost of obtaining from the information needed for weather work."

Mr. Cook said he presumed the broken rubber balloon had burst under air pressure at a certain altitude causing the parachute to open and break the fall of the instruments and mechanism enclosed in a transparent plastic box, protecting it from the main encasement.

More Farmers Retain Larger Milking Herds

The encouraging cheese prices have resulted in prompting more farmers to retain larger milking herds, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

This is reflected in the agricultural representative from Northumberland county where apple tree pruning is said to be making considerable progress. Sows and feeder pigs continue in keen demand due to the comparatively high pork prices.

In Hastings county farmers seem to be becoming more variety-conscious in seed grains and legumes and the demand for circular No. 296 "Field Crop Recommendations for Ontario, 1957" has been very keen.

In Prince Edward county a good interest in seed grain is reported while many orchardists are taking advantage of the mild weather for orchard pruning.

NO SUBWAY THIS YEAR

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto authorities said Friday no decision on a proposed second subway line for the city is likely before mid-April and construction this year is a virtual impossibility. Officials said it is not expected a joint Metro planning board and Toronto Transit Commission report will be submitted before April 30.

Miss Kay Homan Vice-President Junior Farmers

GUELPH (CP) — Nearly 400 delegates from Western Ontario closed a three-day convention here Sunday following the annual church service of the Junior Farmers Association of Ontario.

Elected president of the organization was David Barrie, Galt, who represented Ontario junior farms last year on an exchange visit to Great Britain.

The vice-president, Miss Kathleen Hendry of Corbyville, has been a leader in junior farmer activities in Eastern Ontario.

A. G. Bennett, assistant director of extension, Ontario department of agriculture, was appointed secretary-treasurer.

Among resolutions passed were a request for an elementary veterinary short course to be held at the Ontario Agricultural College, and a recommendation for a greater amount of credit for the junior farmer loan board for the establishment of young men on Ontario farms.

WINS CONTEST

Halton County won the Junior farmer provincial debating competition for the second successive year.

Winners of the travelling scholarship which affords a two-month tour of Europe, visiting junior farmer groups, were Blythe Meek, Erin; Allan Scott, Princeton; Jean Wrigglesworth, Georgetown and Leone Turnbull of Paris.

In a Sunday panel discussion, speakers urged farmers to swing other segments of the population to their way of thinking. If they want to maintain power at the polls. They suggested city people be invited to junior farmer meetings.

A decrease in the farm population, said Lorne Hillyard of Peel County, has cut agriculture's voting power.

11 Persons Hurt As Fire Sweeps Convent School

SUTTON, Que. (CP) — Eleven persons were injured in a fire spreading fire that destroyed a two-storey school wing in a convent here Sunday night. Some 71 others—most of them young girls —escaped to safety.

There were no deaths, and injuries were reported minor.

The fire broke out at the nuns and 64 girl students who board at the convent early Sunday in the second-floor chapel of the main convent building. A hunt smashed a window in the chapel and leaped to the ground, followed by at least three students, all of whom were apparently hurt in the fall.

The others made their way to safety down fire escapes and staircases as flames burned through the adjoining wooden wings, where the sisters of the Roman Catholic order of Presentation of Mary taught. Some 500 pupils of the school's wing was blamed for the fire.

CROSSED BORDER

Extra equipment and fire-fighters were summoned from Richford and Enosburg Falls, Vt., across the international border from this town 55 miles southeast of Montreal.

The main convent building, built in 1903, was badly damaged by smoke and water, and all its windows were broken. The flames destroyed the wing and then crossed behind the fire three hours after it started.

Three ambulances took the injured to a small hospital at Sweetsburg, Que., 12 miles to the north. Officials there were awaiting X-ray reports today before revealing their conditions.

Twelve nuns took refuge for the night in a local hotel. Most of the children were from homes in the district and their parents picked them up after the fire.

Year's Reports Presented To Children's Aid Meeting

The annual meeting of the Children's Aid Society was held in the basement of Bridge Street United Church. The election of a new slate of officers highlighted the evening and what is believed to be the first public showing of the National Film Board's $57,000 production "Night Children," was enjoyed. Guest speaker was Dr. Ernest C. Hunter of Trinity United Church, Toronto.

The film depicted the work done by the CAS in Toronto, where a 24-hour staff is employed and one radio car is used. In Toronto members of the CAS answer calls at any hour of the day or night. The film portrayed some of the situations which CAS staffers encounter.

C. B. Morgan, president of the local CAS, said "It is gratifying to note the growing recognition on the part of the governments, provincial and municipal, that it is the wisest (and cheapest) to rear children in their own homes. Greatly increased funds are now available for protection and prevention work. The Province of Ontario will contribute approximately $5,000 to us in 1957 and if additional staff is placed in the field, its grant will be increased accordingly. The local assisting municipalities (county of Hastings, city of Belleville and town of Trenton) also make voluntary grants for preventive work, each in accordance with its assessment of its individual need. The service each receives is therefore directly related to the amount each chooses to spend on the prevention of the neglect of children."

FEWER IN WARD CARE

The society's reports show more children were admitted to its care, and more discharged in 1956 than is usual. At end of the year there were fewer children in ward care than at any time during the past 15 years. This, the president asserted, was due mainly to the work of the staff.

Early in the year the board authorized the establishment of a subsidized receiving home and observation centre. To this home all children over the age of one year would be admitted on admission to care. Also those children who are found to be unable to accept substitute parents would be held there for casework and therapy. The report shows that neither suitable accommodation nor suitable foster parents have been found for these children.

Work has already begun at the CAS treatment clinic, which is utilizing skills within the agency and the medical and other professional resources in the community. The clinic was approved in mid-1956 for the purpose of helping those children who are so seriously emotionally disturbed as to present a distressing problem.

CARE FOR INDIANS

In late fall the board of directors accepted a federal government proposal that the services of the CAS be extended to include the Indian people resident on the Tyendinaga Reserve. In doing so the local CAS was one of the first, if not the first, to so agree. Payment for services will be made by way of a per capita grant based on the number of people actually resident on the Reserve.

Mr. Morgan extended thanks to the various agencies which gave publicity to the CAS and said: "Throughout May we made a conscientious effort to acquaint the public with the needs of our children and what we are doing to try to meet these needs. For their assistance we thank The Ontario Intelligencer, Radio Station CJBQ, and those very important weekly newspapers in the outlying areas of the county. They have all been most co-operative."

THANKS FOSTER PARENTS

He also thanked the 125 foster parents for their "patience and understanding the problems of our children. They are indeed the backbone of our organization."

"In 1956 our disbursements exceeded our receipts by more than $11,000. This will be recoverable, at least in part, through a higher per diem rate in 1957. It is imperative though that no further extension of services be undertaken until such time as additional funds are available," said Alderman Gerald Hyde, treasurer of the CAS, who also represented the City of Belleville, in the absence of Mayor Jane Forrester.

Ald. Hyde said method of payment of grants to the CAS by the province has changed. The Province of Ontario now makes an annual grant which is calculated at the rate of $100 a month, multiplied by the number of employees, times the percentage of staff-time spent on matters other than care of wards.

"A commendable feature of this method," said the treasurer, "is an arrangement whereby the grant is paid in 12 installments and therefore allows increases or diminishes in accordance with the size of our staff."

MORE ADOPTIONS MADE

Bruce M. Kerr, local CAS director, said "our society is now able to place in adoption each year almost twice as many children as were placed in adoption prior to 1956. This constitutes an annual saving of approximately $10,000 to the municipalities concerned."

At the first of January 1956, the CAS was protecting 214 children (not in ward care) from neglect, and at the end of the year the number had increased to 249. The number of neglected children in ward care at the first of January last year was 271 and another 74 were admitted during the year, while 113 were discharged to wind up 1956 with 232 neglected children being cared for by the CAS in ward care.

The report shows 163 children were cared for in boarding homes at the end of last year, 15 were in free or wage homes, 43 were in homes on adoption probation and 11 were in institutional care.

COMPLETE 42 ADOPTIONS

At January 1, 1956, 46 children had been placed on the adoption probation and 42 adoptions were completed during the year.

The report also summarized mothers who sought assistance from the CAS in 1956 and, while 45 children were born out of wedlock and admitted to the society for care, Putative fathers either at the request of unmarried mothers, or on behalf of them, paid $1,129.24 to the CAS.

During 1956 the society received about $97,000 for the maintenance of wards, $14,000 in grants and $3,000 from other sources for total receipts of $116,560.71.

On the disbursement side, the CAS paid out $75,581.99 for ward maintenance, $377.97 in non-ward maintenance, and $35,797.91 for administration and general purposes, to conclude the year with $131,757.87 in disbursements.

Poor Visibility Cause of Crash

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury decided Saturday the crash of a light plane in a field near here Feb. 15, in which three persons were killed, was caused by poor visibility during a snow storm.

The jury recommended that all flights be banned on cross-country flights. The plane was on a flight from Petawawa to Kitchener when it crashed about 15 miles north of Toronto.

Sunday Edition Of Telegram off On Schedule

TORONTO (CP)—The first Sunday edition of the Toronto Telegram appeared on city streets Sunday and also was distributed throughout Ontario.

The paper contained 64 pages in four 16-page sections plus Weekend Magazine and an abridged novel. There was no indication of any interference with delivery. Before the paper was published there was criticism that publication violated the Lord's Day Act and reports that prosecution might be launched.

A group of provincial and Metropolitan police appeared at The Telegram after midnight and took away copies of some back drivers and editorial employees on duty.

GATHERING EVIDENCE

A Telegram spokesman said the police were gathering evidence for possible use if prosecution is started.

Representatives of the Lord's Day Alliance watched as the papers left the telegram. Rev. A.S. McGrath, general-secretary of the Alliance, said the situation will be considered at a meeting Friday.

During Sunday provincial police Inspector J. Craig, on orders from the Ontario attorney-general's department, made a spot check of newspaper, radio and television offices as well as other places to prepare a report on how the Lord's Day Act is observed in Toronto. He was accompanied by a detective from the Metropolitan police morality squad.

City Council Will Set Tax Rate at Meeting

City property owners will in all probability have the 1957 tax rate set tonight at the regular meeting of city council as Alderman Gerald Hyde, chairman of a special committee on estimates, is expected to introduce a by-law setting the mill rate.

The budget meeting has been delayed close to a month as municipal council was advised to delay setting rates until full information on increased government grants was received from Queen's Park. It is not expected there will be much change in the mill rate from that which had been prepared by council following newspaper reports of grant increases announced in the provincial budget.

Eddie Sargent Liberal Choice In Grey North

The former Owen Sound mayor was selected on the second ballot.

The speaker was Finance Minister Harris. Referring to the budget he said he felt it was the government's duty to help children and elderly persons—the ones who really needed to be looked after.

DIFFERENT ATTITUDES TOWARDS EGYPT

Egypt's prompt action to regain civil control of the Gaza strip, after the departure of Israeli troops, has provoked comment which points up two diametrically opposed attitudes.

British and French newspapers, almost without exception, have considered this move as additional evidence of Nasser's intransigence and as proof that the British and French governments were correct in their attitude towards his regime. United Nations officials, on the other hand, have stressed that the UN had never questioned Egypt's right to administer the territory in question.

The UN attitude is almost certain to be met with widespread satisfaction, not only in France and in Britain but also in Canada and the United States. Yet in his stand Hammarskjold would appear to be acting in the spirit of resolutions passed by the United Nations Assembly early in the Middle East crisis. The surprising development is not than the UN should accept Nasser's claim to administer the Strip, but that this should be disputed by many who, a few short weeks ago were highly critical of the Israelis, the British and the French for their armed intervention.

What is the case, in fact, as many may be, the UN Assembly held that Nasser was the injured party. Once grant that, and it is only logical to contend that the UN should restore to him, as promptly as possible, all the rights and prerogatives he enjoyed before Israel invaded the Sinai desert and British and French troops landed in the Suez Canal zone.

If the resulting situation is held to be impossible, then the fault does not lie with UN officials but with the decisions made by the delegates of the member states.

To permit Egypt to regain the Gaza Strip by force, and then refuse to permit the Egyptian Government to resume that control of the strip which it enjoyed before the invasion just does not make sense.

Mere execution of the pre-invasion status, though, will certainly not prove satisfactory. The problem is to devise means of preventing a resumption of the guerrilla warfare which aimed at making Israel's borders prior to her invasion of Egyptian territory. The continued presence of United Nations troops in the border territory would certainly be useful in any such solution, but the chances of satisfactory acceptance of them will not be enhanced by opposing the Egyptian government resuming administrative control of all areas previously under its jurisdiction. The repeatedly stated point, the permission of the Egyptian government for the stationing of UN troops on Egyptian soil is essential. Otherwise, if the troops remained against the wishes of Nasser, they would, in effect, be armed intervention by the United Nations. Such intervention may be desirable, but it is outside the authority of the UN at present constituted. It would be a breach of the UN charter.

BRITISH PAPERS URGE LIMITING TESTS

British newspapers, of three political stripes, Conservative, Labor and Liberal, have joined in urging that Great Britain take the lead in an effort to stop the nuclear arms race.

The papers, the Times, the Daily Herald and the News Chronicle, advance this plan as Britain prepares to test her first hydrogen bomb in the South Pacific.

Their attitudes towards this test differ. The Times says it must now go ahead as planned. The Daily Herald urges that the test be called off.

Nor do their misgivings about the nuclear weapons race appear to be identical. The Times notes that after the hydrogen bomb is exploded Britain should take the initiative in an effort to ration future tests, a suggestion which might be advanced on either, or both, of two grounds, the fear of an atomic war or fear of the effect on the human race of the results of nuclear weapons. From what can be learned from brief excerpts carried in a Reuters-despatch from London, it would appear that the Times is more concerned with the fear of an atomic war, the News Chronicle with the threat to man's welfare from continued testing of nuclear weapons, even though they be less frightening, it may be more important, because if it exists at all it is already operative.

The Atomic Energy Commission of the United States has pointed out once sought to minimize the dangers of such tests, but its efforts will have failed to convince many in the face of testimony by other scientists that the existence of such dangers is not probable.

The News Chronicle points out that the World Health Organization issued a report on Thursday of last week in which it stated that "no reason at all man-made radiation which it stated that "no reason at all man-made radiation which it stated that "no reason at all man-made radiation

JESUS LOVED THEM

by Patrick and Garrison

MARY THE MOTHER

"And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary."

—Luke 1:26,27

Mary, the mother of Jesus, was referred to by the Jews as the daughter of Eli; but early Christian writers called her the daughter of Joakim and Anna.

She was related by marriage to Elizabeth, the wife of Zacharias, the priest.

The fact that she was already with child when she was married to Joseph made her an object of much ridicule by her contemporaries, who did not believe in her accounts of a visitation from Gabriel, nor of the annunciation that she was to become the virgin mother of the Messiah.

The story connected with the birth of Jesus, the flight into Egypt, and the presentation of her Son at the Temple are all related in full in the Gospels.

Mary's profound thoughtfulness and maternal love are indicated in the New Testament account, which says that "his mother kept all these things in her heart."

Perhaps no mother in history suffered the long travail for her son, as Mary in her deep concern for Jesus, from the night of His birth in Bethlehem to the final tragic night of Golgotha.

Scripture mentions her only four times following the reappearance of Jesus and the beginnings of His ministry after 18 years of absence or silence.

The first is the marriage at Cana in Galilee, at which she was present with her Son. The second was at Jerusalem at the last Passover, observed by Jesus. The third was at the foot of the Cross, when Jesus committed her to the care of John, His beloved disciple with the words, "Woman, behold thy son,"; and to John, "Behold thy Mother."

Finally, in the days following the Ascension, Mary met with the faithful disciples in the upper room, where they "all continued with one accord in prayer and supplication."

BARTHOLOMEW

"And when it was day, he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles; Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, Jaffes and John, Philip and Bartholomew, . . ."

—Luke VI:13,14

Bartholomew was one of the Apostles whose life story has been lost to us during the centuries that have passed since he was first called by Jesus to be one of the Twelve.

A number of authorities believe he is the same person as Nathanael, mentioned in the Gospel of John, (1:45-51).

This opinion is based on the fact that Bartholomew is not a proper name, but merely served to identify him as the son of Tolmai.

Moreover, the name Bartholomew is never mentioned in the Gospel according to John. But in the later Evangelist's list of Apostles, Nathanael is the name given in the place accorded to Bartholomew in the other three Gospels.

Scholars reason, therefore, that John may have referred to him by his given name, where the other three Gospel writers followed the Hebrew custom of calling him the son of Tolmai.

It was Philip who first told Nathanael of Jesus. And, John relates, Nathanael replied somewhat contemptuously, "Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?"

But upon first seeing Jesus, Nathanael followed Him as readily as the other disciples, declaring, "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God."

According to traditions of the early Church, Bartholomew became a missionary to the East, preaching in Mesopotamia, Persia, Egypt, and Armenia.

Legends say he was martyred in Albanopolis, Armenia. The manner of his death is variously reported as having been crucifixion, beheading, and being flayed alive.

Belleville Ties Ottawa Club In Chess League

The Ottawa and Belleville chess clubs battled to a 2½-2½ tie in the opening match of the recently organized Eastern Ontario Chess League, played at the Canadian Legion Hall here on Sunday afternoon.

The E. B. Eddy Chess Club of Hull had also been scheduled to play here but failed to keep the date.

The Belleville club will journey to Ottawa March 31 to play matches with Cornwall and Pembroke. Sixth entry in the league is Renfrew.

The league is for players of B classification or lower. The Ottawa players were of B or C ratings. None of the local players are rated by the Canadian Chess Federation.

Playing at No. 5 board in yesterday's match, Phil Malnyck of Ottawa gave the visitors a lead when he defeated Dave Pullan of Belleville. However, Tim Meeus, playing No. 3 board for the local club, evened the count by defeating James Dewar and Len Hart at No. 4 board then shot Belleville into the lead by mating Alex Szabo of Ottawa. The match was evened again when Allan Olson of the visitors won from Martin Hamelink of Ameliasburg in No. 2 board.

This left the result of the match dependent on the top board. There, after four hours of play had left them with pawns and a minor piece each, J. F. West of Ottawa and H. S. (Bud) Ellis of Trenton agreed to a draw, leaving the match tied.

TAKES KEYS TO PRISON

MARION, Ill. (AP) — William Hinkle, 24, of Carbondale, will have a dozen keys with him when he enters Menard prison to begin a two-to-five-year term on forgery charges. They might win him a stay in the prison hospital but not his freedom. The keys are in his stomach. Police said Hinkle swallowed them Tuesday in county jail. X-rays disclosed none of the keys would have fit Hinkle's cell door anyway.

PHILIPPINE

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who knew Magsaysay in the Second World War as a guerrilla leader, cabled an expression of sympathy to the dead president's family.

A search party which included Magsaysay's brother, Jesus, found Magsaysay's remains.

The president's body was virtually unrecognizable. Identification was made through personal effects he carried.

The bodies of 20 of the passengers were reduced to near ashes. Five others were scattered over an area of 20 feet on the southwest slope of the mountain.

TOOK 18 HOURS

The plane cashed in jungle so dense it took ground rescuers 18 hours to reach the scene. Both wings of the plane were sheared off and at least half the craft was a charred ruin.

A Manila Times photographer who trekked through jungle to the site, said the plane was "scattered over a wide area. The engines were squashed. One propeller was up in the trees, one part of the wing was standing upright."

The sole survivor of the crash—Nestor Mata of the Philippine Herald—told his paper the plane had exploded before it hit the mountainside. The Herald said, however, his account contained discrepancies and added he was suffering from shock when he dictated it. Hospital bulletins said Mata was suffering from second- and third-degree burns and had a 50-50 chance for survival.

HIGH OFFICIALS

The dead in the crash included Brig.-Gen. Benito Ebuen, commanding general of the Philippine Air Force, Education Secretary Gregorio Hernandez, Jr., Representative Pedro Lopez of Cebu and former senator Tomas Cuili.

Officials agreed Magsaysay's death could throw the young nation into political turmoil and will signal a wide-open race for his Nationalista party nomination.

It could also mean that the Liberal Party, still floundering from crushing defeats in the last two elections, might revive its stand and put up a strong candidate this year. Earlier the Liberals had virtually conceded the president would be swept back into office.

GERMAN REDS SIGN PACT WITH SOVIET

Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, Soviet defence minister, seated left, and Colonel-General Willy Sloph, East German defence minister, are shown in East Berlin as the Soviet Union and East Germany concluded two treaties covering the "temporary stationing" of Soviet forces in East Germany. There are 20 divisions of Soviet troops, numbering about 400,000 men in East Germany according to a U.S. army estimate. In background, standing left to right, Soviet Foreign Minister A. A. Gromyko (pointing to Zhukov), Premier Otto Grotewohl, Walter Ulbricht (with board) and Deputy-Premier Minister Fritz Selbmann. The formalities were a sequel to an agreement reached January 7 in Moscow, during a visit of an East German government delegation.

Quinte Saints Beaten Twice In OSSA Basketball Tourney

By MAC HAIG

The Quinte Saints' dreams of the All Ontario Senior "A" high school basketball championship were stopped abruptly by a powerful team of young giants from Sudbury. In the first round of the tournament the Sudbury Tech Bluedevils easily defeated the Quinte Saints 81-42. Since this was a single elimination tournament, that was the end of the Saints' chances. The Saints entered the consolation round, and drew Welland Notre Dame as their opponents. The losers in the first round of the tournament all enter this consolation round.

The Saints were dwarfed by the Sudbury team. The smallest man on the Sudbury starting line – up was taller than our tallest man. Although the Saints played fine offensive ball, they could not cope with the Sudbury boys once they gained possession of the ball. The big man for Sudbury was 6' 6" John McKibbon who rolled up 31 points. He stayed well out and made most of his points with hook shots. John Tymchuk tucked away 17 points. He and McKibbon sat out the last quarter. Other point getters for the Bluedevils were Ron Pushkarenko 11, Kiddler 6, Nukan 5, P. Andlar and J. Andlar 4 each, and Taylor 3.

For Quinte Ted Batchelor was his usual self as he rolled up 24 points. At 5' 11", Ted was dwarfed by his opponents, but that did not prevent him from hitting consistently. He also grabbed off most of the rebounds that the Saints managed to get. Jim Green played one of his best games of the season as he had 8 points. Roger Walters had 4, Bill Dickey, who had an off night, had 2 along with Bob Elliott and Eric Beeby. The game was fairly close for the first quarter, but Sudbury gradually pulled away from the COSSA champions. Mr. Hayman's boys kept trying until the final whistle, but were no match for the NOSSA champions.

In the other first round games, the TDIAA runners-up, the East York Gollaths defeated the TSSAA champions from Jarvis 50-32. WOSSA champions the London Beck Spartans eked out a last minute 51-50 victory over Welland Notre Dame, the SOSSA title holders, Runnymede Collegiate Redmen, TDIAA champions, defeated Ottawa Nepean of EOSSA 41-35.

In the championship semi-finals, London Beck defeated Sudbury 57-45 while East York edged out Runnymede 28-27. In the fifth place game, last year's runners-up to Assumption College, defeated East York 67-35 to take the title. For London Barry Howson and Brian Laird paced the winners with 26 and 23 points respectively.

In the consolation round, Quinte again met up with a much taller but definitely superior team in Welland Notre Dame. The final score of this game was Welland 77, Quinte 51. Once again Quinte played fairly good offensive ball but could not hold their opponents down.

Mulligan, Kerko and Geiger were the top marksmen for Welland. For the Saints Ted Batchelor continued his magnificent play with 22 points. Other points were gathered by Eric Beeby 10, Bill Dickey 8, Dick Pearce 5, Jim Green, Bob Elliott and Roger Walters 2 each. In this game Beeby played extremely well and Dickey looked more like his usual self.

In the other consolation semi-final, Ottawa Nepean defeated Jarvis Collegiate 53-47 before bowing to Welland 56-32 in the finals.

Thus the high school basketball season for 1956-57 draws to a close. It has been a most successful season for Quinte teams, especially the Saints who are, of course, the COSSA champions.

Succulents are a fascinating garden specialty — plants that store water for a dry, rather than rainy day. Closely related to Cacti, they thrive outdoors in warm, sandy or dry areas, and do admirably as plants in dry heated rooms. Echeveria (Hen-and-chickens) forms a rosette of silver gray leaves that turn pinkish in sun.

'Musicians and Contemporary Painters' Talk at O.R.M.T.A.

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Branch of the O. R. M. T. A. was held recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Herdman, 10 Murney Street, Belleville, with Mrs. Egerton Boyce in the chair.

After the usual business meeting, a talk on "Musicians and Contemporary Painters" was given by Mr. Michael Smykaluk, art master at the Quinte Secondary School. The talk was illustrated with the aid of a slide projector, and appropriate recorded music, played in the background, heightened the effect.

Mr. Smykaluk compared the history of art and of music from the year 1600 to the present time, pointing out that the same influences had moulded the creative work of both artist and composer living at the same time. Because the musician, like the artist, was a more than usually sensitive creature, he reflected in his work the conditions of his environment and his re-actions to them.

PERIOD ART AND MUSIC

Mr. Smykaluk drew a parallel between the art and music of various periods, comparing the Baroque period in art with the music of Bach and Handel; the classical period of Poussin, Watteau and Fragonard with Haydn and Mozart; the romantic period, towards the end of the 18th. century, as seen in Delacroix's painting "Liberty Leading the People, 1831", had its musical counterpart in the works of Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner. The Impressionists (the "Sunshine Painters") — Monet, Renoir and Van Gogh — were likened to the airy tonality of Debussy.

With the coming of Picasso and the Cubists in 1910, the polyrhythmic music of Stravinsky was discussed, and modern paintings such as those of Miro and Zerbe were appropriately accompanied by music from a ballet by Arthur Bliss.

In summarizing the main points of his talk, Mr. Smykaluk stated that, like the novelty and discordancy of modern music, painting in the 20th. century seemed to include distortion, perhaps as a result of the quick pace of modern living.

The lecturer was introduced by Mrs. Herdman and thanked by Mrs. Townsend. Mrs. Smykaluk poured tea, and Mr. William Counter thanked the Herdmans for their hospitality.

Returned to Normal Living Only After Losing Sight

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — A totally blind Kitchener mother, who lived "in constant dread" for 10 years while she gradually went blind, pulled herself back to normal living only after she lost her sight.

"Mom doesn't miss a thing," her children say proudly.

Mrs. Jerome Voll, mother of four children, began to lose her sight 11 years ago.

SUSPENSEFUL FEAR

"Through God's wonderful plan of things, I knew I would have partial eyesight for 10 years," Mrs. Voll said recently. "But I lived in awful suspense, becoming blind. I lived in constant dread of the time the lights would go out."

And the lights did go out 11 months ago. The 10 years of "suspenseful fear" which Mrs. Voll describes as "the hardest I will ever live" were over.

The readjustment made by Mrs. Voll is typified by her attitude toward her children.

MEETS NEW CHALLENGES

While she had partial sight, she was afraid to apply Braille because she thought she would get it on crooked. "Now, I use the Braille system," she said.

Since her blindness, Mrs. Voll courageously meets each day's new challenges. She has learned to type, is working on the last of three Braille books, and helps with the cleaning, baking, ironing and washing. "My washing must being perfectly," she said, "so the neighbors won't watch and pry."

Mr. and Mrs. Voll have two adult children, a third in high school and a fourth in elementary school.

OSAKA, Japan (AP)—Shigetaro Yoshida was cleared of arson charges today after telling the Osaka district court he didn't mean to set fire to his neighbor's house two years ago. The 40-year-old watchmaker gave the court this explanation: "I was dreaming that American soldiers had landed in Japan, so I sneaked into the enemy camp and set it afire. Then I woke up and found that I really had started a fire."

Kinette Club Presents 'This Is Your Life'

The March dinner meeting of the Belleville Kinette Club was held on Monday at St. Thomas' parish house.

Helen Wilbur was Sergeant-at-arms and Marg Hallam was song leader for several Irish numbers with Maude Rollins at the piano.

Eva Ketcheson introduced two guests, Emily Fraser and Mary Atkinson.

Reports were read by the secretary and treasurer.

The members were reminded of the Club's Easter draw of $100 plus a hand-made purse by the C.N.I.B.

A letter was read from the local C.N.I.B. thanking the Kinettes for their gift of white canes, also for the refreshments served at their recent birthday party, as well as their regular monthly meetings for the past number of years.

Plans were discussed for an Inter-Club meeting to be held early in May under the convenership of Helen Lennox. Invitations will be extended to Kingston, Napanee, Trenton, Tweed and Campbellford Kinette Clubs.

Following a discussion pertaining to the forthcoming National Convention in Montreal, the meeting was turned over to the program committee.

As it was "Past Presidents' Night" the five former presidents were in charge of the entertainment. Marg Hallam, pinch-hitting for Ralph Edwards and Ruth Follwell, as camera-man, presented "This Is Your Life, -President Jean Smith". Maudie Rollins, Helen Wilbur and Mary Lang appeared during the show, depicting important events in Jean's life. This was cleverly presented and highly entertaining.

Refreshments were served by the past-presidents.

Group Makes New Attempt To End Anglican Ban on Women

LONDON (Reuters)—A group of women is making a new attempt to end the ban on women ministers in the Church of England.

Known as the Anglican Group for the Ordination of Women, it passed a resolution at a recent annual meeting to campaign actively within the Church of England for its views.

Hitherto, the group, which was founded in 1930, has deliberately refrained from public debate on the issue.

But it now believes the time has come to give women a chance to enter the ministry. The women have decided to end their restraint and put forward a reasoned case. They are making plans to promote discussion within the Church of England through pamphlets and study groups.

"In our view," they have declared, "the strength of the opposition to women lies less in theology than in psychological prejudice formed from primitive times. It seems to us irreverent to refuse to test a woman's claim to have received a call from the Holy Spirit of God, while accepting the assurance to this effect from male candidates."

At present, women may preach and conduct statutory services such as morning and evening prayers in certain circumstances. But they may not celebrate holy communion or officiate at marriages or funerals.

There are churches in England in which women have equal status with men are the Congregational, Baptist and Unitarian free churches. The Congregationalists have 43 women ministers, the Baptists eight and the Unitarians three.

As St. Paul's injunction, "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak," has caused sharp divergence of practice in the Church of England.

In the Province of York, comprising 14 dioceses in the North of England, lay women are licenced to take part in morning and evening prayer and to give addresses at these services.

But in the Province of Canterbury, whose 29 dioceses cover the rest of the country, this use of women is not generally allowed. A proposal to enable women to perform these functions was rejected by the lower house of Convocation of Canterbury in May, 1956. It is this rejection which has spurred the Anglican Group for the Ordination of Women to launch its campaign.

New Hat Line

By ALICE ALDEN

Success of the season is the hat of printed fabric, a natural companion to the monotone dress. Every house has several versions and some of the nicest have been designed by the talented Adolpho of Emme who was one of the first to introduce the little hat of fine print. Here is one of the nicest seen so far, a neat little sailor hat with a high, soft, fedora-line crown and the popular upturned rolling brim that moves down to a profile. The fabric is taffeta in a bold print of brush strokes of black and brown on white.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF YOU CAN'T HANDLE YOUR JOB, CHANGE IT

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a woman in my mid 40's. I have two wonderful children, a boy and a girl, and expect another baby in about three months.

My problem is that other men are always wanting to take me out. I have worked in cafes a lot and right now I'm a secretary. I try to be friendly with the public. In fact, I'm going to work to have to be friendly, but I don't think I give them any reason to think I'd go out with them.

I love my husband very much and he loves me. I do like to go out and have a good time, but I want to be with my husband when we go.

I do hope you can help me some way. — Mrs. P.M.

Dear Mrs. P.M.:

I certainly see no problem here.

You say you love your husband and he loves you that you don't want to go out with anybody else when you do go out for a good time. So what kind of help do you want anyhow? Could it be that, actually, you're trying to accept some other man's invitation but don't want to admit it?

Obviously, any woman who has a job which brings her in contact with the public should be friendly. But there's no reason—or excuse —for her being over-friendly. What's expected of a woman with such a job is that she will have the intelligence and good sense to be pleasant and agreeable with everyone, but to keep on her dignity, and if any man suggests a date, simply to say "No, thank you" and go away from there. That should dispose of any too-eager beaver.

If you can't handle people in the job you're in, change your job.

IF HE DOESN'T ANSWER, HE'S NOT INTERESTED

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Last summer my daughter was going with a real nice boy. The last time he came to see her, though, she was rather ugly to him.

He is a mechanic in the Air Force and has been sent to another place, and now she says she misses me more for him than she had thought. He has said that he cares for her.

Now he's been gone, she's written him two letters. If he doesn't answer them do you think she should give up hope that he will ever write her? Or do you think he cares for her at all? — Mrs. C.

Dear Mrs. C.:

I know absolutely nothing on which to base even a guess as to how this young man feels about your daughter. However, if he doesn't answer her letters, don't you think it would be pretty clear that he isn't interested?

If your daughter was, as you say, "rather ugly" to him the last time he saw her—and you don't give me the slightest clue as to what she was ugly about—it would certainly discourage any young man. On the other hand, if the first letter she wrote was an apology for her behavior, then, if he was really eager to continue their friendship, he would, I think, have replied to that letter at once, accepting her apology and giving her some reason to believe that he wanted to start again from there.

Since you don't say that he answered on the first letter, then if he doesn't answer her second try, she had better resign herself to the fact that her behavior put an end to his interest, and to his former friend and and treat him better.

THE ANSWER IS YES

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

A month ago I broke my engagement to a fellow 21 years old. I am 20.

The reason I broke it was because he never kept his promises about anything, no matter what, and in the two years we were engaged, he never saved a penny toward our future. My parents also objected strenuously to our marriage because of these faults of his.

But ever since I gave him back his ring, he has been calling me on the phone, insisting that I love him and that he loves me and wanting me to elope. He has got me all confused, and sometimes I think I am weakening.

Do you think I would be crazy to take a chance on him? He promises he will do better.

— Lucie

Dear Lucie:

You break your engagement because the young man has piled up a record of complete irresponsibility in the matter of keeping promises. Then he makes one more promise and you're inclined to let him take you on an elopement.

The answer to your question is yes; you should have your head examined.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

FASHION FRIVOLITIES FROM PARIS

Fans are the rage in Paris. Latest coats have pockets specially designed to carry them.

In our mail this morning came the Spring report from our Paris correspondent. A truly glittering catch of beauty and fashion notes from the glamorous City on the Seine. With the beginning of each season these reports come to us and, with each report, our reaction is the same: What will these Parisians think up next? We love to pass them on to you, of course, but don't start looking for them just yet. Keep your eyes open in the weeks to come, however, and see if you don't love the new printed raincoats for instance. In Paris, they're made by Lanvin-Castillo and they're the gayest raincoats on earth; gay flowers on a shiny and terribly chic coat, with head-scarf to match. With one, you'll be singing in the rain, for sure.

For teen-agers, those glamour-loving Parisiana have dreamed up chiffon petticoats to wear with the frocks. Almost prettier than the frocks themselves, they're of foamy chiffon, caught up "mouse" wise and lovely for dancing.

Fans are all the rage . . . so much so that one designer, Nina Ricci, has designed a special pocket in her light-flowered coat especially made to carry this coquettish little item. Do you like roses? In Paris apparently, you see them everywhere. Jacques prints them on taffeta and other designers use them on fabrics of every type. If you want to smell them, however, do what the French girls are doing . . . just stick a long-stemmed couple in the belt or pocket of a gala frock.

Paris also features fur coats with plunging necklines in the back! They're for Spring and Summer outings when you feel you would enjoy a fur around you but not too warm a one. Another tip from the "City of Light": Tie your favorite scarf from jeopard out of your neckline, tie it with a narrow velvet ribbon just under your chin.

Gold's in the limelight, too. There are gold buttons on suits, gold buckles on high leather or suede belts, and trimmings on practically everything. Printed lace is another Parisian fancy. Flowered silks and cottons are a "must" in Paris these days, so the designers decided to go all out and allow lace to join the frolic, turquoise-studded lace rims. Most fashionable cocktail frocks delicate flowers nestle against white lace with the contrasting by flattering effect.

We'll pass on just one more item . . . before we close our eyes and start to dream. It's sunglasses to match your hat! With a turquoise-studded hat ribbon, they turquoise-studded spec rims. What else? Ah, these Parisians! that fits called Question: You will no doubt be surprised to receive a fan letter from Spokane Wash., 8 years ago we lived in Canada . . . read your wonderful menus presented to run our Men's Club dinners; would like to know how many people per person (25 people) I would need of roast beef, roast lamb, roast pork, roast veal, ham, pork chops, ground steak for spaghetti sauce. K. S.

Answer: I certainly was surprised but pleased. Roast beef some-in 3 lbs. (all weights are raw weights); boneless 10 lbs. Size of servings: 4 oz. lamb; same as beef. Pork: Same. Veal: a little less since no fat waste: Ham: bone-in 6-8; boneless 8. Pork chops: shoulder 11 lbs.; loin 8 lbs. Or, I think chop each. Meat for spaghetti sauce; 4 lbs. Let me know whenever I can help, wherever you are.

Don't discard the stalks of cauliflower. Cook them with the flowerets and serve with a white or Hollandaise sauce.

NAMES OF GROOM'S PARENTS ON WEDDING INVITATIONS?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Sunday our son's bride-to-be came to spend the day with us, and brought us the first set of their wedding invitations for my husband and me to keep. Although we were very much surprised at the wording (and I must say disappointed too), we said nothing about it, just expressing our enthusiasm for the beautiful appearance of the invitations, and our appreciation of her thoughtfulness in personally bringing a set to us.

This is the way the invitation is worded:

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary to
Mr. Arthur Jones

There is no mention of us, the groom's parents. Is this correct, when, as in our case, both parents of the groom are living?

My husband and I would like to know definitely about this, as we think there will be some comments made when our relatives and friends receive their invitations. V.E.A.

The form of this wedding invitation is correct. Since the parents of the bride-to-be are the hosts of the wedding, naturally the invitations are issued in their name. You and your husband will be the guests of honor at the wedding, but correctly your names are not included on the wedding invitations.

CORRECT TO USE SILVER TEAPOT FOR SERVING COFFEE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some years ago I inherited an extremely handsome silver teapot, of which I am very proud. I have never used it for coffee as because for making tea I much prefer the nice china teapot I have always used. Now lately I've found that so many of our guests prefer coffee that I wonder if it would be at all correct for me to use the silver teapot for serving coffee and continue to use the china teapot for making tea?

— Margaret D.

Yes . . . the silver teapot is entirely correct for serving coffee, but you should use it exclusively for coffee.

SHE IS THE ONLY GRANDPARENT ON EITHER SIDE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My granddaughter is to be married soon, and is to have a large church wedding. The reception, I am the only grandparent on either side. Do I stand with the wedding group in the receiving-line? And what is my position at table? — Grandmother

When the bride's mother has made her plans for the formation of the receiving-line and the seating-arrangements at table, she is the one to tell you these plans. There is no fixed rule for the formation of the receiving-line: for example, sometimes the bride's father and the groom's father stand in the receiving - line, sometimes both mingle with the guests. And although a grandparent may be included in the receiving-line, generally this is not the plan. If there is a Parents' Table, a grandmother is customarily seated at this table.

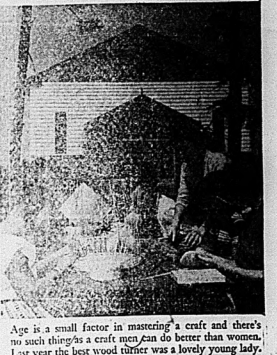
Art Under the Sun

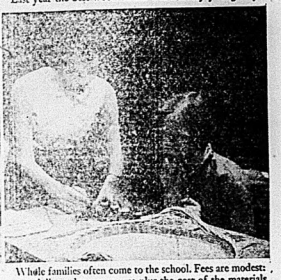


The New Brunswick School of Arts and Crafts is unlike any other summer school in North America. It requires no registration, has no schedule of classes, no timetable, yet it cannot accommodate all who wish to enter. Above, Rev. Ralph Hinkle, retired minister from Inglewood, California, is shown how to weave a rug by instructress Asta Onno.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Chris Lund.

All instruction is individual. Norma Rossler, a visitor from New Jersey, receives some help with the vanity stool she is making.

Age is a small factor in mastering a craft and there's no such thing as a craft men can do better than women. Last year the best wood turner was a lovely young lady.



Candle-stick-makers John Calyer and Frank Henningar from Dartmouth, Nova Scotia, spend a busy morning pouring wax figurines from rubber moulds.

Dr. Ivan H. Crowell, director of the school, discusses plans for enlarging the school facilities. Ten new buildings will be erected within the next few years.

Students may join for one day at a time whenever they happen to arrive, stay for as long as they wish. Many of them return yearly to the beautiful holiday resort.

Whole families often come to the school. Fees are modest: one dollar a day per course plus the cost of the materials used.

CAMPBELLFORD

John Wesley Sweet Celebrates 101st Birthday in Good Health

CAMPBELLFORD — John Wesley Sweet, of Campbellford, celebrated his 101st birthday here on March 6th. He is in remarkably good health and with the exception of the time he had his tonsils out about 90 years ago, has never required the services of a doctor. Doctors who examined him recently say that his heart is stronger now than those of many men half his age. He claims that he has never had an ache or pain during his lifetime.

A number of years ago, Mr. Sweet cut his foot severely with an axe while chopping wood. He poured part of a bottle of turpentine over the wound, bound it up and went back to his woodchopping without even consulting a doctor Today, the scar is hardly discernible.

Born in Napanee, Mr. Sweet is the son of the late David Sweet and the former Jane Codman. His father died at the age of 73 and his mother at 93. His wife, the former Agnes Hubble, whom he married in 1884, died in 1941.

The couple had eight boys, six of whom are now living. They are Roderick, Everett and Roy, all of Detroit, Michigan; Wilson of Toronto, George of Kalamazoo, Michigan, and Wesley of Campbellford.

Mr. Sweet has lived with his son, Wesley, here for the past five years, since giving up housekeeping for himself. Up until a few years ago, Mr. Sweet enjoyed horseback riding.

The elderly gentleman remembers Campbellford when there was only one store in the town. Supplies were brought in by oxen from Belleville and other points. He operated a grocery store in Campbellford, but sold the business in 1912. He went to western Canada, where he worked in the building trades, and worked in Saskatoon as a blacksmith and carpenter.

He has no hard and fast rules for a long life. His hearing is still fairly good, but his sight is failing. While working at the blacksmith trade, Mr. Sweet, after trying many times, succeeded in hardening copper. He was unable to remember the formula however, and although he tried many times, was never able to duplicate it.

FALLS THROUGH TRAP DOOR

A few years ago, Mr. Sweet walked into a Campbellford billiard parlor and fell through a trap door into the basement below. A number of patrons rushed to the stairs, expecting to find the old gentleman badly injured, but Mr. Sweet was already on his way up the stairs under his own power.

"You want to watch that trap door", he told the proprietor, "somebody is liable to get themselves hurt".

He told the reporter that he would like to go to Detroit this summer and see three of his sons, and would also like to visit Saskatoon, where he worked when he was younger.

IT'S A BATTLE AGAINST WEATHER

There's a race against time and weather in Northern Manitoba as tractor trains plow through snow to complete the scheduled delivery of 30,000 tons of mining equipment to Moak Lake where the International Nickel Co. is developing a $175,000,000 mineral deposit. In a few weeks the spring break-up will render the tractor-train route a morass of impassable muskeg, and the equipment must get through before then or the schedule will fall behind. The development area, which spreads along a 60-mile front, is dotted with tents, housing men and equipment, until wooden bunkhouses and warehouses can be constructed. Ultimately, 2,000 men will be employed by the company.

Two spur lines from the main CNR tracks will be run into Thompson, town site of the new nickel development. Until the railway cars are hauling supplies, tractor train in winter and airlift in summer will be the only methods of transporting men and material. The townsite is being designed for 8,000 to 10,000 persons.

Urbane built a cheese factory at Bancroft, which he sold and began saw milling. He carried on a large lumbering operation in that area and owned a large tract of hardwood timber. Urbane provided the lumber to build the United Church at Foudash after fire destroyed the former structure.

He was reeve of Bancroft township for 27 years, and died in May, 1943.

His only son, Franklin, moved to Huntsville in 1940, and he produces about 3,000,000 feet of lumber per year.

F. Sutton's Good Luck Charm Is Bottle of American Soil

By CHARLES MERCER

something about the profession of acting that causes many actors to believe in signs and portents and to carry good luck charms. None can explain exactly why.

This came to mind the other day in glancing through the cast of Walk Down the Hill, a drama about American prisoners of war in the Second World War which Studio One (CBS-TV) presents tonight (Monday, 10 p.m., EST).

In the play, starring the role of Shephard Lawton, is a talented young actor named Frank Sutton from Nashville, Tenn., who appears frequently on television and should—with proper breaks—have star billing some day.

While Frank never was a prisoner of war, he can certainly play with authority. As Sergeant Sutton in the war he made nine beachhead assaults in the Pacific.

Before Frank sailed from Fort Lawton, Wash., in 1945 he indulged in a sentimental gesture. Entering a tiny bottle of cleaning fluid, he filled it with American soil and carried it with him. Later he rendered the act as the result of his having a highly-de-

FINE REPUTATION

Since the war he's acquired a degree from Columbia University, a wife, a baby, and a reputation as a fine actor in innumerable television dramas and the prize-winning movie Marty.

Seeing his name in the cast of tonight's Studio One drama, I called him up and asked him what became of that little bottle of American soil.

"I still carry it around," he said.

Will he be carrying it in tonight's drama?

"Oh, sure. Why not?"

AT THE BELLE—Adolphe Menjou refuses to believe that the baby, his son, Eddie Fisher, is wheeling through the park isn't his own grandson, and Debbie Reynolds finds it hard to convince Menjou that she found the baby on a doorstep. Full of Fun! Full of Laughs! Full of Songs! is RKO's melodious Technicolor comedy, at the Belle Theatre tonight and Tuesday.

AT THE McCARTHY — Ernest Borgnine sees his whole world crumble in the one devastating phrase in a letter from the Navy Department — "security risk" — as his wife, played by Virginia Christine, tries helplessly, to console him. Scene is from the real-life drama, "3 Brave Men", a CinemaScope production opening Today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Ray Milland is also starred with Frank Lovejoy, Nina Foch and Dean Jagger in the Herbert B. Swope, Jr., production for Twentieth Century-Fox. Added feature is "Pickup On South Street" with Richard Widmark, Jean Peters and Thelma Ritter.

Don Jenkins Wins Men's US Skating Crown

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP)—Crew cut collegian Dave Jenkins performed daring acrobatics with darting speed Sunday to capture the United States men's figure skating championship.

Highlighted by thrilling jumps in which he whirled around three times in the air, the five-minute free skating performance won for the slight, 20-year-old premedical student the crown his now-retired brother, Hayes, owned the last four years.

His victory before 3,500 fans gave Jenkins a triple crown—victories in the world, North American and national.

Skating queen Carol Heiss reached the same heights Friday night as she won in the women's field.

Widmark Not After Dollars But Projects That Excite Him

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Richard Widmark, one of the town's more thoughtful actors, makes this observation:

"Last year, my mother and my brother died. When something like that happens to you, you stop and try to figure out what your life is all about.

"I know this: I don't want to spend my life doing dull, routine things. I don't really believe in. I'm not out to make a pack of money. I'll never be able to use. I might as well do projects that really excite and interest me."

He's proving it by: 1, Acting the dauphin in St. Joan; 2, Producing and starring in "The Law and the Lady." Both projects might be considered chancy by some — the players. Take St. Joan.

"I play a real weasel," he admitted. "It's a bit part, really. I did all of my scenes in 3½ weeks. And man, am I ugly! They shaved my hair and put a wig on top of my head. You know, I have to fight like the dickens to come up to even in the looks department. The way I look in St. Joan is real murder.

"But I was really eager to do the part. I've always liked the role. . . ."

Widmark is making his debut as a producer with Time Limit. How come this is risky? Because it's a play that drew critical acclaim on Broadway last season, but ran only five months. The plot concerns a brainwashed army man accused of treason during the Korean War. That subject found little success at the box office with MGM's The Rack.

Most actors start their production companies with westerns, which are rated "sure things" in this industry. But Widmark observed: "There are no sure things any more. You can't be certain what the public will go for these days. So I'd rather go down swinging on an exciting venture than put my effort into something that can't miss."

Widmark is taking another chance with Time Limit. He has signed Karl Malden for his first chore as a director.

Why?

"Because I've known Karl for about 20 years and I think he'll be a good director," Widmark explained.

Mental Illness Is Costliest Disease Long, Shockingly Neglected in United States

EDS NOTE: Brilliant research is preaching scientific drugs and unlocking the mysteries of the brain as scientists and psychiatrists strive to find a cure for mental illness. This first of five journalistic articles presents an over-all picture of mental illness and the research being done in this field.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—An exciting revolution to win health for human minds is brewing in laboratories and hospitals.

Astonishing drugs are quieting many excited minds, helping send numerous mental patients home again after years of mind-locked imprisonment.

Even without such drugs, a few hospitals are mending the sick minds of up to 85 per cent of their patients—when these hospitals keep enough psychiatrists and other staff and funds.

Last year for the first time in history mental hospitals discharged more patients than they admitted, though admissions set a record.

In research, other astounding drugs are producing signs of psychoses in normal human volunteers. So does an extract from the blood of schizophrenics. Blood tests are finding fascinating chemical differences between normal and mentally ill persons.

Evidence is mounting that severe mental illness is not another thing we think ourselves into, so much as caused by some chemical or physical hurt which could be controlled.

BRAIN CHANTED

Brilliant research is charting electrical and chemical mysteries of the brain, a nervous complex of 10 billion living nerve cells giving us thoughts, feelings, actions.

The results are a gigantic exchange and research comes just in time. For mental illness is our costliest disease, long and shockingly neglected.

A careful sample survey in Baltimore indicates one in 10 persons working on jobs, living in homes, passing you on the street, is mentally ill. This doesn't include anyone in hospitals, jails or other institutions—just your neighbors.

A Columbia University study of 2,500,000 children indicates 10 per cent of school children are emotionally disturbed and need guidance.

Medical authorities estimate that up to half of us going to family doctors or specialists have mental or emotional upsets causing or accompanying our physical complaints.

NONE ESCAPES

Mental upsets affect one in one of us—anybody. For, severe mental illness aside, "there isn't a person who doesn't frequently experience a mental or emotional disturbance severe enough to disrupt his functioning as a well-adjusted, happy and efficiently performing individual," declares Dr. William Menninger, Topeka, Kan., psychiatrist.

Ailing emotions subject us to vague gnawing anxiety or depression, ill-bidden feelings of suspicion, fear, resentment and hate. Or ignored ulcers, Or headaches, or chest or other pains, all real enough to pains, but actually psychosomatic.

Unhappy minds help sabotage marriages, homes, the four physiranges ending in divorce; spur extreme; techno problem drinkers down the destructive alley of alcoholism; help fan rebellious fires of juvenile delinquency.

Why this tragically high toll?

An appealingly simple answer is that we live now under greater tensions, with the threat of H-bomb annihilation, than civilizations skyrocketing fears, worries, anxieties.

NOT MUCH WORSE

But the experts doubt it. Times were pretty rough back in caveman days and other times, they remind, worrying where your next meal was coming from, what wild animal or disease would seize you, whether Indians might lift your scalp.

These authorities think about as many of us, in proportion to population, suffer now from various mental ailments as people did hundreds of years ago.

Quite contrary to general opinion, most psychotics are not screaming, dangerous maniacs. In smaller towns of 30 to 50 years ago, many of them could walk the streets, "queer" but harmless, or neighbor, recognizing old Mr. Jones, would bring him home.

The really violent and unwanted people were dispatched to "lunatic asylums" or jails, kept in shackles and shocking neglect.

Psychiatry began doing something, but always there were too few real mental hospitals, too little attention, too few doctors.

The exact causes of mental illnesses are not known yet. But research is bringing changes, and promises more fantastic changes soon within reach.

Chinaman Weds Two Girls At Same Time

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — A Singapore mechanic who fell in love with two girls married both of them Sunday in a single ceremony.

The happy Chinese trio—brides wearing Western-style veils and the bridegroom in a white suit—posed together for photographs.

The husband, Goh Kong Tai, a Singapore telephone board technician, told reporters: "I met the two girls some years ago and fell in love with them.

"When I said I wanted to settle down, both wanted to marry me.

"They loved me so much they were even willing to be married to me at the same time."

Chinese custom makes it lawful for non-Christians to have more than one wife but the wives are usually acquired one-by-one.

Senator Calls For Boycott Of Suez Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem. Mont.) called Sunday for a boycott of the Suez Canal and emergency action by the United Nations if Egyptian troops reoccupy the Gaza Strip.

Mansfield, the assistant Democratic leader, made these proposals in a "memo on the Middle Eastern situation" prepared in advance for a scheduled appearance of State Secretary Dulles before the Senate foreign relations committee.

Dulles has arranged to report on the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization conference which he attended last month in Australia, and President Eisenhower's forthcoming meeting with Prime Minister Macmillan in Bermuda.

However, Mansfield made it clear he expects the secretary to be questioned closely about possible American reaction to the moves of Egypt's President Nasser in Gaza.

MUST KEEP RIGHT

Mansfield, a member of the foreign relations committee and of a special committee to investigate the background of the Middle East conflict, said in his memo that the United Nations must retain the "exclusive right" to administer the Gaza Strip.

"The United States and the majority of the United Nations members were responsible for suspending Israel to withdraw its troops from Gaza and the Gulf of Aqaba area," he said, "We have a two-way responsibility in seeing to it that the Egyptians do not force a showdown through the refusal to withdraw them and a civil administration. . . ."

Mansfield said if Nasser persists in attempts to take over the Gaza Strip "we should apply to Egypt the same stout boycott we applied to Israel."

The only other way to do this would be to order a boycott of the Suez Canal route by all American ships, with a call on allies to follow suit.

Egypt, in a precarious financial condition, has been counting on canal tolls when traffic is resumed to bolster her economy.

Maxie Rosenbloom Arrested for Attack on Girl

CHICAGO (AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight boxing champion turned entertainer, was arrested Saturday on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a 13-year-old girl.

Rosenbloom, who denied the charge, was freed after making $200 bond.

The former champion said he merely complied with the girl's request for an autograph and photograph.

The complaint was signed by the girl's father, Everett P. Thompson, 32, an unemployed insurance adjuster.

CANADIANS ARRIVE IN GAZA

British Commercial Television Still in Development Stage

LONDON (AP) — A London lady, desperate after a vain search for a proper furnished room, bought time on commercial television to advertise her plight. She chose one of the cheaper hours, and the London transmitter gave her 30 seconds for £30 ($84). She found the room of her dreams.

The small advertisement, commonplace to the want ad of a newspaper, is one of the innovations of British commercial television, which is still in the developmental stage.

Britain was the first country in the world to broadcast regular television programs. The British Broadcasting Corporation (BBC), a government-owned organization, has been at it since 1936. But advertisements have been appearing on the screens for only 16 months, and they are still something of a novelty.

Britons are inclined to have strong opinions about them. Some conservative citizens regard the jingles and urgent sales talks as rude intruders in the privacy of the home. Others like them offering as commercial interludes necessary to pay for sprightly programs.

But for those who are irritated by commercialism there are always the shows of the massive BBC, which scorns advertising.

In Britain one can have television with, or without. But after 18 months it is fairly certain that the advertisements are here to stay, and that so-called independent television will expand greatly.

In all regions in which both BBC and commercial programs can be received the commercial shows are by far the more popular. The BBC's latest survey indicates that, in areas where all programs can be received, 62 out of 100 sets are tuned regularly to commercial shows, and only 38 to the BBC features. The Independent Television Authority which controls the commercial programs, insists that its popularity is even greater than the BBC figures show.

But BBC still has many more viewers because it started first in the country, while commercial programs can be received only in five big-town areas.

Most Britons are quite convinced, now that they have commercial programs, that they have the best television in the world. They believe that they have avoided what they regard as American excesses in the development of television.

Those advertisements, for instance, do not dominate the screen. Only six minutes in an hour may be devoted to advertising. It must be spotted between programs, or at the beginning, end, and usually there is more than one advertiser in a spot. As many as six advertisements may be seen, jingles and praise their products in limited doses, but not long enough to them. It is just long enough, in many British homes, to fill the tea pot.

There is no sponsorship of programs. No British advertiser can set up a band and put it on the air. No advertiser gets any credit high, then after, the announcer. There must be no apparent connection between a number and advertisement.

An advertiser may choose the time his commercial is broadcast, and the cost varies greatly from slack to peak viewing hours. One minute on a commercial network at a peak hour may cost as much as £1,000 ($2,800), while at another hour on a single station the rate may be as low as £15 ($42).

Shows are exclusively the business of program companies. At present there are four of them with stations, quite independent of

Man Kills Mother, Three Daughters, Takes Own Life

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill. (AP) A 47-year-old chemist, his wife, mother, three daughters, then himself Sunday, a few hours before he was to have married for the second time.

The German Behn, a businessman in this southern Illinois city for 18 years, Coroner Barney Browning said Behn bludgeoned the others with a hammer as they slept, then shot them, before taking his own life.

The other dead were Mrs. Minnie Behn, 70; Linda, 14; Shirley, 12, and Kay, 10.

Behn and his first wife, June, were divorced about four years ago, and Behn was granted custody of the children, police said. He had planned to marry Mrs. Maidetta Minton, 38, an employee in his jewelry store, Sunday afternoon.

T. M. Stuthers, who was to have been best man at the ceremony, said he had no inkling that Behn was worried or depressed.

Sid Caesar Show Wins 5 Emmies In Annual Awards

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Sid Caesar may be having trouble with his audience ratings, but he's going great guns in winning awards. His show has snagged five of the ninth annual TV academy Awards.

Caesar was named best comedian of 1956 in the Emmy telecast Saturday night and his Caesar's Hour was proclaimed the best hour series by the academy's 2,700 voters. Emmies went to his supporting performers, Carl Reiner and Pat Carroll and to his writing co-ists, Mamie Fabrya as best comedienne.

The honors may have arrived in the nick of time. Plagued by Lawrence Welk, Caesar's show has drawn disappointing ratings this season and has been rumored in trouble.

Another big winner in television's annual sweepstakes was "OF" ambitious drama series, Playhouse 90. Its production of "Requiem for a Heavyweight" was tabbed best single program of the year and gave Emmies to actor Jack Palance, writer Rod Sterling, director Ralph Nelson and art director Albert Heschong. Playhouse 90 was also selected best new program series.

Some old pros of the movie world took the other acting honors. Loretta Young won as best actress in a dramatic series and Claire Trevor was cited for her single performance in Dodsworth for Producers Showcase. Both have won Oscars and Miss Young owns a previous Emmy. Robert Young of Father Knows Best was honored as best actor of a dramatic series.

Accident Toll Is Low Fourteen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Accidents claimed at least 14 lives in Canada during a comparatively quiet weekend.

In the worst tragedy of the period, a mother and three of her children died in a fiery fire during their Corner Brook, Nfld., home.

A Canadian Pacific train from 6 p.m., local time until midnight Sunday showed nine deaths in Ontario. Three died on the highways in Ontario and four Quebec. Manitoba, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick each recorded one traffic fatality.

A baby strangled in its shoulder harness while alone in its crib raised Ontario deaths to four, with Newfoundland and Quebec the highest toll.

Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia did not report any deaths.

Ontario fatalities:

Traffic:

Albert Harry Cassalman, 30, when his bicycle collided with a pano truck near Havelock, 25 miles northeast of Peterborough.

Mrs. Fred Bachak, 40, from injuries suffered in two-car collision Toronto.

Christopher Briscoe, 72, when struck by a car as he walked along the highway near Bracebridge.

Miscellaneous:

Elizabeth Leber, 14-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Leber of Brampton, when she strangled in her harness while alone in her crib in Toronto.

New Red Blood Cells Made In Bone Marrow, Injured Ones Are Eliminated by Spleen

KANSAS CITY (AP) — In the four seconds it takes to read this sentence, your body made about 11,000,000 new red blood cells.

In those same seconds, you destroyed 11,000,000 old red cells which had been working to keep you alive.

Every hour you produce about 10,000,000,000 new red cells. You destroy the same number to maintain a miraculous balance.

How do you — quite unconsciously—maintain this balance? Learning the answer is one quest of Dr. Kurt Reissmann o fthe University of Kansas medical school.

MADE IN MARROW

Your new red cells are made in your bone marrow. Old and injured cells are removed by the spleen and other organs.

If something goes wrong you can get in trouble. If you don't make cells fast enough, or else destroy them too fast, you develop anemia.

If you make red cells too fast, or don't remove old ones properly, you get an excess leading to a serious disease like polycythemia vera.

Dr. Reissmann is trying to discover what regulates the production and destruction of red cells. How does your body know when to step up or slow down production?

If you live at high altitudes you will have more red cells than at sea level. Move to a new level again, and your production of red cells decreases.

SEEK HOME BASE

The regulating agent is apparently something which circulates in the blood. It seems to be a kind of hormone. But where does it come from, exactly, and what is it?

Dr. Reissmann finds evidence It is produced somewhere below the diaphragm in the body. He is now using the painstaking research to locate which organ, or which area of blood vessels, may produce the regulator.

Each organ or area can be tested by introducing the material through certain arteries leading to it organs. That cuts down the supply of oxygen, and if the organ is the one producing the mystery regulator, it should be stopped by turning out more regulator to boost the production of red cells.

The research is aimed at learning more about one of the agents which maintain health. But it could have a very practical side, too. The regulating agent can be identified, and isolated, a source of supply for it might be developed.

Then it could be used medically to help anemia victims. Such a anti-regulator agent might help people who suffer from an oversupply of red cells.

KING CAROL'S SON WINS COURT CASE

Mircea Lambrino, 37, a Parisian artist whose mother was a princess of Romania, won a decision in a French court in his claim to share in the fortune and non-existent title of the late King Carol of Romania. The property that he has claim to includes a chateau in Normandy, a villa in Nice and other holdings on the Riviera. The court ruled that Lambrino had a legal claim as the son of the king, who married the dancer secretly in 1918.

Officers Ordered To Use Pistols If Necessary

LONDON (CP)—In the critical days of the 1941 African desert campaign, Winston Churchill ordered British generals and other officers to get into the fight with their pistols if cornered.

The fight-to-the-death order was revealed in the official United Kingdom history of the second World War. The second volume was published today.

The history disclosed that Churchill as the wartime prime minister was disturbed by British reverses in Greece, the loss of the island of Crete and the German thrust in North Africa led by Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel. The prime minister was concerned over the vast amount of military equipment assembled in Egypt which, he said, could not be saved by the transport available if the Germans broke through.

For First Time in Federal Election TV Kleig Lights Appear on Hustings

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time in a federal election, television kleig lights will take their place on the hustings this year.

Politicians, still a little uncertain about how to make the adjustments from the election stump to the TV studio, are nevertheless anxious to make the test use possible of this new way to reach the people.

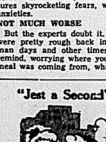
The prevailing view was expressed by Solon Low, Social Credit leader, in a recent interview: "At least you can reach a great many more people through TV than you can through weeks of travelling."

The pattern of political TV broadcasts in the coming election campaign, which is now anticipated in June, has not yet been set. At the last election in 1953, when TV was a limited factor, the CBC was prepared to offer free-time broadcasts identical to the political parties but they decided against it.

Division of CBC free time among the parties this year is expected to be based on a formula to be worked out at a meeting among the parties and the CBC.

A CBC regulation prohibits political parties from buying time on either radio or television. That does not apply to private stations, but political parties are expected to make some use of that method of getting their message across.

Mr. Low, in the interview, expressed some doubts whether a great deal of political TV would be a good thing.



He said that modern methods didn't get out to election meetings as much as they used to, but there should be caution that the says-a-homes won't be swamped with political TV to the point where they would turn off their sets.

However, Gordon Churchill, Progressive Conservative MP and one of party leader John Diefenbaker's chief aides, indicated he doesn't think that will happen. He said in an interview he doubts whether enough TV time will be provided.

Under broadcasting regulations applying to all stations, both CBC and privately-owned, there are limits to what can be done on political broadcasts. In general, the rules prohibit dramatizations of political appeals. But with the advent of TV the rules were relaxed somewhat to permit the use of graphic devices such as charts and graphs.

Politicians can deliver their message in three general ways—a straight speech, by filmed interview, or by panel discussions. All three methods have been adopted in TV broadcasts in the last time or two. Under the Nation's Business which the CBC makes available outside of election campaigns.

Reds One Win Away From American Title

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds are only one victory away from their second straight American Hockey League championship after a weekend which saw Rochester, Cleveland and Hershey Bears lose their mathematical hopes of finishing third.

The Reds, Zellio Toppazzini scoring the winning goal 39 seconds before the end of the overtime period, moved close to victory Saturday with a 4-3 victory over the fourth-place Bears at Hershey Saturday.

However, they missed a chance to clinch first place Sunday night when they dropped a 3-1 decision at home to Cleveland Barons, currently tied with Rochester for second place and the only team that can overtake the Reds.

ROCHESTER SPLITS

Rochester split its weekend games, beating Cleveland 5-4 Saturday night with Floyd Smith scoring goals by Gord Hannigan, and losing 6-3 at home to Hershey, with the winning goal by Floyd Smith at 3:10 of the overtime.

In other action involving the two teams which have failed to make the playoffs, the last-place Springfield Indians shut out Buffalo Bisons 7-0 at home Saturday and lost 5-4 to Bisons Sunday night.

Paul Larivee scored two goals for Providence Saturday, Jim Bartlett getting the other for the winners. Marshall, Bentley, Masneri and Dunc Fisher scored for Hershey.

At Cleveland, the winning goal for Rochester was scored by defenseman Bob Duncan at 2:04 of the overtime. Gary Aldcorn and Eddie Mazur also scored for the Americans, while Ken Hayden, Bo Elik, Gord Veiprava and John McLellan got Barons' goals.

Buddy Boone and Bob Bailey scored two goals apiece for Springfield Saturday night, Bob Sabourin and Wl Slowinski and Jimmy Anderson adding others.

WHARRAM SCORED TWO

At Buffalo Ken Wharram scored two and assisted on two others by Sam Bettio and Larry Wilson after shifting from his customary centre position to right wing. Andy Blair got the other Buffalo goal while Slowinski, Harry Pidhirny and Gerry Ehman scored for Indians.

At Providence, goals by Bill Shvetz and Hayden in an 87-second spurt in the second period gave Barons enough to win. Cal Stearns scored for Cleveland and Ron Cline for Providence in the third.

Before a record crowd of 7,685 at Rochester, Americans went ahead 3-1 in the second on three goals in less than four minutes by Ab McDonald, Jon Lund and Paul Masnick after Les Duff had given the Bears an early lead. Marshall tied the score with two third-period goals and Smith won it in extra time.

Industrial Hockey League

National Steel midgets roared back from a 4-2 deficit to shade Otterbout Shells 5-4 yesterday in the second game of their two-of-three series for the industrial hockey league championship.

The National crew now lead the series one game to none, the first having ended in a tie, and can wrap up the series with another tie next weekend. A tie would give the midgets four points out of a possible six, so Osterbouts must win to prolong the series.

The Shells appeared to have the contest in the bag at one point yesterday. The score was tied at 1-1 after the first half but the losers climbed into a 4-2 lead.

National was sparked in the comeback by John Brennan who fired a pair to knot the score at 4-4. A penalty to Bill Vesterfelt of the Shells with a minute left paved the way for the deciding marker as Bernie Boulter slid one by Don Dolan in the dying seconds.

Penalties were costly for both clubs as McKenna tallied once for the Shells while National was a man short, then Goyer netted one for the midgets with two Osterhout men in the sin-bin.

John Brennan's two goals were tops for the winners while singletons went to Moe Hunter, Gary Goyer and Bernie Boulter. Bill Muirhead, Cam McKenna, George Calbury and Lance McBrien fired the Osterhout markers.

Floyd Smith, Toronto, scored three goals and two assists Saturday as the Maple Leafs smothered New York 14-1 and scored the winner 5-4 victory over the Rangers.

Bob Armstrong, Boston, assisted on four goals as Bruins beat Chicago 6-3 Sunday.

Alex Delvecchio, Detroit scored the goal that gave Detroit a 2-1 victory over Montreal and clinched the NHL championship.

Conn Smythe Takes Blame for 'Year of Failure'

NEW YORK (CP) — Conn Smythe has taken sole responsibility for "a year of failure" by his Toronto Maple Leafs, now eliminated from the Stanley Cup Hockey League playoffs, but said any changes in the club will have to be considered by the team directors.

The Maple Leafs' president and managing director, here for Sunday night's Toronto game with New York Rangers, told hockey writers at a press conference that he would "not even rule out a change in the president" if that would restore the once-great club to the top brackets of the league.

He said there has been no decision made yet on any player changes for next season, or on whether general manager Hap Day or coach Howie Meeker might get a change of jobs.

"Any changes in our coach or (general) manager will be up to the directors," he added. "But I will see to it that any decision made by them will be unanimous."

Smythe had a few bitter words about the NHL Players' Association in connection with next year's plans for Leafs. He referred to the players' negotiating group as an organization "spawned in secrecy," and added:

"Next year our players will have to understand that they own 100 per cent loyalty to the team."

As to the quality of the lineup in that season now ending, Smythe said that after the club's showing last year when it extended Detroit in the playoffs "we were inclined to think we had the material necessary for a successful club this year."

As to operations, the veteran hockey figure conceded that perhaps "our Spartan way of playing may be getting out of date." The Leafs had continued to "use the body instead of the puck" and perhaps the attitude had been too much inclined to favor defence rather than offence.

Japanese Have Pocket Rocket

TORONTO (CP) — If all goes well, Akira (Ve Gode!) Monji—Japanese counterpart of the Pocket Rocket—may be burning up Canadian hockey rinks two seasons from now.

Prince Tsunenyahi Takida, 47, first cousin of Japanese Emperor Hirohito and president of the National Skating Union of Japan, discussed a tour of Canada by an amateur Japanese team of hockey officials here Saturday.

Monji is a star with the Japanese champion Oji Paper Company team. "A fast left winger with a terrific hard shot," said Bobby Hiral, formerly of Toronto, who is accompanying the prince.

Monji was given the nickname "Gyo"—which approximates "Gods" in English—by the players who tangled with his highly-conditioned frame on the ice and the fans who were dazzled by his speed and polish.

Hiral described the proposed tour as "tossing a little boy into a tiger's den," but both agreed their team would make a good showing against Canadian amateur teams.

OUTDOORS with John Alden Knight

Aquatic Hot-Rods Annoy Fishermen

The probabilities are that boat owners who are fishermen and boat owners who are not fishermen never in this world will see eye-to-eye on the manner in which our public waters should be used. Recently a copy of Outdoor Facts published monthly by Johnson Motors, renowned makers of outboard motors, has a lead article dealing with this very thing.

Of course, there is no way yet discovered to effect legislation which would confine one area of public water to fisherman and another area to those who enjoy pleasure boating. Thus, irate anglers complain of being "buzzed" by youthful hot-rodders in speed craft while pleasure boaters complain of channels being blocked by fishermen.

Actually, not too much controversy would result from this diversity of viewpoints if—and that's a real big "if"—those who enjoy speeding would confine their activities to the open water. Trouble is, they won't. So long as the world is inhabited by people, there will have with us the cowboy driver. Back in the pre-bicycle days there were the hot-shots with fast pacers and trotters who enjoyed a good dusting to the family horse and carriage. In the gay nineties, when the bicycle was king, we had the "scorchers" who did what they could to show off and make themselves objectionable.

Now that the automobile is the popular conveyance, we have the hot-rods and the cowboy drivers. The requirements are a heavy foot, a fast car, and a minimum of common sense. More and more, as motors are built better and boats are faster, the cowboy is going aquatic.

Not only that, but the legislation controlling the activities of this bird-brained crew is decidedly limited. On the highways we have traffic laws, plenty of them. On the open water the aquatic cowboy can do just about as he pleases.

Of course, to the fisherman the playful antics of the speed-boat boys and the water skiers are simply annoying, for the most part. However, disregard for the safety of others does show up in such places as the Florida Keys, where narrow channels between open bodies of water are all too common.

One of the favorite fishing spots out of the El Retiro boat livery on Key Largo is the channel between Blackwater Sound and Tarpon Basin. We used to fish there, casting for trout, crevalle and snook which lie in the shadows of the mangroves which fringe the channel.

We don't fish that channel any more for two reason—boat traffic has increased so much that the fishing isn't what it once was and, more important, because we have had our skiff literally tossed up into the mangroves by the wash from the boats of aquatic cowboys who roar through that channel at full speed.

COAST GUARD RULES

To be sure, there are rules established by the Coast Guard for the handling of boats in channels and elsewhere, and these rules are enforced by the Coast Guard and its auxiliaries but, like any law enforcement group, these are overworked men cannot be everywhere at once. So, the Tarpon Basin channel is off our sailing list.

Common courtesy and innate regard for the rights of the other fellow certainly can not be legislated into the minds of the Inverate aquatic cowboy. About the only thing that will have any effect in education and, perhaps, many cases, amounts simply to wishful thinking.

Here and there about the country, particularly in the more congested areas, this conflict has resolved itself amicably by mutual agreement between sportsmen's groups and boating clubs and associations. Fishermen's "squatter's rights" to bays and coves are respected, while fishermen give right of way to the pleasure boaters.

These happy conditions, however, are the exception rather than the rule. Mostly things are pretty much wide open and the cowboys really have a time for themselves. Meanwhile the long-suffering fishermen must sit there and take it, or move to waters where speeding is not practical or, preferably, impossible.

TAKE CHAMPIONSHIP

HAMILTON (CP)—Walter Samek and Pete Allard scored three goals Saturday night as the Hamilton Aquatic Club won the Canadian senior water polo championship by defeating Montreal YMHA 11-6 for a two-game, total-point edge of 23-21.

The Hamilton club's junior team went one up on the home final over the junior Canadian title by defeating Montreal Central YMCA 7-3. Second game is in Montreal March 23.

Wolves Tie 1-1 With Manchester

LONDON (CP) — Manchester United, the wonder boys, showed they were under pressure Saturday when they managed to salvage only a 1-1 tie against Wolverhampton.

But the draw did not hurt United in the prowl for the soccer, Jackpot, the European Cup, the English football championship and the English Cup final. This was because Preston, also drew 1-1 with Sunderland and Arsenal and Aston Villa both failed to score.

CANADIAN MAKES DEBUT

Canadian-born Michael Newman who made his league debut at inside left for the English League second division club West Ham, made a good impression in his team's 1-1 tie with Doncaster Rovers.

Twice in the opening minutes he sent in headers which the Doncaster goalkeeper just managed to save. Later he skimmed the bar of the goal with shots.

Newman, 24, was born in London, Ont. He says playing as an amateur for Dagenham in a minor league, and got his chance with West Ham because the regular inside left, John Dick, was ill.

French Girl Wins Slalom

STOWE, Vt. (AP) — Therese LeDuc, a vivacious French girl from Vosges, won the women's giant slalom Saturday in the American international ski races.

Streaking through a dense fog down Mount Mansfield's slopes made mushy by 45-degree temperatures, the 24-year-old French girl was the only one of 28 competitors to crack the two-minute barrier. She registered one minute, 59.2 seconds over the approximately mile course, punctuated by 42 gates, to beat out Frieda Danzer of Switzerland, who clocked 2:00.5. Ginette Seguin, the Canadian hope, finished out of the running with a clocking of 2:09.6 seconds. She was 12th in the regular slalom.

ELECT OFFICERS

CLINTON, Ont. (CP) — Peter McMullen of Milton was named president of the Ontario Baseball Association for 1957 at the association's annual convention. Albert Walker, of Oshawa, was elected first vice - president, and Otto Manzke, of Waterloo, was named second vice-president.

Executive members are Jack Carson, Belleville; W. C. Johnston, West Lorne; Nelson Hill, Goderich; and John Lesak, Fort Erie.

Pete Cooper Takes St. Pete's Golf Tourney

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) "Every time I got a putter in my hand it seemed like that little old ball was going for the hole."

That was the way weather-beaten, greying Pete Cooper described his solid triumph Sunday in the $12,500 St. Petersburg open golf tournament.

Putting enabled the 42-year-old Lakeland, Fla., veteran to shoot a closing six-under-par 65 and whip Jackie Burke, Jr., Masters and U.S. PGA champion, by four strokes for the $1,600 top money.

His 72-hole chart read 68-68-68-65—269, fifteen strokes under par. Burke had a 67-68-69-69—273 total worth $1,300.

Par for the 6,215-yard course is 36-35—71.

Toronto's Al Balding was four under par for the 72 holes with 72-66-71-71—280 and finished in a five-way tie for sixth place with Gene Littler, Jimmy Demaret, Doug Ford and Billy Casper Jr., each of whom earned $502.

Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener, the only other Canadian to qualify for the final rounds, was seven over par for the tourney with 72-71-76-72—291.

Minor Hockey

The Red Wings and Canadiens qualified for the bantam finals on Saturday morning with wins over the Maple Leafs and Barons.

The Red Wings whipped the Leafs 7-1 and took their semi-final round 10-3 while the Canadiens shaded, the Barons 4-3 and 6-4 on the round.

The winners will meet for the bantam division championship in a double-header on Wednesday evening.

Hub. Pointer paced the Wings to victory, scoring one goal and assisting on three more for a total of four points. Cam. Wallbridge had two goals and one assist as did Bobby Duggan. Graydon Scott also tallied two goals while Dafoe earned a single assist. John Lewis bagged the lone Leaf marker unassisted.

The Canadiens were hard-pressed for their victory as the Barons came back from a 3-0 deficit to tie the score near the end of the game and trail the round by a single goal. The Habs wrapped it up however with another marker in the dying seconds of the game.

Jim Dahl tallied twice for the winners, including the clincher while Gary Duval had a goal and an assist. Sonny McGrimmon netted the other goal with assists going to Bradley Lee, Peter Weston, John Graham and Garry Reid.

Rob Blaker and Teddy Rowland each had a goal and assist in the Baron's comeback try. John Rivest also scored.

The finals in the peewee, Bantam and midget will complete the year's minor hockey activities on Wednesday night.

NEW YORK (CP) — Third Brother nosed out the favorite Dedicate and then waited out a foul claim by the third horse, Paper Tiger, to win the $25,000-added Bowie handicap at Bowie, Md., Saturday.

Dick Lawless, riding Paper Tiger, complained afterwards to stewards that Third Brother impeded his mount a furlong from the finish. After viewing movies, stewards discredited the claim.

At Miami's Gulfstream track, Calumet Farm's Bardstown added the $17,670 Appleton handicap to his list of triumphs.

Despite top weight of 130 pounds the five-year-old ran the mile and a furlong in 1:49 2-5 to win easily over First Served, Piecesofeight, Fabius and Nance's Land.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"The McFarlands will open the series on Monday night in Whitby and not before. Otherwise they will pack up their gear for the season."

That was the ultimatum handed out by the Mars' manager Drury Denyes after an hour's argumentative bickering on Friday night following the elimination of the Cornwall Chevies.

Telephone wires between Belleville, Peterborough and Whitby had sizzled with conversation between OHA officials, Manager Wren Blair of the Whitby Dunlops and Manager Denyes.

Blair, who, it was stated, had agreed to the finals series starting this week in an earlier confab, apparently had a change of mind. His Dunlops had ousted Kingston, were well rested and ready to go in the finals starting Saturday night. That is the way it was—and that is the way it will be, was the Blairian edict.

OHA vice-president Lorne Cook, who was here was on the spot more or less. He was in favor of the series starting tonight but Blair, who is accustomed to having his own way and usually gets it as far as the OHA is concerned, was adamant. So was Manager Denyes.

The wires hummed but nothing came out of the argument.

Then Denyes fired his ultimatum — and it apparently had the proper effect. The series starts tonight in Whitby with the second game scheduled for Memorial Arena tomorrow night. But — and it is a big but — the OHA reserved the right to set the subsequent dates. Memorial Arena has been reserved for minor hockey Wednesday, and the Police-Firemen game on Thursday. There is talk of the Mars hosting Whitby Friday night, and playing in Blairville Saturday.

The OHA has decided that the champions of the Eastern and Western Ontario section "A" divisions must be decided by March 25. The western division is well into the series of a best-of-seven set of duel test they, unlike their eastern counterparts, can squeeze in two Sunday games. Their series can be decided by the deadline.

Meanwhile the Mars had a well earned, well-deserved rest after their tumultuous battles with the fie, injury and the Cornwall Chevies. It is reported they will be at full strength tonight for tonight's opener, although Bobo Bobesich grabs injury has not yet responded fully to treatment. They should give a fine account of themselves tonight, and regardless of result a bumper crowd will watch them tomorrow night in their home debut against the Doughty Dunlops.

HAIL TO THE SAINTS!

Meanwhile in another realm of sport, Johnny Hayman's gallant Quinte Secondary School senior basketball champions arrived home unbloodied and unbowed after their first experience in OSSA tournament play. The Saints came marching home with two defeats but not an iota of disgrace. They went down before seasoned veterans of secondary school championship playoffs, and by their sheer spirit and never-say-die attitude were a distinct credit to their coach, their school, and their city.

However they have plenty of laurels on which they can rest. The Saints are the first team to win the COSSA title in the first season of senior participation. They established an enviable win-lost record, one that stands high in the list of the ten OSSA entrants, and one of their stars, Ted Batchelor, was the highest individual scorer in OSSA schedule play with a game average of 16 points. Despite the tournament result, the Saints came up with highly creditable performance. Quinte, and the saints' sponsors, the Bay of Quinte Lions Club and the Central Ontario Basketball Association and COSSA districts.

BADMINTON

Former champions retained their laurels and new champions were crowned at the first Tri-District Badminton Tournament hosted by the Belleville Garrison Club on Friday and Saturday. The tourney was excellently arranged and handled and much credit goes to Messrs John MacDonald, Bill Bonnell and their capable committees for an all-round job well done. Over 250 badminton stars from Eastern and Central Ontario participated in keen competitive play.

MARMORA THRILLS

Marmora minor hockey fans had more than their share of thrills Saturday night when their gallant little midget "C" team roared from behind to defeat Thornhill 4-3 and take the OMHA semi-finals series. The Marmora youngsters meet Port Elgin or New Hamburg for the title.

Twice the Marmora kids overcame Thornhill leads with the thrilling climax coming in the last minute of play when, with Thornhill enjoying a one-goal lead, the village kids came back to Thornhill enjoying a one-goal lead, the village kids came back to tie it up and win it with seconds to go. More power to their peachin' elbows.

ORFU Establishes 12-Import Limit; Sarnia to Play

SARNIA (CP)—The senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Saturday established a 12-import limit for teams for the 1957 season. Last year's import limit was four.

Acting president M. J. Chilton, Sarnia, announced that Sarnia, Golden Rocks, London Lords, The Warriors, St. in Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen and Toronto Balmy Beach will compete again this season.

In complying with a Canadian Rugby Union import ruling, the league entrants also will dress 20 players for home games and 25 players for road games.

The team representatives originally met to draw up the schedule but then it was announced the league has under consideration a major radio hook - up proposal which will not be settled for 10 days. This proposal came to light at the closed meeting and as a result drafting of the schedule was postponed until a meeting

Avenge Last Season Defeat By Defeating Canadiens 2-1; Gump Flumps, Leafs Score 14

Detroit Red Wings are once again champions of the National Hockey League.

The Wings wrapped up their eighth title in nine years Sunday night—and they did it by defeating Montreal Canadiens, their closest rivals this year and the team that deposed them last season after a seven-year reign at the top.

The win—which gave them six more points than Montreal which has only two games left—was on Detroit ice and it was a tough 2-1 victory. Detroit's first win over the Canadiens since Dec. 2 and their fourth in a row over the team that deposed them last season after a seven-year reign at the top.

Biltmores Oust St. Michaels 4-0; Enter Jr. Finals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Guelph Biltmores, with big gun Bill Sweeney at the helm, are running right on schedule in their march towards the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series championship.

Biltmores, who built up a 15-point lead midway through the regular season and then held off a drive by Toronto Marlboros to finish on top, entered the finals Sunday by downing St. Michael's College Majors 5-2.

Guelph won the best-of-seven semi-final series in straight games and Sweeney, the league scoring champion, contributed nine goals over the four games, two of them Sunday.

Biltmores now await the winner of the Marlboros-St. Catharines Teepees series to start the finals. That series is tied 1-1, Teepees taking a 2-0 win Saturday at St. Catharines.

The third game of their best-of-five series is slated for Toronto Tuesday, with the fifth at St. Catharines Wednesday.

CLOSE TO THE END

A 5,322 fans watched at Toronto Sunday as St. Michael's stayed with Guelph until the last second of the game. With Biltmores leading 4-3, Majors pulled their goaltender and pressed hard until Wally Chevrier fired the puck into the empty St. Michael's net at 19:59 of the last period.

Also scoring for Guelph were Brian Webber and Bob Robinson. Bob McKnight, Bob Boucher and Frank Mahovlich counted for Majors.

At St. Catharines, Teepees' goalie Roy Edwards stopped 29 shots for his shutout. Marlboros' Len Broderick handled 30, fanning on two.

Ron Quenville and John McKenzie counted for the winners. The victory was only the second in the 10 games Teepees have played against Marlboros this season.

High-Scoring Kitchener Club Trounce Windsor 'Dogs' Twice

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen, who had a mediocre won-lost record during the regular season, appear to be reaping the benefits of their high-scoring talents when it counts most—in the playoffs.

Dutchies have scored 20 goals in the first three games of the finals of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A western division, good enough for a 2-1 lead over Windsor Bulldogs in the best-of-seven series.

After dropping the first game 7-6 last week, the K-W club came back for two weekend wins, 7-3 at Windsor Sunday and 7-1 at home Saturday.

The fourth game is set for Kitchener Tuesday, with the fifth back at Windsor Wednesday.

FLYERS FIN'LLY WIN

Timmins Flyers finally hit the victory side in the Porcupine Mines Senior League finals, dumping South Porcupine Porkies 7-1 Sunday and cutting their lead in the best-of-seven series to 2-1, with one game tied.

Capacity crowds watched the action at Kitchener and Windsor. Centre Ken Laufman paced the Dutchies Sunday with a three-goal display before 5,400 hostile fans. Jack McKenzie, George Scholes, Don Hope and Billy Graham got one each. Gord Haxby Lou Bendo and Bob Brown were the Windsor marksmen.

The Saturday game — before a standing-room only crowd of 7,083 at Kitchener—was marred by a second-period brawl that started on the ice and ended in the stands. A woman spectator needed 10 stitches after being clipped by a stick.

FAN SWUNG AT KLUKAY

Windsor's Bob Wilson and Kitchener centre Jack Taylor came to blows on the ice. On their way to the penalty box, a fan swung at Bulldogs' Joe Klukay, who punched him in the nose.

The Windsor players came off the bench, a few more fights broke out, and it was 20 minutes before the hockey game was resumed.

George Scholes, Jerry Theberge and Butch Martin each scored two goals for the winners. Ron Howell scoring the other. Gord Haxby scored for Windsor.

Zimmer May Be Dodger Star; Mantle Homers Power Yankees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

This appears to be the year that Don (Comeback Kid) Zimmer will make the grade as a regular infielder with the National League champion Brooklyn Dodgers.

Zimmer's second home run of the spring off Jim Bunning of Detroit Tigers accounted for all of Brooklyn's runs Sunday as the Dodgers won a 5-2 Grapefruit exhibition at Miami.

Badly injured twice during his career by bean balls, Zimmer—who played second base, probably his opening day position—was almost hit in the head by Bunning's first pitch.

It was the second inning, and John Roseboro who had doubled and Gino Cimoli who had singled were on base. Zimmer came up swinging and on the next pitch he lined the ball over the left-center wall 360 feet away.

In other games Sunday, Washington Senators defeated Milwaukee Braves 5-3, New York Yankees blanked Cincinnati Redlegs 9-0, Philadelphia Phillies downed Boston Red Sox 4-1, Pittsburgh Pirates squeezed out a 2-1 decision over Kansas City Athletics, Chicago White Sox walloped St. Louis Cardinals 12-3, Baltimore Orioles took an 11-3 verdict from Chicago Cubs, and New York Giants defeated Cleveland Indians 9-6.

Pittsburgh, with a 7-2 exhibition record—best in both leagues—won in the sixth inning at Ft. Myers, Fla. Gene Freese walked, went to third on Dick Groat's double, and came home on a sacrifice fly.

Three White Sox pitchers, Bubba Phillips and rookie Jim Landis, got three hits apiece as Chicago mauled a trio of Cardinal pitchers for 18 hits at St. Petersburg, Fla. Wally Moon was four for four for the Cardinals, including a homer.

YANKEES SHOW POWER

At Tampa, Fla., the Yankees showed their power with 15 hits, and the Redlegs pulled a triple play. Mickey Mantle hit homers from both sides of the plate, and Andy Carey had a single, double, triple and homer to bat in four runs. Gil McDougald singled in the third, Mantle was hit by a pitched ball, but Yogi Berra lined to shortstop Alex Grammas, who touched second base and threw to first for the triple killing.

Gail Harris, in as a pinch hitter in the eighth inning at Tucson, Ariz., hit a bases-loaded double to break a 6-6 tie with Cleveland. Washington came from behind with four big runs in the seventh inning at Bradenton, Fla. Jerry Schoonmaker belted a three-run homer as a pinch hitter, the victim being Braves' Taylor Phillips.

Belleville Juniors of Decade Ago Hold Annual Skate-Feast Reunion

Young-old hockey veterans turned back clock briefly in Memorial Arena yesterday afternoon. You wouldn't take them for the McFarlands, but they proved that at one time they knew that icing the puck was something that wasn't done in the kitchen.

They were the Belleville Juniors of the second world war years of 1942 "from then on." And the way they careered on the ice (the most of them haven't worn skates since the last reunion).

They were the "kids" (none will ever see thirty again) that Feld High the Belleville hockey banner in the days when senior players were dodging shells instead of body-checks, and the target for the night was anything that wore a Heinie uniform, and not a Boston goal-net.

They played junior hockey in a group with Stirling, Campbellford and other district teams, and won the group title here. They also played in the Van Horne series in Kingston.

Doug Green, who masterminds the reunions of the juniors, sat out yesterday's tilt owing to a recent oppendectomy. But the rest of the squad, even Coach "Toots" Holway, still had confined his activities to a brief skating period, were out there passing, skating and shooting in a style reminiscent of their glory days.

The majority of the old gang was there. They had Bobby Green in the nets at one end and pressed Claude Carr into action at the other terminal, although Claude was a guest.

There was Bill Holway, Moe Rollins, Don Barrett, Jackie Wardhaugh, brother Harry, Doug Greatrix, "The Nobber" Day, Buck Reeves, Buck Lyle, Bruce Bishop, and others. Gerry Mober and the Meagher brothers were not on hand due to unavoidable commitments.

They had a softball vice-prexy Don Lee, tooting the whistle and he blew it merely to keep it from freezing.

The score? Who cares?. The gang gets together once a year, and is probably the only hockey organization of its kind in the district that holds its old ties together at annual like this.

And climaxing the "big game" was the annual bull-session when the boys squat on there haunches, inhale soft drinks, sandwiches and hot dogs and relive and replay the games that were the main part of the sports lives over a decade ago.

Doug Green deserves a lot of credit for the fine organization work of the reunion. That it was a complete success goes without saying. And it was hoped that all the ex-juniors will be on hand when the next reunion takes place.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, March 19, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Rather mild and inactive vibrations. But the Moon, well aspected, favors personal affairs and promises good results if close attention is given to daily tasks, occupational duties.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Benefits are possible now but you may have to work a little harder than usual. Some tasks may seem uninteresting but if they must be done, you supply the initiative. You can!

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—Avoid unrighteousness. Several planets going into auspicious positions promise an encouraging day especially if you are top-level enthusiastic. Plan, study matters carefully.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—Your moon is the only planet in very good aspect now. However, there are no strong restrictions, so make the most of all sound opportunities.

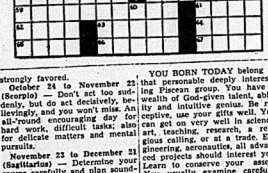
July 25 to August 23 (Leo)—This should be a pleasant and productive day for all worthwhile activities. Scan your day's schedule carefully and get an early start. Show your innate cleverness at management, cut needless red tape.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — A grand line-up of good aspects beginning shortly after sundown today and continuing all of tomorrow — so plan and act for big returns possible later with smart action now.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Heed advice to Taurus and Virgo. Your rays generally similar. A generous period in which to make plans for the whole week in all worthwhile endeavors. Difficult matters, hard manufacturing, science, strongly favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Don't act too suddenly, but do act decisively, benignly, and you won't miss. An invigorating, and you won't miss. An all-round encouraging day for hard work, difficult tasks; also for delicate matters and mental pursuits.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Determine your course carefully and plan soundly. A good opportunity here to advance many interests; improve matters in which you are interested. Be quick to take advantage of good offerings.



December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — A generous period for all worthwhile endeavors and activities. Legal matters, dealers in imports especially favored.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) —This can be a highly constructive period for your special interests and things that you manage well. Give special attention to obligations and don't miss out on opportunities to improve your status.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Resist any temptation to "skip class" on this progressive, constructive, beneficial day. Grand rays for preparation work, putting in your bid for recognition. Good efforts will really pay off.

YOU BORN TODAY belong to that personable deeply interesting Piscean group. You have a wealth of God-given talent, ability and intuitive genius. Be receptive, use your gifts well. You can get on very well in science, art, teaching, research, a religious calling, or at a trade. Engineering, aeronautics, all advanced projects should interest you. Learn to conserve your assets. You usually examine carefully ideas or propositions posed and try tirelessly to resolve them. Never lose your sense of humor. Birthdate: Wm. Jennings Bryan, statesman, orator.

Again Thornhill stged to the attack, but were stopped 14.17 and scored what appeared to be the deciding goal at 18.19.

The clock ran out on the ... when Harold Maloney brought the crowd to its feet with the ... goal on a pass from Lavender. The packed house settled back for overtime with score tied at and then at the minute left. But Maloney was far from through. He banged he winner to climax the thriller at 19.22 with Dean Lavender again assisting.

The line of Peewee Holland, Harold Maloney and Dean Lavender ... stopped the pointgetters. Maloney and Lavender each scored twice and assisted on three while Holland had three goals and one assist. Dan Bateman tallied the only goal while Osborne, Jim Shannon and Bob Olsen each drew one assist.

Gary Stant was terrific for the losers, scoring four goals. D. Anderson had two and two others, D. Volgt gained four assists, W. Edwards a goal and an assist and R. Charley one goal.

Only eight minor penalties were assessed in the contest, each club drawing four.

The Marmora boys presented their team mother, Mrs. Mary MacDonald, with a beautiful bouquet of fifteen red roses between periods. Goalie Dave Bedore made the presentation. A group of mothers served the visiting team lunch in the Town Hall following the game.

The Thornhill boys were true sportsmen, congratulating the winners and promising to return next season, this time for victory.

No dates have been arranged as yet for the final series and at time of writing it was not known whether Port Elgin or New Hamburg would provide the opposition.

Oshawa Badminton Club Tops In Tri-District Tournament

Ken Smith of Oshawa emerged as the outstanding singles player in the Tri District Invitation badminton championships at the Armories over the weekend.

In defeating Charlton of Oshawa, St. Lawrence District champion Millen of Oshawa and veteran Ken Martindale of Ottawa in closely fought three set matches, the young Oshawa star defeated Smith won the first set of the final 15-14 and was leading 11-7 in the second when Martindale staged a terrific rally to even the count. Smith's close checking and strong wrist action gave him a decisive 15-3 edge over the veteran in the third.

Martindale overcame Keller and Long of Oshawa to reach the final.

Edith Hayman of Ottawa defended her women's singles title by turning back a strong challenge by Miss Charlton of Oshawa 11-7, 8-11, 11-3.

Peterborough veteran Grant Henry was outstanding in reaching the finals of the men's and mixed doubles but failed in the last crucial matches after playing 26 sets in the two day tournament.

Henry and Crowe took the first set from Tighe and Gallagher of Peterborough 15-8 but the latter rallied strongly to take the second 15-8. The pair battled gamely for 14 all in the third with Tighe and Gallagher coming through in the most exciting match of the tournament.

Hayman and Silver won the mixed doubles without loss of a set eliminating Beamish - Tighe, successful in their two previous matches. Henry-Baker of Martindale and Hopkins-Smith to reach the last round. It was anybody's game in the first set of the final with Hayman-Silver only barely edging through 17-16 but the winners were in full command of the second 15-4 as Miss Hayman's deft net play and Silver's sound backcourt play proved too much for tiring Henry and his hard trying partner.

Beamish - Reddick of Oshawa put up a surprising strong bid to take the first set of the women's doubles finals from Hayman-Rice 12-15 but the more experienced pair settled down to win the next two 15-11, 15-10.

In an exhibition-singles match, professional Doug Grant of Belleville defeated Ottawa champion Bobby Wintle 15-3, 15-3.

Henry-Charlton of Peterborough won the veteran's doubles.

In the consolation events, Matyas defeated Reddick for the women's singles; Bunnell and Reston beat Roussell-Heffel for the men's doubles; Brindle - Messervey beat Walmsley - Putts for the women's doubles; and Elson - Slessor defeated Walmsley-McDonald for the men's doubles.

The team match for the most points won by all contestants was dominated by Oshawa with Peterborough second and Ottawa third.

Minute Please, Having Quake, Caller Told

BALTIMORE (AP) — The man on the other end of the line, in Santa Barbara, Calif., was almost apologetic Monday when he answered a telephone call from Baltimore.

"Could you wait just a moment, please? We're having an earthquake and my desk is jumping around a little."

Nova Scotia Moves to Set up Hospital Plan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Legislation concerned with the federal government's proposed hospital insurance plan was mentioned Monday in the Nova Scotia legislature.

In Halifax, Health Minister Donahoe introduced a bill calling for the establishment of a hospital services commission to prepare for the introduction of a hospital insurance plan in Nova Scotia "in accordance with the federal government. A committee which recommended that such a commission be set up suggested earlier this month that Nova Scotia's government consider seriously entering the federal scheme.

Duff Roblin, Progressive Conservative Opposition leader in Manitoba legislature, said lack of provincial government aid is at the root of all educational problems in the province. He said the provincial share of educational costs is too small and municipal taxpayers are left with too much of the bill.

In the Saskatchewan legislature, Mineral Resources Minister Brockelbank announced a new royalty formula designed to net the province an additional $1,500,000 this year in oil and natural gas revenues.

A government capital construction program of almost $14,500,000 was approved in the Alberta legislature.

Singing Star Pearl Bailey Flying Home

LONDON (Reuters) — Singing star Pearl Bailey, colored actress and an eccentric performance on crutches here last night, was flying home to the United States.

The decision came after doctors saw Miss Bailey at her hotel.

On Sunday's show, viewers saw Miss Bailey climb down from the stage and wander among the audience. Finally, she went back to the stage with a man from the audience—and danced with him.

Her doctors said Monday that she had been taking a combination of drugs and these had brought on a condition of exploration.

CNR Welfare Plan Means End of Workers' Scheme

Duplicated Coverage Will Not Be Allowed

OTTAWA (CP) — The CNR's new health and welfare plan for its 80,000-odd non-operating employees means the end of similar voluntary plans operated by the employees themselves or through insurance companies, says CNR President Donald Gordon.

The reason he gave Monday to the transportation committee is that the insurance companies underwriting the new plan, covering medical, hospital and life insurance, cannot accept duplicated coverage.

"The employees-sponsored plans are abolished," he said. The union well knew the situation when they demanded and obtained—through negotiations—the company participation in the health and welfare plan, effective last Jan. 1.

RESUMED DEDUCTIONS

For a time, the company stopped deducting at source employee contributions to employee-sponsored plans, but resumed temporarily—with insurance companies' permission—until the plans can be wound up.

The main problem in winding up the affairs of the employee-sponsored plans is that they have enough funds—running into the millions—to cover their liabilities. Mr. Gordon said, adding that the CNR management hopes to be able to assist in a settlement.

However, he said that the company has already set up a plan in an advisory capacity, with employee-sponsored plans.

Mr. Gordon said there are differences—but rejected any suggestions of discrimination—between benefits given organized and non-organized workers covered by the health and welfare plan.

Unmarried workers in the non-organized group pay a premium of $1.50 a month, compared with all unmarried union members who pay $4.50 a month, the same as married employees in both groups. The unorganized group, mainly clerical help, totaled about 5,000.

OTHER POINTS

Mr. Gordon also made these other points:

1. Powerful jet transports of the future will "beat the daylights out of us" in competition with the passenger traffic. One solution open to the railways is to concentrate on providing speedy intercity train travel to beat jet travel's competition.

2. The CNR found that when it is able to offer a train it retains the control of consumption in much easier and passengers better balanced.

3. The railway was in a price-cost squeeze and freight rate increases boosts totalling 11 per cent. Increased revenue from the boosts never running behind rising wage costs.

BOMBER SENTENCED

NEW YORK (AP)—A man who threatened to blow up the New York World-Telegram and Sun, the New York University and the city police commissioner with atom bombs unless he was given a 30-day suspended sentence Monday after he promised to see a psychiatrist. Herbert F. Haddox, 40, a subway change clerk, said through his lawyer that the threatening letters were supposed to be "humorous" but proved to be "stupid."

Cyprus Governor Doubts Truce Offer Sincere

LONDON (CP)—Field Marshal Sir John Harding, governor of Cyprus, indicated today that he is not convinced of the sincerity of the latest truce offer by Greek Cypriot underground on the rebellious island before the British commission in another claim for a 10-per-cent wage increase.

Possibility of Queen Visiting Canada This Fall Still Persists

LONDON (CP)—Is the Queen really going to visit Canada and the United States this fall?

Despite a persistent newspaper speculation, the official answer is that there still are no plans for such a visit. Unofficially the guessing persists.

The best tipoff tendency is to believe that there must be "something in it."

For months, there have been reports that Queen Elizabeth would visit Virginia in connection with anniversary celebrations, and would then go on to Ottawa to make a brief stop in Canada.

The latest forecast comes from William Hickey, a Daily Express columnist. Without any hemming or hawing, Hickey says the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will travel across the Atlantic in the royal yacht Britannia.

"The plan is that the Britannia will drop anchor at Jamestown, Va., Sept. 9," writes Hickey.

Here the plot thickens. The Sept. 9 date appears highly unlikely, since the Queen's engagement books disclose an obligation to open the annual Interparliamentary Union conference at Westminster Hall Sept. 12.

And yet—unofficial sources feel that even if the Queen is coming the story is substantially true. Official confirmation or denial of the announcement can be expected soon.

Buckingham Palace declines to give an inch.

"Obviously the Queen will be going to America at some time in the future," says a spokesman. "But there are no plans for a visit, and no formal invitation has been received."

The Daily Express columnist, in his exclusive story, links the reported visit with a Commonwealth conference in Ottawa. The idea, says Hickey, is that the Queen might open such a conference.

Receding Waters of Cornwall Canal Disclose Fate of Reeve

CORNWALL (CP) — Detective Inspector James Dalton Carroll said today there is no suspicion of foul play in the death of Reeve William A. MacEwen of nearby Maxville, whose body was found in his car in the Cornwall Canal Monday night.

Mr. MacEwen disappeared Jan. 23 and there was a theory that he had been kidnapped or slain for the large bankroll he usually carried.

The inspector said his based his statement on a verbal report from Dr. William J. Shannon, Cornwall general hospital pathologist, who performed an autopsy on the body. It was found by police checking a car uncovered by receding canal water.

Police Chief Alan Clarke of Cornwall declined to say whether there was any criminal angle in the case.

Inspector Carroll said that after a pathologist examined the body it would be sent to hospital for an autopsy.

Inspector Jean-Paul Laperrier of the provincial police criminal investigation Bureau was summoned from Toronto. He had headed an international search for Mr. MacEwan in which several police departments in Ontario, Quebec and New York State participated. About 2,000 circulars bearing the reeve's photograph and physical features were distributed among authorities.

Clinton Sayyeau, 44 - year - old father of 10 children of Smiths Falls, Ont., spotted the vehicle in a lock beside an extension of Water Street West, a dead-end street terminating at the mill. The lock was being drained for spring maintenance.

Police barred a guard around the scene and did not touch the car until the water was low enough for a complete examination. They said the vehicle appeared undamaged, save for the window which was broken.

Reward money totalling $3,000 was posted in the case. Sayyeau, father of six children, appeared in line for half of it.

Maxville village council put up $1,000 for finding the reeve. The Ontario attorney-general's department posted a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of anyone criminally responsible for the reeve's death. Mr. MacEwen's family added $500 to each reward.

Last persons known to have seen Mr. MacEwen alive were L. C. Kennedy, an official at the municipal garage, who said the reeve, on his way to his car, parked in a lot adjacent to Water Street, told him: "I'm going home late and I've got to get to bed."

Mr. MacEwen had operated large feed and grain business at Maxville for many years. He retired two years ago after turning it over to his son, William.

UN Troops All Along Border By Wednesday States Egypt

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt says all troops of the United Nations Emergency Force in the Gaza Strip will be stationed along the Gaza-Israeli border Wednesday.

Cairo Radio announced the impending UN withdrawal from the towns in the Mediterranean coast in an UN Secretary - General Dag Hammarskjold prepared to leave New York late today for talks in Cairo.

The Cairo broadcast Monday night quoted Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdel Nasir, Egyptian governor in Gaza, as saying the UNEF government has agreed to evacuate the headquarter building of Rafah, another city and all towns in the strip within 48 hours.

The UNEF command already was moving increasing numbers of troops to Khan Yunis and Gaza along the line dividing Israel and Gaza, and many Egyptian military vehicles were moving through the strip. The number of Egyptian military personnel in the area could not be determined.

The Egyptian delegation to the Israeli-Egyptian armistice commission opened an office in Gaza city and Egypt also turned over the Gaza city jail to Palestinian police under Egyptian control.

As Egyptian control expanded in Gaza, Israeli Foreign Minister Golda Meir told Hammarskjold in New York that Israel will not agree to "a belligerent Egypt" returning to the Gaza Strip.

Mrs. Meir told reporters the present situation in Gaza must be reversible, apparently meaning Israel thinks it must still possible to get the Egyptian administration out and re-establish UN control.

She conferred with Hammarskjold followed her request to Israel Secretary Dulles for a tonight U.S. policy toward President Nasser and his government.

Dulles and Mrs. Meir held a joint statement saying the United States "holds fully to its views and expectations" it previously had expressed to Israel that Egyptian-Israel dispute. But Dulles told a Congressional committee Monday Egypt must give guarantees to Israel.

The possibility of new Arab-Israeli trouble also mounted in the Gulf of Aqaba, route to the southern Israeli port of Eilat. Both Egypt and Saudi Arabia claim areas bordering the gulf.

An Israeli foreign office spokesman in Jerusalem said his government will send a ship through the Tiran straits as a "test case" to see if Egypt and Saudi Arabia claim any territorial rights.

Federal, Ontario Officials Will Confer on Marketing

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and Ontario officials are conferring on possible amendments to marketing legislation before a royal commission report upon which Ontario farmers will vote.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in the Commons Monday night Ontario agriculture minister Porter has had an agreement with Ontario farmers that no legislation will be passed on foodstuff sales for the purposes of equalizing returns for farmers without a referendum vote.

Such licence fees, the court said, would be in the nature of an indirect tax on consumers, a field entrusted exclusively to the federal Parliament under the constitution.

Magistrate head H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, said he "was unusually good reception." He added: "We are hopeful that something may be done this session."

The federal cabinet also asked for federal amendments to make valid amendments to the Ontario Farm Products Marketing Act now in force the provincial legislature. Justice Minister Garson of Ontario, who introduced them in the legislature, said they would clarify new principles needed to make the act valid in the light of the Supreme Court decision.

Mr. Goodfellow said powers of the proposed marketing boards would remain unchanged, but supplementary changes would be needed in federal marketing laws to control marketing of products which enter interprovincial or export trade.

The Supreme Court decision made clear that empowering the boards to set high licence fees was

Commons Begins Budget Debate, May Be Short

$89,825,000 Requested To Carry on Govt.

Opposition financial critic J. M. Macdonnell, who opened the budget debate last Thursday night will resume today and conclude his speech with a motion of non-confidence in the government.

The debate under the rules could last a full seven days if necessary. However, with a pre-election dissolution of Parliament expected around the end of March and with considerable other business to get through, the government is expected to allow no more than three days of the budget debate.

Commons members made some advance comments about the budget Monday during a day-long consideration of the government's request for a supplementary money supply of $89,825,000. The money covers a variety of expenditures in the fiscal year ending this month. Not all was voted in the day.

CRITICIZES PENSIONS

Howard Green (PC—Vancouver Quadra) criticized the restrictions on old age pensions: That they cannot be paid outside of Canada and that recipients must have lived in Canada for 20 years. Those regulations "should be severe."

Dealing with an appropriation for Indian affairs, Max Campbell (PCCP—The Battlefords) said that Indians on reserves in Saskatchewan are becoming "a generation of loafers" because they don't know how to work.

He urged that the reserves with the branch encourage the Indians to work the land on the sandy reserves instead of being moved to get jobs. The Indians lacked this.

It was necessary to change the Indians' whole idea about living. They were accustomed to working hard for a few days and then resting, instead of working steadily.

Gordon K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough) asked that a tractor and cultivation equipment be purchased for the Mud Lake reservation near Peterborough. The Indians there had no means of farming, and all went outside to get work.

Crew Members Row to Safety As Sealer Sinks

HALIFAX (CP)—Eleven members of the crew of the sealer Greenland Sea sank Sunday night in the Gulf of St. Lawrence according to safety Monday after being picked up by the coast guard.

Capt. Laurie Brandal of La-Have, N.S., and his crew members pulled a dory and their belongings off the floater when ice apparently punched a hole in it and she settled below the water, about one mile from Dead Man Island.

CHARGED IN THEFT

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Kenneth Soutter, 22-year-old RCAF sgt. (AC1) appeared in court Monday on a charge of theft of $10,000 in union funds. He was remanded until Thursday, Soutter was arrested in Moncton, N.B. over the week-end of Feb. 23.

Westbound CNR Continental Train Derailed at Brent, Algonquin Park

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — A CNR local early today derailed 10 cars of the westbound Canadian National R a i l w a y s Continental train at Brent.

No one was killed or injured in the accident, which occurred on the CNR main line 80 miles northwest of Pembroke, in Algonquin Park.

A CNR freight train also was derailed Monday at Hawkesbury, Ont., in the same general area.

Most of the 240-odd passengers on the Brent were Hungarian refugee immigrants travelling to western Canada.

The engineer of the train was George Fournier of Ottawa and the conductor was J. A. Pickett of Capreol, Ont.

Mr. Pickett also was the conductor of the CNR's eastbound Continental which Feb. 28 sliced into a huge tractor-trailer on the outskirts of Ottawa, killing a driver and one car of the 10-car train which was no fatalities or serious injuries.

The accident near Brent, which occurred at 4 a.m. EST today, derailed the last 10 cars of the train. Three of the 10 overturned and were tipped, but not on their side.

The less severely injured and the first eight cars of the train pressed safely over the split rail. The train left Ottawa at 6.45 p.m. Monday night, running from Montreal to Vancouver.

CNR officials said the line probably will be repaired by noon today. The scene of the accident was about half-way between Pembroke and North Bay. Pembroke is 106 miles northwest of Ottawa.

Split Tax Rate Of 74.5, 81.5 Mills Set By Council

Home Owners Get Slight Tax Relief in New Budget

Owners of residential property in the city will get a slight tax relief this year as result of the 1957 budget formally approved by Belleville city council Monday evening.

The mill rate for residential property is 74.5 mills, down 2.5 mills from the 77 mills of last year, while industrial and commercial property owners will pay 81.5 mills, up 3.5 mills from last year.

The split mill rate was necessary as a result of changes received from the Province of Ontario, this year, some of which were applicable only to residential property.

The general rate assessment is $20,403,491, including $11,883,430 residential, $5,520,061 industrial and commercial. The amount budgeted for is $2,064,761.

Public assessment property will be called upon to raise $407,815 for public schools. The mill rate here is 21.9, the same rate being applicable for separate schools. Separate schools will be asked to raise $46,257.83.

Bay of Quinte Secondary School will cost taxpayers $241,782.80 at a millrate of 12.9.

The city's share of local improvements at .95 mill will be $11,382.89; at 2.45 mill, the hospitalization will raise $49,-000; water rates at 2.70 mills, will raise $55,088.24.

Dimaggio Says He Cannot Attend Grand Jury Probe

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Joe DiMaggio sent his regrets Monday —he can't make it for the county grand jury probe today of the "Brown Derby" raid meant for his ex-wife, Marilyn Monroe.

The former New York Yankees' slugger sent a telegram to Assistant District Attorney William L. Ritzi from New York:

"I greatly regret that prior business commitments and a previously tight schedule at this particular time will make it impossible for me to leave for Los Angeles for some time."

Ritzi had sent letters to DiMaggio and Miss Monroe, who's also in New York, requesting their appearance to testify. He said he hasn't heard from Marilyn. Prosecutor Frank Sinatra and 18 other witnesses have been subpoenaed.

The prosecutor has said the grand jury will investigate whether there was criminal conspiracy to commit a misdemeanor, such as trespass or malicious mischief, in the raid the night of Nov. 7, 1954.

Sinatra told a recent state senate legislative hearing here that Miss Monroe went to the restaurant and sat in his car during the raid.

Private detective Philip W. Irwin testified that Sinatra and DiMaggio were among several men who entered the apartment after another sleuth kicked in the door. He said DiMaggio was looking for evidence against Miss Monroe.

By mistake, Irwin had entered an apartment where the actress was thought to be and found that of another woman, witnesses said.

$5,000 Collected In House Blitz For Red Cross

The Red Cross blitz of residences conducted last evening under the chairmanship of Ald. Mrs. Effie McCabe was a complete success according to the first reports. Over $5,000 was collected by the five hundred women under captains and co-captains, who completely covered the city from house to house. Mrs. McCabe stated today she was very proud of her corps of workers, the police for assisting in protecting the money and the employees of the Royal Bank, who worked far into the night rolling and counting the money subscribed.

Not only did the women volunteer for the work but many of them opened their homes so that the collectors could call there to deposit their money and later enjoy hot coffee and refreshments. The campaign is still a long way off from the objective but the response given last evening clearly showed that the residents appreciate the fine work being done by the Red Cross in this community.

Budget Defeated First Time But Passed on Later Vote As Council Debate Is Lively

On a third try and amid claims that certain members of council were trying to undermine the city manager, Belleville city council Monday evening gave final approval to the 1957 budget.

The budget — held up for a month awaiting official word from Queen's Park on increased grants provided for under the recent provincial budget — calls for a split mill-rate with residential owners getting slight relief and industrial and commercial ratepayers having their mill-rate increased from last year.

The residential mill-rate is 74.5 mills, down 3.5 mills from last year's 78, while the rate for industrial and commercial property owners will be 81.5 mills, up 3.5 mills up from last year.

Recommendations calling for reduction or deletion of specific amounts in the budget which had received council approval in committee took up most of the time during the council meeting.

DEFEATED AT FIRST

The recommendations all went down to defeat but at the same time opened the way for a re-vote on the budget.

Voting against the budget on its initial reading were Aldermen Collins, Hyde, McCabe, Safe, Temple and Whalen. Approving the budget were Aldermen Forrester, Gerald Hyde, C. B. Hyde, Grandame, Tice and Digby.

Later introduction of the budget by - law saw it passed, the last time receiving approval by an 8-3 count.

With the budget having been given provisional approval, Alderman Don Whalen as chairman of the committee of the whole ruled only written recommendations calling for deletion or lowering of the figures would be accepted.

Finally, after three or four recommendations had been introduced, discussed rather spiritedly and then defeated, Alderman Whalen called for a vote on the budget despite the fact Alderman Ben Sale said he had still another recommendation to introduce.

MEMBERS BEWILDERED

The defeat of the budget nonplussed council as members for a moment were at a loss as to the procedure to take.

"Just how do you expect to proceed during this evening's proceedings?" asked Mayor Jane Forrester.

"Utterly ridiculous," commented Ald. Gerald Hyde.

"It's just fantastic," went on Mayor Forrester. "This delay in getting the budget is costing the city dollars every day."

SEES BLOW AT MANAGER

She claimed that opposition to the by - law and the briefing of recommendations covering amounts already approved in council in committee was simply an attempt to undermine the city manager.

Alderman Ben Sale said he had voted against the by-law only because he had seen it for the first time bringing in another recommendation.

"I'll have nothing further to do with the budget," declared Ald. Hyde. "I'm not going to be a party to pushing the by-law to bring in a budget acceptable to the majority."

"If council will allow my recommendation I will vote for the budget by-law," returned Alderman Sale.

"The committee does as you say!" asked Ald. Hyde.

"This is a terrible situation, let the budget meeting continue," urged Ald. Temple.

"I am willing to co-operate," assured Ald. Sale.

"How magnanimous" returned Ald. Hyde.

INTRODUCES AMENDMENT

It was agreed that Ald. Safe be permitted to introduce his recommendation which called for deletion from the budget of an amount of $2,900 earmarked for renovations for office accommodation for the mayor and city manager.

The alderman noted that in spite of increased provincial grants the taxpayer was getting very little relief. He said that more dignities would be watched closely by the province to see what was done with the increased grants.

He said if the amount was allowed in at $2,900, undoubtedly the cost would be $4,000 before the job was finished.

"The city manager has assured us $2,900 will be tog[h]," returned Ald. Hyde.

Ald. Whalen agreed that the mayor and city manager were entitled to better office space than they had at present.

OFFICE A DISGRACE

"It's not a question of personal likes, but a question of office, that hole out there is a disgrace," returned Mayor Forrester, referring to the present office accommodation.

Alderman Robt. Temple agreed better accommodation was needed but said a comprehensive plan should be submitted with the variances amended or broken down.

To this Mayor Forrester and Ald. Hyde said the amount had been broken down and was sent back to aldermen in council minutes.

Itemized" queried Mayor Forrester, as she noted various amounts going to make up the $2,900 total. She said four rooms — offices for the mayor, for the city manager, a reception room, and a kitchenette — were included in the plans

MOTION DEFEATED

Ald. Safe's motion for deletion of the amount was defeated 8-3 with Aldermen McCabe, Safe and Temple supporting it. Opposed were Mayor Forrester and Aldermen Collins, Digby, Grandame, Hyde, Moxam, Tice and Whalen.

Mayor Forrester then moved for re-introduction of the budget by-law, her recommendation being carried 8-3 with Mayor Forrester and Ald. Digby, Grandame, Hyde, Moxam, Safe, Tice and Whalen supporting. Opposing votes were cast by Ald. Collins, McCabe and Temple.

EXPLAINS SPLIT RATE

Ald. Hyde re-introduced his reasons for opposing re-introduction of the budget by-law and briefly explained the budget and its split tax rate.

He referred caustically to council members' opposition to the budget and said that most matters discussed in connection with the budget had been introduced "to stir up trouble."

"It seems that some members are determined to slight or knock down either council or those who do the work."

With the feeling that the legality of the re-introduction of the budget by-law might be questioned it was decided to put it through the procedure but Alderman Whalen declined to speak as chairman of the committee of the whole.

He suspected that more "experienced" councillors might have offered a word of advice in connection with the method of sitting back with a smug expression. "We are acting like children here," he said.

VOTE THIRD TIME

Mayor Forrester then declined Ald. C. D. Tice to act as committee chairman for the official ratification of the budget which this time was approved by an 8-2 count. The only difference from the vote at the first approval was that Ald. Collins had left the council chamber.

With initial introduction of budget by-law Dr. Tice moved "to know how much extra in total grants were to be received this year by the city."

He was told by City Treasurer Drury Dennes that the extra provincial grants was $114,090.58.

Cliff expenditures were up $112.- 000 over last year, he was told.

"In plain words then we are spending the grant," noted Ald. Tice asked.

WOULD COMBINE POSITIONS

With only written recommendations calls calling for concrete changes in the budget being considered by the committee chairman, Ald. R. Temple introduced a motion calling for combining of the tax department of the city manager and commissioner of works in a salary of $7,500.

He noted that an item of $7,500 appeared in the budget for a new assistant of works and declared that the two positions could be combined and a saving of one third of a mill.

Ald. Ben Sale felt the suggestion could be tried, especially since the city manager was a qualified engineer.

Aldermen Frank Grandame and Dr. Stock were opposed to the motion.

"When we hired our city manager we were assured he was an engineer would be hired," Ald. Grandame said. "Now we would have $7,500, but would we save it in reality or merely on paper?" he asked.

Ald. Stock doubted combining of the two positions would solve the city's engineering problem. A second engineer was desperately needed, he said.

Ald. Safe and Effie McCabe said that the positions of city manager and engineer had been combined successfully in other centres.

MOTION DEFEATED

Ald. Temple's recommendation was defeated 8-4 with Mayor Forrester and Ald. Digby, Grandame, Hyde, Moxam, Stock, Tice and Whalen opposed. Supporting were Ald. Collins, McCabe, Safe and Temple.

Ald. Safe then recommended deletion of the amount of $1,400 as the cost of participation in the Ontario Development Association. He declared that the municipality largely duplicated the work of the Chamber of Commerce.

"I say spent the money through the Chamber or through a special industrial commission," he said.

The recommendation was defeated 7-4 with Mayor Forrester and Ald. Collins, Digby, Grandame, G. Hyde, Tice and Whalen opposed. Yes votes were polled by Ald. Moxam, McCabe, Safe and Temple.

DISCUSS ANNEXATION

Alderman R. Temple moved that the city solicitor be requested to carry annexation proceedings to the municipal board without the city retaining outside counsel.

He noted there was an amount of $5,000 in the budget for expenses in connection with proceedings on annexation proceedings and that a specialist in this field was available.

Mayor Forrester noted the cost of the specialist would be $150 per day, plus expenses, which was a normal retainer for this work. She said all municipalities considering annexation felt the matter should be handled by a specialist.

This recommendation was also lost, the vote being 8-3 Approving were Ald. Collins, McCabe and Temple with aldermen voting against Mayor Forrester and Aldermen Digby, Grandame, Gerald Hyde, Moxam, Safe, Tice and Whalen.

Still another recommendation by Ald. Safe, calling for reduction of the pension of ex-Chief J. Wilfred Holmes from $2400 to $1200 per year, was defeated. Ald. Safe said there was nothing personal in his request. It was merely a matter of finances. The full council had had no right to vote one man a $2400 pension when other city employees were granted but $1200. Fortunately retirements from service covered by a pension plan.

The motion was defeated 7-4 with Mayor Forrester and Aldermen Collins, Grandame, Hyde, Temple, Tice and Whalen supporting. Opposing the motion were Ald. Digby, Moxam, McCabe and Safe.

Belleville's "Timmy", Terry Stollker, of Shannonville, presents Her Worship, Mayor Jane Forregter, with the first Easter Seals, to be distributed in Belleville, to spark the 1957 Easter Seal Campaign. Gamble of Corunna and Fred Adsett, chairman of the crippled children's committee of the Rotary Club of Belleville, look on.

Two 'Timmys' Officially Open Easter Seal Campaign At Rotary Club Luncheon

The 1957 Easter Seal Campaign was officially launched in Belleville yesterday afternoon when Belleville "Timmy", Terry Stollker of Shannonville, presented Her Worship, Mayor Jane Forrester, with the first Easter seals to be distributed in the city.

The presentation to the Mayor, the president of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, A. O. Drysdale, and the president of the Belleville Trades and Labor Council, Ald. Gerald Burshaw, at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club.

Among the other special guests were the National "Timmy," Paul Gamble of Corunna, Ont., Miss Dorothy Draycott of the local Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Miss Helen Coulton, district nurse for the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, Mrs. M. Wallace of the publicity department of the O.S.C.C., Harry Hiatt of the O.S.C.C. and Arthur May, chairman of the Rotary Club's Easter Seal committee.

Without the aid of notes, Terry Stollker thanked the club for its help in the past to crippled children and cited special thanks for its work at Merrywood Camp, where each year scores of crippled children spend a few weeks of their summer vacation. He expressed pleasure at being chosen the 1957 "Timmy" for Belleville and asked the all-out support of everyone.

Belleville's "Timmy" was introduced by Paul Gamble, who, "at the age of 11 years, has spent some time before the mast aboard his home town — Corunna, although adjacent to Sarnia — is a community independent of its neighbor.

NEITHER DISTURBED

During the dinner hour at the Hotel Quinte, Terry and his newfound friend, Paul, laughed and joked among themselves and carried themselves like the gentlemen they are. Neither is disturbed because the wears leg braces and is supposed to use crutches. Their hope and cheerfulness reflected strong inner motifs. They seemed to accept their handicaps much as many people would accept a change in the weather — either they like it or they don't, but they overcome it by striving to develop some other phase of youthful personality.

Paul and Terry are typical of many handicapped children. They do not sit back and feel sorry for themselves, rather they pick up the standard and lead the way down brighter paths of adventure and hope.

Mrs. Wallace introduced Paul Gamble and told how he had benefited by the $22 saved by Canadians to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children, so that "Mr. Laurent doesn't get ahead of him." Paul presented the Prime Minister with the first Easter seals to be distributed in Canada a few weeks ago.

Mayor Forrester officially endorsed the launching of the drive campaign in Belleville and urged every citizen in the district to contribute as generously as they can. Her Worship also brought official greetings from the city.

The president of the Chamber of Commerce, A. O. Drysdale, brought greetings from Chamber members and pledged his support to the campaign.

Donald Burshaw, president of the Belleville Trades and Labor Council, also brought official greetings from the Council and added his support to Mr. Drysdale's. He also passed on the endorsation of the Canadian Labor Congress to the drive.

SKETCHES ACTIVITIES

Fred Adsett, chairman of the crippled children's committee of the club, sketched the 1956 activities of the committee and mentioned the treatment task accomplished by the local Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society.

Fred said, "the CARS administered treatment to 24 children, ranging in age from one month-and-half years to 18 years. All treatment and necessary personal equipment was paid for by the club. Of the total number of cases seven were afflicted with polio which, remarked the speaker, remains the foremost cripplers of little children."

The Rotary Club of Belleville like similar clubs elsewhere operates a mobile clinic, which pays frequent visits to crippled children — and some adults — who can not get to Belleville General Hospital for regular check-up and treatment.

Last year the committee accomplished a great deal on a small budget — between $2,000 and $3,000 being allocated for this work annually. Monies for crippled children's work is received from individual contributions, gifts from other clubs and a portion from the club's general funds.

Mr. Adsett said 50 per cent of the money collected in this year's Easter Seal drive would be sent to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children in Toronto and the remainder would be used locally by the club.

Close to Mr. Adsett's heart — and to the hearts of every Rotarian — is Merrywood Camp on the Rideau River, where each summer scores of crippled kiddies receive supervised outdoor recreation. In 1956 19 young children were sent to the camp.

President Ernest C. Gurnett, in his closing remarks, welcomed the guests and added his support to the long list of people who have promised to aid the drive.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market was irregularly lower today in quiet morning trading. Mines were lower in almost a solid line while industrials and western oils had a mixed to easier tone.

Industrial price changes were confined to a one-point range with the exception of Ford A, which lost 1½ points at 104½ on a single sale.

Falconbridge and International Nickel each added ½ point among senior base metals but other seniors were easier. Consolidated Denison lost ½ at 21¾ among highest priced mines.

Advocate was shaken by profit-taking and lost 23 cents at $9.40. Most other Junior base metals were easier.

Police Blotter

People can find more uses for can openers than enough.

City police are examining such an article this morning, after it was found at the Youth Club last night, when police went to investigate a break-in there.

Entry through an instrument was used to pry open a storm window through which the culprit climbed before kicking down the door leading to the bar.

Incidentally, despite matters worse, the thief (he took a dollar bill) didn't even have the decency to take his hob nailed boots off before smashing down one door and demanding another.

Police entertain a variety of people at the station, but yesterday afternoon a new type was added.

They are holding a local man for assaulting a young girl, after he enticed her to his parked car.

A few weeks ago a couple of local boys, under the age of 18 years, were picked up in a pool room here playing snooker. City police continued their crack-down and yesterday charged three more clops and the operator of the hall.

Early this morning the caretaker of Queen Alexandra public school notified police of a disturbed break-in at the institution. When police arrived they found someone had entered the home economics room, prepared a tasty breakfast and poured syrup over some globes.

Yesterday the owner of a lot complained to police that a gang of boys was building a house in one of the trees on his property. Police arrived and asked the lads to move on and find another tree.

Provincial police reported a quiet night throughout the county.

New York Central Strike Is Averted

CLEVELAND (AP) — A strike called for Monday against the New York Central system was averted today when the national railroad mediation board entered the dispute between the carrier and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, a company spokesman said.

Terry railway spokesman said the line had been informed from Washington that the board has taken jurisdiction and later will assign a mediator and set a time for a conference of both sides in the dispute.

Daylight Saving Time to Start On April 28th

Dates between which the city of Belleville will be on Daylight Saving time have finally been determined by council.

Two weeks ago council passed a recommendation stating the starting and closing dates for fast time.

But last night when the by-law came up for adoption Alderman G. R. Hyde apologetically told council that he had erred in the dates. He said the closing date for fast time should have been 2 a.m. on the last Sunday in September — not the last Saturday as the recommendation had read.

"I promise that this is the last time I will write out the recommendation for adoption of Daylight Saving Time" he said. He admitted that on the last two occasions he had erred in the times.

Council passed the by-law first ending Daylight time on the last Sunday in September but will change it later if other centres adopt a later closing date.

Not Sufficient Signers to Carry Closing By-Law

Gasoline service station operators in the city outside council must pass an early closing by-law when 75 per cent of the per cent of operators favoring their petition.

Fact finding results revealed at city council Monday evening when it was shown that several operators who had originally signed the early closing petition had now requested that their names be taken off.

Originally 23 of the 40 operators in the city had signed the petition but since that time 12 had withdrawn their names, council was informed.

Acting city solicitor noted that according to regulations council must pass an early closing by-law when 75 per cent of the operators in any particular branch of business so request. Without the 75 per cent petition council could still pass the early closing by-law but were not compelled to do so.

The original petition signed by 23 operators asked for by-law closing all stations except duty stations at seven o'clock in the evening until seven in the morning. Stations often closed will be open nights and on weekends.

A recommendation authorizing the city solicitor to draw up the early closing by-law was defeated.

Macmillan Lists Four Problems For Conference

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan, pledging to "restore Anglo-American relations to the cornerstone of world peace," leaves tonight for Bermuda for a conference with President Eisenhower.

The prime minister, speaking at Leicester in his first major statement of policy since assuming office in January, listed four main subjects for discussion at Bermuda.

1. "The obscure and dangerous situation in the Middle East where the cooperation of all is needed to undermine the long-standing friendship and good relations of three countries and the peoples of the West."

2. "Arrangements for maintaining the great bulwark of NATO—still the main defence of Europe."

3. The "new movements toward economic co-operation in Europe and their place in the pattern of an ever-increasing world trade."

4. The problems of the Far East "so vital for British interests and the hope of our Commonwealth friends, Australia and New Zealand."

Flying to Bermuda with Macmillan are Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd, other officials and the United States Ambassador, John Hay Whitney.

Mayor Jane Forrester Gives Views on 1957 City Budget

"Now that we have come to the conclusion of our budget meetings and the official notice of grant schedules has been received, I wish to thank all those who have co-operated in preparing the budget.

"For several weeks in February council members met almost the whole seven times for a total of some 20 hours and closely scrutinized every proposed expenditure. Practically every item has been voted on individually. As might be expected there have been differences of opinion, but in each case, when the vote was taken there was a majority approval of the item under consideration.

Last year the budget was pared so closely that of necessity, as things worked out, certain departments were overspent and in others there was minor underspending. It was found necessary for the supplementary rolls provided additional funds for items not foreseen and the end result was that $7,000 remained as a carryover to apply on the budget for this year.

Last year there were some local items of revenue not available this year. They included a larger interest item. Also during the year, the last of a now non-existent sinking fund and pay-miums from debenture sales. These now non-existent items of revenue on the 1956 budget nearly balanced out by the additional grants in lieu now anticipated from the Federal government.

NEEDED ASSESSMENT

It had been anticipated new assessment would help overall counterbalance new costs, but when the 1957 assessment roll was revealed it was evident that very nearly the full amounts received from new assessment would be required to maintain the previous status quo without providing for current increased costs due to inflation.

The debentures for the new wing at the hospital come due for the first time this year and account for better than $15,000 of new funds required. There is additional assessment of $5,000 included for annexation procedures. $13,000 for an extra loader is another new expenditure. This item was debated last year and finally proved to have been justified only.

While speaking of equipment it would be wise to remember that next year's budget will have to seriously consider new trucks for the public works department. Our present equipment will be then replaced for a number of years and there will be a time when repairs reach such a proportion that the law of diminishing returns takes over. Even now the time is due to set up a depreciation fund, as is done in many municipalities, especially for replacement of such equipment so that the full load would not fall in any one tax year.

ESSENTIAL REPAIRS MADE

Approximately $15,000, divided among many budgets accounts for sundry items such as essential repair of buildings, improved street lighting and street sign posts, two additional school guards, routine replacement of office equipment and a few new items adjudged necessary. Also included in this amount is the sum total of certain minor additional sums required by reason of so-called items such as the recreation committee, the Moira Conservation, the literary, charitable grants, pension for our driver of snowroom roads, the health department and many and others.

Last year city hall personnel retired for limited salary adjustments on the understanding that job evaluation would be carried out. They expected their desire for and willingness to abide by the results of such an evaluation. This is a highly technical procedure and rightly should be done by experts in the field as has been the case in Belleville, Sudbury and St. Catharines — to name a few. However, council decided against such technical procedure at this instance and requested the city manager to carry out the evaluation himself.

In the limited time at his disposal he made a survey relating a point system for each of the local area remuneration for similar employment and average salaries for equivalent positions in other municipalities. The result of this survey was presented to council and, after each item had been explained and thoroughly examined, was accepted as presented. Some one hundred hours were spent on this project alone by the city manager along with additional time and assistance from department heads in setting up the point system.

ACCEPTED NEGOTIATIONS

In other years negotiations with employee unions were carried out by committees of council. This year the city manager conducted the bargaining sessions with the fire department and the public works guild. Tentative agreements resulting from these negotiations were presented to council who suggested certain alternatives. Council's suggested alternatives were not accepted by employee bargaining representatives. Therefore, aware that every avenue had been explored to protect the interest of the city and the employees, council finally accepted the result of negotiations. Salary adjustments covering some 149 employees in the city hall, public works, fire department and the police department were given an average thirty odd thousand dollars. $12,000 of this is in the police budget over which the council has no direct control and includes its first full year's operation on the 44 instead of 48 hour week.

Another feature of this year's budget was the careful consideration of the city manager's proposal that the Board of Works go on a 42-hour week. This arose from two facts: No. 1. The Public Works Employees Guild requested among other things a reduction from 44 to 40-hour work week which the council has no direct control and includes its first full year's operation on the 44 instead of 48 hour week.

Another feature of this year's budget was the careful consideration of the city manager's proposal that the Board of Works go on a 42-hour week. This arose from two facts: No. 1. The Public Works Employees Guild requested among other things a reduction from 44 to 40-hour work week which the council has no direct control and includes its first full year's operation on the 44 instead of 48 hour week.

When the job evaluation area wage survey was complete, it became clear that the 42-hour week and staff heads concerned that reducing the 44-hour week pay to the same take home pay, automatically increasing the wage rate by 5 per cent, would create new wage rates out of scale with the area. Thus the 42-hour week, giving about a 5 per cent raise in wage rate, still gave each man the same take home pay and permitted almost all to receive a small increase when their hourly wage rate was adjusted up to that indicated by the survey mentioned.

FINANCIAL STANDING GOOD

The financial standing of our city is good. However, to assure our citizens of the kind of service they have a right to expect of council many hours of deliberation is required to adjust and provide for providing additional current funds.

The long-awaited and very welcome provincial grants, calculated to give relief to the ratepayer from any previous basis, substantially benefit the municipalities. The financial assistance to municipalities has come at a very opportune time. This year's increased cost of education has been largely met by the ministry of welfare's new grants which are applicable to all property. Increased public and welfare grants are applied to all property and have assisted materially in these departments.

Previously all grants were applicable to all property. Now grants such as for repair and administration of justice grants can only be applied to residential property. This has necessitated a property and assessment review of commercial and industrial — in other words, a new look at the mills.

The differences between the industrial and commercial mill rate and the residential mill rate must be the amount of these grants. Official notice of this year's grants on this new basis have just arrived.

I wish to thank all department heads on behalf of council and myself for their co-operation and concentrated efforts in compiling calculation and the amount of money they have put in.

There will be the same full-page budget report in the press as in the minutes just as approved last year. There may be a few days delay due to the fact that calculations have just been finally arrived at and time must be taken to type and mimeograph the notes as well as for the typesetting. Alderman Gerald Hyde, chairman of the committee of the whole on budget has kindly accepted the responsibility for attending to this report.

Again I wish to thank him and all members of council and the department heads for their co-operation and attendance to the many meetings held in regard to the budget. None of us is happy over the unforeseen proportion of the increased cost but we are grateful for the mitigating factor of increased grants.

The application of grants had been on the same basis as other years this year's estimate would have been 77½ mills. As it is, our 1957 rate is 74.1 residential and 81.3 commercial and industrial.

Now that this task has been completed, it is the city manager's responsibility — according to law — to administer the budget for the year. He is responsible to council for city expenditures not exceeding their allotted amounts. Should the need arise for expenditure of unbudgeted items they must first be approved by a two-thirds vote of council. Council may now turn their efforts towards other policy-making decisions of which there are many on the horizon.

More Humane Slaughtering Recommended

TORONTO (CP)—The adoption of more humane methods of slaughtering animals in the municipal abattoir and private slaughter houses was recommended in a report to the board of health today.

The report was made by the humane slaughtering committee of the Toronto Humane Society which studied methods employed in killing animals for food.

The report also contained a statement from Toronto meat packers offering to finance a research program to find ways of implementing more humane methods.

One of the proposals was the use of a gas chamber in which animals would be made unconscious with carbon dioxide before being killed.

Alderman William Dennison, a member of the committee, said he will propose that the board of health recommend immediate adoption of more humane methods wherever possible.

Diefenbaker Proposes N.B. A-Power Plant

FREDERICTON (CP) — John Diefenbaker, national Progressive Conservative leader, said Monday night if his party formed a federal government it would decentralize industry and establish an atomic energy plant in the Maritime provinces.

"By 1963, when atomic energy will be produced at the approximate cost of water power energy, you would have something to add to your Beechwood project and other development projects," he said at a nomination meeting.

In his first visit to New Brunswick since becoming party leader, Mr. Diefenbaker said tax reductions in the federal budget were "totally inadequate to bring about industrial expansion."

Under anti-inflation policies, the government "seems to act upon the principle that if you spend your money, it causes inflation, but if the government takes it away from you and spends it, that doesn't cause any danger."

Wolfe Island Ferry Service Is Resumed

KINGSTON (CP) — The ferry Wolfe Islander has made the first trip of season from Kingston to Wolfe Island after four days of trying to force its way through harbor ice.

The motor vessel carved a passage through the last quarter mile of harbor ice and berthed at approximately 7:30 p.m. Monday night at the island dock for the first time since Kingston harbor was sealed Jan. 15.

It had taken Capt. Richard F. Fawcett and his crew four days and 15½ hours to complete the three-mile journey. Last year the ice barrier did not yield until April 3 after a week-long struggle.

"There may be trouble yet," Capt. Fawcett said. "There is still a lot of ice out there and if it comes in many centres on path, we may be held up again."

The crossing ended a 63-day winter siege for the islanders, who were obliged to travel to the mainland by air. Some made use of the condition of the ice perimeter.

Two Navy Ships Collide While Hunting Plane

HALIFAX (CP) — Two navy ships collided 50 miles southeast of Halifax early-today while they searched with other craft for a missing naval Avenger aircraft and its pilot. Both ships are heading to port under their own power.

The 2,200-ton frigate Lauzon and the destroyer escort Portage collided early today as they manoeuvred in the approximate area of where the trace of the Avenger which apparently crashed Monday in a routine flight.

The plane was piloted by Sub-Lt. Morris Komarnisky of Gilbert Plain, Man., and Dartmouth, N.S., Naval officials said the Portage and Lauzon were moving slowly toward port under their own power following the collision.

There were no reported injuries. The Portage suffered damage to the bow and fore peak and the Lauzon has a hole on the starboard side near the stern. Several compartments were reported flooded on both ships.

Stop Flights Of Viscounts Second Time

PARIS (Reuters)—Air France today stopped all flights of its 11 British Vickers Viscount 701 planes for a second time.

Air France officials said the suspension followed the arrival of a telegram from the Vickers company.

The Viscounts are expected to be grounded for a few days, the officials said.

They said spare parts are being sent by the Vickers company.

Air France suspended flights of its Viscount planes for a few hours Monday to give them as technical overhaul following last week's crash of a Viscount near Manchester, England, in which 22 persons were killed.

British European Airways announced in London today that work involved on the flap mechanism of a group of Viscounts temporarily withdrawn would be completed more than was previously expected.

NEW YORK (AP)—Capital Airlines said today it is making a precautionary inspection of wing flap attachment bolts on all its model 743 Viscount turbo-prop passenger planes.

The action followed the grounding of model 701 Viscount craft in England as the result of a crash in Manchester last Thursday in which 22 persons were killed. All the British 701s are being checked similarly.

"Capital has voluntarily taken this action despite the fact that the Capital Viscount is a different model and was built to United States Civil Aeronautics Board standards," the company said.

HEADED FOR CHILD-MARRIAGES

Will child-brides return to favor?

That might be one effect of the atomic age.

In a single issue of the New York Times we find stories reporting that:—

1—Dr. Willard F. Libby of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission says that the use of atomic isotopes saved U.S. industry $500,000,000 last year.

2—The British people are facing the nuclear age in a mood of almost aggressive confidence, expanding and experimenting in a dozen fields.

3—Sanitary engineers at the 1957 Nuclear Conference at Philadelphia sounded a warning that the U.S. faced "a grave challenge" in protecting the public from the dangers of atomic pollutions of the air and streams.

4—The World Health Organization says curtailment of man-made radioactivity is urgently needed to assure the "health and orderly development of future generations.

From these reports two conclusions can be drawn.

Man is likely to make ever-increasing use of atomic energy, in various forms.

This use does pose a threat to reproduction of the race. There have been some observations that an equally grave threat faces other kinds of life, but there would appear some grounds to doubt this assertion.

It is now accepted that the effects of exposure to radiation are accumulative. Indeed, so important is this fact that the World Health Organization urges a systematic recording of individual exposure to radiations, including dental and medical X-rays as well as exposure to radiation in safe-guarded industry.

Animals have two advantages over human beings. They get fewer X-rays and are less likely to be found in modern factories or in science laboratories. They mature faster, and, therefore, are exposed to radiation for a shorter period of time before they start reproducing their kind.

And if, there, of course, we meet the possibility that child-brides — and boy-bridegrooms — may become the style in a half century or so.

Perhaps, if scientists fail to develop means of protecting those who work with radioactive substances from the effects of this radiation, society will be reorganized so that the reproduction of the species is carried out before. Instead of after, people begin their lifework, when the length of time they have been exposed to radiation is at a minimum.

The age at which marriage takes place is controlled, in our modern civilization, largely by economic factors. Young people have a tendency to get married as soon as they can afford to do so. The state could make it possible for them to wed at a much earlier age than is customary today.

Of course, the resultant society would not please the individualist. There are upleasant signs, though, that the individualist is doomed, like the dodo.

Even state-financed child marriages, though, might not save mankind from eventual damage.

"There is a strong probability for believing that most genetic effects are very closely additive so that a small amount of radiation received by each of a large number of individuals can do an appreciable amount of damage to the gene pool," a World Health Organization study group reported.

We interpret this to mean that the effects of exposure to radiation are hereditary.

Before the dawn of the scientific age a similar warning was given mankind in considerably fewer words.

Something about the sins of the fathers being visited on the children unto the third and fourth generations.

TIGHT MONEY HAS LOW BOILING POINT

Attempts to prevent inflation through artificial depressants are like attempting to boil water in a pot on which the lid has been secured too tightly.

Unless ways and means can be found to reduce the heat the pot will surely burst.

The Bank of Canada policy of "tighter money" has prevented the water from boiling over but steam is steadily building up within.

Higher interest rates and more stringent terms have placed loans for building so far beyond the means of the average citizen that home construction has been reduced sharply since inception of this policy.

Meanwhile the population and demands for living accommodation have continued to grow.

During the past year the population enjoyed a record increase of 565,000 or 1,500 per day. With home building greatly reduced it does not require higher mathematics to arrive at the conclusion that the demand for premises to rent and subsequently the price of living accommodation is due to rise sharply.

Either the lid in the form of rising prices must be reduced or the artificially depressant lid of "tight money" must be lifted if the pot is to stay intact.

RAIMENT

No pride have I in high-silk hats,
I like the comfortable old.
To raiment gay and pearl gray
My heart and mind are clay.
I like fedoras faded gray,
The trousers thick with 'garden
Give me the faded flannel shirt
Which summer sun has turned to brown.
The shoes that crusted are with dirt
And, to work can settle down.
Come weather cold or weather
warm,
I want no medalled uniform.

I wear a dress suit when I must,
I fall for fashion's pressing urge,
But I am happier when I just
Put on a business suit or serge.
Nor do I greatly care that day
If it be brown or blue or gray.

I know my name will not appear
Upon the list of best dressed men.
Though it's been voted for year
by year,
I've never made the upper ten.
Should women stop at me to stare,
It won't be for the things I wear.

London's Great Zoo

London Economist

In the quiet streets north of Regent's Park the Zoological Society of London has brought together the closest concentration of varied animals in the world, a total of some 3,300 (excluding fish and non-vertebrates), which are joined each year by more than 1,000,000 human vertebrates on the other side of the bars. It has now entered upon a program of considerable improvements and development, of which the first part—an animal hospital—was opened last month.

Together with the society's complementary park at Whipsnade, only a little further, the zoo attracts rome 2.6 million visitors each year.

The London zoo has the almost unfair advantage of 36 acres of Crown land in the middle of the biggest mass market; it is none the less remarkable that it should continue so successfully to combine the pursuit of knowledge with popularity, in an age when other bodies with similar objectives find it increasingly hard to reconcile the two.

The Zoological Society was established by a group of eminent scientists — including Sir Stamford Raffles and Sir Humphrey Davy—in 1826, with the good nineteenth century aims of "the advancement of Zoology and Animal Physiology, and the introduction of new and curious subjects of the Animal Kingdom".

Shortly after its foundation it received the royal charter and opened the gardens, since when it has never been broke. It is first of all, a scientific body. It publishes learned monographs and proceedings; organizes expeditions to foreign countries to work in zoology, and in its life is prepared to pay for the pleasure of looking at its animals by the payment that it contributes rounds to the scientific expenses.

Running the Regent's Park zoo is not a profitable business. Provisions for the animals alone cost the society over £90,000 a year, despite the fact that it has a farm at Whipsnade which produces large quantities of fodder.

A large elephant, for example, eats about a hundred-weight of hay a day, along with oats, bran, fruit and vegetables, as well as the delicacies he may pick up from the fans; his official food ration may cost £400 a year. A lion, eating ten or twelve pounds of meat a day, is not far behind in spent on his food in a year.

These animals, however, are not the hardest to fill, although friends at the zoo may help out with gifts of fish, and a special diet to keep the giraffes supplied with the evergreen oak of which they are fond, and another friend of the zoo charged himself with the provision of a supply of kiwi, which ale some 300 lb. last year.

Locusts and flies are bred as food on the premises: of more ordinary animals the sole-eaters sume 100 tons of meat a year, 14,000 eggs and 13,400 pints of milk.

All this expenditure is rather more than covered by the zoo's several sources of income. In 1953 the society earned more than £210,000 from admission charges, £21,000 from fellows' subscriptions and a like sum from the £25,000 from catering profits and the sale of guides and souvenirs. The Whipsnade receipts were more than another £1,000 on admission charges, car park, party, and charges for rides on animals brought in nearly £5,000. The total income for the year ended in 1955 exceeded £295,000 (against £284,000 of expenditure), and at Whipsnade exceeded £110,000 (against £93,000 of expenses); the year's working showed another profit last year.

The "introduction of new and curious subjects of the Animal Kingdom" in Regent's Park is effected partly by purchase (£11,000 was spent on and exchange of animals in 1955), but also by presents to or deposits in the zoo from kind friends. Sir Winston Churchill, for instance, lent a lion which was presented by him to which would have been a nuisance around the house; and he has recently done the same with some tropical fish. His name is included in the list of donors together with—to cite from the 1955 list—some intriguingly varied colleagues: "Lockford Estates Ltd., one Falconted Teal", "the Minister of Works", one "Tufted Duck", "Master S. Atkinson, three House Mice", and "anonymous" many alarming of all. "General Post Office (Returned Letters Section), three Spotted-tailed Snakes".

One should not forget, too, the small ordinary donations assisted by Mr. Khrushchev to Prince Charles last Spring, which would have proved a bit too much for the Private Household.

In addition to these contributions from others the economy the society has friends abroad who present animals, or it may arrange an exchange with a foreign zoo or society. (The 1955 list of donors includes "the Zoological Gardens at Prague, two Hungarian skunks and four Smooth Snakes".) The society's research expeditions may also take the opportunity of collecting some animals of special interest, so that the fruits of the expedition may help to pay for it.

The greatest boon to the zoo's receipts is, however, the way in which certain animals catch the public fancy.

Before the war the arrival of the giant pandas from China inspired the number of visitors enormously, but the supply of these absurd and delicate bears has been cut off by political troubles. The biggest boom of all was caused by the birth of the polar bear cub, Brumas, in 1949; she brought almost a million more people into the zoo in that year.

But Brumas is a big girl now; interest in her has waned, and the attendances have fallen again to their "normal" annual level of two million odd.

Wife's Problem In Number Ten

Montreal Star

Lady Dorothy MacMillan, wife of the new British premier, never has given a most interesting interview to the newspapers about what it is like to be the wife of a new prime minister. In the course of it she—perhaps inadvertently—raises a point which will, we imagine, be of interest to all women.

Apparently when you become prime minister you have to move into 10 Downing Street you find your own furniture provided and in place and all you have to have is your own clothes. Presumably you do not have even to put those away. There will be somebody there to do it. Lady MacMillan rather wistfully regrets the little household chores, the pottering about in the garden that she liked to do back home in Sussex. Even the problem of the choice of the austere taste of a great art gallery, and Lady Mac-Millan has already begun to learn you will not ask for any change if you are wise.

No man is competent to comment with any authority on how all this must affect the incentive chatelaine. Greatly daring, we suggest that she may be better in two two emotions. It must be nice in one way to walk into a—probably—well furnished house and not have to go through the mentality and physically devastating process of moving and "settling down". On the other hand, mightn't she rather wish she could have the things she likes around her and surround them where she wants them, instead of being bound by tradition and protocol and a taste coming down from Brodiecs? As for having to live with the knowledge somebody else had selected and hung where they wanted them, we doubt that the most dutiful and politically minded helpmet would not have had moments.

We probably should have left this whole matter to the editor of the Woman's Page.

Unhappiness Has Its Value

London Daily Express

Who wants a nation consisting entirely of well-fed pigs with no discontented philosophers?

The question (as blatantly loaded as the dice in a television film crap game) is obviously intended to evoke the answer "No one".

But Dr. Richard Lynn, an Exeter University man who thinks it, thinks, as a matter of fact, that a lot of people do want peace and though they wanted a nation of well-fed pigs.

He is alarmed by the tendency among educators to make absolutely certain that all their charges are happy little animals with no worries, no psychological upsetting, and no room for competition.

He reckons that this might, indeed, produce a happy, well-adjusted community. But in his own-man carefully-to-the-point pointing out that Newton, for instance, would certainly have been treated in a mental hospital had he been alive today and Shakespeare was certainly on the happily-adjusted man.

He alleges that there is something in "our folklore conception of the eccentric artist, the mad scientist, and the absent-minded professor" and he quotes with approval Professor Cyril Burt that "all the greatest things we know have come to us from neurotics."

There is, it seems, a value in unhappiness.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

JUST TODAY

I wonder why it is that so many people keep living their yesterdays, exhibiting others in their talk that should have died with the day of happening. We have a birthday new day every twenty-four hours. Let us keep it as though we were to be on our last!

Every day of my life is filled with errors. I look out upon a pair of starlings hovering close to each other on a slender branch just outside my library window. I have often wondered what they were thinking about in the cold. Each day they are fed, for they are very useful about a yard later on.

When this Talk was written the scene outside my window was like a fairyland, with the snow glistening in the early morning sun, and shadows creeping in all directions. I always like to know what I am most interested in it than any day that is gone, with its problems, sorrows and disappointments. I save the happy hours, however, for that is the section in which to be recorded.

My life is so often fail to make Just Today the one of all our lives? I often think of a line in Luther Burbank's album in my youth that a teacher of mine memorized, the gist of which I was so proud. She wrote: "This day will never dawn again!" I have often thought of those words and the memory of it still is significant.

Why do we spot up all our new days with the failures of yesterdays? The morning birds are singing in the southland, and I have heard them, in my boyhood memories. Soon the buds will begin to bloom in the northland—and Spring is "just around the corner"! Soon many a songster will be heard in our midst with their revelations all its own. God still is in His Heaven!

And with good reason. In this era of unprecedented corporate growth, competition for the services of managerial talent—enough men with executive ability are hard to find. Then, too, there's the tendency in many of corporate councils that the outright firing of a key executive is a confession of failure on a company's reputation than to strengthen it.

As one corporate official puts it: "The day of the hard-hitting empire builder has been fired an executive because he didn't like his looks, or dismissed them wholesale because he was in bad humor, is gone." Another observer: "Everyone doesn't need to be placed around management decisions these days for all the blame to fall on one man."

Now Difficult To Get Fired

Wall Street Journal

Top executives are finding it tougher and tougher to get fired these days.

Some do, of course. Plant managers, vice-presidents, presidents, even board chairmen occasionally are getting the gate. But it sometimes requires special effort. Those who lack the knack of getting canned in style usually themselves suddenly shoved aside or kicked upstairs.

Seldom before in the world of business has the power to fire been more cautiously practiced.

This Is No Time for Tonsillectomy

Two hundred and twenty-eight out of 285 patients who had been subjected to tonsillectomy by the all stumps or portions of tonsil left in the throat, reported Dr. C. B. Sputh, Sr., and Dr. C. B. Sputh, Jr.

Commenting on this, the Journal of the American Medical Association said editorially:

"Instead of being relieved through tonsillectomy of their foci of infection, many patients continue to absorb bacteria and toxins from the tonsillar tissue left in the throat and are often systemically much worse off than prior to their operation."

As I hope most readers know, it is my earnest belief that so-called tonsillectomy — the attempt to remove every bit of tonsil tissue — is the most barbarous act one can any one, least of all a child. It is barbaric as was the 19th century practice of cauterizing dog bites. The comparatively safe alternative treatment for tonsil enlargement (hypertrophy) which obstructs breathing or chewing, the child's hearing is tonsillotomy — instantaneously "clipping" or slicing off the obstructing portion of it is.

As a British authority, Dr. J. Alison Glover, said in Proceedings of the Royal Society of Medicine, tonsillectomy in school children is too often performed (I'd say perpetrated) without adequate cause or sufficient regard to the possibility of enlargement being temporary or due to physiological or immunological causes.

"Physiological and immunological causes" of tonsil enlargement are generally ignored or unrecognized by the everready operators. One physician realized it when he examined a number of school children in Addison, N.Y. and recommended removal of their enlarged tonsils. After the summer vacation, the doctor again examined the same children (none had been operated on). He was astonished to find that their tonsils were normal. This is the reason why I urge parents to take plenty of time to think it over — often enormous time — if the children get a break, the "bad" tonsils will very likely be normal. Too many victims are subjected to these dangerous and unjustified operations as of it is.

ENDLESS MIRACLES

Modern man has become so fascinated by the miracles he works that he has forgotten the miracles are happening about him all the time. In fact, the whole of life can be called a miracle. The intricate working of the human brain is a miracle so complex as to render the computing machine a mere toy. The rotation of the seasons, the reproduction of human life and its passing away in death —all these things are so shrouded in mystery that they may truly be called miracles.

So many people today believe that fidelity to science prevents them from believing in miracles. The truth however, is that science deals with the material world and the material side of life and activity which is neither be discerned nor understood by scientific inquiry. Science has made God in the world is life's greatest miracle. If a scientist or physicist dies are not just occasional happenings; miracles are the continuous thing. Even the small human situations causing things of an incredible nature to transpire.

If we were truly awake to what is going on about us, we should be filled with a sense of miracle all the time. The power of God works continuously in a sinful human affairs continuously.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Along the street from where I live is a private school for girls. A few blocks north is a high school. This gives me occasion to observe the curious fashion in which the sturdy boy makes the transition to the age carry their school books.

Held in front of them, by both hands, and resting against their stomachs, are piles of books, note books, exercise books and manuals that must aggregate somewhere between 10 and 20 pounds.

Walking slowly and easily, with a sort of side-to-side sway, the girls in pairs and groups, each with this same collection of learning supported against their stomachs in exactly the same fashion, wander leisurely homeward. Their hands are clasped under the load of books.

It is a fashion that appears to be universal at the moment, as universal as the fashion of similar young ladies in Eastern lands parading by, all carrying jugs on their heads.

I haven't seen a school bag in several years. It would have to be a suitcase, anyway, more than a bag, to accommodate all this pile of academic literature.

Two questions come to mind arising from these observations. Do these books mean that the ladies really read all this home work every night, or do they just make books merely as a form of exercise, a sort of new-tangled calisthenics?

I never see them going to school in the morning or home in the afternoon with or mothers drive them and their books to school. If they walk, they carry the books.

Which leads to the question: do you will see this easy procession of ladies bearing heavily chattily wending home.

But what is disturbing about the whole business is that you never see boys carrying these burdens of learning. They do not, of course. The odd one, with a scholarly air, might have a few books under his sports bag. But the great majority of young males appear to be remarkably unencumbered.

If the girls are merely indulging in a fashion, well and good. But if it means they are studying in preparation to the task in progression to the books carried home, then the world of men must rouse itself to the danger.

If in addition to their other advantages the girls are going to become better informed than the men, then we are in a heck of a fix.

Managers of Theatres Here Confident Movies Have Won Survival Battle With TV

Despite dire predictions that television would spell the death knell of motion pictures, it appears that matters are here to stay.

A hopeful future for the movie industry is predicted by G. Forhan, W. J. Fawcett, A. Mascaro and L. Buck, managers of the Belle, McCarthy, Park and Drive-In theatres respectively.

These experts are unanimous in tracing similar graphs of motion picture development . . .

first the steady expansion of the thirties, then the great setback spurt when theatres were almost swamped with service personnel, the post-war levelling off, the body blow of TV competition, and finally the surprising comeback.

The local managers also agree that a change of tactics on the part of Hollywood has confounded the prophets of doom.

At first, they explained, the big producers attempted to compete with television through a series of small budget "quickies" produced for as little as $60,000 each but bigger specials proved too similiar to those of TV and missed the boat. The pendulum then swung full circle to concentrate on the finest and most expensive movies ever shot.

That did it. The tactic of giving the public longer, better and more colorful specialties saved the reeling industry and put movie pictures right back in the ring where they will be fighting strongly from now on.

FLOURISH IN COMPETITION

The Belle's G. Forhan, the dean of local managers, said that the healthy condition of the movie industry showed that many forms of entertainment flourish in abounding competition.

Mr. Forhan is regarded as an outstanding authority on the movie theatre, having been associated with it all his adult life. He started as a road show player for the famous millionaire Ambrose J. Small, who caused a sensation when he mysteriously disappeared the day he cashed a cheque for nearly two million dollars. He was never heard of again.

The Belle Manager has served in many similar capacities in many parts of Ontario. The first feature he showed as a manager, in 1912, was "The Square Man," and cost only $15,000 to produce.

Mr. Forhan said he has shown 70 of Cecil De Mille's top productions and has seen them improve steadily over the years in writing, acting, direction and technical production.

TODAY'S MOVIES FINEST

"I am quite convinced that today's movies are the finest ever. People demand the best and that is what they are getting. The amount of money spent on production indicates Hollywood's determination to give people what they want. The average movie costs around $3,000,000. "The Ten Commandments," which I believe will be the biggest drawing card of all time, required a budget of $13,500,000. This picture has run for 14 weeks in Toronto at $2.50 a seat and I expect it will be held over for a year. In order to accommodate all the people who want to see "The Ten Commandments" it has been necessary to schedule an additional showing at 9 in the morning.

"Religion is the deepest and strongest of all appeals. 'The Ten Commandments' will return year after year to bring a powerful message to millions of people. Pictures like this bring a lot of good to the world."

Mr. Forhan made an interesting point in observing that definitely historical films like "Gone With The Wind," which return triumphantly every five years, have a far better chance of "living" than an equally good movie of the 30's which is "dated" by clothes, automobiles, etc. While the latter type of film is just about useless for reshowings in movie houses, these films are taken by TV, proving a tremendous bonanza for a Hollywood whose dual ability to produce for either medium theatre or television makes the colony a winner whichever way the chips fall.

Asked as a great religious picture there is little or no parallel ing beforehand what type of movie will be a big hit. Some people like one type of film and others an entirely different kind. A lot of people like spectacular disasters touching on many facets of life and they prefer real to imaginary ones. Perhaps this is why "San Francisco," the story of a great earthquake, was one of the biggest smash hits ever shown at the Belle.

Mr. Forhan said another forward step by Hollywood has been the establishment of studies in foreign countries to capture a more genuine atmosphere in scenery and character interpretation.

A recent example of this policy of shooting in foreign countries has been "War and Peace," made in Italy and utilizing a section of the Italian army for soldiers marching as far as the eye can see. The full output of two large shoe factories in Italy and Sweden was required to fit the troops with boots styled for the period of Napoleon.

"Tea House of The August Moon," starring Marlon Brando, Glen Ford and Jap star Machiko Kyo, was made in Japan to obtain the subtle oriental atmosphere distinguishing this film.

Other factors contributing to the comeback of movie pictures, Mr. Forhan said, have been modernization of theatres, including better seating and decorations, air-conditioning, parking and smoking in the balconies; the growth, of color films and visual improvements through the use of cinemascope, superscope, vistavision screens and now Todd-AO used for the smash hit musical "Oklahoma."

EXCITING BUSINESS

Mr. Forhan is as keen about the movie business as the day he started. "It is the uncertainty of how people are going to react — whether the movie you've made is going to pay up or hit you in the chin that makes this work exciting and interesting. Movie pictures have all the world to play to. They must go forward."

The views of W. J. Fawcett, manager of the McCarthy Theatre, on movieland are quite similar to those of Mr. Forhan but the former seems to have more implicit faith in estimating the time period for pictures on the strength of their previous success in other theatres.

Mr. Fawcett, who has also been manager of many theatres throughout Ontario, said: "I read the trade papers carefully to find out how coming pictures are doing throughout Canada. I find the reactions of people to the same film showing in different towns are pretty much alike.

Ordinarily we keep a film for three days. If it is outstandingly popular in other towns or if there is a terrific response here, we will book it for a week. In the latter case we generally wait to the end of the second day before coming to a decision. We judge audience response by the sale of tickets which are numbered and by final receipts for the day. The remarks of patrons as they leave the theatre also help to determine their enthusiasm and our decision."

Mr. Fawcett explained that although there are many duplicates of the same film, they are moved from place to place on an extremely tight schedule and headquarters in Toronto is constantly kept aware of a film's whereabouts.

Belleville is the junction for a 24-hour a day trucking service which exchanges and transfers films from town to town between Toronto and Ottawa. If a film fails to arrive here on time a special truck will bring it down from Toronto in two hours and 15 minutes.

Mr. Fawcett said the improvement in films in general with much stronger plots and more mature acting throughout. Although he does not underrate the drawing power of big stars, he believes a good story is the first requisite. "A good and well-known story will carry a picture with or without big name actors."

The improvement in Hollywood output extends movies to all foreign countries but importations are losing ground because people are not too keen about reading subtitles only.

Tremendous competition from TV has had the effect of eliminating the weaker elements such as newsreels which cannot compete with the timeliness of daily TV news reporting.

The varied preferences of different sections of movie fans make it possible for a comedy, musical or a drama to be a smash hit. As steady fare, outdoor dramas are one of the more popular types.

Mr. Fawcett observed that both men and women are uninterested in viewing an all-male or all-female cast if it is not their own sex which has been favored.

Tommy Mascaro, manager of the renovated Park Theatre, seemed to be a little more convinced on a definite formula for a big hit.

"People of Belleville like a good family folk and they like a picture which entertains the whole family — a mixture of religion, comedy, romance, and action helped along with big name performers. I think that is why 'The Quiet Man' and 'Friendly Persuasion' have been our biggest hits of recent years.

"The latter, which starred Gary Cooper, Dorothy McGuire, Anthony Perkins and Marjorie Main, ran for five weeks setting an all time record for any theatre in Belleville. Eighteen thousand saw it here!"

In regard to the future of movie theatres, Mr. Mascaro is confident that all theatres in expanding communities will continue to do well. While admitting that TV has struck hard, particularly in communities where the population is standing still or decreasing, he believes this competition has levelled out and the tide has turned.

"People will always like to get out for an evening away from the home and there is no better place for this break than the movies. The money that has been spent in modernizing theatres is an indication of the industry's confidence in its future," he said.

DRIVE-INS DIFFERENT

Larry Buck, manager of the Drive-In theatre on Marshall Road, said that outdoor movies are in an entirely different category from indoor theatres as far as long run features are concerned.

"We cater to families who often like to enjoy the outdoor air at the Drive-In a couple of times a week. That is one of the reasons why we change films twice a week and never keep one more than three days, howgver popular," Mr Buck explained.

"The tastes of people who go to outdoor theatres in the summer are also more specific than those of indoor crowds. Our patrons, mostly families, often include young children, show a strong liking for family or western type films. They prefer light cheerful shows with lots of lively action. Even mystery types are a bit heavy."

Mr. Buck observed that drive-in theatres which enjoyed a boom in the mid forties, then dipped sharply with the advent of television, are now enjoying a terrific comeback in the States. "I fully expect that this trend will prevail in Canada this summer," he said.

80th Milestone Marked by Family Friends

IVANHOE — A social evening was held recently in honor of Mrs. Charles Thompson, Front Street, Stirling, who was celebrating her 80th birthday anniversary.

Friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz, Ivanhoe. A social hour was spent and then the guests sat down to a banquet supper, prepared by the hostess, Mrs. Clifford Mitz, assisted by Mrs. Ted Reynolds and Mrs. Ivy Robb.

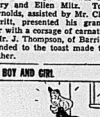
The dining room was decorated with flowers, bouquets of which were sent to Mrs. Thompson.

Those serving were: Larry and Ellen Mitz and Janet and Charles Reynolds, grandchildren of Mrs Thompson, Miss Mary Lou Porritt of Tweed and Glenn Belrose of Belleville.

The banquet was opened by The Lord's Prayer, followed by a toast to the Queen, in which the master of ceremonies, Mr. Harold Varty, Tweed, pointed out that Mrs. Thompson's birth was in the reign of Queen Victoria and the ancestors of the family were descendants of U.E.L. who first pioneered in the country in 1839. He reminded the guests of their allegiance to the present queen in these troubled times and that the guests rise and drink to the queen.

The next toast was proposed by the guest of honors, Mrs. Thompson, to toast highlights of Mrs. Thompson's life were outlined, how she had been born in a log cabin and of her courtship with Charles Thompson, a Boer War veteran.

The birthday cake was lit by Larry and Ellen Mitz. Tommy Reynolds, assisted by Mr. Charles Porritt, presented his grandmother with a corsage of carnations.



Mr. J. Thompson, of Barrie, responded to the toast made to his mother.

The chairman mentioned that this was indeed a birthday evening as Mr. Clifford Mitz, Mrs Charles Reynolds and Mr. Ivy Robbin were also celebrating birthdays.

Mr. Ted Reynolds, son-in-law entertained the guests with two songs, "Bless This House," and "Asleep In The Deep." Janet Reynolds gave a reading on "The Value of Friends." Mr. Bill Reynolds delighted all with two songs, "Mother O' Mine," and "Oh Sweet Mystery of Life." Mrs. Ivy Robbin, Toronto, spoke of her connection with the family and expressed her deep love and affection for Mrs. Thompson.

The chairman thanked the hostess, Mrs. Clifford Mitz, for the preparations that had made the party such a success, to which Mrs. Mitz replied. The Misnah Benediction drew the evening to a close.

JESUS LOVED THEM

JOSEPH

. . . the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, Joseph, thou son of David, fear not to take unto thee Mary thy wife: for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Ghost.

—Matthew 1:20

JAMES Son of Alphaeus

"And he ordained twelve, that they should be with him . . . Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and [illegible] and James the son of Alphaeus . . .

—Mark III:14,18

Little of Joseph's personal history is told in the New Testament. He is described as a "just man," who resided in Nazareth. He was of the house and the lineage of David.

We know him as a quiet man, who understood and believed the message of the angel who warned him of danger to the Infant Jesus, and kept him constantly alert to the snares woven in the minds of the Child's enemies.

He comes to us in the role of the protective father, the tireless watcher over his Charge, the careful provider of His early physical needs.

Scripture of Joseph ends with the account of the Holy Family's journey to Jerusalem for the Passover, when Jesus was 12 years of age.

But it is evident by implication that he died before the trial and crucifixion, since Jesus upon the Cross gave the care of His mother into the keeping of the beloved disciple.

There is an apocryphal story told of Joseph and his carpenter's shop, where he is said to have taught Jesus his trade.

He was showing the young Boy how to carve wood with the grain. Jesus watched closely and then duplicated the operation with understanding and skill.

"You can always know a wood by its grain," Joseph told Him. "And knowing the grain, you can mould it to the form you wish."

"He like the nature of man. Know this, and you can anticipate his thoughts, and direct these as you wish, if you have a reason that is good."

Jesus understood this parable, the story goes. He told Joseph:

"I am aware of the Time ahead. And I will meet it."

No name in the New Testament has caused quite so much confusion as that of James.

The reason is that in different places we read variously of James the son of Alphaeus, James the brother of the Lord; and of James the Less.

Are all these one and the same person? Catholic scholars for the most part say yes. Many Protestant authorities agree with them.

But then another question arises. What is meant by the designation, "brother of the Lord?"

Catholic interpreters assert that the Greek word, "adelphos," used in this reference, can mean step-brother or even a near relative.

Therefore, they argue, James was not the brother of Jesus in the literal sense — that is, he was not the son of Mary, the Virgin. It is more likely, they contend, that he was the son of the Virgin's sister, and therefore a cousin of Jesus.

In the early Church, the Greek fathers believed him to be the son of Joseph by a first marriage. Latin writers of the same period, however, all regarded James as the cousin of Jesus, since they taught that Mary remained a virgin all her life.

Whatever his exact relation to Jesus, James held a position of great respect among the Apostles.

It is said that after the martyrdom of St. Stephen, the other Apostles chose him to preside over affairs of the church in Jerusalem. Hence, he is sometimes referred to as the Bishop of Jerusalem.

According to the historian Hegesippus, who lived toward the end of the second century, James made a public declaration of his faith from one of the Temple ramparts, and was hurled to the ground by angry scribes and Pharisees. He was not killed by the fall, so his attackers then stoned him. As he was being killed, so the account goes, he called upon God to forgive his murderers.

Weddings

BURLEIGH — CHUMBLEY

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized, recently, at Port Whitby Anglican Church, Port Whitby, Ontario, by the Reverend J. Nicholson, rector of the church, when Doris Joan Chumbley, of Toronto, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Chumbley, of Belleville, became the bride of John Alan Burleigh of Sharbot Lake, son of Doctor and Mrs. R. Burleigh, of Bath, Ontario.

The bride was attractively attired in grey suit with white hat, white accessories, and corsage of red roses, while hyacinth bells with adiantum fern.

She was attended by Mrs. Robert Lindfield, of Toronto, wearing a blue suit with yellow rose corsage. Mr. Robert Lindfield, Toronto, attended the bridegroom.

Following the marriage, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Belleville.

The bride's table was prettily appointed with a three-tier wedding cake, flanked with white candles in crystal holders, on a white lace cloth.

The bride's mother received, wearing a pale blue flowered satin gown.

After the reception, which was attended by guests from Belleville, Harrowsmith, Toronto, and Whitby, the young couple left for Montreal, the bride travelling in her wedding suit. Mr. and Mrs. Burleigh will reside in Perth, Ontario.

Women Protest Rejection of Night Shopping

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Gordon Korr of Windsor, president of the Provincial Council of Women, Monday night protested the rejection of a night-shopping move by the Ontario legislature's labor committee.

Mrs. Korr said it was another case of consumer interests being ignored.

"It is ridiculous to ask a housewife to drag a child with her and go shopping during the day when she could go in the family car at night," she said. "The trend is to night shopping. Why doesn't the government recognize this?"

The bill would have given municipal councils more control over shopping hours. It had been approved earlier but referred back to the committee. Labor Minister Daley said during the committee session Monday that if he were on a municipal council he would not want the matter thrown in his lap.

Mrs. Korr said a telegram was sent to Premier Frost asking that the matter be reintroduced in the House.

FIRE HITS HOTEL

MONTREAL (CP)—Fire Monday in the Queen Elizabeth Hotel, under construction for Canadian National Railways, caused damage largely to insulation from the eighth to 15th floors on one side of the building. The fire was caused by explosion of an oil heater, used to provide warmth for workmen, on the eighth floor. About 200 firemen answered the three-alarm call. To get at the fire they used aerial ladders to the seventh floor.

Pr. Ed. Belleville Club Views Colored Slides

The March meeting of Prince Edward - Belleville Club was held in the YMCA, where the president, Mrs. Wannamaker extended a warm welcome to members and guests.

After the usual opening business was quickly dispensed with, Mrs. McCoy reported cards sent out to ill and shut-ins and read letters of thanks.

The program was convened by Mrs. Moxam and her group — but, owing to her illness in hospital, her co-convener, Mrs. H. Cunningham, presided.

With Mrs. Wensley as pianist and Mrs. Insley as song - leader, several Irish selections were sung while Mrs. Insley favored with two Irish solos.

Mrs. Baird gave two Irish readings with the real Irish accent.

For a full hour's entertainment the club is much indebted to Mr. and Mrs. A. Dalrymple, of John St. who recently returned from a trip through the Southern States and while there used their camera extensively.

While Mrs. Dalrymple operated the projector she brought a word picture, describing each slide, with fine notation and precision.

PROFUSION OF FLOWERS

These pictures were different from any previously shown — and brought the exotic beauty of flowers, shrubs and vegetation in a profusion of bright colors — the ocean beaches, the avenues of palms and roadside splendor; the luxurious estates, both modern and old, the deeply sunken gardens and swimming pools; the state buildings and hotels, the old churches and new parts and business sections. Several slides were of flowers alone, rare roses and orchids, and blossoming vines.

Thanks to the speaker were given by Mrs. Wannamaker. The meeting closed with variations of "The Old Rugged Cross", by Mrs. Wensley.

A social time followed with refreshments served by the group in charge.

Plans were made for the next meeting, March 25, to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Treverton.

Refreshments brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

The club was entertained recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Skelly. A social evening and crokinole party were enjoyed by all.

Women's Activities

CANNIFTON W. A.

The regular monthly dinner meeting of Canniflton W. A. was held in the Sunday School room, and was in charge of Mrs. Partridge and Mrs. D. Brenton and their assistants.

The tables were pretty with a strip of green paper through the centre of each, accented by green candles and pots of Shamrocks. Green jellies and salads made a very tasty setting for a delicious meal served to a large number.

The president called the meeting at two o'clock, and after the reports were read, closed the meeting as a number of members had planned to attend the College Hill meeting of the W. A.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DO YOU WANT HIM TO CALL YOU A PEST AGAIN?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

After going with Eddie for a year and a half, we broke up and he started going with another girl. Then he enlisted in the army, but he still goes out with her.

After a couple of months I wrote him a friendly letter which he answered and told me I was a pest.

It's been a year since then, and I've found out that his girl friend has been untrue, which he also knows, so I figure he may have changed his mind about me and so would like to hear from me. I know I love him, or I wouldn't be thinking of him as I do.

Do you think I should write him again? — Anne

Dear Anne:

No, I don't think you should write to him again. If this fellow had changed his mind about you, he certainly would have let you know, and you'd just be asking for another slap in the face if you wrote. Profit by what he wrote you before.

As for knowing whether you love him because you keep thinking about him, I rather suspect it's not love, but a lack of boy friends that makes you keep thinking about Eddie. So my advice to you is to get busy with all the activities you can which will bring you in touch with nice boys as well as girls. Be a lively, attractive, interesting girl and you soon will have no time to waste in silly brooding over a chap who thinks you're a pest.

YOU WANT TO KNOW WHAT I'D DO? I'LL TELL YOU!

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I've been going steady with a very nice boy who is just 18, myself am 21.

When his parents found out how old I was they made us break up, which I don't think is fair, because they don't even know me. Apparently they think we are going to run off and get married or something.

We have a great deal of love and respect for each other, and if I had a bad reputation, or ran around with men, that would be one thing, but I don't. I don't think it's age that counts, but what a person is really like.

What would you do?

— A Girl In Love

Dear "Girl-in Love":

Of course you're right in believing that what a person is like is more important than age. At the same time, there are periods in life when age difference does matter more than they do at other times.

For example, if you were, say 28 years old, and the young man were 25, he would, presumably, be closer to you in maturity than he probably is now. At 18, the average young man is hardly more than an adolescent, and a young woman who is already in her twenties should take that fact into consideration.

You see me what I would do, which means, I assume, if I were in your place. So, on that basis, I say that, if I were 21, I hope I'd have the good judgment to realize that a romance between an 18-year-old boy and myself wasn't at all appropriate; that it was more likely than not that he was merely infatuated with me as an "older woman," and that I'd advise him as gently and tactfully as possible that it would be wiser for him to date girls of his own age.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

"AND IT SHOWS IN HER FACE!"

A mother to be proud of! Her sweet disposition makes her a delightful companion to a young son.

Dining in a restaurant the other evening, I was vaguely aware that at a table to the rear of mine a rather intense conversation was going on. I wasn't eavesdropping and I couldn't have heard a word that was said even if I had been, for the tones were low . . . but there was a tenseness about the hum of the talk. Even though I sensed the tenseness, I didn't look around, so I didn't know who was speaking. But suddenly I was startled by a man's voice saying quite loudly . . . and I quote him exactly. . . .

"Well, I do respect my mother . . . but only because she is my mother. As a person, however, I heartily dislike her. She's greedy, she's selfish, she's conniving. . . . May God forgive me for talking this way about my mother . . . but I can't help it . . . she's a dreadful person . . . and, you know what? It even shows in her face!"

Yes, ladies, those were this young man's exact words. After hearing them, I couldn't wait to take a peek and I did, unostentatiously. I never did hear any more of their conversation because they lowered their voices again, but I saw that they were two men obviously in their early thirties and obviously good friends and contemporaries. It was easy to guess which one had spoken those dreadful words because he looked so unhappy and distressed. And I could not help thinking . . .

How true it is that all our emotions are mirrored in our faces! Study the faces you see along the streets, in street cars, buses, subways, even in restaurants and at theatres where you'd think there'd be only smiling faces. But there aren't. Mouths have developed deep lines from sullenness; they're tight-lipped from self-righteous disapproval of others; they droop from years of whining and complaining. Frown lines about the eyes and across the forehead give evidence of the irascible dispositions of their owners. Hard-looking, bleary eyes advertise greedy selfishness as no bill-board could. And so on. . . .

Try to remember it the next time you feel sorry for yourself. Self-pity will etch itself into your face—and it won't be flattering. Try to remember it the next time you are about to slyly malign your neighbor. That will show up in your face eventually, too. Every emotion . . . good or bad . . . becomes mirrored in your face with time. So why not cultivate the pleasantest disposition possible? You'll feel better, look better and, what's more, you'll know that no child of yours will ever utter the dreadful words I heard in that restaurant.

THE CAMP FIRE GIRLS AND THEIR CHARACTER-BUILDING OBJECTIVES

During this week, March 17-24, Camp Fire Girls will celebrate the 47th anniversary of their organization's founding. And as their fine tribute to this Birthday Week, they have charted a 10-point program that should be a great and abiding inspiration for character-building.

The ten points are illuminating directives for a girl's self-development and for the development of her "skill in human relationships." Here they are:

1. The application of her religious, spiritual, and ethical teachings to her daily living.
2. A love of home and family that grows as she grows.
3. Pride in woman's traditional qualities — tenderness, affection, and skill in human relationships.
4. Deep love of her country, the practice of democracy, readiness to serve.
5. The capacity for fun, friendship, and happy group relations.
6. The formation of healthful habits.
7. The ability to take care of herself, to do her work skillfully, and to take pleasure in it.
8. Interest and hobbies she can enjoy with others, and alone.
9. Love of the out-of-doors and skill in outdoor living.
10. A happy heart that will help her find beauty, romance, and adventure in the common things of daily life.

"IT CERTAINLY IS OFTEN MORE APPROPRIATE THAN "TO MEET" ON INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are giving a cocktail party on a Sunday afternoon soon for a charming couple who lived in this medium-size town for many years and who were very popular with everyone. We have some new informals, with our names (Mr. and Mrs.—) and address on the front pages, and I'd like to use these for the invitations. I'd like to use the usual form for this kind of party, but "to meet—" seems rather pointless for this party to be given for two guests of honor whom everyone has known so well. Have you any suggestion to solve this?

— N.S.B.

Yes . . . I suggest the friendly and informal "To greet." Today, in a group such as you describe, it is becoming quite customary to use "To greet—" It has a warm, welcoming tone . . . don't you agree?

SHOULD SHE WEAR FRATERNITY PIN AND ENGAGEMENT RING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it really incorrect for a girl to continue to wear her fiance's fraternity pin after he has given her an engagement ring? — E.S.

It is not "really incorrect," but a girl doesn't usually continue to wear it. When she has her engagement ring there isn't any point to wearing the pin.

Gilead Friendship Entertained by Carmel Comrades

The regular meeting of the Carmel Comrades group was held on Friday with a good attendance present. Guests for the evening included the Gilead Friendship Guild which was well represented.

The meeting was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Thompson. In the decoration of the hall it was evident that St. Patrick was remembered.

The meeting opened with the call to worship with the Scripture being read from Matthew 21-9 by Mrs. Carl Thompson. Mrs. Clayton Sullivan told the story of the life of Billy Sunday, which was a challenge to everyone present. The Reverend R. J. McCrae closed with prayer.

The president, Mr. Stan Geen, took charge of the business portion and began by recounting an Irish story. He also welcomed the visitors and expressed the pleasure in having the Carmel group present for the St. Patrick program.

Miss Judy Dafoe, Carman Dafoe and Alex Allison, gave a musical number in which the group joined in singing. A duet by George Clare and Ralph Swan, assisted by Mrs. Earl Rosa followed the two numbers presented, which were well received. Mr. McCrae sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. McCrae at the piano. Miss Judy Dafoe and Miss Donna Robinson also gave Irish numbers on the piano accordion.

Mr. McCrae spoke briefly and told some Irish stories which were greatly enjoyed. He also expressed his pleasure at seeing both groups present and enjoying the social evening together, and hoped it would continue.

There were also films and a comic reel for the children, shown. This was followed by a recreation period which included a contest in bursting balloons.

Refreshments were served.

Appreciative thanks were expressed by the visitors for a most pleasant evening.

Potatoes are Temperamental

By Mary Moore

This is about potatoes. I know some awkard facts about them. I wanted Duchess potatoes for a dinner party tonight so last night I pressure-cooked 7 potatoes in their skins. Just as I was removing the cover the front door bell rang. It was the seamstress with a skirt to fit. When I got back to the potatoes they were stone cold and waxy. Even so I peeled them and put them in the beater, hoping the lumps would beat out, but they wouldn't. So I had to push them through the sieve. It took 15 minutes. Never again! My arm and the sieve were broken. I hope nobody in this audience tries to beat cold potatoes in an electric mixer, but of course this smarty optimist will try anything once.

INFORMATION ON BAKED POTATOES

An important member of the newspaper office staff asks: "What causes baked potatoes to pop? . . . my hostess placed 5 potatoes in the oven; 2 of the 5 popped all of the potato out of their skins . . ."

Whenever I give you a recipe for scalloped potatoes I start a controversy and a flurry of letters. I'm in good fettle so here goes:

SCALLOPED POTATOES

(With onion this time) Four medium - large potatoes washed, pared and slices thin, 1/4 cup thinly sliced onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 3/4 to 2 cups milk (heated is preferable). Combine flour, salt and pepper. Place half of the potatoes in buttered casserole and sprinkle with half the flour mix. Cover with half the onions; dot with half the butter. Repeat. Pour milk over. Bake covered at 325 deg. F. 1/2 hour. Remove cover and continue baking another 45 minutes.

Variation: 1) Instead of 1 1/4 cups of the milk add 1 10 - oz. tin of cream of chicken or celery or mushroom soup. 2) Omit butter and arrange chops on top of casserole. After 20 minutes when cover is removed, turn chops over.

TUESDAY

Tuna a la King (See Monday), Succotash (kernel corn with lima beans), Shredded Carrot and Cabbage Salad, Steamed Fig Pudding, Coffee.

Some potatoes pop when baked because they contain an excess of moisture. They burst into steam when potato is heated, and because this steam is under pressure within the skin, pressure piles up and when it is sufficient it explodes through the skin. If you want to make sure this does not happen prick the skins once or twice before baking.

To produce potatoes baked just to the bursting point, mealy-fluffy and steaming, place on a piece of aluminum foil near the floor of the oven at 500 deg. F. Turn them over after 20 minutes to finish other side and brown it too. To serve slit top a little, then pinch to puff out centre. Drop a big gob of butter in it and sprinkle with freshly ground black pepper.

Women's Activities

SCOTT'S W.A. AND W.M.S.

6TH SIDNEY — A good crowd attended the March pot-luck dinner in the church hall on March 13, with Mrs. Carl Sine as hostess.

After dinner, the W.M.S. president called the meeting to order with a call to worship.

In the absence of the temperance secretary, the president read "Temperance as a Christian Virtue," in part: "Real temperance should mean mastery of the self—the control of all faculties. In sea animals there are two classes, the swimmers and the drifters. So it is with people. We must bring temperance to bear upon the whole habit structure of our lives."

For supply work there will be a quilting in the church hall on Tuesday.

The literature secretary stressed the value of reading missionary books in order to broaden the horizon and to increase the understanding of other peoples.

Mrs. Sine reported on the forenoon program of the presbyterial held in Bridge Street Church, in Belleville on March 1, and Mrs. R. Dafoe reported the afternoon and evening. The treasurer was instructed to send in first quarter's givings.

Mrs. G. Pollard, W.A. president, opened the W.A. meeting with theme, hymn and prayer. Mrs. A. Martyn will be hostess for the April meeting.

Mrs. R. Dafoe and her group conducted the devotional part of the meeting, the theme being, "The Whole Armour of God," with call to worship, "Be strong in the Lord and in the power of His might."

Mrs. Carl Sine and Mrs. G. Pollard read passages of Scripture from Ephesians. The leader gave out the questions which led in a search of what was read and a lively discussion followed.

Education Only Effecve Antidote To Liquor Traffic Propaganda

The March meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the "Y" with the president, Mrs. E. Farnsworth, presiding.

"March ushers in the beautiful spring time when all Nature awakens to new life. We recall the memory of St. Patrick, the missionary who took the gospel to Ireland, many years ago.

"In March we observe Education Week, when we salute the fine body of teachers whose life and work is wholly devoted to the development of the intellectual and spiritual growth of young Ontario. The children are the country's greatest asset.

"The world moves forward on the feet of little children."

ALCOHOL EDUCATION

It has been the policy of the W.C.T.U. to advocate alcohol education in the public schools.

"Since the use of alcoholic beverages has become an integral part of American society, public education must include an interpretation of the role beverage alcohol plays in the lives of today's citizens.

"Education is the only effective antidote to the subtle and persistent propaganda of the liquor traffic."

The clip sheet was on "Alcohol Education in Canada." British Columbia was the pioneer in this advance movement. In 1947 a Director of Alcohol Education was appointed and later a research assistant. A manual for teachers was prepared, and a course for teacher training for alcohol education was given.

The same year the W.C.T.U. of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba started a summer school of narcotics education at Saskatoon with 40 teachers, and leaders in welfare movements in attendance, at a two weeks' course of lectures by outstanding educational specialists.

"Though this was started by the W.C.T.U., it was given approval and financial aid by the Provincial Department of Education.

"Government grants in Manitoba, make it possible to employ two full time teachers of Alcohol Education in that province.

"Conditions in Ontario have not been so encouraging. Class room talks are permitted in many schools, but more use might be made of the manual and summer courses.

POSTER, ESSAY, HEALTH BOOK

"More interest is being taken in the poster, essay and health book work, put on by the W.C.T.U., also many public schools write on the National Temperance Study Course," and the teachers have co-operated most generously.

"In Quebec, prizes have been given for essays written after viewing a temperance film, and this has been a very successful project.

"In other eastern provinces, it is permitted to have class room instruction, and this is being increasingly used by competent visiting speakers."

Reports were received by the different departments. In schools Miss Barnum reported on the film, "Public Enemy No. 1," recently shown in seven public schools and the Quinte Secondary School where some 1,118 pupils viewed it.

Arrangements were made for the county convention to be held in Holloway United Church where the guest speaker at the banquet will be Rev. J. R. Hotchmore, General Secretary of Social Service and Evangelism, of the United Church of Canada.

The campaign to raise funds for the Consecon Children's Camp was planned, when a tag day has been arranged and a "Blitz" held in Belleville, and part of Hastings County.

The devotional service was taken from II Cor. 13, It was prepared by Mrs. Ray Lockyer, and given by Miss Barnum.

Shannonville W.M.S. Fetes Secretary

The W.A. of Shannonville United Church held a quilting and pot-luck dinner March 14 in the church hall. A meeting was held in the afternoon while the quilters were busy. Mrs. K. R. Vivian welcomed the members and the many visitors present.

The hymn song and theme prayer preceded singing of a hymn. Mrs. D. Hinchey presided at the piano for the hymns. All repeated The Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Kenneth Ashby, group leader, took charge. Theme for the month was Faith. The Bible reading from Hebrews Chapter 11, was given by Mrs. Robert McFarlane. Mrs. Juby read the lesson thoughts from the devotional leaflet and offered prayer.

Mrs. Gerald Stretton gave a reading, "The Call of Spring," and Mrs. Alex Cook read a poem. Mrs. Vivian thanked the group and took charge of the business.

Mrs. Vivian expressed thanks for the card sent to Helen when she was ill. Offering was dedicated by Mrs. Vivian. The meeting closed with benediction.

Twenty-three members and five visitors were present, not including the gentlemen who came to dinner. Proceeds from the dinner amounted to $21 while the offering at the meeting was $4.47.

Thanks are due the visitors who helped: Mrs. Belamy, Mrs. Bedell and Mrs. Tom Driver, Mrs. Orval Stratton offered her home for the April meeting.

At the conclusion of the dinner Mrs. Charles Woods placed a birthday cake trimmed with glowing candles in front of the secretary, Mrs. W. D. Robertson. A large bouquet of spring flowers was presented by Mrs. Robert McFarlane. As Mrs. Robertson blew out the candles and cut the first slice of cake, all sang "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Sam Elliott read an address expressing apreciation of service to the W.A. and W.M.S. This is the second time Mrs. Robertson has been W.A. secretary. She has also served 34 years as secretary of the W.M.S. The group also presented her with a feather-weight sweater. Although greatly surprised, Mrs. Robertson thanked the women for the useful gift, the flowers and the cake.

All sang "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow" and wishes were expressed for many more birthdays.

History of Mt. Pleasant—Rawdon W.M.S. Recounted at Meeting

The March meeting of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society was held March 13 at the home of Mrs. Will Potts with 11 members and six visitors in attendance.

Mrs. Herbert Smith, vice-president, read a poem, "Somebody With A Most Difficult Task" and all sang John Oxenham's missionary hymn, "In Christ There Is No East Or West," with Mrs. John Holmes officiating at the piano.

Miss Ruth Linn, treasurer, reported for January $14.55 and for February $13.39, with 12 annual members and six life members to date. Mrs. Frank Jeffs gave a message on "Social Welfare" and outlined the modern way of carrying on this work, after which Mrs. W. G. Fletcher distributed the Easter thankoffering envelopes and it is hoped for a good response. The givings in 1956 decreased by a large percentage.

Mrs. Fletcher told of the gifts for building advance for 1956. Unfortunately Mount Pleasant did not share in that work, as the allocation was not met. At the presbyterial Mrs. Coulter pointed out that interested women should augment their systematic givings, if necessary, by some money raising event and thus reach the allocation as funds are urgently needed.

The Mission Band had a selection of cards for sale after the meeting.

PRESBYTERIAL REPORTS

The reports of the two sessions of Belleville presbyterial were presented. Mrs. W. G. Fletcher outlined the morning session and told of the election of Mrs. Percy MacMullen as literature secretary. Mrs. Frank Jeffs presented the work of the discussion group on Christian education and said the aim was to strive for perfect attendance. Only sickness or death should hinder the members from being present at the monthly meeting.

Mrs. MacMullen convened the afternoon session and told of Miss Connie Wagar and her work in Trinidad. Connie and her sister Marion received a heartfelt welcome in the Belleville area. Connie's mother was press secretary of Peterborough presbyterial during the years Mrs. MacMullen was conference branch press secretary. Connie said cars are greatly needed; also better salaries for the Bible women of Trinidad. She also stressed the privileges enjoyed in Canada, while in Trinidad only one child in nine is able to have an education.

Thanks were extended for hospitality, also to the supply department for their quilting endeavors.

Mrs. Will Potts, community friendship secretary, recorded the calls. She will also write a letter to Madge as one of the 1956 members has taken up residence there.

Judy McAdam gathered the offering which Mrs. Don Johnson dedicated.

FILIPINOS

Mrs. Carleton Potts synopsized the study chapter entitled, "The Road is Rough." With the use of a map she pictured the Filipinos and told of their area, climate, population and church activities. Governor Magsaysay worked his way through college and took an auto mechanic's job, so he had a practical knowledge of the work of his country.

Rural pastors take a special course in an agricultural college in order to assist these folks. They have 4H club projects, credit unions, and many phases of farm study.

The Philippines Mission Board is interested in sending missionaries to other countries and in 1953 began that plan of endeavor. Two Filipino couples were commissioned as the first foreign missionaries from Southeast Asia. One couple went to Thailand and the other to Indonesia. Several home mission projects are in operation, one of which is a Department of Home and Family Life.

Miss Ruth Linn sang "The Place of Secret Prayer."

The group sang "Jesus Shall Reign" and Mrs. Grant Hubbie read the Bible lesson "He shall have dominion from sea to sea." Mrs. Frank Jeffs offered a prayer for the prime minister, the Rt. Florence Hunter, and all others engaged in the work of missions.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen presented a paper entitled "Memories of the Past". She paid tribute to a personal friend, the late Dr. Jean Gordon Forbes, who passed on to her reward January 9 of this year. Her picture and tribute are in the March Missionary Monthly. She said "Jean Forbes was a personal friend and had been her guide all through the years that she had served the cause of missions. She quoted many excerpts from her addresses and they are just as applicable today as they were 15 years ago. The hymn and Bible lesson were ones that Mrs. Forbes had used and the fragrance of her life will ever remain with those who knew her personally and loved her.

Mrs. MacMullen also sketched the organization of Mount Pleasant WMS and told of the first struggles in those early days when those women saw the vision of missions. In brief, the details are thus:

Mount Pleasant WMS on the Rawdon circuit was organized in June, 1901, by Mrs. Levi Massey. Mrs. James Williams served as president for the first ten years, and Mrs. Allan Bailey served the next five years. The first secretary was Mrs. Frank Potts and the first treasurer Mrs. Frank Williams.

The other seven charter members were: Mrs. Daniel Johnson, Mrs. Nancy McConnell, Mrs. Ruben Hoard, Mrs. Allan Bailey, Miss Phronia McDonald, Mrs. Will Johnson and her daughter, Miss Lottie Johnson.

They were the women who pioneered the organization and left the group at Mount Pleasant a heritage of worthwhile missionary enterprises. When a request came for extra money they got busy.

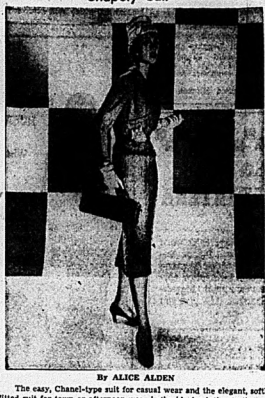
Mrs. Williams canvassed for years, from house to house for small sums of money. Mrs. Daniel Johnson pieced dozens of quilts, one of which the writer is proud to possess. Mrs. Nancy McConnell made wool cushions for sale. By 1910 the group was forwarding $200 a year to the Methodist missions. At that time Mrs. Roy Thrasher, then Annie Summers, was serving as recording secretary.

In 1912 a Mission Circle was organized and Mrs. Robert Ponder gave faithful leadership for six years. In 1918 the Circle ceased to function as the girls had married or moved elsewhere.

Mrs. MacMullen, who is a life member of that Circle group, told of many instances of how the girls raised small sums of money to further the work. They did not ask their parents or the W. M. S. women; rather, they earned it themselves.

There were no allocations in those days, but when a request came for money both W.M.S. and Mission Circle worked faithfully to raise the necessary funds. They realized the need and they exercised in many ways in order to carry on the work.

WONDERFUL EXAMPLE



Those pioneer women set a wonderful example and their achievements ring with sincerity and interest in following the gospel message "Go and Tell." Never once did those pioneer women ever say they were being asked for too much money. Instead, they gladly set to work to raise the funds.

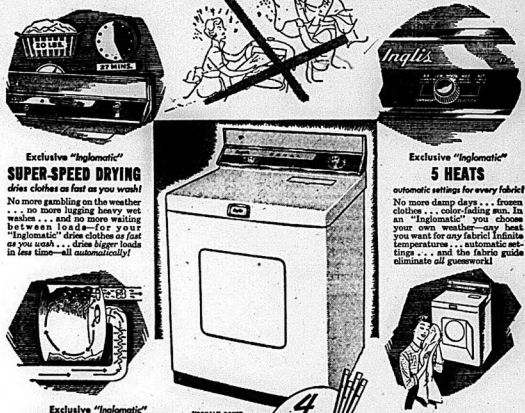
Mrs. MacMullen closed her message with a poem, "The Rose That Unfolded Itself on the Other Side" as a tribute to Mrs. James Williams and to that first group of W. M. S. women in 1901; to Mrs. Robert Ponder, leader of the Mission Circle; to Dr. Jean Gordon Forbes, and to her grandmother, Mrs. Allen Wescott, who, though an invalid for 42 years, was keenly interested in missions. To all of these she owed a deep debt of gratitude for their pioneer missionary spirit and for their vision of the head of the world.

Mrs. Smith closed the meeting with "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and the benediction.

The hostess served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Shapely Suit

By ALICE ALDEN



The easy, Chanel-type suit for casual wear and the elegant, softly fitted suit for town or afternoon wear is the ideal solution to the suit problem. Each is so useful, each has its definite place in the scheme sartorial. Arthur Jallow who does the elegant suit so well, has done beautifully detailed, softly fitted, shapely suits in silks as well as in wonderful woollens. Here, in an all-silk tweed of subtle pale blue and black colorings, a bolero silhouette is created high above the shapely, belted waistline. A flower tucked in at the waist adds to the soft feminine feeling.

PROGRESS REPORT BY TCA
TCA plans for the JET AGE
Giant DC-8 jet-liners to bring startling advances in long-distance air travel
A NEW WORLD OF AIR TRAVEL is on your horizon...the era of the jet airliner. After extensive investigation and evaluation of every type of long-range aircraft expected to be available in the next few years, TCA has ordered a fleet of inter-continental Douglas DC-8 airliners. They are to be powered by Rolls-Royce Conway turbo-jet engines.
This decision, part of TCA's planned expansion, is a major step. Each DC-8 will represent an investment of $5½ millions. The new planes are expected to enter service in 1960, and will bring dramatic changes on long-distance routes. Carrying up to 122 passengers at a cruising speed of 550 miles per hour, these big planes will cut flying times by almost half on TCA's trans-continental and trans-Atlantic routes. Tranquilizing Drugs Help Open Gates to Home, Family For Thousands of Men, Women

MEDICAL STUDENT DELIVERS OWN SON

Otto Goertz, 32, took the "do-it-yourself" cram to heart by delivering his baby son himself. The Vancouver truck driver – medical student than saved $350—enough to pay his fees for a third year of medical studies at St. Andrew's university, Scotland. Mrs. Goertz started labor pains at 2 p.m. Mar. 15 and both parents estimated nothing would happen until 8 p.m. But Peter Lewis, their third child, put in an appearance at 5 p.m., giving dad some unexpected medical practice). It was his first delivery. The couple are not eligible for B.C. hospital insurance because they have not been in the province a year.

EDS NOTE: Tranquilizing drugs are quieting the excited minds of thousands of mental patients. Outside hospitals, millions are swallowing milder versions of these calm-down pills and medical men are worried about the effects of too casual use. Here is a report on these wonder pills, second of five articles on the human mind.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — "The devil still talks to me but now I don't bother to holler back."

So speaks a woman who was a seemingly hopeless mental patient a few weeks ago. Her passport from mental hell was a tranquilizing drug. Today she's on the road to recovery.

In a brief few years, the new mental medicine of tranquilizing drugs has helped open the gates to home and family for literally thousands of men and women.

Outside hospitals, millions of Americans are swallowing an avalanche of the tranquilizing pills, pills milder in action than those used in hospital. An estimated 35,000,000 prescriptions for them were in 1956.

Calm-down pills are being taken to battle psychoses, torturing neuroses, emotional problems, psychosomatic ailments — at least sometimes—to ease minor bouts of anxiety and worry. Threatened or actual abuse of tranquilizers has some medical men worried.

REVOLUTION BY DRUGS

Dozens of medical reports and interviews with authorities give this picture of tranquilizers:

They have hit many mental hospitals with revolutionary results. Some hospitals credit tranquilizers with increasing discharges by as much as 50 per cent over what they had been. A few years ago, 50 per cent of admissions to these hospitals stayed there the rest of their lives.

The drugs quiet many agitated, assaultive, destructive patients. They also draw out withdrawn ones overwhelmed by secret inner terrors that they live like seemingly unfeeling vegetables.

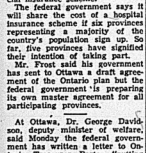
Repair bills for broken windows and furniture have come tumbling down; use of straight jackets and restraints sharply reduced. Doors are being unlocked, wards becoming more cheerful.

But tranquilizers don't cure mental illness. They suppress or remove certain symptoms.

SIDE EFFECTS

The drugs, particularly the more powerful ones, sometimes produce side effects such as drowsiness, dizziness, dry mouth, nausea, reduced blood pressure, even shaking palsy. Hospitals mainly use chlorpromazine, a potent new drug, and reserpine and other decoctions from the medicinal Indian snakeroot plant. Proper dosage is important.

Some psychiatrists regard tranquilizers as a fad and maintain equal results can be gained when mental hospitals are given enough staff and money to do intensive psychotherapy, or talking out of their patients.



An expanding list of tranquilizers is being used in general medical practice, most of them milder, in action and chlorpromazine and reserpine. They are credited with bringing relief to many people with neuroses, which often start with unhappiness and sense of failure. They may work fine to relieve tension, anxiety, insomnia and other common ailments of today.

But some doctors are concerned that tranquilizers may end up being over-use for garden-variety problems of living, to counteract every day stress, to diminish people's ambition and ordinary initiative, desire to work, the keenness needed to live in this modern world. Or to excuse dodging duties.

A great significance of tranquilizers is that they are chemicals which do affect the human mind. They are one sign pointing to a biochemical link or even cause behind mental disorders.

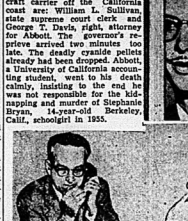
Had to Use Ice Pick to Get Pike Through Hole



ATIKOKAN, Ont. (CP)— Philip Storey has a 30-pound northern pike to back up this story of his first ice-fishing expedition.

"I hadn't made too large a hole in the ice and I had quite a job getting the fish through the hole," he said.

"Finally I had to take my ice pick and close the mouth of the fish to get it started up through the hole."

DEATH BEAT REPRIEVE BY 2 MINUTES

Below is the scene of "too late" phone call which was two minutes shy of saving the execution of Burton W. Abbott (right), 28, convicted kidnap-slayer, in the gas chamber at San Quentin prison, San Francisco. Calling on Gov. Goodwin J. Knight aboard an aircraft carrier off the California coast are: William L. Sullivan, state supreme court clerk and George T. Davis, right, attorney for Abbott. The governor's reprieve arrived two minutes too late. The deadly cyanide pellets already had been dropped. Abbott, a University of California accounting student, went to his death calmly, insisting to the end he was not responsible for the kidnapping and murder of Stephanie Bryan, 14-year-old Berkeley, Calif., schoolgirl in 1955.

Bowery Alcoholic Turns Down Movie Contract for $40,000

NEW YORK (AP)—A jug of wine, a can of soup and his own introspections are parsidise enough for Ray Salyer, a Bowery alcoholic. So Monday he turned down a $40,000 movie contract.

"I don't want the $40,000," he was quoted as saying in copyrighted story in The World-Telegram and Sun. "I don't ever want to come back. I just want the Bowery and to be left alone."

The 49-year-old Salyer was one of three Bowery alcoholics who were central figures in a documentary movie on the Bowery. The other two since have died of drink.

Producer Lionel Rogosin said a preview of the movie in Hollywood led to offer Salyer a $40,000 acting contract. Salyer was quoted as replying:

"There isn't a man living who can drink all day alone and spend more than $10, I'm a loner, and I've got my little room on the Bowery. I like coffee with my half gallons of wine and I go on a week's bender. Sure and I'd like a can of beef soup. Now and then I bum a day's work to get money for the wine.

"There came a day in my life when I knew what I was doing and I was no longer capable of doing what was right. Maybe you don't know what it is to wake up and it does to a man who starts to drink. It has nothing to do with morals. It has to do with certain tensions, like some awful disease, and these tensions come and you say—The hell with life. The hell with hope. The hell with all meaning. . . .

Salyer said he once was married with children. But he turned to the Bowery when he came out of the army after the war.

"I came down to New York's Bowery because it's the only place in the world where they're really tolerant of the drunk," he continued. "But I've been in jail here. They've tried to straighten me out. But I don't want to be straightened out. I'm not the typical alcoholic, not the compulsive alcoholic who wants to snap out of it. He lives through hell. So does the compulsive fighting to stay off the stuff. I'm the recreational alcoholic, see? I like to drink because there's nothing else in life but the booze.

"We're all like that on the Bowery. Just let us be and we will find us. We don't have the will to struggle for ourselves. We don't want love. We don't ask for money. We don't complain against fate. We don't even hope for salvation. We don't seek oblivions so that we can forget all the things we don't ever remember.

"Just see that I have a few bucks for the wine, eh? Spend that forty thousand on somebody who can really use it."

Four Teamster Officials Face Contempt Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators said further questioning of Teamsters Union President Dave Beck's president of the Teamsters Union.

Brewster, a vice-president of the union and chairman of its 11-state Western Conference, has denied that he has borrowed union money.

Brewster was indicted Monday on contempt-of-Congress charges after refusing to answer Ernest Mohn and two lesser union officials. The four were accused of refusing to answer questions in a preliminary inquiry in January.

A federal grand jury is investigating still another vice-president of the Teamsters, James R. Hoffa, on charges of bribing an investigating committee staff lawyer to keep him information from committee files.

Beck said in a television interview last Sunday that he had borrowed $300,000 to $400,000 of union funds some years ago without interest and paid back "every cent" of it.

Kennedy told reporters that Mr. Beck's description of his financial transactions with union funds, which he termed a loan, "is not the same as our information."

Kennedy said the committee was investigating the loans to Beck to find out the kind of independent men to whom he referred.

"We would rather describe them as financial transactions than loans," Kennedy added.

CHECK TAXES

The group plans to check income tax returns of both Beck and Brewster. President Eisenhower and the committee authority Monday to examine any federal tax returns for the years 1945 to 1957.

Daylight Saving Time in Toronto Till October 27

TORONTO (CP)—Daylight saving in Toronto will start April 28 and end Oct. 27, city council decided Monday. Members noted a majority of the other Ontario municipalities have agreed to this schedule.

Montreal's executive committee Monday recommended that the city follow New York's example and continue daylight saving time from April 28 to Oct. 27. In previous years daylight time had been enforced from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in September. City Council must approve.

Bermuda Ready To Play Host At Conference

TUCKERSTOWN, Bermuda (AP)—Bermuda today completed paint and polish preparation for playing host to history a second time in 25 years.

Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower arrive Wednesday to tackle the task of rebuilding the British - American partnership.

At the exclusive Mid-ocean Club they have built a new clubhouse, a bandstand, a barbed wire fence slashes across the velvet green of the golf course, isolating the clubhouse from sightseers.

Suites assigned to Macmillan, Eisenhower, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and State Secretary Dulles have been redecorated.

Macmillan and Eisenhower will hold their first conversations at the same big circular conference table at which the president met with Prime Minister Churchill and French Premier Joseph Laniel in December, 1953.

Eisenhower already has conferred in Washington with the present French premier, Guy Mollet, in an effort to patch up French-American cooperation.

Macmillan will hold talks with Prime Minister St. Laurent of Canada after the conferences with Eisenhower.

The pattern of "Big Two" meetings—rather than 1953's "Big Three" approach—suggests that Eisenhower and Dulles still do not think the Italian delegation and Africa with a grouping of what Dulles once described as "so-called colonial powers."

BC Fruit Growers Want Subsidy On 1955 Crop

OTTAWA (CP)—The difference between a cattle farmer and a fruit grower is his stomach, says J. W. Kennedy.

You see it at conventions of the two groups, the CCF member from Kootenay West said Monday night in the Commons. The cattle raisers are "fat and paunchy looking" while 90 per cent of fruit growers are "lean and hungry-looking."

Mr. Herridge, who classed himself in the second group, was protesting the federal government's rejection of a request by British Columbia fruit growers for a subsidy of 25 cents a box on their 1955 crop.

He said B.C. apple growers lost 25 cents a box that year when the price didn't meet their costs.

MORE INCLINED

Mr. Herridge said the government is more inclined to help wheat and cattle producers and suggested that was because Agriculture Minister Gardiner's cattle and wheat experiences inclined him that way.

Mr. Gardiner, who farms in Saskatchewan, replied that one reason he went west was because "I knew too much about apples in the East."

Once in Ontario, he recalled, he had tried to sell a wagon load of apples to get money to go to a fair. He couldn't sell them in either of two towns, disposed of them at a cider mill "and I didn't even get a drink of cider for them."

One Man Dead, 25 Injured, In Ford Blast

DETROIT (AP)—An explosion Monday night at the Ford Motor Company's giant Rouge plant fatally injured one worker and sent 25 to hospitals with burns, cuts and broken bones. Five were listed as critically hurt.

John Goodwin, 56-year-old Detroit inspector, died of injuries today.

The blast occurred Monday night in a paint spray booth where new automobile frames are moved through on a conveyor belt for painting. The cause was not determined.

The department went back in operation with the start of the midnight shift about 2½ hours after the explosion. The painting operation, however, was idle because of damage.

About 2,000 workers were in the building when the explosion ripped out 500 feet of glass and brick wall, threw workers off their feet and set off a paint-fed fire.

The plant, on the outskirts of Detroit, is the world's largest industrial installation with a 2,000-acre site.

Clarmon Sarotte, a 37-year-old general foreman, was one of the workers standing outside the building when the blast came. Flames shooting out of the mouth of the new wheat were fully screened.

"Flared and burning men came running toward us along the platform where the frames are loaded," he said. "We grabbed them, tore their burning clothes from them and then beat the fire out with our hands."

A Ford Company spokesman gave no immediate estimate of damage. He said the wall that blown out was designed to give way quickly in case of an explosion to spare other parts of the building from concussion damage.

Nurse Describes How Doctor Gave Drugs to Woman

LONDON (CP)—Dr. John Bodkin Adams "gave visit the elderly widow he is accused of murdering while she was "dopey and half asleep," a nurse testified today.

Helen Stronach, one of the four nurses employed by wealthy Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, said the 58-year-old physician would make his calls late at night.

Miss Stronach was the first witness on the second day of Adams' trial in Old Bailey, London's criminal court.

The portly bachelor doctor, who pleaded not guilty, built up a lucrative practice by catering to the retired rich at the fashionable Victorian seaside resort of East Bourne.

BECAME DRUG ADDICT

The crown charges the doctor fed Mrs. Morrell massive quantities of narcotics, turned her into a drug addict and killed her so he could benefit from her often-altered will.

Miss Stronach said Adams paid his late-night calls to administer injections to Mrs. Morrell, who died Nov. 13, 1950, at the age of 81.

She told the court that Mrs. Morrell had attacks of "great irritability" and required the nurses and other persons who visited her to maintain Defence counsel Geoffrey Lawrence asked in cross-examination if this irritability was due to pain to injuries to the arteries of the widow's brain.

"Not only that," Miss Stronach said, "I would say it was due to the fact that the effect of drugs she had had."

NO SIGN OF TENSION

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller, leading for the crown, has quoted Adams as telling a policeman during a talk about Mrs. Morrell's death:

"I found her sitting and a dying person is not all that wicked. She wanted to die. That don't be murder."

Adams looked straight at Miss Stronach while she testified and gave no outward sign of the tension felt in the musty old courtroom.

Current Levels Of Taxation Are Protested

TORONTO (CP)—Current levels of taxation constitute "a very great danger" to continuance of Canada's way of life, Stuart Armour, economic adviser to the president of the Steel Company of Canada, said Monday night in an address to the Toronto Board of Trade Club.

"What we badly need in Canada is agitation against taxes as virulent as that which now is causing United States politicians to stop, look and listen.

"Marx and Engels, the parents of communism, called for the elimination of capitalism which they said could be affected by means of high taxation alone. Are we in Canada out to prove them right?"

PICKET U.N. BY WATER

VANCOUVER (CP)—A romantic era of making a livelihood crammed with adventure, partnerships and rich rewards that spawned civilization in British Columbia's land of mountains, mows is all but dead.

The first wealth that British Columbia unfolded to her early explorers was in her furs. But a modern age has changed tastes in adornment. Silver fox, once a highly - desired fur bringing as much as $100 a pelt, today sells for only a few dollars. Beaver, once a classic pelt for both men's and women's apparel, went out of style.

Furs are still fashionable, but now they are ranch-bred mink and foxes with their many mutations. Wild mink, in the past a steady money-maker for trappers, now is something of a second cousin.

FEW TRAPPERS NOW

There is no longer the lure of wealth in trapping the wild animals. Trapping in British Columbia has hit an all-time low," said a spokesman of the B.C. game commission.

British Columbia's first white settlements were based on the fur trade. Fort St. John, Fort McLeod, Fort St. James and Fort St. George in Prince Rupert are witness to the times, a century and a half ago, when Simon Fraser and his lieutenants bartered with the Indians for the valuable pelts.

Even before that—in 1772—Capt. James Cook met the same almighty chief Maquinna on the shores of Nootka Sound on Vancouver Island, gathering the pelts of the sea otter.

The huge fur empire of New Caledonia, along the Fraser and Columbia rivers, was the property of the United States and even Russia. On the basis of its wealth, one of the greatest business mergers in Canadian history was effected—that of the North West Company and Hudson's Bay Co. in 1821.

For more than 100 years thereafter, the trail of the fur-bearers held a constant call for the adventurer: a promise of wealth for those who dared the hardships of the wild. But the hardships—weather and rugged terrain of the North

INDIANS TAKE OVER

Now, of 5,200 registered trappers in the province, only a few hundred were considered active or semi-active this season. Half of the licenses are issued to Indians—mainly in the northern half of the province where the fur trapline still is the major source of income.

More of the most prolific fur-bearing areas are being acquired each year by settlers. The game department has an understanding with the game commissioner that no white man releases or sells his line, the department has first call to buy it.

The white trapper, meanwhile, is finding his livelihood in mixed farming or secondary industry.

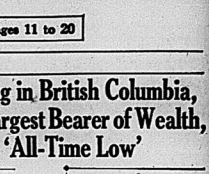
The biggest year for B.C. trapping began during the First and World War when many veterans, finding it hard to adjust to a low world supply of furs meant a good market. The 1946 catch amounted to 850,000 pelts of all kinds, paid a royalty to the B.C. government of more than $1,000,000 and an income to trappers of nearly $3,000,000.

BIG DROP

This season, the total take of wild furs is expected to be less than a million pelts for the first time. Even with the marked increase in the fur-farming in B.C., the fur slump has affected the big trading houses.

Theodore Pappas, operator of one of Western Canada's biggest department stores, says his sales are down "at least $1,000,000" from last year.

Mr. Pappas who began his fur-buying career by snowshoeing in the Yukon 40 years ago, also sees the end of a romantic era.



"It's the market. B.C. has lots of wild fur, maybe more than any place in the world. A trapping is mostly a sideline now," he said.

Wistfully, he recalled "the good old days" when, at the end of a trapping season, he would travel out of the woods descended in trading posts, thoroughly worn to shed a winter's isolation and make whoopee.

ABANDON POWER CENTRE

LIVINGSTONE, Northern Rhodesia (AP) — Engineers today made plans to surrender in their losing battle against a record flood on the Zambesi River. They decided to abandon the power station harnessing some of the force of the Victoria Falls. The flood waters, now covering 500 square miles, have swamped a number of villages and drowned many Africans.

POLICE FIND BLACKJACKS, CHAINS IN TEEN-AGE RAID

Home-made blackjacks, batons, knives and a four-foot motorcycle chain were among the weapons collected from teen-age boys by Detective Andrew Oullette, above, and fellow Toronto policemen when the latter raided a Toronto dance hall. Ten of the youths, described by police as "typical rock-and-roll leather jacket types," were arrested. Police raided the hall after they had received a series of tips on an impending gang fight.

Cheese Subject Of Long Debate In Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian and New Zealand governments have a "gentlemen's agreement" about cheese, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Monday night.

It took some prying from the opposition members, but the minister finally agreed in the Commons that there is no legal obstacle to a Canadian company importing New Zealand cheese.

Mr. Gardiner added, however, that the New Zealand government will not ship cheese to Canada without getting agreement to do so from the Canadian government.

One of the minister's chief questioners as the House considered supplementary agriculture spending estimates, Hastings-S. White (PC—Hastings-Frontenac), asked "why not stop all this camouflage and put a reverse under the Export and Import Permits Act? Then cheese imports could be controlled.

HAD LAPSED?

Mr. Gardiner said earlier that a similar agreement was reached with New Zealand before the Second World War, but it had lapsed two or three years ago and cheese was coming Canada. Then a new "understanding" was reached.

Wallace Nesbitt (PC - Oxford) said the government has not been doing much to help cheese producers. Despite requests from dairy organizations for an increase in tariffs on cheese and powdered milk, the budget last week did nothing.

Mr. Gardiner said $1,064,000 was paid out in the fiscal year ending March 31 to help build cheese factories and provide refrigeration for them.

Member Claims Owners of Stores PC Supporters

TORONTO (CP)—A CCF member of the Ontario legislature says he is willing to bet that most of the stores rented by the liquor control board are owned by supporters of the Conservative party.

T. D. Thomas (CCF—Oshawa) said a return tabled last year in the House showed that the board rented 209 stores and that its total annual rental of $945,165 for the year.

"Perhaps, this could be a source of political patronage," Mr. Thomas said in the House speech debate. "I would wager 99 per cent of the owners are supporters of the Conservative party."

James Maloney (PC—Renfrew South) said the liquor store in his town is rented from a Liberal and "he has never helped my election."

Willie Mays Appears Headed For Big Season

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Willie Mays, New York Giants' brilliant centrefielder, laughed when he heard a suggestion by a rival National League pitcher that the best way to pitch to him was to throw four wide ones past him.

The suggestion came from Brooks Lawrence of Cincinnati Reslegs who said at Tampa, Fla., he'd give Willie nothing good to look at this season and take his chances with the batter behind Mays.

"That fellow Lawrence was pulling somebody's leg," said Mays today. "I don't think I got three or four hits off him last year. He's spreading some false propaganda."

But judging by Willie's start this exhibition season, maybe Lawrence has the right idea.

STARTING STRONG

Mays has a spring batting average of .516 on 16 hits in 31 trips. Nine of the blows were for extra bases, including four two-baggers, two triples and three homers.

Willie, who has bashed seven 10 runs, hit two of his homers off Cleveland's Herb Score and Bob Lemon.

In 1954, Willie hit .342. In 1953, his batting mark was .319 but he slammed 51 homers. Last season, Willie hit .296 and 36 homers.

"I'll be trying to hit .300," said Willie. "That's a tough job in the big leagues, I'll just keep swinging the way I always swung and hope the ball goes where they ain't."

Arena May Help Dutchies Finances But Not Now

KITCHENER (CP)—The Kitchener auditorium commission has refused to change the financial arrangement under which it operates with Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series.

A delegation from Dutchmen, headed by president John Rumpel, met with commissioners and presented full details of their operation which shows the club to be losing money up to this point.

They asked for a readjustment of the percentage split for the rest of the season.

This was refused but the commission indicated that it would consider assisting the club if it wound up the season with a deficit.

'Twarn't Bucky' But Bucky's Boy

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Washington was playing an exhibition game and Billy Jurges, the old-time infielder, sat on the bench waiting for the bell to ring. Over his head a slip of paper listing the batting order for the day had been taped to the back of the dugout.

"Harris, 2B" was printed in the leadoff position.

"Don't tell me thints are so tough you have brought Bucky back to play second base?" a player joked.

Jurges smiled wisely.

"It's Bucky's boy."

REMEMBER WHEN

Some remembered a day long ago when Bucky came up from Buffalo to chase all challengers off second base on this same ball club, a job he held through his days as the original "boy manager" until he moved to Detroit in 1929.

Harris is 60 now, out of uniform for the first time in many years as assistant general manager of the Red Sox.

Bucky sat in the stands at Sarasota the other day and watched his son, Dick, get his first "major league" hit in an exhibition game with Boston.

"Dad and I were the two happiest men in the ball park when I finally broke the ice with that double," Dick said.

DISCUSS TELEVISION

NEW YORK (AP) — Clarence Campbell, president of the National Hockey League, said Monday he expected national televising of his circuit's games in the U.S. would begin at an earlier date next season.

"We have a committee set up now to study the television problem," said Campbell. "The last thing is whether we can get the Canadian teams (Montreal and Toronto) to play more often in American cities on Saturday afternoon."

Coast-to-coast TV of NHL games did not start this season until January 5. No arrangements have been made to televise the playoff games on a national basis in the U.S.

Trenton Defeats Oshawa 4-2 Takes 3-1 Lead

Boston Bruins

The Trenton Comets took a stranglehold on their OHA Intermediate "A" playdown series with Oshawa here last night, defeating them 4-2 to claim their Dued win in four starts. The fifth game in the best-of-seven series will be played in Bowmanville at a date to be announced.

The Comets took a one-goal lead early in the first period with Oshawa tying the score with seconds to go. The winners scored a pair in the second frame with the teams splitting two goals in the third period.

Joe Scott, Pat Scott, Bob Taylor and Brian Mulvihill were the Trenton marksmen with Bill Welsh and Tom Poulkley scoring for Oshawa.

Referees Vern Goyer and "Red" Carson handed out nine minor penalties, six going to Trenton.

HUNGARIAN STARS HERE

CAMP KILMER, N.J. (AP)—The refugee resettlement centre announced Monday that Dezso Gyarmati and his wife, Eva, both Hungarian Olympic swimming stars, arrived by plane from Europe Saturday. With them is their two-year-old daughter, Andrea.

Gyarmati, 29, was captain of the Hungarian water polo team. His 20-year-old wife, as Eva Szekely, set a still unbeaten record for the women's 200-metre breaststroke in the 1952 Olympic games.

They returned to Budapest after the Melbourne games to get their daughter. They escaped later on a forged passport.

NHL Governors Suspend Ruling

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League governors have decided to suspend indefinitely the NHL's intra-league draft, it was learned here Monday.

The league's governors, meeting in New York, decided that the purpose of the intra-league draft, which first came into effect in the 1953-54 season, has been achieved. It was to help the weaker clubs, particularly, at that time, Chicago, New York, Toronto and Boston.

Elimination of the draft means doing away with the "protected list" of 18 players and two goalies. Each club deposited its list each year at NHL headquarters and none of the players could be drafted.

Now all clubs will control directly the 30 players and three goalies allowed on each club's reserve list. Heretofore those not on the protected list were subject to the intra-league draft. Draft price was $15,000.

Those on reserve lists, as in the past, include various classifications of players in addition to playing with NHL clubs. They may be players on loan to minor league teams or even amateurs under some form of contract to play with a specific club when they turn pro.

MEETS RECORD TIME

MOSCOW (AP) — Vladimir Strudanov swam the 400-metre individual relay in world record time of five minutes, 8.3 seconds in a meet here, the news agency Tass said Monday. The performance cut 1 1-10 seconds off the mark held by another Russian, Gennady Androsov.

Pollock, Pal 'Hooked' for Running Lottery

OTTAWA (CP)—Manager Sam Pollock of Ottawa's junior hockey Canadiens and Maurice Kanter, manager of the Ottawa Auditorium, were charged Monday with conducting a lottery.

The charge is in connection with a $100 prize awarded last Friday evening as an attendance-booster to the fan guessing closest to the turnout at a Habs' encounter. The summonses are returnable March 25.

Allan Jenkins, 22, won $100 Friday for giving the closest estimate of the crowd attending a Quebec Hockey League game between Canadiens and Trois-Rivieres. The attendance was 1,248 persons. Similar prizes were to have been given this week at the remaining two Quebec Hockey League games of the Ottawa team to persons making the best estimate of the crowd.

MONTREAL (CP)—Going into final week of the regular Quebec Hockey League schedule, Orval Tessier of Quebec Aces still holds a slim, two-point edge on linemate Marcel Bonin in the quest for individual scoring honors. Both scored 11 points in four games last week.

Tessier notched five goals and six assists, running his total to 80. Bonin got three goals and eight assists for 78 points. Tessier's 42 goal tops the league and ties with 39 assists, has 19 more than his nearest rival.

The race could end up with Quebec's big line occupying the first three places. Skip Teal clinched from fifth to a third place tie with Shawinigan's Dick Wray. Both have 63 points.

Smythe Blames Talk Of Leaf Head-Chopping On Home-Town Newsmen

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

WANTED — A HELPING HAND

There was a little fellow in town yesterday, a bright cheery youngster, who was a guest of the Rotary Club. You should see him. He is a lovable youngster, one you would like to call your own. Paul is his name.

Paul is different to the great majority of boys of his age. In sports parlance, Paul had two strikes thrown past him when he was a very tender age. The third strike is yet to come. And it is extremely doubtful if it is ever thrown. For Paul has been defying the pitcher, taking all he has to offer, and if he ever makes the mistake of throwing four balls, which he quite likely will, Paul will get a "walk" to first base.

And that is what Paul wants. So do a lot of other people, folks who have been standing on the sidelines cheering and helping fellows like Paul play their hard part in the game of life.

We met and talked with Paul during a recent trip to Toronto where he was a special guest at a function we attended. Considering what lay behind him, and looms in the future, Paul's slant on life was amazing. The "two strikes" mentioned before have done little to affect Paul's outlook, except to have added a little more determination to win a fight that circumstances of life forced on him.

And he was deeply appreciative of the assistance given him, by folks, people from all walks of life, who have been in Paul's corner. So appreciative, in fact, that Paul was chosen the current Hall Boys and gals who, like himself, have been the recipients of "strikes" in the big ball game of life.

Paul is visiting many Ontario centres. He is proving, by his presence and cheery outlook on life, that "strikes" do not constitute an "out." They merely serve as a added incentive to battle harder, and with the assistance of "fans", go on and win the game.

For Paul is "Timmy," the living symbol of Ontario's crippled children.

And helping Paul to launch the Rotary Club's annual Easter Seal campaign, was the club's own "Timmy," young Terry Stoliker of Shannonville, another youngster who was tossed two strikes by the dread pitcher "Polio."

You can help the "Timmies" of the district by buying your Easter Seals, and tickets for the annual Shrine-Police-Firemen hockey match coming up in Memorial Arena on Saturday night.

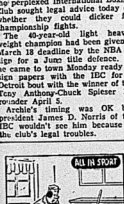
The happiness and future well-being of the crippled kiddies of the city and a wide-spread district depends on your reaction to both appeals. These youngsters need hospitalization, medical care an in most cases, appliances. Your money helps supply these vital needs.

The Police-Firemen "ice classic" on Thursday is expected to attract a large crowd, for many tickets have been sold and there are plenty remaining which can be picked up from police, firemen, members of the Shrine Club and at various stores in the city. And you will get full value for your money as far as entertainment is concerned.

The hockey game itself bids fair to be the best yet staged by these ancient ice rivals. Both squads have been practising in secret — and both promise to come up with "surprises." Then the Trenton RCAF Band will be on hand as will figure skaters from the Quinte Skating Club, not to mention clowns and other attractions. There will be some forty odd grand prizes to be given away to the public.

Stars of the Quinte Skating Club who will be on hand include Mrs. Joan Kells, Joe Calberry, Jane McCutcheon and Peggy McCutcheon, in charge of Jack Dickens. Clowns include Bill Foster, Don Foster and H. Foster.

The special trophy to be competed for annually by the police-firemen hockey clubs is unique. It is a crippled child's brace an boot mounted on a wooden base. The brace was actually worn by a crippled child who discarded it after he was able to walk.



'Ole Archie' In Dicker Mood But Fight Brass Watches Step

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Ole Archie Moore weighed a couple of Canadian offers for title defences at the perplexed International Boxing Club sought legal advice today on whether they could dicker for championship fights.

The 40-year-old light heavyweight champion had been given a March 18 deadline by the NBA to sign for a June title defence. So he came to town Monday ready to sign papers with the IBC for a Detroit bout with the winner of the Tony Anthony-Chuck Spieser 12-rounder April 5.

Archie's timing was OK but president James D. Norris of the IBC wouldn't see him because of the club's legal troubles.

"Well, we got to nine holes, but the course still is a little muddy!"

"I'm going to consult my lawyers Tuesday to get a legal opinion," said Norris, "on what I can do without flouting Judge Ryan's decisions. The lawyers may take several days to make their decision."

Judge Sylvester Ryan ruled March 8 that the IBC was guilty of monopolizing the promotion of world championship fights. He ordered both the government, which brought the anti-trust charges against the IBC, and the boxing club, to propose decrees within 30 days.

The IBC lawyers may go to Judge Ryan for a ruling on whether they can negotiate for any title fights in the meantime.

Because of the legal problems both the NBA and the New York Athletic Commission, have Archie a few days of grace on the signing ultimatum. The New York commission did not set any deadline for Moore but said it would go along with the NBA on the matter.

"It's too bad about the delay," said Moore's manager, Charlie Johnston. "Now that Norris is stupefied temporarily, we'll look elsewhere. We've got two terrific offers from Canada—Toronto and Vancouver—for a title defence against Yolande Pompey (stopped by Moore in the 10th round in London, England, June 5, 1956). We'll look into them and if anyone else has any offers we'll be glad to listen. Of course if Norris's permission is required—with us we'll discuss his proposition again."

Takes Exception to Statements Marlies Big-Wigs on Way up; Day's Future in Own Hands

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe says he's shocked at all the talk of head-loppings, housecleanings and general shakeups in the Toronto Maple Leafs as a result of the team's failure to make the National Hockey League playoffs.

Smythe, president and managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens, arrived back in Toronto Monday night from Florida and found that a press report about his head being during a New York stopover had the hometown sports writers in a stir.

During the Sunday conference Smythe referred to "a year of failure" and took the responsibility himself. He didn't have a word to say against general manager Hap Day or coach Howie Meeker but newspaper speculation was strong in Toronto that both will have to go.

He was "amazed" at that conclusion, Smythe said Monday night.

"Where do you guys get those figures?" he asked. "How you know why I had that press conference tape-recorded, for the benefit of the record and I defy anybody to show me where I suggested anything of that nature.

"I stressed for the past week that nobody would lose their heads and apparently you newspaper men don't believe me. You fellows alone evidently decided that it would be Bastille day."

In New York a few hours earlier Smythe had supplied some new grounds for speculation at a meeting of the league board of governors.

He offered his resignation as chairman of the club, dealing with the possibility that he may wish to devote full time to rebuilding the club that will finish this season just a few games out of the basement. The governors tabled the offer for later discussion.

It could also mean he plans to take it easy and let somebody else guide the Leafs. He said during the Sunday get-together that not even a change in presidents could be ruled out if it would help the club.

The status of Meeker and Day, Smythe said then, will have to be decided by the Leaf board of directors at a meeting next month.

Smythe said Monday night Day's future is in his own hands. "He can make his own decisions. As for Meeker, I don't believe he ever said, or even thought, he was through."

After deploring all the doleful guesswork, Smythe said a note of optimism about the future of the Leafs.

"We're finally getting quite a hockey club," he said. "Howie has been teaching them wide-open hockey and it's paying off. Next year we'll have a club that will stand them in the aisles."

The reports to which Smythe took exception centred on responsibility of the men actively associated with the Leafs' Toronto Marlboros, moving into executive positions with Leafs.

Most frequently mentioned were president Stafford Ballard, general manager Stafford Smythe, son of Conn, and coach Turk Broda.

Red Sox Offer Cool Million For Herb Score

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Cleveland Indians' Hall of Famer Herb Score today-while Boston Red Sox kept their $1,000,000 and Hank Greenberg headed for Lakeland, Fla., to talk trade with Detroit Tigers.

Greenberg, Cleveland general manager, and Joe Cronin, Red Sox boss, casually talked in million-dollar terms Monday.

"We had just a short talk, and it concerned the possibility of a trade," said Greenberg, when asked about Cronin's $1,000,000 offer for Score, Cleveland's 29-game winner.

"Cronin told me that what the Red Sox needed was a good, first-line pitcher and that Score would probably be worth a million dollars to the Red Sox.

"Then I said to him 'you mean you'd really give a million dollars for Score?'

"Cronin said he would."

THE CASE REMAINED

The Cleveland official advised Cronin he was out to build up the Indians, and not tear it down.

Cronin, whose Red Sox as well as the Indians are two main contenders against the Yankees, confirmed he had made the offer for Score.

When it was suggested to Cronin that he "buy" Score, the Cleveland ball club for three million dollars, the Boston official said:

"I don't want to belittle the ball club, but maybe Score is worth one- third of the franchise."

Stanley Cup Playoff Dates

NEW YORK (CP)—Dates for the Stanley Cup playoff series were announced here Monday by the National Hockey League board of governors.

The schedule:

Training Camp Notes

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Gail Harris, who looked good a year ago at New York Giants training camp but couldn't stick when the team returned north, seemed a sure thing for the first base job today.

"He's smarter this year," said manager Bill Rigney. "When we sent him up Sunday with the bases loaded (against Cleveland) Gail noted as he picked out his bat) 'Houtteman is throwing a lot of curves so he'll give me one.' He did and Gail you knocked it." The two-run double won the game.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Lew Braves' top pitchers, joined outfielder Henry Aaron on the club's injury list Monday, Burdette bruised a heel while running in an exhibition game Saturday. Aaron hurt his ankle sliding in Sunday's exhibition.

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—A gleeful Birdie Tebbetts said Monday his Cincinnati Redlegs will be stronger at the pitching this season—thanks mostly to the addition of Warren Hacker.

Tebbetts had just watched the 32-year-old righthander hold Boston's Red Sox to three singles during a four-inning stint at Cincinnati's 7-6 overtime exhibition win.

"I'm counting on Warren for 15 games, and I believe I'll get them from him," said Tebbetts of the Chicago Cub castoff.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Detroit Tigers manager Jack Tighe may move Al Kaline from right field to centre field.

Providing young Jim Small continues his sensational spring hitting, Tighe will consider moving Kaline to centre, putting Small in the 20-year-old bonus rookie, in right.

"Practically every major league club you name has its best outfielder in centre," said Tighe in discussing the possible move. "But we've had our best one, Kaline, in right. Up to now, it's been a matter of being satisfied with Bill Tuttle in centre, but it's no secret that Kaline is our finest defensive man."

Canadiens Are Central Figure In Three Important Matters

MONTREAL (CP) — Although Detroit Red Wings have clinched the National Hockey League championship, three important matters remain to be settled in this final week of the regular schedule. Montreal Canadiens, defthroned champions, figure in all three.

Canadiens and Boston Bruins are deadlocked in their battle for second place; Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay of the Wings and Jean Beliveau of Canadiens are fighting it out to the wire for scoring honors, and Glen Hall of Detroit and Jacques Plante of Montreal are only three goals apart for the goal-tending honors.

The fast-travelling Red Wings grabbed the title with an unblemished record last week—three wins in three starts. Canadiens has a win, a tie and a loss and bowed out of contention. They found themselves in a tie for the runner-up spot with Bruins, who put together two wins and a tie.

Bruins and Canadiens each have 78 points. They also have identical records so far for the season —33 wins, 23 losses and 12 ties. Coach Scotty Bowman's Beliefs Bruins meet Detroit and the fourth-place New York Rangers; Canadiens meet the trailers, Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks, both of whom have been shunted out of the post-season playoffs.

If Bruins and Canadiens are still tied on points at the finish, Canadiens will be placed second in this prosperous order: Most wins, most losses, most goals scored, fewest goals against.

Should the ties persist down to "goals for," it looks as if Canadiens will collect $300 each instead of the $250 for players on the third-place club. To date Montreal has scored 205 goals; Boston 194.

Official scoring records show Howe with 84 points, Lindsay with 82 and Beliveau, last season's champ, with 81. Howe scored one goal and three assists and has 57.

The goalies' battle may not be decided until next Sunday when Detroit winds up its schedule while Montreal is idle. Glen Hall of Red Wings has been scored on 181 times and Jacques Plante of Montreal is charged with his team's 184 although he missed nine games because of injuries.

The prized Vezina Trophy and $1,000 each go to the goalie who has played the most games for the team least scored on. The runner-up gets nothing.

Whitby Dunlops Turn Back McFarlands 4-2 In Senior A Finals Opener

Third-Period Two-Goal Rally Proves Too Little, Too Late To Overcome Four-Goal Lead

By GARRY ALEXANDER

A two-goal rally in the third period proved too little and too late for the Belleville McFarlands in Whitby last night as they dropped a 4-2 decision to the Dunlops in the initial game of their four-of-seven OHA Senior "A" Eastern group finals. The second game is slated for Memorial Arena tonight at 8.30 p.m. Future dates will be set by the OHA.

The Dunlops checked the Macs into the ice before a good crowd during the first two periods and piled up a 4-0 lead. Belleville finally cut loose in the third, carried the play throughout for two unanswered goals and were pressing hard when time ran out.

Excitement mounted in the dying minutes of the game when, with the Dunnies in front 4-1, a pair of Whitby penalties came at 16.36 and 18.00. Captain Floyd Crawford, one of the better Mac players on the night's action, capitalized on the first sentence to make it 4-2 at 17.40. Alf Treen was then banished for interference and again the visitors roared to the attack but Whitby kept the lead and the McFarlands were unable to penetrate the defenders' armor before the final buzzer.

Whitby played a close checking, rugged brand of hockey and waited for the breaks during the first forty minutes. They netted a pair in the first and another here early in the second for the 4-0 margin. Belleville goalie Gordie Bell appeared a little shaky for a time but was unbeatable after the 4:15 mark of the second session.

"Long" John Henderson at the other end came up with several key saves but his stonewall defence absorbed most of the McFarland shock. The visitors bounced rubber off the posts and crossbar on more than one occasion but missed corners by inches, the result of Whitby's persistent checking.

The winners split their scoring points in fairly even fashion. Frank Bonello, George Samolenko, Bobby Attersley and Fred Eicher each scored once. Sandy Air, Bus Gagnon and Gordie Myles drew assists.

Ike Hildebrand and Floyd Crawford were the Belleville marksmen with Johnny Muretich, Rene Stellmaire and Bobo Bobenie assisting.

Referee Gord Fevereau of Toronto assessed 14 minor penalties with the victors drawing eight. Each team scored once with the odd man advantage while the third Dunlop tally came with the teams playing five aside.

The Dunnies grabbed the disc from the opening faceoff and were promptly tagged with three off-side calls in 16 seconds. They did compose an onside attack at the 1.56 mark however as Sandy Air and Frank Bonello skated in on a single Belleville defender. Bonello fired home Air's pass for a 1-0 lead.

George Samolenko made it 2-0 at 7.26 when he blasted one through Bell from close in with Gagnon setting up the play. Guidolin's boys tried to organize a scoring play but lacked the spark for the first two periods that carried them to their triumph over Cornwall.

Johnny Muretich came close just before the period ended when he went in from the side on Henderson only to have the disc a little too far ahead of him to get a good shot away. Muretich and Whitby's Gord Myles then got involved in a pushing match after the buzzer and both clubs swarmed to centre ice. Nothing developed however and each drew a minor for roughing.

Crawford and Harry Sinden tangled in the corner at 1.12 of the second and Floyd got two minors, for high sticking and roughing, while his opponent drew a single sentence for roughing. Both were in the box when Attersley stole the puck off Moe Benoit, cut in front and slid the disc by Bell for a 3-0 lead.

Sinden was back from his penalty and Crawford was serving his second when Etcher upped the margin to 4-0. The McFarlands seemed slow in clearing and Etcher squeezed it by Bell from the corner of the net, Myles assisting.

Belleville missed a great opportunity when Treen was thumbed for tripping at 5.43 and Air for hooking at 6.03. They kept the pressure on but Henderson, Ted O'Connor, Sinden and Etcher did a terrific penalty killing chore to hold the fort.

St. Sinden had a break around the thirteen minute mark but McBeth caught him and Henderson handled the hurried drive. The same player appeared to score seconds later but the disc bounced away from the Whitby net and the Belleville goal judge apparently decided the puck hit a post.

Gordie Bell came through with flying colors at the other end and end third periods. He stopped Gagnon from dead in front a few times, raced out 30 feet to beat Attersley to a loose puck another instance and robbed Ted O'Connor of a sure goal when Attersley's pass put him in the clear on yet another occasion.

The McFarlands appeared to gain new power as they carried the play from the drop of the puck in the third. They got one back at 2.36 after Armstrong returned from a slashing penalty.

Moe Benoit, playing with a painful cut on his leg received late in Friday's game here, slapped one towards a scramble in front of Henderson. The rubber appeared to go high in the net but apparently fell after hitting the crossbar and lay among about six scrambling players at the goalmouth. Ike Hildebrand finally poked it home with the disc behind Henderson on the play.

Belleville continued to press and the Whitby defence clustered in front of Henderson to protect the three-goal margin. Crawford finally hit paydirt for his club's second with Myles off for hooking, receiving St. Hilaire's pass at the blueline on the powerplay and scoring on a low shot.

Myles returned with the goal and Treen then drew his sentence but the Dunlops walked off with an all-important first victory.

Football Star Breaks Back

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—The football career of Don Klosterman, 26-year-old Calgary Stampeder quarterback from Los Angeles, may have been ended by a skiing accident on Mount Norquay's treacherous "Golly run."

Hospital authorities said Monday the former Loyola University ace suffered a broken back when he crashed off a ski jump.

Hospital spokesmen said Klosterman has been in a state of shock since the accident. Klosterman came to Stampeders in 1955 after playing with Chicago Bears, Browns and Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Teeps Goalie Big Factor in Team Victory

TORONTO (CP)—Rudy Pilous, coach of the Chicago Teepees, thinks he knows why his team blanked Toronto Marlboros 2-0 Saturday night to even the best-of-five Ontario Hockey Association Junior A semi-final 1-1.

Pilous said netminder Roy Edwards was a "big part of the reason" for Teepees' reversal of form after they dropped the first game three nights earlier by a lopsided 9-3 score. Third game in the series is here tonight.

HELD THEM UP

Pilous said Edwards has one of the "youngest, most inexperienced teams in the league in front of him and he's held us up all season." He also said the return of centre star Bobby Hull, out for the first game with a knee injury, added power to the Teepee attack.

Marlboro coach Turk Broda said his team will be pumping on to win tonight. "They'll have to start hitting if they want to get past this Teepee team."

Broda added that it is now a best-of-three series. "We'll have to win all our games on home ice. Teepees are tough to beat in their own rink."

Toronto Mute Tops Bowlers

TORONTO (CP) —Deaf-mute Les Charbonneau of Toronto East topped male bowlers Saturday on the first half of a 10-game block to decide the eight entries for quarter finals in the Eastern Canada five-pin bowling championship.

Charbonneau had a string of 1,289 with a high single of 300. The second high was Ted Mack with 1,284 played today at the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show.

Vera Ward, three-time Hamilton Regional representative, finished with a string of 1,284 and came within a head pin of a perfect game with its 81,000 score to lead women competitors.

Ward started with four hits then plucked a head pin as she scored 376 in her near-perfect game. Tornadoes' Lucille Cuff and Betty McDowell was 32 pins off for second place while Bea Ross of the Peterboro Oshawa region, former singles finalist was third.

Men's singles competitors included:

Don Hoak, Former Dodger-Cub May Be Birdie's Hot-Sacker

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Don Hoak, who played off and on at third base for two years with Brooklyn Dodgers and for 125 games with Chicago Cubs last year, seemed a good bet today to land the hot corner job this season with Cincinnati Redlegs.

Manager Birdie Tebbetts has been using Alex Grammas, who also performs at third, at short stop lately, and this could be half of the Cincinnati infield lineup on opening day.

Hoak, 29, batted in three runs Monday as Redlegs defeated Boston Red Sox 7-6 in 10 innings at Sarasota, Fla. With the bases loaded in the eighth, Hoak singled to drive in two runs and tie the score at 5-5. Then in the 10th at bat for Jerry Lynch's pinch hit triple and a walk to Johnny Temple, Hoak singled again. Another score came home on an infield out.

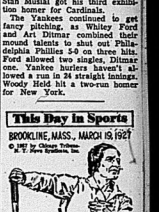
On Sunday Hoak, who hit .215 for the Cubs last year, got three for three including a double as Redlegs were beaten by New York Yankees.

After playing the 1954 and 1955 seasons with Brooklyn, the 180-pound infielder from Coudersport, Pa., was traded along with outfielder Walt Moryn to Chicago for Randy Jackson, Last fall Hoak, pitcher Warren Hacker and outfielder Pete Whisenant were swapped to Cincinnati for third pitcher Elmer Singleton. Hoak's best season with the bat was 1954 when he hit .245 in 154 games with the Dodgers.

Exhibition activity was limited to five games Monday.

Mike Sagger in the 10th inning by Mike Baxes scored John Groth and produced a 4-3 victory for Kansas City Athletics over Pittsburgh Pirates at West Palm Beach, Fla. Dale Long and Bill Virdon homered for the Pirates.

Detroit shortstop Harvey Kuenn made three errors and Brooklyn Dodgers scored seven unearned runs in the first two innings to defeat Tigers 8-1 in a night game at Miami. Don Newcombe pitched the first two innings, making his first appearance since Dodgers visited Japan last fall. He followed two hits, and was credited with the victory.



At Bradenton, Fla., Andy Pafko belted a three-run homer in the eighth inning, his second of the spring, to break a three-all tie as Milwaukee Braves took a 7-4 verdict from St. Louis Cardinals. Stan Musial got his third exhibition homer for Cardinals.

The Yankees continued to get fancy pitching, as Whitey Ford and Art Ditmar combined their mound talents to shut out Philadelphia Athletics 4-0 on three hits. Ford allowed two singles, Ditmar one. Yankee hurlers haven't allowed a run in 24 straight innings. Woody Held hit a two-run homer for New York.

RCAF Rinks Dominate Honors In 1st Bay of Quinte Bonspiel

Royal Canadian Air Force curlers literally swept their way to the major events in the First Annual Bay of Quinte Bonspiel staged at the No. 6 R.D. RCAF rinks over the weekend.

Stamina and ability were the biggest requisites of the thirty-two district rinks which participated, since the bonspiel was a round-the-clock affair which started at 7 a.m. Friday and lasted through 10.30 p.m. Sunday.

The RCAF rink skipped by 'Doc' Birbeck won the major award of the bonspiel, the handsome Calvert Trophy, defeating another flyer rink skipped by C. Clemens.

The only "outside" rink to win honors was the Kingston four skipped by Ernie Boughton, which won the Corby Trophy after tieing back the RCAF quartet skipped by Larry Motluk.

T. Shannon's rink, also from the RCAF, won the consolation defeating another flyers' four skipped by A. R. Quinn.

In addition to the team prizes for the various events, Shannon's rink captured the award for the highest end (six) and the highest rink score in any single game (32) while the award for the smallest score in any single game went to Picton Army rink.

"Draw to the Button" prizes went to Bill Deline, Belleville; George Steele, RCAF; Spook Niddery, Trenton, D. R. Murray, Kingston, Jim Ubaldis, RCAF and Leon Rusheil, RCAF.

The various prizes and awards were presented to the winners after the conclusion of play on Sunday by Group Captain, G. G. Diamond, commanding officer RCAF Station, Trenton.

Thirty two rinks competed in the bonspiel including those from the RCAF stations, Belleville, Trenton, Kingston, Marmora and the RCASA stationed at Picton.

On Saturday evening the curlers were the guests of the host club at a delectable turkey dinner served in the new airmens' mess.

Later they were entertained in the station social centre where they viewed films of the recent Canadian curling championship held in Kingston.

Brief addresses were given by Group Captain Houle representing the commanding officer training officer Wing Commander Atherton, representing the commanding officer, Station Trenton; Squadron Leader Thurmeir, president of the RCAF, Station Trenton Curling Club; Councillor Brown, Trenton and Bill Gault, Belleville.

Highlighting the evening was the presentation to the host club of a pair of autographed brushes bearing the signatures of the rinks competing in the 1957 Canadian Curling championship by Mr. A. Sugarman, of Kingston. The presentation was made on behalf of the Kingston club 137 years old, to the new junior club of the RCAF.

On Sunday morning the curlers attended church services held in both stations.

SAY SPIES KILLED OFFICER

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet newspaper Pravda Sunday reported the death of a Russian officer in a fight with four Swedish spies attempting to get into the country. The Pravda report said Senior Lieut. Mikhail Kuzlov "died bravely while opposing the attempts of the Swedish intelligence service to land four spies on Soviet territory." The report did not indicate the fate of the four alleged spies.

Ticket Rebate, Amateur Status Shirley's Choice

MELBOURNE (AP)—The Lawn Tennis Association of Australia warned Wimbledon and U.S. Women's champion Shirley Fry Monday that she may be endangering her amateur status.

The LTAA council was told that she had asked for a rebate on her return ticket to America which she will not be using following her marriage in Sydney next week to American advertising executive Jack Irvin.

Robert Vroland, chairman of the LTAA itinerary committee, said Shirley Fry Irvin made a number of requests for permission to obtain a rebate on the ticket. The committee had told her she could not do this.

"If she wishes to make herself a professional she just has to persist in this course," Vroland said.

Shirley Fry was brought to Australia last year by the LTAA for a national tour.

Committee Will Study Control Of Crown Lands

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government plans to establish an advisory committee to study the control of crown lands, Premier Frost said Monday in the legislature.

The need for a study was brought about by the increasing number of mining claims being staked each year—more than 50,000 were staked last year.

He said the committee would study the problems of land use and development of natural resources. The problem of surface rights over the large areas of land staked out by prospectors warranted such attention.

It was the government's intention to appoint Malcolm Howard Kennedy of Ottawa, who headed an Ontario rural commission on lands and forests, to the committee. Two other members likely would be appointed.

PROTESTS COMMITTEES

Liberal Opposition Leader Oliver protested that the government was appointing too many committees without representation from the legislature. Elected representatives of the people were just as interested in the matter and the committee should not be confined to those who do not sit in the House.

Albert Wren (L.Lab.—Kenora) speaking during discussion of the mining department's budget estimates, said the government's new tax scale for mining operations is "discriminatory in the extreme and excessive."

He said he could not see where an increase in tax is justified. It would hamper Northern Ontario resources and industry "If we continue to take most of the profits of the mines in taxes."

Mr. Frost said the tax increase affects only the big mines. Taxes on small mines were not raised.

'The Last Tycoon' Highlight Of Winter TV Dramatic Season

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—The presentation of The Last Tycoon by Playhouse 90 (CBS-TV) was a highlight of the winter TV dramatic season. It entered competition some forms after watching the 90-minute Thursday evening program over a long period.

When scripts of high dramatic value are chosen, 90 minutes are preferable to 60 minutes in TV drama. The films made by an outside packaging producer which Playhouse 90 shows once a month are vastly inferior.

Jack Palance, playing the head of a motion picture studio, gave a superb interpretation of a complex man confronting complex problems. Viveca Lindfors, Keenan Wynn and Lee Remick also were excellent. John Frankenheimer's 90 production cannot be praised too highly.

To Don Mankiewicz goes credit for writing an exceptional script. It cannot be called an adaptation since F. Scott Fitzgerald was far short of completing the novel when he died, though the dimensions of what he wanted to say were implicit in the pages completed.

It is not merely a story about Hollywood; it is a study of man facing death, an artist under the pressure of commercialism, a lonely man in a crowd.

PORTRAIT OF A MAN

In The Last Tycoon more than in any other of his novels Fitzgerald was working the point and counterpoint of diverse themes reflected by a diversity of characters. It is not a technique which can be easily adapted to television. Yet Mankiewicz succeeded brilliantly in writing a script from which emerged a beautiful portrait of a man and a way of life.

As far as can be recalled here, it is the only excellent interpretation of Fitzgerald's work yet performed on television.

If it, by the way, the third time that The Last Tycoon has been adapted for the home screen. Television Playhouse tried it in October, 1949, and Robert Montgomery in February, 1951. Comparisons are unfair since the medium's techniques have improved so greatly since those days.

Bassing Novel Sold to Warner Brothers for Cool $100,000

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Ever feel like chucking the whole works and going off to live in a Mexican village?

Eileen Bassing and her husband Bob did. They left Hollywood careers to lead the simple life below the border. And the investment paid off. Out of it came her novel, Home Before Dark, which they now are adapting for Warner Brothers. The studio paid $100,000 for it.

It's quite a switch for the Bassings, who at times were virtually penniless in Mexico.

Eileen is an attractive Bostonian who doesn't look old enough to have children of 13 and 21. She is a veteran of the studio while Bob was assistant story editor at Columbia Pictures.

BOTH WANTED TO WRITE

"We both wanted to write," she said, "but we realized it was impossible to do so at home. We decided to see how far we could get away, and we thought we could live most cheaply in Mexico.

"So we sold all our belongings and left. All our friends said we were crazy, and maybe we were. But we had to try it."

They settled in the village of Ajijic, an idyllic community that had previously attracted writers D H. Lawrence, John Dos Passos and Tennessee Williams. After a year the Bassings found themselves broke.

But they weren't ready to admit defeat. They sent for their books and started a lending library for tourists.

OPERATED OWN LIBRARY

"It was an amazing success, even though most of our books were texts on psychiatry and philosophy," Mrs. Bassing said. "We were open only three hours a day, but out of the returns we supported our family, a maid, a cook, a laundress and a gardener. Meanwhile the Bassings wrote. He found success in short stories and she worked on a novel about a young woman's return to normal life after a mental breakdown.

After three years in Mexico, the Bassings had to return.

"It was my health," she said. "We boiled our water and raised our own vegetables, but still I always got the illnesses that most tourists get. They nearly lost me a couple of times. Finally the doctor told me bluntly and with no bedside manner that I would have to leave or I would die."

Basilio Fights In Mid-April

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Welterweight boxing champion Carmen Basilio will fight here in mid-April, matchmaker Tommy Moyer said Monday.

Moyer said Basilio's managers, Joe de John and Joe Netro, have approved the appearance at a date to be set later, with provision that Basilio meet a middleweight. Moyer said he did not know who the opponent will be.

Basilio has challenged the winner of the Gene Fullmer-Ray Robinson middleweight title match in May 1 to a fight for the championship of that division.

In New York Basilio's second round knockout of Johnny Saxton in a title defence earned him the February award in the S. Rae Hickock professional athlete of the year poll. He was the second successive boxer to qualify for the annual prize. The Fullmer man is January by taking the middleweight crown from Sugar Ray Robinson.

AT THE McCARTHY — Richard Widmark and Jean Peters rock the screen with their hit-and-kiss romance in "Pick-up on South Street," the Twentieth Century-Fox film also starring Thelma Ritter opening now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. The exciting picture stars Miss Peters playing a sexy but slow-witted girl who falls for a small-time grifter in this unusual underworld spy drama. 2nd feature presents Ernest Borgnine, Ray Milland, Frank Lovejoy and Nina Foch in the CinemaScope production "Three Brave Men", winner of the Pulitzer prize.

Room one bidding went like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 D	1 H
2 C	2 H	All pass

If youth had any business to open the bidding it was nothing but. Without any business, but when he did open, west should have doubled for takeout instead of bidding one heart.

Room two bidding went like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 S
Pass	1 NT	Pass	2 H
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opponents can reel off two diamonds and two clubs before the declarer can get in. But in each room the declarer was permitted to take ten tricks before opponents knew what they had.

Room one opponents took two diamonds and then a third that the declarer ruffed. Room two lead was a trump. In each case declarer was thus given time to slaff a club on spades, taking ten tricks.

West and east count enough to reach four hearts. Evidently these master pairs brilliantly anticipated the duplication in value that turned out to be there in the club suit.

My correct bidding would reach a bad four hearts that palookas might defeat. Their wrong bidding made a clever stop at a safe two hearts that could have made a game against smart masters.

An asset to some is when they are dumb.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Wednesday, March 20, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Vibrations should encourage fine achievement. Forget the "ifs" and "maybes." This is a day for action. You can win new benefits, make gains if you are properly acquisitive, put forth best efforts.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Venus, Mercury and the Sun among other planets, well aspected, promise a stimulating day. Mental work, clever ideas, newspaper interests, research: promoting new, useful and progressive matters encouraged.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — No dull moments today! Grand vibrations promise sound returns for good efforts, intelligent management.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Fine aspects! New, progressive ideas and methods for stabilizing intercsts, making needed improvements favored.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your outlook and prospects are too good and too many to list. Sufficient to say that you would do well to keep carefully busy and consistently cooperative and would reap the harvest possible today.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — This is that big, generous planetary day we talked of yesterday. All lines of useful endeavor, artistic and scientific interests are strongly favored. Be enthusiastic. Make the most of fine aspects.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Trades, industries, manufacturing, careful buying and government interests can make good progress this generous day. Step out, try new ideas, methods of worth.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Invigorating rays. Many trades, many interests, the professions, arts, science strongly sponsored. A peak day! But would haste or aggression. Be serene.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — No room for alibis today! Aspects should help you to make fine headway now. Be your ambitious, alert self for the gains that can be yours.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Unexpected good happenings, encouraging news indicated. A day for thoughtful daring, pioneering, research, progressiveness. Get in the swim!

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Skilled work, mechanics, the professions, home and domestic interests; typists, clerks, office workers generally should get fine planetary help now. Do not lose your enthusiasm!

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Neptune and Uranus in very auspicious aspect now. Give yourself the generous 'break' your talents deserve. You can even go out on a limb — if it's a strong one — to achieve more than ordinarily. A little enterprise is helpful.

You born today: Adaptability, versatility and the power to create harmony and promote intelligent thinking are some of your gifts. But remember, the value of your knowledge lies not only in what you know but in what it earns. You may belittle your talents and capability unless you have schooled yourself to recognize them as gifts from God which you should nurture and develop, and use daily for true achievement. You are pliant, normally affable in disposition, and make most likable companions. Don't be too disappointed at the vagaries of life. Pray, and believe in those prayers. Birthdate: Sir Isaac Newton, famed Eng. mathematician; Henrik Ibsen, Norwegian dramatist, poet; Chas. W. Eliot, American educationalist.

ADENAUER AT HOME
BONN (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany returned to Bonn today from a three-week vacation in Italy.

Official Claims Immigrant Plane Was Overcrowded

OTTAWA (CP) — An immigration department official has denied that a DC-4 airliner which arrived at Vancouver Sunday from London with 75 immigrants was overcrowded.

Alex Rankin, a sales manager in Britain, was reported to have stated in Vancouver that there were 10 too many persons on the aircraft.

The immigration department official said the maximum number of passengers permitted on a DC-4 is 79. Regarding complaints about meals, the official said no arrangements had been made to serve a meal until the plane reached Winnipeg. A packed lunch was served at Toronto because of a two-hour delay there for servicing.

Customs department officials said the immigrants were not permitted to leave the plane at Toronto to go to the airport restaurant because they had not been cleared by customs officers. That clearance did not occur until they reached Vancouver.

EXPRESSES CONCERN

Monday in the Commons, John B. Hamilton (PC—York West) expressed concern about the number of passengers carried in the plane. The 75 were the first group of some 22,000 immigrants expected to be brought to Canada, mostly from Britain, in 330 flights on the immigrant airlift.

Mr. Hamilton said Canadian regulations for small aircraft would allow only 64-68 passengers. But he had heard there might be as many as 80 on these flights.

If that were so, it would be getting as crowded on the airlift as it used to be in the days when immigrants came in "steerage" compartments aboard ships.

"I don't think the government of Canada should be involved in an airlift that is going to stack people in like cattle."

Immigration Minister Pickersgill said the airlines hired for the airlift have satisfied both the air transport board and the department of transport as to their capability. But he would look into the matter.

Six Peronista Leaders Bribe Way Out of Prison

By BRUCE HENDERSON

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Escape of six Peronista leaders from an Argentine prison has dealt another blow to the regime of provisional President Pedro Aramburu.

Anger swept the capital as word spread that six lieutenants of deposed Juan D. Peron bribed their way out of Rio Gallegos prison in bleak Patagonia and crossed into political asylum in Chile.

The government arrested the prison staff for questioning and replaced them with frontier guards.

Peronistas openly derided the government. Anti-Peronistas expressed fear that the escape might inspire a drive to restore Peron, now in Venezuelan exile.

THE LIST

The six who fled are:

Jorge Antonio, former hospital orderly who became a multi-millionaire as financial adviser to Peron.

Hector J. Campora, Peronista president of the Chamber of Deputies.

Jose Gomez, former deputy in Congress and secretary of the Argentine Oil Workers' Federation.

Council Agrees To Deploy Britain's Forces

LONDON (Reuters)—The ministerial council of the Western European Union agreed today on a plan to "re-deploy" some of Britain's forces in continental Europe.

The agreement was a compromise between Britain's proposal to cut her 75,000-man force in Germany by 27,000 in the next two years and strong objections to the measure by the other WEU members.

The council met in a 4½-hour session after earlier attempts to reconcile the views of Britain and her six European defence partners had failed.

Conference sources said the redeployment would, for the most part, affect non-combatant units. They added that the agreement left the ministers "reasonably happy."

Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands were represented by their foreign ministers. West Germany's chief delegate was Walter Hallstein stat secretary of the Bonn foreign ministry, Canadian High Commissioner Norman Robertson and U.S. Ambassador John Hay Whitney attended as observers.

WEU is a tighter European mutual defence alliance within the 15-nation North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Trio Returned To Their Home

NEW YORK (AP)—St. Patrick's Day stretched into a lost weekend for Anna Sykes, 11, her brother, Terry, 8, and their infant sister, Sheila, 11 months.

The trio, the baby in a carriage, were returned to their Bronx home Monday after riding the subways for nearly two days with a collie dog. They had gone out to see the St. Patrick's Day parade.

A city-wide kidnap alarm had been broadcast at the request of their mother, Viola. Police spotted them in Brooklyn, the dog pulling the baby carriage by a rope collar.

Anna and Terry politely rejected the traditional ice cream and hot dog overtures at a police station.

"My mother said never to talk to strangers," Anna explained.

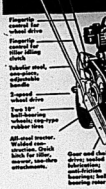
Edmonton Company Received Stolen Goods



EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Auto Parts Ltd. was fined $425 and costs in police court Monday after a representative entered guilty pleas to possession of stolen property and failing to give police a proper second-hand dealer's report.

The charges arose, police said, out of an investigation into a theft racket involving stolen cars brought here from Eastern Canada and sold whole, or dismantled and sold part by part.

Police said operators of the racket usually drove cars here and returned to Eastern Canada by plane.

British Railway Strike Becomes Virtual Certainty

Union Heads Call Award By Government Body 'Insult'

LONDON (CP) — Spreading strikes today forced a 24-hour delay in the sailing of the liner Queen Mary for New York and threatened to involve a countrywide walkout by railwaymen.

The government struggled to avert a progressive walkout by 20,000 engineering workers which would tie up 40 per cent of the British export industry. Shipyards have been idle since Saturday as the result of a strike by 250,000 men.

A walkout by the 370,000-member National Union of Railwaymen seemed virtually certain as the result of a government tribunal's award of only a three-per-cent wage increase.

CALL IT "INSULT"

The NUR executive, which is demanding a 10-per-cent increase, rejected the award, calling it "insult." But the union leaders deferred further action pending a conference with the tribunal chairman, Sir Brian Robertson.

Dockside sources said the Queen Mary, due to sail at 1:15 p.m. with 910 passengers, was unable to get enough engineering firemen to move her out of Southampton port. The tugmen and shore gangs were acting at the request of striking shipbuilding workers who complained repair work on the liner had not been completed Saturday when their walkout started.

SELECTED TARGETS

Thirty union leaders representing nearly 2,000,000 factory workers gathered meanwhile to select targets of "general" strikes likely to culminate in Britain's worst industrial stoppage in a generation.

The leaders are members of the executive of the Confederation of Shipbuilding and Engineering Unions. They decided Tuesday on strike strategy in support of a 10-per-cent wage demand.

About 200,000 shipyard workers, who belong to the 40 unions in the confederation, have been on strike since Saturday, halting construction or repair work on about 167 ships.

Cancel Flights Of Viscounts For Servicing

TORONTO (CP) — Trans-Canada Air Lines Tuesday cancelled Toronto-New York and Toronto-Chicago trips during a service check of the Viscounts which are used on the flights.

No alternative aircraft have been assigned to the airlines' flights to these cities, but advance bookings will be honored "by what means we have," said an airline spokesman.

A TCA official at Malton said 20 of 26 Viscounts had been taken out of service in a safety move. It said 20 per trips were affected by the move and North Star and Super Constellation airliners would be used.

Four of the 20 Vickers' Viscounts will be back in service today, officials said.

Earlier at Montreal TCA announced it will replace part of the wing flap mechanism in longer-service members of the turbo-prop aircraft.

Hebrides Priest Happy at Interest In Canada in Mass Migration Plan

SOUTH UIST, Outer Hebrides (Reuters) — A Roman Catholic priest organizing a possible mass emigration to Canada from this lonely Scottish island says he is "overwhelmed at the extremely happy" about Canadian interest in the project.

Father John Morrison says more than 2,500 islanders are prepared to emigrate in a body to Canada if the government goes ahead with its plan to establish a rocket base on South Uist.

Father Morrison has told the islanders in a 30-minute campaign against the project to appropriate Canada as a guided-missile range and settle scientists, military men and their families on South Uist and neighboring islands.

The South Uist inhabitat is hope to settle on an island off the Newfoundland coast.

Father Morrison said Tuesday night: "If the worst comes to the worst, and by that I mean if our efforts to stop the government's plan fail and they are determined to establish 2,000 strangers on the island, then we will go to Canada.

"The plan to emigrate to Canada of course will have to be worked out in detail but I am glad that at the outset it is receiving sympathetic consideration there."

Canadian Immigration Minister J. W. Pickersgill was asked in the House of Commons if extremely happy" about Canadian interest in the project.

Two Lebanese Craft Without Funds Halted

CAIRO (Reuters)—Egypt today refused passage through the Suez Canal to two Lebanese ships because they lacked funds to pay tolls to the Egyptian Canal Authority. The captains wired the owners for the money.

At the same time, the nationalized company announced ships of up to 2,000 tons will be allowed through the 103-mile waterway. Tuesday the limit was boosted to 1,000 tons from the previous 500-ton maximum.

The 540-ton Italian vessel Christina, the first foreign tanker to attempt passage since the Suez crisis of October, entered the canal today at Suez, heading north. The unloaded tanker paid tolls to the

PAYMENT IN ADVANCE

Under terms contained in a memorandum, all foreign embassies in Cairo Tuesday, all tolls must be paid in advance to the Egyptian Suez Canal Office or its nominees. It also reaffirmed Egypt's adherence to the 1888 Canal convention guaranteeing freedom of navigation.

Egypt agreed to set aside some of this money for canal improvements, and for compensation and claims resulting in nationalization, which are to be settled either by direct agreement or by arbitration.

The memorandum did not state whether Israeli ships, which are barred from the canal, would be allowed passage. No discrimination against British and French shipping was specified.

The canal should be open to ships of up to 10,000 tons by Monday after United Nations salvage teams complete removal of the wreckage of Sir Edgar Bennett, scuttled by the Egyptians 4½ months ago.

TWO SHIPS TO SAIL GULF

A report from Tel Aviv, Israel, said two ships were ordered today to sail the Gulf of Aqaba, which Israel claims is a free international waterway to which Arab nations say is a restricted area.

The 1,000-ton Queen of Sheba, renamed Pandora and flying the Liza Rican flag, sails from the Israeli port of Eilath on her way to Aqaba Gulf.

A Danish ship, the 3,500-ton Brigitte Toft, is under charter to an Israeli firm, was to sail from Djibouti, French Somaliland, bound for Eilath, on the Gulf of Aqaba port.

Because the ships are not flying Israel flags, their passages are not regarded as a real test of the freedom of navigation which Israel claims.

DENY LOCKOUT

MONTREAL (CP) — Negotiations for a new contract between the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway and Artists (CLC) and the National Film Board have reached a deadlock, union officials said Tuesday. The union said the NFB has been negotiating with union members during the last two weeks but management for the Crown film company said it has merely stopped hiring performers because of the dispute.

Egypt's Suez Canal Stand Gets Mixed U.S. Reception

WASHINGTON (AP) — Egypt's new proposals for operation of the Suez Canal led to cautious forecasts among some United States senators today that the way may be opening toward a settlement of the Middle East crisis.

But first reaction from the U.S. state department was that the Egyptian Suez plans fall short of being satisfactory.

While this view was shared by some members of the Senate foreign relations committee, Senators Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.), Mike Mansfield (Dem. Mont.) and John Sparkman (Dem., Ala.) said they feel the proposals of President Nasser offer some hope as a possible basis of settlement.

The Egyptian government said it will respect "the letter and spirit" of the 1888 agreement opening the canal to international traffic. Nothing was said of Israel, but Egypt has contended that Israel is an enemy nation and not eligible under the 1888 agreement.

An Egyptian memorandum called for collection of tolls by Egypt of its agent, diversion of aid some of the money to a canal improvement fund and arbitration of claims growing out of nationalization of the waterway.

The memorandum ignored, but did not directly reject, a proposal that half the tolls be paid to an independent group such as the World Bank pending settlement of the claims.

Humphrey, a member of the U.S. delegation to the United Nations, said the U.S. "should give consideration to the international action" to the proposal in the hope that it might become the first step in a peaceful settlement of Middle East problems.

But he added that "we could be much more confident of any Egyptian agreement relating to the canal if Egypt would be more co-operative with UN resolutions concerning the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba."

Sparkman said the Egyptian proposal appears "not to be bad" on its face but added that any agreement reached ought to be carried out under UN supervi-

Anglo-Canadian Trade Main Topic for Prime Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Anglo-Canadian trade likely will be the main topic of the March 25-26 Bermuda talks between Prime Minister St. Laurent and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain.

However, Mr. St. Laurent said Tuesday in a Commons reply to a question by Howard Green (PC —Vancouver-Quadra), he will also discuss the prospects of a Canadian visit by Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

Mr. St. Laurent, who outlined his conference agenda, said he had suggested the trade talks to Mr. Macmillan "if we did wish to discuss quite frankly the future possibilities of further substantial increases in the trade" with Britain.

He said he will also discuss possible effects on Canadian exporters of the European common market and proposed free trade area. He noted the subject was raised during the recent visit here of French Premier Guy Mollet.

There has been concern here that a free trade area in Europe would be free trade with Canada, especially wheat, out of many European markets, Mr. St. Laurent, however, made no reference to such concern in the Commons.

Outside the Commons, officials indicated Mr. St. Laurent will encourage Britain to increase its exports to Canada and urge it to reduce dollar restrictions on imports of Canadian goods.

In the Commons Tuesday, a Progressive Conservative spoke up to say there is danger that the proposed European free trade area may maintain barriers to imports from Canada and the United States.

J. M. Macdonnell, renewing his party's demand for a Commonwealth trade conference, suggested that the talks could safeguard Canada's interests and help the United Kingdom enters the European plan.

Mr. St. Laurent told the Commons the meeting would include discussions on Britain's future requirements for uranium power development. Mr. Macmillan would be told about Canada's future as a uranium supplier.

The talks would also deal with the international situation, especially events in the Middle East. He would take the initiative in asking for a commonwealth prime minister's conference, though the topic would be

OPPOSITION AIMS SHOT AT PENSIONS AND INFLATION

Says Budget Did Not Go Far Enough

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition parties in the Commons, opening fire on Finance Minister Harris' new budget, criticized most of their shots at pensions and inflation.

Spokesmen for all three groups agreed Tuesday the budget did not go far enough in its proposal to boost the old age pension to $46 from $40 a month on July 1. And they were unanimous in saying the government could do more to keep the lid on prices.

The unanimity ended when they got down to concrete proposals. For one point, Douglas Fisher, Progressive Conservative non-conformist member, protested by the party's financial critic, J. M. Macdonnell, said the government had not provided "adequately" for old age an other pensioners.

NO AMOUNT SET

Colin Cameron (CCF—Nanaimo) added his party's non-conference motion urging the pension should be raised to about $75 monthly.

Victor Quelch (SC—Acadia) said the increase should be to at least $60. Donald Fleming, minister of government with a $40,000,000 surplus in the fiscal year starting April 1 "which now is a year" forecast of $152,000,000.

On inflation, Mr. Macdonnell said the government had taken "the terribly irresponsible attitude" of spending more and more when it should be cutting expenditures.

Mr. Cameron said the budget was "frivolously" silent on the failure to control inflation. He suggested curbs on capital expansion and imposition of public ownership on basic industries such as steel "which now are in a position to inflate the economy almost on their own."

Mr. Quelch said some of the surplus should be used to cut down taxes and reduce prices.

They spoke in a one-day opening of the budget debate, which will be followed by detailed consideration today of the government's final report on its spending appropriations in the fiscal year ending March 31.

The Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion also criticized the government for not providing personal income tax cuts, not assuring the provinces of 50 per cent of succession duties under new federal-provincial agreements and ignoring agricultural problems.

EXCEPT LIABILITY

NEW YORK (AP)—Two airlines accepted liability Tuesday for a 1953 plane crash that killed 22 persons, including veterans of the Korean war. It was left to a jury to assess damages. Damages of $10,000,000 were asked from Resort Airlines Inc., which was flying the troops by government charter, and Slick Airways, Inc., which maintained and repaired Resort's planes.

Research Indicates Mental Illness Caused by Chemical Poisons in Body

Editor's note: Recent research indicates that mental illness may be caused by chemical poisons in the body, and not solely by emotional disorders. Here is a report of scientific discoveries that have led to this theory. A third of a series of articles on the human mind.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP) — Chemical upsets or poisons in the brain could be the reason why human minds go crazy, scientists say.

And if chemical errors cause insanities, then chemical cures someday be made to order to cure or prevent them.

Startling recent discoveries raise "the tantalizing thought that the horrible mental illness caused by chemical poisoning of the brain might be curable by something we worry and fret ourselves into," says Dr. Howard Fabing, Cincinnati General Hospital.

A few drops of a colorless, odorless chemical to a glass of water. When humans with entirely sane minds drink it, they soon develop many signs of schizophrenia, the most common form of mental illness. Their minds clear again when the drug wears off.

How and why do schizophrenics produce taraxein, what does it mean? Research studies are continuing.

Blood tests are finding challenging variations between the blood of the mentally ill and the well.

Does mental illness differ from the diseases in which humans are prey? All others are caused by germs, viruses, injury, chemical imbalances such as lack of insulin in diabetes, hereditary defects. Is the brain completely different from the liver or stomach with its ways of vulnerability to illnesses?

The new research attack may find answers to these puzzling mental diseases of yet-unknown origin, like schizophrenia. These clues concern severe illness, not the minor emotional upsets.

Stanford University, a brilliant research team headed by Dr. Robert Hoagland, is finding several clues linking mental illness with physical changes.

From the blood of schizophrenics, they have obtained a mystery substance. Injected into animals, apparently an enzyme. It's been injected into at least 17 human volunteers.

Taraxein disorganized their thinking. Impaired concentration. The volunteers couldn't express a complete thought, looked dazed, became apprehensive — some of the symptoms of schizophrenia. How and why do schizophrenics produce taraxein, what does it mean? Research studies are continuing.

Macmillan Flies To Bermuda Talks With Eisenhower

Sure Parley Will Help Build Anglo-U.S. Friendship

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP)—Prime Minister Macmillan flew into Bermuda today for talks with President Eisenhower on the Middle East crisis and other world issues.

Eisenhower, winding up a week's health cruise on the cruiser Canberra, was due here six hours later.

Macmillan's big double-decker Stratocruiser from London came down at Bermuda at 9:59 a.m. (8:59 a.m. EST).

In an arrival statement Macmillan said "I am sure that our talks will be valuable and will help to build up the strong relations of Anglo-American friendship and co-operation upon which the life and future of the free world depends."

The Middle East crisis which damaged the partnership in the fall continued its threatening role as Macmillan flew from London and Eisenhower approached this Atlantic island on an American warship.

Eisenhower, who has been critical in the Gulf Stream since Friday aboard the guided-missile cruiser Canberra, was expected to come ashore in the late afternoon.

The president was to be met by Macmillan before proceeding to the exclusive Mid Ocean Club where the talks will continue until Eisenhower's return to Washington Sunday.

MEETS ST. LAURENT

Canadian Prime Minister St. Laurent then will confer with Macmillan Monday and Tuesday on round out the three-way Atlantic discussions.

On the eve of the Big Two arrival, the understanding was that the agenda was being left most flexible in order to allow the government heads the widest latitude in charting a future common course.

But the continuing crisis in the Middle East was considered sure to lead the agenda. Questions in advance of the meeting centred on how Macmillan and Eisenhower would link crises on Egypt's attitude on the Gaza Strip.

British sources have been expressed impressed with the prospect that Washington still is leaning over backward to avoid any open split of the Arabs whereas London has remained opposed to Egyptian President Nasser's policies.

Thus, the Middle East issues are expected to overshadow such other topics as NATO policies, East-West trade, relations with Red China and—another point expected to be contentious—Britain's plans for drastic defence spending and manpower in western Europe.

HOPES TOO GOOD

Macmillan said on departure Tuesday night that he is coming "with good will and a rested frame of mind."

He slipped away from the press here today for a golf game at the swank Mid Ocean Club course.

Then he changed into a sport shirt and slacks and relaxed in the sun on the terrace of the Government House where he is staying as the guest of Governor Sir Alexander Hood.

Macmillan also announced she is prepared to accept in principle an offer by Lord Ismay, retiring NATO secretary-general, to use his good offices in a Cyprus settlement between Greece, Turkey and Britain.

Colonial secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd made the announcement in the House of Commons in reply to a statement Monday by Archbishop of a truce if Makarios is freed.

Britain Sets Conditions for Freeing Makarios

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain today offered to free exiled Archbishop Makarios of Cyprus if he clearly calls for cessation of terrorist violence on the British island colony.

The government announced that if Makarios takes this step, "he will then be released and will be a completely free man to go wherever he chooses—save to Cyprus."

Britain also announced she is prepared to accept in principle an offer by Lord Ismay, retiring NATO secretary-general, to use his good offices in a Cyprus settlement between Greece, Turkey and Britain.

Colonial secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd made the announcement in the House of Commons in reply to a statement Monday by Archbishop of a truce if Makarios is freed.

hower, whom he described as a "very old friend."

The confident a great deal will be gained by this meeting," he said "because it will be in the spirit of friends who have worked together in the past, and who are prepared to work again in the difficult times of today.

"I never know these meetings achieve solutions to all the great problems, but you can lay the foundation stone to the problems as they come up week by week and month by month."

Eisenhower sailed from Norfolk, Va., last night. He ordered a leisurely pace in a move to shake off a head cold, a cough and an ear ailment. He was to spend three days aboard ship in the warm sunshine of the Bahama Islands area.

Business Now Depends Upon Public Support

The Belleville Sales and Advertising Club held a meeting last night at the Sheiks Temple which Ed. Littlejohn, public relations director for the Belleville Co. of Canada and a former president of the Sales-Ad Club, was guest speaker.

Mr. Littlejohn said, "For many years the generally accepted theory of businessmen was that a business enterprise succeeded because of the good products it put out, sufficient capital behind the business, adequate plant facilities, effective salesmanship and good advertising, but the world is changing. A new essential ingredient to successful business has been discovered.

"Business must now take into consideration public support. The public is the critic whose judgment eventually governs the success or failure of a firm.

He asserted that a good public relations set-up can help workers to mold a closer bond between the businessman and the general public.

ART OF MAKING FRIENDS

Public relations officers strive to venture boldly into a whirlpool of activity and emerge with friends, Mr. Littlejohn said in part —a simple art of making friends.

A "beautiful job of public relations" has been done in Belleville since the end of the Second World War, due chiefly to the efforts of the city fathers and a number of interested business men and industrialists, he said.

Belleville is the fulcrum of successful business in this part of Ontario, he said. In communications, friendly atmosphere and public relations help to assure that potential new industries will come here.

"The very success of Belleville's modern business system will depend upon our ability to make people aware of their distinctive abilities to think and reason in such a way as to give structure to their ideals and permanence to their standards.

"It is not beyond our power to build all these high concepts into a practical system of public relations."

Introduced by Bill Ritchie, the speaker was thanked by Bill Stovin.

'Double Head' Traffic Signals To Be Installed

Traffic signals in the downtown area of Belleville are going to go modern.

Monday evening at their regular meeting at city hall city fathers ratified a committee recommendation calling for installation of "double head" traffic signals at three intersections on Bridge street at Coleman, Church and Pinnacle streets.

Double head traffic signals mean just what is indicated — they have heads showing in two directions.

Alderman Les. Digby, who in private life is a traffic officer in Northern Electric here, recommended the double head signals to council as a safety measure for pedestrians and also to improve vehicular traffic conditions. And after having the operation of the signals illustrated, council gave its approval for their installation.

Pedestrians safety is one big feature of the double head signals in that they tend to prevent walkers crossing intersections unless they have the green light. In all cases the light is directly in front of them.

Under the present system of single head lights a pedestrian crossing in certain directions has no traffic light ahead of him but has to look sideways across the street to the signal on the opposite corner.

AN INVITE DANGER

Under the split phase operation of the present lights the single head signals can invite danger for the pedestrian as at certain times traffic in one way will be held up while allowing vehicles to proceed in the opposite direction.

Traffic officials point out that the split phase is necessary to give motorists a leeway to make left turns without interference from approaching traffic.

But double head signals are also an advantage to the motorists. They mean that traffic signals will be seen from both sides of the street as motorists approach intersections. If one is obstructed from view by a transport up ahead or by a passing bus, the one on the opposite side of the street will still be in view.

Council several weeks ago had authorized an investigation to determine if "walk" signals were feasible for Belleville. However, a survey indicated there was not sufficient pedestrian traffic to warrant installation of such signals, operation of which would delay vehicular traffic by up to 25 per cent.

IN MEMORIAM

LASHER. — In memory of a husband and father, Stewart Lasher, who passed away March 20th, 1956. He said goodbye to his last farewell,
He said goodbye to pain,
He bravely suffered, he grieved,
A loving voice said "Come,"
And then all was still for you.
The things you used to say;
We wish you were here to die,
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Sadly missed by Mom,
You are still missed, and will be
Till we meet
You will be with us in memory,
Until the end of time.
Lovingly remembered by wife Aldora and daughters Pat and Bonnie.

LASHER. — In memory of a brother-in-law and uncle, Karl Lasher, who was killed March 20th, 1956.
We see your smiling face,
Your happy, careless ways;
The memories live on many friends,
But you are still missed.
One of the best the world could hold,
One of the finest ever made,
Always so good, unselfish and kind,
What a wonderful memory you left behind.
Sadly missed sister, sister-in-law Mae Lasher.

LASHER. — In loving memory of a daughter and sister, Karl Lasher, who was killed March 20th, 1956.
Gone from our home a precious face,
A beautiful light, to shine;
We got it for a while to borrow,
We chose that dear daughter of mine.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Jr., Mummy and sisters Pat and Shirley.

LASHER. — In loving memory of our dear brothers, Karl and Stewart Lasher, who passed away March 20th, 1936.
Time heals the wound, the shock severe
And little thought the years so near
When we who have lost can tell the pain,
But silent parting words are all they said,
More each day we miss our brothers dear,
Friends think of us, but never speak
Of our grief.
But little they know the sorrow
That lies in our hearts concealed.
Sadly missed by sister Ruby, brother Art and sister-in-law Mae.

LASHER. — In loving memory of two brothers, Karl and Stewart, also Dorothy, who passed away March 20th, 1956.
Sweet memories are all we have left us,
And while they sleep a peaceful sleep,
Their memory we shall always keep.
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
Though now a dedicated thing we find,
But death has left a loneliness,
For which there is no cure.
Lovingly remembered by sister Dorothy, brother Arthur and family.

LASHER. — In loving memory of two sons, Karl and Stewart, also Dorothy, who passed away March 20th, 1956.
What could we give if we could say,
Which we would give if we could do,
The same old way:
To live in their voice and see their smile
To sit with them and chat awhile,
God gave us these wonderful memories
To cherish
Lovingly remembered by mother, father, sisters and brothers.

District Forester Tells of Wildlife In Far North

A description of the game and wildlife country near James Bay and four colored movies of "Fishing in Newfoundland," "Canadian Small Mouths," "The Way of a Field Champion" and "Life on Western Marshes" were features of a meeting of the Belleville and District Fish and Game Protective Association at the Y.M.C.A. last night.

"Rugged, desolate and incredibly flat" were the adjectives used by Dick Passmore, district forester of Tweed to describe the country where he travelled widely in discharging his responsibility of conserving game and wildlife in that territory.

Mr. Passmore observed that this plain south of Hudson Bay is now geographically speaking, the land it was covered only 4,000 years ago with a great layer of ice and depressed by the tremendous weight. The sea water which poured over it has left a layer of limestone. Then the gradually rising land imprisoned lakes of fresh water which have deposited a sheaf of clay over the limestone.

Fur trading has been active in this area since early in the 18th century and the original blockhouse at Moosonee is the oldest building in Ontario.

The area abounds with game, fish and birds. The government is doing everything possible to maintain the territory as a protective area. In certain areas no white man hunts, mostly Crees and other Indians speaking several dialects, are allowed to shoot geese. Aircraft are forbidden to fly low so they can feed in peace on open plains.

The honking and flapping of wings when as many as 5,000 geese take off at one time is a sound never to be forgotten.

Moose, which first migrated northwards in 1903 seem to flourish in the inhospitable muskeg which is impassable for men in summer.

Speckled trout are layer thick in thousands of creeks in which a line has never been cast. Strangely enough the Indians prefer white fish for themselves using trout as food for their dogs.

The protection of fish and game on this game property, administered by the Department of Lands and Forests, helps to maintain wildlife which otherwise might become extinct as northward expanding communities forces it from its more southern feeding grounds.

The speaker was introduced by John Lennox and thanked by Bruce Kerr and Don MacKinnon, president.

The Judge Anderson trophy for the finest fish caught in the district during the past season was won by Len Hodgin with a four pound speckled trout.

Mr. MacKinnon told the meeting that all signs point to an early season in these parts.

Kingston Firm Contractor For Eleven-Room Addition To Quinte Secondary School

T. A. Andre and Sons, general contractors of Kingston, have been awarded the contract for the construction of the 11-roomed addition at the Quinte Secondary School.

The Andre tender, the lowest of five received by the school board, was for $243,503.

The contract was awarded to the Kingston firm at the regular March meeting of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, and the city of Belleville, in which the Quinte School is located, will be asked to issue debentures for $300,000 to defray the construction costs and pay for new furnishings, architects' and legal fees and other expenses. Architect for the new addition is H. H. Roberts of Westport.

CHANGE SALARIES

Status of board office assistants was changed from three to two categories with salary schedule for Grade 1 to be from $1500 to $2400, and for Grade 2 from $2250 to $3000. Workers' increment was changed from $120 per year to $150.

Caretakers' salaries were also revised with regular caretakers to receive a minimum of $2400 up to a maximum of $3200, while head caretakers will receive a maximum of $3600. Increments for caretakers increased from $120 to $180 per year.

The board approved of arrangements for a dinner for advanced technical night school students who are graduating following a three year course. From 15 to 20 students will graduate.

Frank Marchand was named as guidance director at Belleville Collegiate on a part time basis while Jack Sisson was named head of the physical education department at Quinte Secondary School.

A purchasing committee of Brooks Allen, J. B. Durrant, A. O. Drysdale and Roy Sills was named to look after equipment purchases for the new school addition at Quinte.

FIVE TEACHERS RESIGN

The resignations of five teachers Miss Ardeth Crich, Mrs. Helen Mitchell, Dalton Kirk and Peter Small of Quinte Secondary School and John F. Gooding at B.C.I., were accepted and permanent contracts to five teachers currently employed on a probationary basis, were approved. The five teachers to receive permanent contracts are E. A. Craighead, Gordon Locklin, Orville Matthews and Misses Margaret McVittie and Anne Somerville.

Albert College Alumni were granted use of the Quinte auditorium for an anniversary function in May and the board authorized suitable recognition be made to members of the senior boys' basketball team which recently went to the semi-finals in the COSSA tournament in Toronto.

Highways Minister G. I. Smith has told the Nova Scotia legislature that provincial political patronage is as old as Father of Confederation Joseph Howe and will and should continue.

He said Tuesday the province's electors voted to change highway workers as well as cabinet ministers in Oct. 30 and when asked if replacements for civil servants dismissed are Progressive Conservatives replied, "They certainly are."

He said that as long as the former workers who were "active supporters of the former (Liberal) government" remained, there was no visible sign of a governmental change to voters.

When the Newfoundland legislature opens today the Quebec legislature will be the only one not in session.

Premier Manning assured the Alberta legislature Tuesday that pensioners receiving proposed old age dividends will not be allowed to take a loss if the $23 a year—$2 a month five-year residents—raises their incomes above the income tax maximum allowed.

Debate was adjourned in Saskatchewan on a resolution urging the federal government to give cash advances on farm-stored grain. Premier Lesage (L—Saltcoats) said the CCF government was trying to undermine the wheat board.

Donovan Swaltez (CCF—Winnipeg Centre) said the federal government should continue its floor price of 35 cents a pound for butter as far as farmers' return is concerned but butter should be thrown on the open market to find its price level in competition with margarine.

He said such a "deficiency payment" system would result in the sale of 125,000,000 more pounds of butter yearly.

Spring Is Here

Who said that today sees the last day of winter and that spring is with us?

Despite what the almanac says, snowfall during the night and continuing throughout most of the morning seemed to indicate that winter is still here and that spring has not yet begun.

But officially the almanac says spring begins today at 4.17 p.m. It is at that time that the sun crosses the equator on its annual trek north following the winter season, and when day and night are supposedly equal throughout the world.

Today the sun rose at 6.20 a.m. Toronto time and sets at 6.31 p.m.

Motor Licences Must Be Clearly Displayed on Car

Defaced and obstructed motor vehicle licences are going to come in for closer attention from police traffic officers this year, according to traffic officers with the Ontario Provincial Police.

"Traffic regulations call for licence plates to be clear and unobstructed," noted Cpl. Harry Barker of the OPP traffic department, but patrol officers are noting that many plates are either already defaced or obstructed by trailer hitches."

Police said that the warning period was passed and that in the future charges would be laid against offenders.

PENSIONS AND THE MEANS TEST

"Total disregard for the principle of need in social security payment increases means that less fortunate citizens without other means of support will be compelled to face financial stringency and hardship in order to settle political expediency by appearing to give something to all recipients of government largesse," says the Port Erie Letter-Review.

The statement is part of the Letter-Review's comment on the Federal budget brought down by Hon. Walter E. Harris last Thursday. The reference is obviously to the increase in the amount of old age pensions to all over 70, from the present $40 per month to $46 per month.

There are some suggestions prior to the budget that any increase in the pensions might be extended only to the needy, the argument being that this would enable the government to give a larger measure of assistance at a reduced cost. The government chose to ignore these suggestions. It was to be expected that criticism such as that voiced by the Letter-Review would be forthcoming. In recent months the Letter-Review would be forthcoming. In recent months there has, indeed, been more than one voice raised against the system of universal old age pensions, on the grounds that many of the people receiving these pensions do not need them help.

That there is a strong prima facie case against universal old age pensions must be granted. But before they join the ranks of the critics, Canadians ought to recall why the forces which brought down by Hon. Walter E. Harris last Thursday. The reference is obviously to the increase in the amount of old age pensions to all over 70, from the present $40 per month to $46 per month.

That there is a strong prima facie case against universal old age pensions must be granted. But before they join the ranks of the critics, Canadians ought to recall why the forces which brought down the Diefenbaker government in June, 1957, were elected.

It was argued that the means test was unfair because it imposed a penalty on frugality and provided a bonus for the spendthrift. Two men might work side by side all their lives, doing the same job, receiving the same amount of pay and discharging similar family and community responsibilities. One man might be thrifty and save for his old age. The other might spend every spare dollar, on pleasure, on liquor, on gambling or on fashionable luxuries. When sure, on liquor, on gambling or on fashionable luxuries. When they reached retirement age the thrifty man would get no pension; the spendthrift would receive one, and the thrifty man would help to pay it, through his taxes.

Canadians, of all political persuasions, became convinced that this was unfair. So the government changed the law.

If this system was not fair when the law was altered. It is still not fair today.

Furthermore, even if one considers that the means test has advantages as well as disadvantages, one ought to consider the desirability of some uniformity and some continuity, in government policy in the pension field.

Years ago men and women who have been paying taxes to provide pensions for all over seventy have a right to expect that they will receive similar pensions when they reach the three score and ten milestone.

TV GIVE-AWAYS AND SALARIES

The New York Times quotes the desirability of television "quiz shows" on which fortunes are given away.

It is true, it admits, that give-away television programs help sell more of the sponsors' products, thus improving the lot of those who work for the company.

But the company isn't suffering, the company's workers aren't suffering, the advertising agency isn't suffering and television network isn't suffering and the contestant, win or lose, obviously isn't out of pocket. Everybody is winning apparently. So — on with the dance!

The New York Times ought to have added that, since the new prosperity accompanying higher sales reduces the unit costs, the consumer isn't suffering either.

Yet it believes that society is paying a price, too high a price, for quiz shows.

"Money," it says, "is the representative of the value of goods and services and as such a representative it does serves respect. When money is mingled as prizes the purpose as a medium of exchange is being subverted. Thus purpose as a medium of exchange is being subverted. Thus in a society in which a lifetime's income may be earned through luck or a good memory the wage-earner is liable to develop dissatisfaction at what he makes in a week by the sweat of his brow. Exactly what money represents becomes obscure."

The Times' point is well taken. It would be a mistake, though, to suppose that quiz shows are the only, or indeed the worst, offenders in this manner. The corner grocer, who advertises "quiet" contests, is doing much but it is doubtless envies the successful tycoon as high when he sees ful whether the blood pressure rises as high when he sees him toting off his loot as it does when he reads about some of the salaries paid in the labor movement. Just why a of the salaries paid in the labor movement. Just why a singer like Pat Boone should be worth a million dollars per year seems hard to explain. Half of the adult annoyance at Elvis Presley is the result of the mental agony resulting from figuring out that every time he wiggles his hips brings him more money than a month's hard work by the viewer.

High salaries in the entertainment world, of course, are nothing new, but the average citizen is a lot brighter than many believe. He has always figured that the big pay cheques gathered in by movie stars do not affect him; pay cheques gathered in by movie stars do not affect him; that the huge sums which these huge salaries are divided greatly, because when even these huge salaries are divided by the number of admission tickets sold to a movie the cost by the number of admission tickets sold to a movie the cost of the salary per ticket is small. With TV shows, though, of the salary per ticket is small. With TV shows, though, it is different. The average citizen is willing to admit that it is different. The average citizen is willing to admit that the cost of advertising does not come out of his pocket, the cost of advertising does not affect him; but he gets the benefit of lower prices resulting from because he gets the benefit of lower prices resulting from increased sales. But he cannot understand why company higher sales. But he cannot understand why company profits are so much higher than it has to, he believes should pay more for a service than it has to, he believes should pay more for a service than it has to, he believes he buys the company's product, even if he never watches the overpaid TV star in question. It makes him angry.

NATURE'S SCHEDULE

The Robin and the crocus know
When winter is about to go.

The snowdrop by some strange device
Will come to bloom through snow and ice.

To manage what are their affairs
No man-made calendar is theirs.

They come on time, though blizzards sting,
To herald the approaching spring.

They seem to know the wintry blast
That chills them through not long will last.

On certain schedule all arrive,
Which man lacks power to contrive.

In spite of ice and drifted snow,
The tulips promptly start to grow.

Though man may think it winter still,
Begin the work of spring they will.

Man fashions calendars and things
And marks the changes springtime brings.

But nature, with her vaster lore,
Than man appears to know much more.

Infallible Pilot Found

Washington Star

The prospect of an infallible electronic "brain" bringing airplanes to a safe landing under any conditions has been brightened substantially during testing of a new Bell Aircraft Corporation device.

Heart of the system is an electronic computer and a radar unit which "sees" runways, landing strips or carrier decks. Planes flying in zero-zero weather—zero ceiling and no visibility—may be brought by conventional pilot navigation to a "radar gate" as much as four miles from their runway where the new system "locks on" and completes the landing by fully automatic controls.

The system even "waves off" carrier landings if the ship's position changes unexpectedly and dangerously at the last minute.

Already tested extensively on land, the system will be taken to sea for four months of further experimentation by the navy.

Development is quite different, of course, from present remote-control mechanisms by which pilotless planes have been flown. The latter system requires visibility for a human operator on the ground or in a control plane. The Bell system needs no visibility and no human operator.

In addition to its application to most unfavorable weather conditions — the circumstances in which it might have greatest commercial use — the device has particular appeal to military operations where pilots may be wounded or so fatigued as to be incapable of making a safe landing.

Despite all improvement in navigation and control techniques thus far, zero-zero weather has been a virtually uncracked barrier to the efficient operation. Unfortunately nothing can be done about the weather. It is a tribute to the persistence and ingenuity of scientists and technological engineers, however, if some reliable system has been devised by which it may be ignored with relative safety.

Worried King And Shy Poet

Cleveland Plain Dealer

A symbol of the world's ordinary industrial people is the quiet, humble dweller in its dull and unfriendly atmosphere passed away in Tunbridge Wells, England, a few days ago. Few of us mourned her, or even knew that she existed, yet her thoughts once heartened an embattled nation and helped to destroy at the start of World War II.

The lines she wrote are:

"And I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year,
'Give me light that I may tread softly into the unknown.'
And he replied, 'Go out into the darkness and put your hand
Into the hand of God. That shall be to you better than light
And safer than a known way.'"

The words were broadcast by King George VI at Christmas, 1939, and they created such a stir in the public demanded to know the identity of the author. The answer was Minnie Haskins, literary met began a search that was to last a few hours before she found lines to a privately published volume, "The Desert," which she had written. Miss Haskins, teacher of Tunbridge Wells who died in obscurity.

From the hour she wrote them her words possessed a power to confer, yet they had to be uttered by a humble person who was a member where they came from, before her people knew the value of the reflection. It was only after Miss Haskins saw fit to encase in a privately published volume some other samples of her moving' artistry.

In the town of Tunbridge Wells many people knew Minnie Haskins as a kindly, unassuming neighbor and friend. Few knew that a king trying to rally a worried people on the day turn to her for inspiration. Fewer still knew or cared about her as a versified poetess whose genius would be even more reluctant to seek support for her talents than would most of her unskilled.

The world is full of Minnie Haskins. They file no claims to fame. You never hear of them except in a worried king needs inspiration.

Yesteryear's Dollar Watch

Windsor Star

The modern generation will find it difficult to believe that in this country of ours it was once possible to buy a watch for a dollar. And a watch which would work well for a reasonable number of years.

One Albert J. Milligan, of Prince Edward Island, has proof of it. He has a watch he bought for 86 cents (much less than at a bargain sale) 40 years ago and which still works. He claims he never had it in a repair shop, merely treating it to a bit of oil from time to time.

The "dollar watch" was a substantial piece of time-equipment. It was favored by farmers or others doing rough work. If it got broken or lost it could be replaced without any great burden on the purse. Often such men would have two watches, a fine gold pocket watch, complete with fob, to be worn on special occasions, and the "dollar ticker" for ordinary use.

We don't suppose modern watches have many, if any, more wheels and gears than those of 40 years ago. It is just that these cost more.

Robins, crows and blackbirds are here and they certainly must have a poor opinion of the weatherman as the weather is not very springlike. The bleak bone of winter seems fairly strong yet.

It is reported that many houses will be built here during the coming summer. It will be a fine thing for the building trades.

Mayor Charles N. Sulman occupied the bench at the police court this morning and imposed one fine.

A glee club will be organized at the YMCA this evening.

There was a large turnout of the Intermediates at the YMCA last night. Brent Moore put them through the gym work.

The new steel lockers for the YMCA have arrived.

New Gadget Stops Snores

Detroit Free Press

The gadget market is offering a snore-stopper. This is a battery-powered device in which a business end is slipped beneath the pillow of a person who is able to push a pushbutton in within reach of the non-snoring spouse. Depending on the desperation of the non-snorer, volume may be regulated from soft hint to "wake audible buzz". We have an idea the latter may be not unlike the sound of a jet bomber.

Whether this thing will, by jarring the snorer to his senses lively in his sleep, cut off the snoring we don't know — and don't propose to discover. However, it does strike us that the manufacturer has overlooked current a saccharin touch that is badly misplaced. The part under the pillow is head-shaped.

We have an idea that by the time a marriage has reached the stage where one party or the other to it is shopping for a snore-stopper, the victim would no longer appropriate to the condition of the patient and the right design would be more in the likeness of a Luger pistol.

Land Settled 30,000 Years

Montreal Gazette

New scientific methods are adding enormously to the knowledge not only of his recorded history but of his pre-history. They are providing historians with a new and enlarged perspective in charting the ages of man. One of the most revolutionary of these is the radiation test by which the age of an object or material can be calculated by the minute radiation that it gives off. The accuracy of this method has been proven, again and again, by checking it on objects whose age is known; the method is now accepted for use in many fields where age is still to be determined.

Radio-carbon ratings by both the Canadian and United States geological departments have now furnished proof that humans lived in Canada more than 30,000 years ago. Artifacts found on Stanilaus Island, in Ontario in 1952 had been overlain, in succession, by five inches of sand deposits, the last one some 10,000 years ago.

Some anthropologists are still skeptical, but others claim that today's girl is fond of spinning wheels. The only difference is that today she wants four of them.

TODAY'S TALK

ON THE WAY UP

In New York City where I live known as The Dutch Treat Club that is one of the most inspiring clubs I have ever met is Yesterday when home. It is an organization for friendship and intellectual contact. I meet more inspiring friends at this place than at any other and I take pride in my membership.

I like that line I use so many times, "He climbs highest who helps another up." We must not forget that when we help another, that one, in turn, helps us. There is a personal happiness in giving encouragement, no matter to whom we give it, that is not found in life in a wonderful thing to see others on their way up!

Personal Health Talks

It Is Human Nature

A taxi driver in our town had been suffering with arthritis for many years. He consulted many doctors and spent a lot of money for treatment which didn't help. Finally his hands became so crippled he couldn't drive the cab. I urged him to write to you, and you sent him your Ca and D pamphlet. He began to take his daily ration of calcium with vitamin D as you advise in the pamphlet. Now he feels wonderful, is back on the job, and says he'll always be thankful . . . I told him you might like to know — but you know how people are when it comes to writing . . . (R.D.)

You never know. Maybe he'll tell me about it some day. A good many correspondents do. If, or when they write to ask for something, they usually mention that Dr. J. D. Kellogg sent them. As W. A. tells me:

"I had a very bad knee condition. I followed your advice and am pleased to report that the condition has entirely disappeared. I am going to take another hundred of each as a precaution against recurrence of the condition."

Frankly I doubt if that supplementing the diet with calcium, vitamin D and vitamin B complex will do much good. You would explain the cure for the "very bad knee condition" to the correspondent told me he had the knee "condition" for a year or more and had had supplementing the diet with calcium, vitamin D, iodin and vitamin B complex, for three or four months, I'd accept the report as a reasonable one.

As it is, the "knee condition" may well have been a sprain or strain, or a loose cartilage. Adding Ca, D. I and B-complex to the diet would not account for prompt disappearance of such disability.

Let us emphasize that the Ca, D, I and B-complex I suggest for people with rheumatic (this does not mean "arthritis") is food, not medicine. Your souls with physical degeneration of joint tissues keep patiently brushing this aside as just one of my little jokes.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

BEWARE OF CROWDING

We need hardly remind ourselves that we live in a crowded, preoccupied age. We are pressed and hurried that they can hardly teach in 12 grades the basic things of learning. We stick close to our work by day, and then in the evening, social and community activities crowd in upon us so that nothing of the problems of family life.

Our great danger amid such circumstances is that we will become so occupied that we miss some of life's most important things. There is a verse in the Bible of a man who was given a prisoner to guard. And the earthquake came, and he was asleep. He was busy hither and thither, lo, he was gone.

It is a matter of being busy hither and thither plagues our generation especially. We get out as did that ancient unfortunate, "While I was busy hither and thither, lo, some of the finest things of life have escaped me." It is hard to get to the place where we can really get our minds about this marvellous modern world of ours. It is full of many of the miracles enchant us until we stand mute before their fascinating influence. If, at the end of the day, we have any time left, we read the paper or the latest novel.

Thus this crowded modern life is full of many things that may crowd out some of life's most precious values.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the table restaurant where I customarily eat lunch, the waitresses have an equal number of tables to look after. I think it is five.

And it is curious to observe how some of the waitresses are in a flurry of activity, while others seem to have quite a lot of time to lean against the serving sideboard, silently watching.

I supposed that it was a matter of efficiency on the part of the customers. Big eaters made hustling waitresses. But after a day it would hardly be that some waitresses always got big eaters while others got small fry. Nor is it always the same girls who were fussing, and the same girls who were always at ease.

I drew this mystery to my wife's attention when we were having lunch together.

"She said, "it's the same with housekeeping. Some women have to do one thing at a time. Others can do three or four things at the same time. Now you watch that little waitress hustle.

That was the one who was always in a flurry.

"See," said my wife, "she went over and got the table napkins. Now she is hustling back to the same serving table for the basket of rolls. Watch! There she goes back to the same place for the ketchup bottle. . . .

At an adjacent table, another waitress was calmly laying out new plates for a vacated table. In her hands she had cutlery, table napkins, bread and butter plates, which she put down in unhurried fashion.

At her hustling little colleague brushed by with an armload of used dishes, the leisurely one deftly slipped a small ash tray from the load.

Presently she went over to the serving table, dusted out the ash tray, picked up a fresh book of matches, and took two menus, her order pad and pencil, to the next table and returned to her vacant table just in time to pattern the new customers who were seating themselves.

In the distance, I could see the little hustling waitress hustling still, towards us, all the way from the kitchen, bringing a small plate full of something she had forgotten in her previous journey from the same kitchen.

"Law and order," my wife submitted, "is inside the personality."

JESUS LOVED THEM

by Patrick and Garrison

"Whilst Jesus therefore saw his mother, and the disciple standing by, whom he loved, he saith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy son!" —John XIX:26

JOHN The Apostle

Whatever distinctions or commendable attributes the other apostles may have had, it was John whom Jesus loved with the intimate, understanding affection of brother, companion, and trustworthy friend.

At the Last Supper, John was seated not only next to Jesus, but leaned his head upon the Master's breast. And in the agonized hour of His death, looking down upon the little group of faithful who had followed Him even to the Cross, Jesus commits His mother to the care of John.

Again, It was the beloved disciple who first recognized the resurrected Jesus on the Sea of Galilee, when He appeared in the morning twilight on the dim shore.

John was a son of Zebedee, an apparently well-to-do fisherman of Bethsaida. Jesus nicknamed him and James, his brother, Boanerges, meaning "Sons of Thunder."

Such a designation should serve to dispel the impression that might be given of John by early Christian art, which often depicts him as of a passive, meek, almost epicene nature.

In the face of extreme persecution by a group headed by Saul of Tarsus, John resolutely stood his ground. The Scripture tells of his presence in Jerusalem 15 years after Saul's (later Paul) first visit to that city.

John's later history is not recounted in the New Testament. But according to tradition, he left Jerusalem and went to Ephesus. It is said that during the reign of Domitian, he was arrested and taken to Rome, and later sent into exile on the Isle of Patmos.

It was while there, apocryphal accounts say, that he was given the visions of the last days, part of which he wrote down in his Book of the Revelation.

It is conjectured that he lived to an extreme old age, the date of his death having been set variously from A.D. 89 to A.D. 120.

"But Martha was cumbered about much serving, and came to him, and said, Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?"
—Luke X:40

Martha, the sister of Lazarus and Mary, who lived in the village of Bethany, personifies the kind of devotion that expresses itself in service.

Because she loved Jesus, she wanted more than anything else to minister to His physical needs.

So the moment the Master crosses the threshold of her house, she rushes about to see that He is comfortable and well fed. He is surely tired from his journey, and would like to wash. He must have a good meal, too, and refreshment.

She sets about at once with household chores—lighting the fire, preparing food, laying the table.

When her sister Mary does not stir a hand to assist her, but merely sits at Jesus' feet, transfixed as she listens to His every word, Martha complains to Jesus.

It seems to her that if Mary loved Jesus as she does, she would surely want to serve Him. But Jesus tells her:

"Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things: but one thing is needful: and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

Nevertheless, Jesus understood Martha's attitude, and He loved her for her devotion and response to Him.

Gradually, as time went on, and Martha came to have a deeper understanding of the Truth embodied in Jesus, she lost to some degree her impatience and anxiety.

Later, at the Passover Supper in Bethany, after her brother has been raised from the dead by Jesus, it is still Martha who serves the table.

But, from the brief glimpse we have of her on this occasion, it is clear that she has been freed from her former preoccupation with household cares. She is no longer cumbered, no longer "troubled about many things."

For her devotion and service have led her to a realization of "the one thing that is needful"—love made calm with trust.

Return to Europe

Saarland Still Problem Child Of France, Western Germany

By Raymond Canon

Situated on the northern border of France is a small territory whose future has caused many sleepless nights for a considerable number of officials in both the French and German foreign service. This piece of land, known as the Saar, has been the cause of continuous conferences and discussions between these two countries ever since Western Germany was allowed to set up shop once more as a nation after the Second World War.

This little German-speaking territory isn't much to look at. Mostly hills and rather backward-looking towns. But the French were not interested in the scenery as much as what lay in the ground. for the Saarland has one of the richest coal deposits in all Europe, and what is even more important, a steel industry to go with it. All this did not take the genius among French politicians to realize what a rich prize the little territory would be, and that with its industry, France could compete with Western Germany on equal terms. Without it, they would be left hopelessly behind in any production competition between the two countries. So when the war was over in Europe, the French just stepped in and took the whole area.

NOT FIRST TIME

This wasn't the first time such a thing had happened. The Saarlanders had known French occupation for a considerable time after the First World War. But this time the occupation was more definite and there was every sign of its way to becoming part of the Fourth French Republic. The fact that almost all the Saarlanders speak German didn't seem to bother the French one bit.

French currency was introduced, something which caused considerable amount of confusion and consternation on the part of the local population since the German mark they were used to was not much the Saarlanders could do about the situation. However, as soon as the Germans were able to set up their own government once more, there was an ever increasing amount of agitation in the little territory for a return to the fatherland. Although there were a few who believed the Saar should become an independent state, or that it should remain united to France, they were all drowned out in the general clamor that the territory should be reunited to Germany. When the newly – formed German government indicated that the whole question would be the subject of negotiations between Germany and France, the latter refused to hear of it.

But as Germany became a force to be reckoned with in European politics, the French found themselves gradually being unable to put off the unsatisfactory of the whole question, and it must be said to the credit of the French that they carried on the subsequent negotiations in a very reasonable manner. The way in which an agreement was finally reached between the two countries could act as a model for all international negotiations.

BACK TO GERMANY

So, finally, with a great deal of fanfare and publicity, the little territory was formally handed back to Germany, and the celebrations which took place at the end of 1956 in Saarbrucken, the capital, would put any mardi gras in Quebec City to shame. But in order to see what actually did happen, you have to read the fine print of the agreement. The territory was returned to Germany, but only politically at the present time. It won't be returned economically until about 1960. So the situation which exists at the present time is fraught with interesting possibilities. The French currency still remains, as does French control of the important mines and mills, although these have technically been returned to their former German owners.

Gone are most of the highly developed French social services, a thing which hurts the average Saarlander a bit, since the corresponding German services are not on such a high scale. Prices are higher in the Saarland than in the rest of Germany, but when the time comes to work out the wage equivalents in German currency, the workers are going to have to take about a ten per cent drop, something which no one likes to do in these days of rising prices. So the return to the fatherland hasn't been altogether a blessing. I found no lack of Saarlanders willing to admit this.

STRICT CUSTOMS

Since prices are generally lower in Germany than they are in the Saarland, many people just slip across the border, buy things in the nearest German town, and then smuggle them back home. Officials will not be too strict in the border check, they are strict, I can assure you. The land still belongs to France economically, and they don't want any Saarlanders taking business away from French industries. Something which is quite understandable.

Crossing the border from Germany to the Saarland reminds me of trying to cross the iron curtain. Every time I cross, the compartment is always thoroughly searched, and now and then some poor Saarlander is dragged out and made to pay a stiff duty on his purchases. It is worth the price of admission just to watch everyone get ready to face the customs officials. My Canadian passport seems to do the trick, since I have never once had to open anything, something which usually produces looks of astonishment and admiration on the faces of my fellow travellers. When the check has been completed, there are signs of relief and sympathy for those who have been unfortunate enough to get caught. The export situation has comb opera possibilities, and reminds me very much of some of the evasive actions by Canadians bringing things back from the United States.

St. Peter port in Guernsey, biggest harbor in the Channel Islands, has been known to fishermen for centuries.

Murder Trial Witness Admits Discussing Case

LONDON (Reuters)—A middle-aged nurse admitted today she discussed the Dr. John Bodkin Adams murder trial although instructed not to do so.

Mrs. Annie Mason-Ellis, a witness in the trial, said she talked over the case with two other nurses Tuesday night on the train to the south coast resort of Eastbourne.

Mrs. Mason-Ellis and the others attended Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell, 81-year-old Eastbourne widow whom the portly bachelor doctor is accused of turning into a drug addict and murdering in November, 1950.

She said under cross-examination that they talked about "newspaper reports" of the affair again while running on the train from Eastbourne to London despite police warnings not to discuss the case with each other.

TALKED ABOUT DRUGS

"At one point were you discussing the cupboard or cabinet in which the drugs were kept in the dining room of Mrs. Morrell's house?" defense lawyer Geoffrey Lawrence asked. The nurse agreed the three did.

Helen Stronach, another nurse, testified Tuesday the drugs were in a locked cupboard. But Mrs. Mason-Ellis' recollection was they were kept in a drawer.

"There was no cupboard and no key, the whole of that was untrue, wasn't it?" Lawrence asked.

"Yes, and that is why we discussed it," Mrs. Mason-Ellis said.

After Mrs. Morrell died, her body was cremated. The Crown says Adams hastened her death with massive doses of drugs to prevent her from changing her often-altered will under which he hoped to profit.

Adams pleaded not guilty when the trial opened in Old Bailey three days ago.

BOMB SCARE

There was a flurry around the Old Bailey just before the morning session opened when Scotland Yard received an anonymous telephone call that a bomb had been planted in the courtroom where the trial is being held.

A search failed to reveal any bomb but more plain-clothes detectives and uniformed police were called to guard the historic old building. Constables on duty at the main entrance ordered everybody to turn out their pockets and briefcases were examined.

BLAMES TAMPERING

SUSSEX, N.B (CP) — Two diesel engines and a loaded box car were derailed early Tuesday as an 85-car freight train of the Canadian National Railways moved out of the Sussex station, bound for Moncton. No one was injured. A CNR official said "apparently the switch had been tampered with."

Given Three Months

TORONTO (CP)—Dennis Porter, 17, Tuesday was sentenced to three months in jail for carrying a three-foot length of motorcycle chain in "self protection". Saturday night at an east-end teen-age dance.

Porter was arrested with nine other youths during a police raid touched off by a tip there would be a fight. Porter was sent to jail after being refused time to raise a $500 fine.

"We had this sort of thing in the city a few years ago—we've got to put a stop to this now," said County Magistrate C. M Marsh in passing sentence.

Detective Andrew Oulette testified "A person could be scarred for life if he were hit by the chain."

Baby Sitter Takes 5 Children From Burning Home

PETROLIA (CP)—A 14-year-old baby sitter, Jane Wygergangs, fought through smoke and flames to get five children from a burning home near here and then called Petrolia firemen who rescued a sixth youngster trapped in an upstairs bedroom.

Firemen, wearing smoke masks Monday night smashed through the bedroom window and grabbed four-year-old Gail Freer, who lay unconscious in dense smoke underneath her bed. She was taken to hospital where she is recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Freer were at a friend's home about five miles away. Mr. Freer is a son of Elton Freer, Petrolia reeve.

Jane Wygergangs, who was babysitting with the six Freer children, dashed upstairs when she heard cries and got five of the youngsters to a car outside.

Twice she tried to make her way into the remaining child's bedroom but smoke and flames barred the way.

The children saved by Jane were Douglas, 9, Donald, 7, Nancy 5, Billy, 3, and Maxine, one.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started in a bedroom. The fire spread to the attic and caused heavy damage to the second floor before it was controlled.

STRANGE HARVEST

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hyland raked up a 25-pound loaded shell Thursday night while working in their backyard. Army explosive experts said it might have been abandoned by a veteran who brought it home as a war souvenir. The fuse was missing and rust on the casing made it impossible to identify.

Hardware Firm Established by Czechs Burns

PRESCOTT (CP) — Prescott Brass Manufacturing Company Limited, a hardware firm established here 10 years ago by Czech immigrants, was destroyed Tuesday by fire, throwing 20 men out of work and causing a loss of $150,000.

Only the shell of the plant was left standing after the fire, fought by firemen from Prescott and Brockville with 10 lines of hose.

The building, once a distillery, is located on the waterfront, adjacent to the town's powerhouse. When the fire became a threat to the powerhouse, a call for assistance was put through to Brockville, 12 miles to the west.

The foundry was owned by Oscar Federer, his son Henry, and George Bilmer. They said the blaze broke out in a tool room. It is believed an oil stove was the cause of the fire.

The fire spread rapidly and within half an hour had destroyed the whole south section, once used as the town's curling rink.

Flames burned through a power line, cutting off electricity to most of Prescott's industries. Hydro crews rerouted the power to restore the service.

Royal Arch Masons Hold St. Patrick Party

The auditorium of the Masonic Temple, Foster Avenue, was gaily decorated with green streamers, hats and shamrocks on Monday night when the Companions of Quinte Friendship Chapter No. 227 Royal Arch Masons were hosts at a "Ladies Night" in honor of Saint Patrick.

About 150 members, friends and their ladies, enjoyed a party consisting of cards and dancing.

Ex. Comp. Jack Williams, first principal of the chapter, welcomed the merrymakers and told them the sole purpose of the party was for them to have fun and a good time, while Rt. Ex. Comp. Bruce Smith kept the party rolling along as director of ceremonies.

The first part of the evening was devoted to progressive euchre and those who had the luck-of-the-Irish received good prizes for their skill and even the poor players were rewarded for their hard luck.

Dancing filled the balance of the evening with Ex. Comp. Percy Dewberry at the caller, getting those taking part in the squares to put all they had into the act by calling the manner in which the males swung their partners, the fiddler was the most appreciative member of the group.

At midnight refreshments were served by the wives of the companions after which several other lucky persons were the winners of green-wrapped gifts.

The first of several events of this nature planned for the winter for the ensuing year, broke up about 1.30 a.m. with everyone looking forward to the next one.

BUCKLEY'S CINNAMATED COLD CAPSULES

This and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

A significant and newsworthy look took place in our community last week. The fact that T and T has turned out happy results with The Voice of the Bay of Quinte makes it an easy and pleasant task to enter the more powerful new signal which became CJBQ's spot on your dial. We can report that the management at CJBQ has been encouraged and inspired by the many tributes they have received for the contribution the station makes to this district. The new wave length, which brings CJBQ into the homes of thousands of new friends throughout its expanded coverage, has been accepted as a challenge. It was reported that a friendly listener was able to hear CJBQ as far as Ottawa last Sunday over the car radio. Jack Devine, on his way to bring the Whitby — Belleville hockey game to us over the air waves was able to bring in CJBQ on his car radio as far west as Port Hope. Ted Snider told us in Trenton that many friends of his in the vicinity of Brighton were delighted Monday night to listen in Jack Devine's game—and it came over so strongly and clearly.

These are just a few of the comments we picked up from here and there. We pass them along to indicate that the new wave length of CJBQ is a reality and a challenge. The management is determined not only to continue the high quality of entertainment, but also to improve it. In the field of public service, for which CJBQ has earned an enviable record across Canada, the old and new listeners will not be disappointed — rather, they will be more and more proud of our local radio station.

The increased potential brings in its wake, like every opportunity, an increase in responsibility. The management is aware of this and assures you that with the wider field will come newer and greater listening pleasures. There will be some nostalgia when Mr. Stovin spoke to us over 1230 on our dials, introduced 800 on our dials and the old gave way to the new. CJBQ is keeping pace with the march of time and progress.

GOING SHOPPING

There are many indications of spring in the shopping mart, one of them being fresh stocks of varied new shapes ready and waiting to be filled with spring flowers.

Artists are the best for Easter suit purchases.

There is not much to report in the category of food. Asparagus has made its appearance at a fair price and is of very good quality. Supplies of it should be much greater this weekend. Brussels sprouts will not be with us much longer although the quality is still good. While the prices of fresh imported vegetables have not been unduly high over the winter, we understand that we may expect the prices to rise in the near future.

Tea and coffee prices should drop. Meat is much the same with pork prices very uncertain.

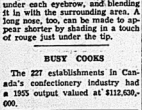
NEW LIQUID ROUGE GIVES "SILKY LOOK"

Blended with liquid foundation in the palm of the hand, new rouge is applied easily, smoothly.

Along about this time of the year most of us start yearning to experiment with new cosmetics. Just one hint of Spring in the air and we not only start thinking about new dresses and new hats but new shades of make-up. To be pretty as a Spring flower is every woman's goal, it seems. And don't the cosmeticians know it! It seems that they always launch their loveliest colors at this time of the year.

One of the newest liquid rouges comes in four basic shades of flower tone reds—rose, coral, red and pink—designed to give the complexion a natural blush. No artificial look here! Because, according to the manufacturer, it is made from real "atomized" silk. It has the important qualities of that material. It clings, it glows, it absorbs moisture and keeps its color beautifully throughout the day.



The glamour salon which launched this new liquid beautifier simultaneously made a wonderful suggestion for its application. Said their representatives, "blend a drop or two of the rouge with a bit of liquid foundation in the palm of your hand. Then apply to the cheeks after the initial application of foundation has dried." We tried it and, girls, the results were lovely. And blending is so easy this way.

Place a dot of the mixture beneath the center of the eye, another immediately beneath the first, but not lower than the nose, and a third at the highest point of the cheekbone, not beyond the end of the eyebrow. Blend these into a triangular shape by patting, rather than rubbing. Finally, shade the edges of the triangle into the face, to avoid lines of demarcation. Do one cheek completely, then do the other.

Sometimes rouge can be used on spots other than the cheeks to play down, by shading, features that are not quite as you'd like them to be. Puffy eyelids, for example, can be made to look less so—and the eyes given greater sparkle — by brushing a bit of rouge in a soft pink shade just under each eyebrow, and blending it in with the surrounding area. A long nose, too, can be made to appear shorter by shading in a touch of rouge just under the tip.

BUSY COOKS

The 227 establishments in Canada's confectionery industry had a 1955 output valued at $112,630,000.

If you are uncertain if the material you purchased at a bargain is all wool, rayon or few crosswise and some lengthwise threads from the fabric and boil them one at a time, over a match flame. If the threads shrink into a hard ball when burned then the cloth is wool. If the color is the burning hair and the ash is crisp, your material is all wool.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE SHOULD ASK HERSELF THESE QUESTIONS

When a woman, either young or older, persuades herself that she is in love with a man younger than herself, there are some very pointed questions she had better ask herself, and quickly.

Let's take, for example, the story told me in a letter from a young woman of 23, who says she has been dating a lad three years younger than herself for three years.

She and this chap, she says, agreed that they loved each other and therefore the age difference meant nothing. They entered into an intimate relationship even though, she admits, "We both knew we shouldn't." Because she had a job, and apparently he did not because she doesn't mention it, she allowed him to impose on her financially, bought him clothes and anything else he asked her for. They planned to be married sometime this year.

All this has been going on even though, during this three years of their relationship, he has broken off with her three times and she herself twice initiated a break.

Now it seems that he's dating another girl—who "is more his age than mine," she says—and so they have once again taken up, this time "with the understanding that he would still call me and come to see me." However, he has called just once and come to see her only twice, and that, she herself indicates, because she called him first.

She goes on to say that her girl friend has told her "he still loves me and will eventually come back to me and forget this other girl," so her question is:

"When and if he does call, should I give him another chance, or should I play hard-to-get for awhile or just forget him altogether?"

Now let's go back to the questions which this young woman might well have asked herself at the very beginning of her friendship with this chap. And I think if she asks herself these questions, even at this late date, the answer to the three-fold question she asks me will be fully apparent.

Here goes then:

(1) Is a boy of 17—the age of this one when they began their intensive friendship—really an appropriate companion for a young woman of 20?

(2) Was he so mature for his age that he could satisfactorily share the normal interests of a 20-year-old girl, or was she so immature that the normal interests of a 17-year-old youth attracted her?

(3) What made her suppose that what he felt for her was mature love instead of an adolescent infatuation for an older girl who flattered him by taking a serious interest in him?

(4) Did she never secretly wonder if he might be stringing along because of the presents she bought him?

(5) When he broke off with her three times, what reason did she give herself for this behavior, and did it never occur to her that he might have reached the conclusion that girls "more his age than mine" were more congenial?

(6) Did she believe—and if so, why? — that their feeling for each other would grow and develop with the years, or did she never stop to think about this vital point?

I would like to have this young woman give herself this quiz, then send me her answers, and her reactions to them, telling me whether or not they enable her to answer the question she asked me. If her final answer is what I think it will be, I'll then be glad to make some suggestions on how she can create a really happy, purposeful life for herself.

HOW TO INTRODUCE A CLERGYMAN AT A BANQUET

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been asked to introduce a clergyman at a large banquet that our organization is to give next month. Please tell me the correct form of name to use for him. (I'm never sure about how to use that "Reverend before a clergyman's name.) — W.B.

Always to guide you, first this important rule: Always use "the" before "reverend."

So if the clergyman is for example, a Doctor of Divinity (D.D.), you introduce him: The Reverend Doctor Peter Goode. If you do not know whether or not the clergyman has a degree that gives him the privilege of using "Doctor," you should definitely find out about this, so you will be sure to use his title correctly.

If he has no degree, you introduce him: The Reverend Peter Goode.

(It is not correct to refer to him as "Reverend Thomas Smith" or "Reverend Smith", always that important "The" before "Reverend"!)

SHOULD MINISTER'S MOTHER BE INVITED?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In our church we have a comparatively new minister, and he is to perform the ceremony at my daughter's church wedding, to take place in June. He is not married, and he and his mother, who is a widow, live together. Of course he will be invited to the reception, and we are wondering if his mother should be invited also. I know a minister's wife should be invited, but I'm not sure if the mother should be, particularly as we know the mother only slightly. What do you advise we do?

— Bride's Mother

Unless the reception is to be a small one, limited to the members of the family, the attendants, and perhaps a few close relatives and intimate friends, my advice is that you should give the new minister's mother the courtesy of inviting her not only to the wedding but also to the reception. This would not only be a gracious gesture for you to make, but, since the mother is a comparative newcomer to your church and community, it would be most important for her.

SHOULD THE GENTLEMEN RISE AT TABLE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" says that when a woman is with several friends at a table in a restaurant and she leaves to go to the powder-room, all the men at the table should rise, both when she leaves and when she returns. "B" says this is unnecessary and rather ridiculous as it only serves to call attention to her leaving and returning. Who is right about this? — Reader

There is a merit in both their points of view. When the woman rises to leave, the man to whom she has been talking rises slightly ("half-rises" is the word generally used for this gesture of slightly-rising), and also half-rises when she comes back to the table. As "B" says, it is not necessary for the other men to rise, but, as "A" suggests in his point of view, many men consider it courteous to at least half-rise when a woman leaves the table and when she returns.

Bridge St. WMS Hears of Work In Korea

The March meeting of Bridge Street W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School auditorium with Mrs. F. Jeffery presiding in the chair.

After the usual reports of secretaries and committees, Mrs. Franklin's and Mrs. Hunter's group took charge of the meeting with Mrs. Franklin presiding.

The devotional period opened with the reading from Luke 16: 24-28 and from St. Matthew 28: 16-20, after which an article entitled "The Disciple and the World," was read by Mrs. Franklin. The Korean version of the 23rd Psalm was read by Mrs. Adams.

Mrs. Franklin introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. McMullen, who, with her husband, had been a missionary in Korea for 15 years from 1920 to 1935. Mrs. McMullen gave an account of their work in Korea and told of how missionary minded the converted Koreans are; that they always pass the word along to others, each acting as a missionary himself. Also a converted Korean is strict in morals and has definite laws about the mode of living.

Mrs. McMullen recommended reading "September Monkey," also "Korean War" as being informative books on Korea.

Two girl students from Albert College, the Misses Mundy, favored with a duet, accompanied by another student.

A social hour and tea concluded the meeting.

First Hundred Years Hardest Woman Says

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mrs. Adaline Atkinson, observing her 105th birthday Tuesday, says "the first hundred years are the hardest." That, she explained to friends stopping in at her home, was why she put only five candles on her birthday cake. "It's the second century that I'm concerned with. Let's not worry about the past. Come on, let's have a party."

That's when the liver need-aid gentle Carter's Little Liver Pills. Then famous Carter Pills help stimulate the flow of liver bile. Soon your digestion starts function-ing properly and you feel that happy days are here again! Don't ever stay sunk. Always have Carter's Little Liver Pills on hand.

Hitch-Hiking Girls Find Canada Cold

BLIND RIVER (CP)—Two German girls, on a hitch-hiking tour across the world, say they find Canada's climate "very cold."

Selgried Hirt, 22, and Renata Hick, 24, both from Frankfurt, camped here overnight in a tent and sleeping bags they carry with them, along with a small stove. They set out Monday for the Rockies where they hope to do some skiing. They intend to visit the United States, South America, Australia and Japan.

Sunday Pot Roast

By Mary Moore

This talk about pot roasts may go on for a month or so for I have my friends and colleagues enthused and making it too.

It all started when my brother came back from a dental meeting in Chicago. He said that by coincidence he ate what was called the "Chicago Pot Roast" twice in succession in two different hotel dining-rooms. A third time he deliberately ordered it because it was so good: very tender as veal but with the rich brown gravy flavor of good beef." "How do you cook pot roast like that Mary?"

WEDNESDAY

Scalloped Potatoes with Pork Chops (see Tuesday), Carrots with Parsley Butter, Celery Hearts, Butter Tarts, Cheese, Coffee.

Until that moment I thought I cooked a pot roast as well as the next fellow, but as he questioned me down I began to realize it wasn't anything to write 200 miles about. So in the days that followed I went to work.

I hope to surpass this present offering but want to assure you that my two secret critics, Pete and Peady, said the pot roast that we ate on Sunday night, made this way, was tops.

SUNDAY POT ROAST

Five lbs. rolled chuck beef, 1 clove garlic, ½ cup vinegar, 2 thin slices lemon, 2 stalks celery including tops, ½ teaspoon rosemary, ½ teaspoon cloves, 2 cups water, 1 onion, beef fat, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, ¼ cup tomato juice, salt and pepper, 3 chicken bouillon cubes, 1 sprinkled the beef all over with tenderizer and let it stand at room temperature all morning. I cut the garlic in 8 lengthwise strips and inserted them in the cracks and folds of the meat. I mixed together and brought to boiling point the vinegar, lemon, celery, rosemary, cloves, water and poured it over the meat in a deep crock and let it stand overnight. In the morning I turned it over. After lunch I drained it well. In the deep well cooker I rendered out the piece of suet the butcher had wrapped up in my parcel, added 1 chopped onion to it, and browned the meat in it, which had been dredged in salted and peppered flour. To ½ cup of the leftover marinade (soaking liquid) I added the tomato juice and bouillon cubes, added it to the pot, put the lid on and simmered it 3 hours, turning it over 3 times. At serving time I removed the pot roast, rich and brown, to the hot platter, poured off the excess fat from liquid and thickened the rich gravy with a flour paste, I poured some over the meat and some into the gravy boat. Pete said it was a pleasure to carve. I was happy with the flavor — tenderness and cost. It cost $2.05, being 39c per lb. at a bargain sale of redbrand beef.

I'm prepared now to invite my brother and his family to a pot roast dinner. If I make any changes or improvements they will see daylight right here. Have any of you anything to add?

Queen Mary H-S Association Sponsors Successful 'Family Fair'

On Friday evening Queen Mary School opened wide its doors to many parents, friends and children who came to enjoy a gay and happy evening. The four walls resounded with gay laughter, music and much merry making. There was something to please everyone: gay balloons, posters, drinks, hot dogs, candy and everywhere the shamrock was in evidence.

The entire project was under the directorship of Mrs. J. E. Pugh whose untiring effort and clever planning brought comment from all directions. She was assisted by the co-operative spirit and work of both principals, Mr. J. Cousins and Mr. H. R. Frink.

The kindergarten room was the scene of great activity. The home-cooking was under the supervision of Mrs. S. Reid and Mrs. H. Halsey, assisted by Mrs. M. Fuller, Mrs. F. Douglas, Mrs C. Vader, Mrs. R. Taylor, Mrs. M. Wiley, Mrs. S. Creegan, Mrs. F. Nelson. The candy table was also daintily displayed by Mrs. F. Lake and Mrs. K. Champagne, assisted by Mrs. G. Locklin, Mrs. R. Orr, Mrs. C. Fumen, Mrs. H. Trepnell, Mrs. J. Sweet and Mrs. H. Seames.

BIG SUCCESS

The white elephant was a big success, and did not take long for the many bargains to be dispursed. Mrs. J. Hodgson was in charge assisted by Mrs. W. Coombes, Mrs. B. A. Gill, Mrs. R. Pollard and Mrs. C. Middleton.

Mr. and Mrs. J. O'Neill reigned over the hot dog stand with assistance from Mr. and Mrs. Victor Carrigan, Mr. and Mrs. H. Regensburg; Mrs. J. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Thompson.

Across the hall, to take the sting out of the mustard, was Mr. W. Hales with a variety of cold drinks, assisted by W. H. Phillips and Allen Skinner. If this did not suffice to satisfy the appetite, Mr. K. Parks was close by with chocolate milk and ice cream. Lending a helping hand were Mrs. V. Pote and Mrs. C. A. S. Smith.

There were fish ponds for all ages, and these were in great demand. Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Chambers managed four fish ponds expertly, assisted by Mrs. G. Pringle, Mrs. K. Wager, Mrs. H. Haggar, Mrs. J. Ling, Mr. J. Scriven, Mr. R. Jones, Mr. M. Martin, Mr. R. Jell and Mr. W. W. Phillips.

ATTRACTIVE AUDITORIUM

The auditorium, ablaze with lights, and filled with happy couples dancing, was the centre of attraction. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cavers, Mr. and Mrs. Don Harvey, of Trenton, and Miss Darrell Cavers kept the music going and arranged the square dances to keep everyone happy, especially those who felt young enought to participate.

Gay balloons bobbed around on sticks in the hands of the young ones and added a colorful note. These were in charge of Mrs. W. Hales, assisted by Shirley Thompson, Beverley Rump, Gail Smith and Caroline Harwood.

A cloak room was provided by Mr. H. R. Frink for the convenience of the patrons. Those in charge of checking were: Dorothy Adams, Shirley Stubbert, Judy Lang, Mary Longhurst, Lillian Vardy.

In the basement were the movies, where one could rest tired feet and enjoy the comics. This was run by Mr. H. R. Moorcroft, while Mrs. R. Peacock, Mrs. F. Lane, Mrs. D. Stubbert and Mrs. J. Bunnett, were in charge of the door.

RESTFUL SPOT

The home economics room was a quiet and restful spot, gaily decorated small tables with a long centre table appointed with gleaming silver services, golden daffodils, with the shamrock most predominant. Mrs. W. Ironside and Mrs. A. Skinner were the conveners here, assisted by Mrs. J. Harwood, Mrs. J White, Mrs. C. Lowther, Mrs. E. Kuntze, Mrs. C. Whalley, Mrs. C. Ivany, Mrs. C. May, Mrs. R. Fletcher, Mrs. W. Bateman, Mrs. R. Wheeler, Mrs. D. Stubbert Mrs. A. Burley and Mrs. K. Knudsen.

Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Cousins and Mrs. H. R. Frink, wives of the principals. They were relieved during the evening by the teachers, Mrs. D. Blakely, Miss P. Beatty, Miss G. Houston, Mrs. G. Anderson and Miss B. Brown.

Mrs E. A. Chappell was in charge of publicity and assisting her on the bulletin was Mr. D. Julian.

The many posters were made by the pupils of grades 7 and 8.

Mr. P. Lang, Mr. R. Fletcher and Mr. A. Miller kept the halls and basement free from unnecessary confusion.

All were of the unanimous opinion that the Fun Fair had been a big success.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 20, 1957

Attorney-General Roberts Plans to Test Legality of Publishing Paper on Sunday

TORONTO (CP)—Ontario courts are to decide whether it is lawful to publish or broadcast news and advertising on Sunday.

Attorney-General Roberts set the stage Tuesday for the court test, announcing in the Ontario legislature that he has instructed officials of the crown to launch an action against the Toronto Telegram, under the Lord's Day act of 1906, for publishing a Sunday newspaper.

He also disclosed that he has consented to prosecutions, on complaints by The Telegram, against Toronto's two other daily newspapers—The Globe and Mail and The Star—along with the CBC and radio station CKEY.

The Telegram, an evening daily, launched its Sunday newspaper last weekend. The morning Globe and Mail issued its first Monday edition Sunday night. The Evening Star does not issue a paper on Sunday.

A prepared, statement Mr. Roberts read to the legislature said prosecution against The Telegram was "based upon the publication, sale and distribution" of The Sunday Telegram on Sunday, March 17.

IN OTHER CASES

As to the other prosecutions, he said:

"The Telegram Publishing Company Limited, through one of its officials, has made complaints against several agencies who it claims are likewise doing work on the Lord's Day and are publishing, selling, advertising and disseminating news on that day.

"In view of these formal complaints, as attorney-general I have consented to prosecutions against the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Globe and Mail Limited, the Toronto Star Limited, the Toronto Broadcasting Company Limited (CKEY broadcasting station)."

The CBC operates two radio stations in Toronto, CBL and CBLT, and television station CBLT. CKEY is owned by Jack Kent Cooke, owner of Toronto Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League.

TWO EXEMPTIONS

The Lord's Day Act, a federal law, prohibits carrying on business on Sundays, with exceptions for works of mercy and necessity. It requires consent of the provincial attorney-general for prosecution.

Mr. Roberts said in his prepared statement that the Lod's Day Alliance, a country-wide organization which promotes Sunday observance, had objected in advance to The Telegram's plans and expressed hope he would consent to prosecution in event of publication.

His text went on that since publication: "No complaint has been laid by the Lord's Day Alliance or anyone else."

However, as he concluded his statement he remarked that as he entered the house he had received a letter from the alliance requesting leave to prosecute The Telegram.

TEST CASE

Mr. Roberts indicated the test nature of the prosecutions in these words:

"The usual procedure under this act is for the attorney-general to act upon complaints which are lodged with him. In this particular case no complaints have been lodged with me, but owing to the importance of the case and the matters involved I have felt that it is in the public interest that the legal and policy position would be clarified as soon as possible . . .

"At this time it is impossible for all of us in the Province of Ontario to understand what this law is and what the discretions and exemptions are and how they apply. There is also the question to be determined as to the effect of ordinances which have been developed under this law because of the change in times and conditions since the passing of this act more than 50 years ago."

Mr. Roberts declined to amplify any aspects of his announcement for newspaper reporters on the grounds that comment might be prejudicial to the case.

The Lord's Day Act provides for summary trial, with cases to be heard in magistrate's court. They may not be transferred to higher courts although they may be appealed to higher courts.

ISSUE TEXT

The Lord's Day Alliance later in the day issued the text of its letter which named one of its members, J. Gordon Cosbie, as informant in the case against The Telegram.

The letter, signed by Alliance solicitor F. A. Brewin, asked for action against The Telegram only, saying that prosecution in other less clear cut instances would confuse the major issue. It said also that different legal considerations applied to radio and television stations than to newspapers.

It concluded: "Since debating the above I have received information that you propose to make a statement in the House on this matter. I may say it is of interest to us to learn what you propose to make a statement without consultation with them or with me as their representative in regard to the matters in issue, although we appreciate that this matter has been made clear to you on a number of occasions."

ANNOUNCE COUNSEL

The attorney-general said he has engaged F. H. Carson, QC, of the firm of Carson, McCrimmon, Osler, Hossie and Wedd as "special counsel and adviser" in the prosecution of the charges.

John Bassett, publisher of The Telegram Publishing Company, said C. L. Dubin, QC, has been retained as counsel for Sunday Telegram.

Mr. Bassett said: "The attorney-general has acted quickly and, in my opinion, with courage. I have no comment to make, as this issue must now be considered sub judice, except to say that I believe the publication of The Sunday Telegram to be within the law and, with this belief and the confidence it ents, I feel sure this whole matter will be thoroughly aired."

CNR Officials Say Split Rail Probable Cause

NORTH BAY (CP)—A Canadian National Railways transcontinental train carrying 225 British, German and Hungarian immigrants went off the track Tuesday near Brent, Ont., an Algonquin Park community 70 miles southeast of here.

No one was injured. CNR officials said a split rail probably derailed the train, the 15-car westbound Continental from Montreal to Vancouver.

The wreck occurred only six miles from where a CNR freight train was derailed Monday. The passenger train was the first to travel over the line since the wreckage was cleared.

A CNR spokesman said the usual investigation will be started, but that it will not embrace the other wreck and two others in the same area within the last month. These are being investigated separately, he said.

NO ONE HURT

The other wrecks were at Field March 2, when a freight train was derailed, and near Ottawa Feb. 26, when apassenger transcontinental train was derailed after slicing into a trailer truck. No one was seriously hurt.

A five-coach relief train from North Bay Tuesday picked up the passengers and will continue to Vancouver with the first eight cars of the Continental.

Only the last 10 cars, including sleepers, diners and observation cars, went off the track. Six were tipped but remained upright.

Passenger Frank Goode, a 34-year-old British immigrant en route to British Columbia with his wife and three children, said an adjacent rock formation prevented the train from overturning.

Will Levy Fees To Enter Parks Says Minister

TORONTO (CP)—A small fee will be levied this year on cars entering some of Ontario's provincial parks, Lands and Forests Minister Mapledoram told the legislature Tuesday.

The amount of the fee still is under consideration, he said, but it will be $1 or $2. It would be charged on admission only to parks offering camping accommodation and other facilities.

A nominal fee now is charged for the use of camping facilities provided by the government. The general fee would eliminate this.

The fee-charging plan would operate along the lines of the federal government's system of charging for entrance into national parks.

Mr. Mapledoram said payment of a general fee would enable a car to enter any other provincial park without further payment and this privilege would be good for a year.

DEFENDS PLAN

The plan was defended by Premier Frost who said Detroit residents have taken over the best sites in Rondeau Provincial Park, built cottages on them and denied to others access to their beaches.

"Don't condemn this government for trying to make accessible to all the people some of the enjoyments to be found in these parks and resort areas," he said in answer to John Spence (—East Kent) who protested the admission charges.

It was proper for people to pay a service charge for what they receive, Mr. Frost said.

Mr. Mapledoram said his department plans to spend more than $2,000,000 this year on development of provincial parks. No admission charge would be levied at parks where no services were provided.

More than 100 park areas covering about 40,000 acres had been set up by the provincial parks program last year and about $530,000 had been spent on new facilities and services.

He said master plans have been prepared for future development of major parks. It was intended to complete a master plan for each park under the department's jurisdiction.

BUSES KILL 57

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Three Brazilian bus accidents at the weekend are reported to have killed 57 persons and injured 60. The worst came at Alto do Parana, in Sao Paulo state, when a loaded bus going aboard a ferry collided with a truck and then rolled into the river. The driver and 37 others died.

ASK AUSABLE DREDGING

GRAND BEND (CP)—Request for action on dredging the mouth of the Ausable River here, where silt is delaying operations of Lake Huron fisheries, was asked Thursday of federal Works Minister Winters. A telegram was sent to Mr. Winters after a village council session.

English Professor at RMC Hunting for Words to Assemble Canadian Dictionary

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP)—As an author, Dr. Walter S. Avis finds himself in a unique situation.

He doesn't have to worry about sentences or story—but he has to hunt for words.

The ones he wants for his planned dictionary of Canadian words are those distinctive to the country.

Dr. Avis, assistant professor in the English department at Royal Military College here and secretary of the Canadian Linguistic Association, says that the distinctive language of English-speaking Canadians is one of the paths to national identity.

PURELY CANADIAN

Many words used by Canadians are intrinsically Canadian, he says. Many came into the language through contact with the French — Canadians, Indians and Eskimos. And North America generally has a whole range of linguistic forms not current in England, a situation due in large part to the different environment of this continent.

As examples of words peculiar to Canada, Dr. Avis gives separation school, section road, splake, Mountie, muskeg, fire roels, aboideau, Bennett - buggy, Bluenose, Maritimer, Newfie, milemaste, muklik, wendigo, bush pilot, poguy, hydro, chuck range, bluefine and many others.

Words with meanings peculiar to Canada include acclamation as in "he was elected by acclamation"; chesterfield meant only in Canada. The terms "Indian" and "treaty money" may be found in American dictionaries, but they are marked obsolete in spite of the fact they are very much alive in Canada.

The need for a Canadian dictionary, Dr. Avis says, is pointed up by regionalisms, words that mean one thing in Nova Scotia, Columbia and something different elsewhere." Thus we find persons in one part of the country referring to fire reels and in another to fire trucks."

OTHER EXAMPLES

The child's plaything, the teeter-totter, in Nova Scotia is called a seesaw, a bluff on the Prairies is a clump of trees, while elsewhere it is an escarpment. A salt lick is most of Canada refers to block salt placed for cattle, while in B.C. a salt lick is a topographical feature.

Work has already begun on the task of compiling the Canadian dictionary. A publishing house has been trying to establish a foundation to finance the project, working in conjunction with leading Canadian linguists.

"Needless to say," Dr. Avis says, "this ambitious undertaking will not bear full fruit for several years. If the foundation is successfully established we stand a good chance of getting a number of scholarly, reliable reference books."

Supporting this undertaking is the Canadian Linguistic Association, formed four years ago to promote the study of language and languages in Canada. Research in Canadian English is prominent among the association's activities.

Ultimately it is hoped to compile a historical dictionary of Canadian English which will give an exhaustive record of words and usages typical of this country.

One dictionary now is being compiled at the University of Ontario Matches Federal Old Age Assistance Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Frost said Tuesday Ontario will match a $3-a-month offer by federal Finance Minister Harris to raise the old age assistance allowance to a maximum of $46 from $40 July 1.

The Ontario and federal treasuries share equally in the payment of the allowance. Last week Mr. Harris said in his budget speech the federal government would put up another $3 if Ontario would match it.

Mr. Frost said today "We'll match anything they do in that line. It's too bad they didn't make it more."

Welfare Minister Cecile predicted the increase will cost the province an additional $1,000,000 a year.

Earlier this month, anticipating the federal offer, the legislature was asked to eliminate the figure $40 from the Old Age Assistance Act as the maximum monthly allowance.

May Dismantle Plane to Find Pet Python

PARIS (Reuters)—The disappearance of a python on an air trip from Africa to France has given a costly headache to Air France officials, who may have to dismantle a $1,000,000 Super-Constellation to find it.

Snake-fancier Jean Probst boarded the plane in French Guinea, toting a box containing his python. Just before the plane touched down at Dakar, North Africa, Probst announced to passengers and crew that his pet had disappeared.

A frantic search in mid-air, a careful hunt of Dakar airport, another one during a stop-off at Marseilles and a thorough examination of the plane at Orly airport here turned up nothing.

An Air France official said the plane may have to be taken apart because the python must have slithered in among miles of wires and cables in fuselage walls or inside the wings or the tailpiece.

Name your own poison in the first south defense bid. Shed tears over the unlucky breaks that downed three spades by two tricks. But call it stupid the way the European master played three no-trumps.

South won the opening spade lead. West queen held the shift to heart. Lucky Jack lead low for finesse. A heart forced ace exit. Club sidestepped, covered by north ten, gave dummy four club tricks.

But diamond queen was returned and lost to north. South got two hearts and another spade to beat the contract two tricks. Declarer never gave himself the slightest chance to make the contract.

He should first double finesse diamond ten and coins back a club toward the jack (correct play). When heart ace is forced, finesse a diamond again and take a club with the last heart.

Dummy gets in again with a diamond and takes three club tricks that pays off in full. As it was, he could not have played it worse if he was blind to the fact whose relatives were in his belfry.

Mahovlich to Play for Leafs Against Detroit

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Mahovlich, 200-pound centre with Toronto St. Michael's of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A, considered the league's top prospect, will play for the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs against Detroit Red Wings on Saturday, the Leafs management said Tuesday.

Leaf president Conn Smythe said the club does not intend to give Mahovlich, who has a year remaining as a junior, a pro contract. "The only stipulation I made was that Mahovlich was to be one of the forwards. I want to get a good look at what we have" Smythe said.

The 18-year-old centre played on a line with Bid Reindeer and Ron Stewart in Tuesday's practice. While with St. Mike's this season he scored 52 goals in 49 games best in the league. His club was ousted from the playoffs by Guelph Biltmores.

Jake Lamotta Convicted on Serious Charges

MIAMI (AP) — Jake LaMotta, former middleweight boxing champion, was convicted Tuesday night on two counts of violating the state prostitution laws.

LaMotta, now a Miami Beach bar owner, stood unflinching as Judge George E. Schulz imposed the maximum penalty of six months of hard labor and a fine of $500. LaMotta had denied the charges.

He was found guilty by a sixman jury on two of four counts contained in an indictment which a 16-year-old girl made dates for prostitution and then procured for him.

The jury freed him on the other counts—receiving the girl in his establishment and procuring customers for her.

"LaMotta and his lawyer called the verdict "a serious miscarriage of justice" and demanded the right to file motions for a new trial and an appeal.

"I've never seen this girl," LaMotta shouted to the jury after she was ushered into the courtroom.

Asked by his lawyer, L. J. Cushman, if he had kissed the girl—as she testified—to determine if she were 21, LaMotta replied:

"Definitely not."

Says Method in Yankee Madness

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Billy Hunter no longer is brooding over the trade that transferred him overnight from a member of the world champions to that of a last place club. But he thinks it happened for a good reason.

The former Yankee reserve infielder, now shortstop for Kansas City, was traded along with five other players to the Athletics for pitchers Art Ditmar and Bobby Shantz.

"There's no doubt Yankees improved their pitching staff," said Hunter, "but I feel they had a fair deeper reason for making the trade. Yankees are constantly striving to keep the fellows from becoming complacent and overconfident. I'm sure the brass believed they had the manpower to win the pennant.

"By trading the five of us off, they scared the others into hustling—hustle gut to stay around. Nobody wants to leave the Yankees and I'll bet several guys on the club will be sitting on the anxious seat right up to the June 15 trading deadline."

On the Tracks

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP)—Cain Hoy stable's The Hammer, odds-on favorite at 4-5 to 1, stood off a strong challenge Tuesday to win the featured $4,000 seventh race at Gulfstream Park.

Almost 15,000 fans watched him run the mile and 70 yards in 1:40 3-5—one second slower than the world record set last year by Swaps—for his third consecutive triumph.

He beat Mrs. H. C. Frushaut's Barbarian by a neck. Incaseofire, owned by Blue Stone Farm, was third.

Seaway Project To Help Fishing On Boundaries

TORONTO (CP) — Development of the St. Lawrence seaway offers hope of eliminating Ontario-Quebec boundary incidents concerning fishing, Premier Frost said Tuesday.

The matter was raised in the legislature by Peter Manly (L—Stormont) who said Ontario fishermen were "embarrassed" when they unknowingly strayed into Quebec waters near Cornwall and were arrested for fishing without a licence.

Mr. Frost said the problem has existed for more than 100 years and the difficulty stemmed from defining navigation channels. The channels probably would become definitely established when the seaway was developed and this may lend itself to a solution.

Govt. to Pay Tax On Commercial Scale Says Bill

TORONTO (CP)—A bill which would permit municipalities to tax provincial government property on the commercial scale was given first reading Tuesday in the Ontario legislature.

Municipal Affairs Minister Warrender said the bill will make clear that provincial assistance payments are to be based on the rate levied on commercial property in municipalities.

Municipalities now will have a double tax structure as a result of a new system of per capita grants which will be applied to residential and farm property. One levy will be for residential and farm property, the other on commercial property.

Mr. Warrender said government-owned houses used by the provincial police will be subject to the commercial levy.

TWO DOWN

The Whitby Dunlops left little doubt in the minds of nearly 2500 cash customers in Memorial Arena last night that they have championship calibre in their hockey carcasses. They came up with a superb brand of defensive hockey while offensively they were as dangerous as a cobra's bite. They played a hard-hitting game, and every man jack of 'em knows how to use his body while their individual system of breaking up foe attacks had the McFarlands off stride.

But for all that the Macs did not appear to have the fire and spirit that swept them past the Cornwall Chevies into the finals. Moe Benoit was not up to par due to a foot injury and late in the first period he slumped down on the ice near his goal, then slowly limped to the dressing room. That guy's guts are terrific.

The McFarlands battled hard but they only occasionally got their plays clicking. Besides, The Dunlops fashioned the old Ottawa kitty-bar-the-door defence with three or four players clustered in front of Long John Henderson, a combination almost impossible to penetrate. At that they were not clear-cut on a few occasions and with a little more luck might have cut the margin.

However that does not alter the fact that they are two games down in this best-of-seven series, and will have to come up with the best brand of hockey they possess to defeat this aggressive Whitby crew. The teams clash in the third game of the series here on Friday night and again on Saturday in Whitby.

It looks from here as though the Macs will have to meet the Dunlops at their own style of hockey if they want to come out on the right side of the ledger. The Dunnies hit every-thing hard and with everything they've got whether it is in mid-ice or behind the blueline. The Macs were not sparing with the bodies last night and it could be a dose of their own play medicine could slow up the Dunlops and whittle them down to our size.

DUTCHIES HOT

Down in western Ontario a fast-skating free-wheeling tribe of Flying Dutchmen from Kitchener-Waterloo are upsetting the pre-playoff dope by snatching victory bones from the Windsor Bulldogs, one of them a fancy shellacking in the "Doghouse" itself.

Up to now the Dutchies lead three games to one, dropping the first and taking the next three by decisive scores. The blash-scoring Dutchies have ripped 28 goals into the Windsor net in four games while in their semi-finals series with the Stratford Indians they whistled 31 pucks into the Tribe's fishnet in five tilts. That's wearing out goal-netting at a high rate of speed.

There's an interesting "hunch" yarn which emanated from this western series. The regular Dutchie goalie, one Bob Senior who saw the light of day in Kingston had a bad week end and started playing on Windsor ice. The Dutchie brass figured a change in goalies might break the hex and accordingly brought in Harold (Boat) Hurter, the regular twine-tender for the Elmira senior "B" squad. He played one game for the Dutchies during the season and his work in a one-all tie against these same Bulldogs caused his Kitchener big-wigs to give him the nod for the play-off series.

Hurley has played sensationally in the nets thus far in the finals and his work has been attributed by circuit scribes as being one of the big factors in the Dutchies success to date.

Last night the guys from the home of spare-ribs, sausage and pig tails, ripped the Bulldogs apart for the third successive time. They slammed home eight goals in another wide-open free-wheeling fray and it looks as though the Dogs can mothball their tags any time now.

Tomorrow night is "Timmy's Night" at Memorial Arena when the police clash with the firemen in their annual hockey classic. Syl Apps will be on hand to do the whistle-tooting with Moe Benoit and Paul Peretta assisting in a linesman role. Then there's figure skating, drums, bands, etc. If you can't go, buy a ticket anyway. Every shilling is needed and the crippled kiddies will thank you.

Present Watches To McFarlands

An outstanding form of fan appreciation of the McFarlands senior hockey club was evidenced at the Whitby - Belleville hockey game last night.

Gold watches were presented to each of the players, Manager Drury Downes, assistant manager Don Barclay, and trainer Art Sharlston.

The handsome gifts were donated by Don McNevin and Gerry O'Connor of O'Connor's Jewel Box to the individual recipients prior to the second period.

Dick Beare acted as master of ceremonies for the presentations with the donors shaking hands with the players after each received his watch.

Ditch Old Defensive Tactics For New Wide-Open Offence; 'Little Pistol' Is Optimistic

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto Maple Leafs will test their "new look" out on the Montreal Canadiens in Toronto tonight, because no team is a better example of the success of the new look than Canadiens.

The new Leafs, as displayed over the weekend in two games with New York Rangers, feature a wide-open offence, with defence shoved into a secondary role.

In its first two outings the tactic worked to perfection as Leafs, the lowest-scoring team in the National Hockey League most of this season, walloped New York 14-1 Saturday and beat them 5-0 Sunday.

LEAFS OUTDATED

Most of the other teams in the NHL have been going all out for goals for some seasons past, but Leafs stuck to their original defensive style that depended on one-goal leads — and sank progressively lower in the league.

This season the folly of the old style of play became blatantly apparent.

Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Canadiens, led by fleet-as-wheeling, criss-crossing forward lines, scooped most of the goodies around Leaf defencemen. Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and, towards the end of the season, the Chicago Black Hawks, all did the same on many occasions.

There were other factors. Eric Nesterenko, for those seasons a distance of Canadiens' Bert Olmstead's assist-record of 56. Lindsay has 54.

appointment in a Leaf uniform, went like wildfire when he began to play with Hawks after the New Year.

Observers said his highly individual talent had been stifled by Leaf strategy that called for forwards to stick to their wings.

CLUB DEVELOPING

President Conn Smythe made the new look official Monday night when he said:

"We're finally getting quite a hockey club. Howie (coach Meeker) has been teaching them wide-open hockey and it's paying off. Next year we'll have a club that will stand them in the aisles."

Meeker says ruefully, "I've been teaching horse and buggy hockey in the minors. Over the years, I have compiled quite a book on coaching. Now I have to throw it away and start again. Only a few of the basic principles stand up."

A Montreal victory will give them sole possession of second place once again, but they will have played one more game than Boston, now tied with Canadiens for the runner-up spot.

Thursday, Boston plays in Detroit and Red Wings' Ted Lindsay will have a chance to crack the all-time scoring mark for left wingers, set by Herbie Cain of Bruins in the 1943-44 season.

Lindsay has tied Cain's mark of 82 points and has three games in which to break it. He also has a chance at the distance of Cana-

Tiger Coach Predicts Shake-up As Detroit Losses Continue

By ED WILKS

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—"There is an explosion coming on this club," said new manager Jack Tighe of Detroit Tigers. "There are some guys who have been on this ball team a long time, guys who are getting a lot of money and aren't earning it."

Tighe, the 46-year-old pilot who was picked to replace Bucky Harris and put some life in the Tigers, lit the fuse Tuesday after Detroit, favored to give New York Yankees some trouble, anyone can this season, had dropped their eighth decision of the exhibition games.

On the heels of Tighe's appraisal, John McHale, director of Tiger player personnel and the man who makes the trades, announced after a conference with Hank Greenberg, Cleveland general manager, that "we have some players who could help the Indians, and they have some who could help us."

SOME ARE LAZY

Tighe, the 43-year-old ex-Detroit coach who never has managed in the majors before, refused to give names when he indicated some of his players have been dogging it this spring. He wasn't as general when questioned about a possible trade with Indians.

"We need pitching," said Tighe, "the Indians want a catcher."

What it comes down to is this: The Tigers, with Frank Lary, Billy Hoeft and Paul Foytack forming their "big three," need a fourth starter, preferably a left-hander. They have their eyes on the Indians' Hank Aguirre and Buddy Daley, promising young southpaws.

To get either of the two, and Daley is the favorite, Tigers would give up catcher Frank House and "a triple a player" for the Indians' San Diego club—if Cleveland tosses in another catcher, say Mike Garcia or Art Strickland.

With Strickland, Tigers might see their way clear to shift Harvey Kuenn to first base and leave Harry Bouton at third.

Greenberg, who is visiting other camps, is to call the Tigers Thursday, McHale said.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Boston Red Sox

Even With Porous Infield Team Could Be Hard to Beat

By JOE REICHLER

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP)—An air of uncertainty surrounds the Boston Red Sox training camp.

The Red Sox can finish anywhere from second to fifth without raising an eyebrow. They have a fine hitting outfield, good catching and fair pitching but they also have what is probably the most porous infield in the league, they sadly need a left-handed pitcher or two and two of the most dangerous batters—Ted Williams and Mickey Vernon—are nearing 39. The Red Sox finished fourth—13 games behind New York Yankees last year.

Mike (Pinky) Higgins, starting his third year at the helm, is neither optimistic nor pessimistic as he decusses the Red Sox pennant chances.

"Our chief problem is the infield, of course. The loss of Don Buddin to the service has hurt us a lot. He was a good shortstop for us and he would have been much better this year."

If Higgins had to open the season tomorrow, he probably would have Dick Gernert at first base, Gene Mauch, the retreaded 31-11 year - old former National Leaguer, at second; Billy Klaus at shortstop and Ted Leocio at third. That would mean that Billy Consolo and Higgins would be warming the bench or at best, sharing the regular first and second base posts.

Higgins tried to sound convincing in predicting the Yankees would make no runaway race of it.

"The Yankees!" he repeated. "I don't concede them anything. If they had us, they have us. If they've got to do it on the field not on paper. They've got fewer problems than anybody, no doubt about that. But you never know what's going to happen."

In Williams (.345), Jack Jensen (.315) and Jimmy Persall (.283), Higgins owns the best hitting outfield in the league. The trio slugged 52 homers and drove in 266 runs. The catching with Sam White (.245), Pete Daley (.267) and Frank Haywood Sullivan, up from San Francisco (.296), presents no problem.

"Our pitching figures to be better," said Higgins. "I would like a real good year last year but Gene Mauch, the retreaded 31-11 year - old former National Leaguer, at second; Billy Klaus at shortstop and Ted Leocio at third. That would mean that Billy Consolo and Higgins would be warming the bench or at best, sharing the regular first and second base posts.

"Our pitching figures to be better," said Higgins. "I would like a real good year last year but Gene Mauch, the retreaded 31-11 was disappointed. Frank Sullivan (14-8) has only a fair season.—Willard Nixon (9-8) had a shoulder injury. Mel Parnell (7-6) injured his leg and Bob Porterfield (3-12) had a terrible time. He can't possibly be as bad this year."

"Dave Sisler (9-8) had a good first season and should be better. I look for Tom Brewer (10-9) to develop into a top-flight pitcher this year. I say this: we've got enough pitching for a fine staff. That's the one place we've got to improve. The only thing we lack is a good lefthander and I just don't know where we can get one. We don't seem to have one in camp."

RESTING COMFORTABLY

CALGARY (CP)—Doctors said Tuesday night Don Klosterman, Los Angeles quarterback who has played with Calgary Stampeders, was "resting comfortably."

The former Cleveland Brown and Toronto Argonaut player was operated on Monday night for a broken leg and fractured back suffered in a skiing accident at Banff Sunday.

Dunlops Defeat McFarlands 6-1; Take Two-Game Lead In Senior Finals

Unleash Power In 3rd Period With Four Unanswered Goals; Macs Fail to Fathom Defence

By Geo. H. Garver
Sports Editor

A polished hard-hitting Whitby Dunlops hockey club unleashed third-period power here last night to defeat the Belleville McFarlands 6-1 and take a 2-0 lead in the Eastern Ontario senior "A" hockey league finals.

The McFarlands, far from the team that eliminated the Cornwall Cheviots, appeared unable to cope with the systematic individual checking of the Dunlops and their patterned passing plays. And while they came close on several occasions they failed to penetrate the "kitty-bar-the-door" defence of the league leaders.

The Dunlops scored the only goal of the first period albeit the McFarlands had an edge in the territorial play. The play reached a terrific tempo in the second and third heats with the teams splitting two goals in the second frame and the Dunlies opening the play wide in the third chapter to sling home four unanswered goals.

The McFarland's, jolted by hard bodychecks, showed only spasmodic flashes of form that swept them past Cornwall into the league finals. They lacked the finish of the Dunnies around the nets and Long John Henderson in the Dunnies goal did not give them any assistance.

The third game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Memorial Arena here on Friday night with the fourth tussle scheduled for Whitby on Saturday.

The game featured the first penalty shot on Belleville ice this season: Keith MacDonald had broken into the clear in the third period and was on Henderson's doorstep when he was tripped by Alfie Treen, Dunnies defenceman. Referee Billy Balmer of Toronto ordered a penalty shot which was taken by Lionel Esther, but Henderson easily turned aside his attempt to score. Treen received the automatic two-minute penalty.

The game was comparatively clean for a Whitby-Belleville battle, the referee handing out fifteen penalties, seven to the Dunlops. Seven of the penalties were handed out in the rugged third period with the Dunnies drawing four. There were a few pushing matches but no open hostilities.

A clever-keeping heat function featured the game. The McFarlands and their immediate officials were presented with handsome gold watches before the second period got under way, the gifts of Don McNevin and Gerry O'Connor of O'Connor's Jewel Box. Dick Beare acted as master-of-ceremonies for the presentations.

Gordie Myles and Tom O'Connor were the scoring sparkplugs for the Dunnies, each scoring a pair of goals and being credited with an assist. The line of Gagnon-Atherstey-Samolenko functioned successfully but once with the Dunnies playing-coach firing the rubber home. Atherstey scored the first goal of the game on a clean breakaway in the first period. He also drew an assist as did Samolenko, Ted O'Connor, Freddie Etcher and Alfie Treen.

Minnie Menard scored the McFarlands' counter climaxing a beautiful right-boards drive by Bep Guidolin with Paul Payette drawing an assist.

The Dunnies appeared to adopt a man-to-man checking style of play and it had the desired effect. The Macs were unable to get their plays clicking and were on the defensive the first few minutes of play.

There was a lot of centre-ice play with the Macs seemingly unable to get beyond the Dunnies blueline. Ted O'Connor, Hildebrand, Muretich line appeared to have the most drive midway through the period.

Benoit was chased at 7.30 but no damage was done and the Dunnies' Armstrong got the gate three minutes later. The Dunnies held the fort while Minnie Menard slipped through with Henderson robbing him on the doorstep.

The Macs appeared to hit some sort of stride and gave Henderson a busy minute or two. Then Bob Atherstey stole the puck from Crawford at centre ice, broke into the clear and scored the only goal of the period after deking Bell neatly. The Dunlops outshot the Macs 8-5 in the period.

The presentation of watches to the Macs by Don McNevin and Gerry O'Connor seemed to needle new life into the team.

They launched an offensive that sparked the entire period and their fierce four-minute drive paid off with Minnie Menard slashing home Guidolin's pass.

It was a beautiful play with the Macs' coach streaking down the right boards, shaking off potential "boarders" and flipping a flat pass across the goalmouth where Menard tipped in. Payette was also given an assist.

The teams hit a terrific pace and both Bell and Henderson came up with sparkling plays from driving power drives. Payette drove into the clear, was brought down heavily from behind but no penalty was given.

At 14.40 the Dunnies climaxed a power play with Myles pushing the puck from Crawford from a doorstep scramble to put the Dunnies one up.

The checking was heavy and penalties started to creep into the game. Armstrong was chased following by Guidolin and a minute later Crawford went off giving the Dunnies a two-man advantage.

Benoit went down heavily and limped off the ice to the dressing room. He did not return before the period end. Belleville outshot the Dunnies 11-6 in the period with the Macs clearly having the edge in play.

The Dunnies struck swiftly opening the third period. Crawford was given a hot ready on the slice when the Gagnon, Atherstey, Samolenko line swept in on the Macs' goal in a perfect passing combination. Gagnon made no mistake from close-in with the clock reading 18 seconds.

Five seconds later Minnie Menard and Samolenko got into a pushing match with high sticks and both drew the gate. The Macs pressed in and Guidolin was robbed by Henderson just outside the crease. The Dunnies' defence packed around the goal like sardines and successfully staved off the driving Macs and then took matters in their own hands. Tom O'Connor with brother Ted and Etcher raced in with Tom blasting the puck home to give the Dunnies a 4-1 lead.

Ted got chased and again the packed Dunnies' defence threw back the Macs' desperate attempts to score. Then Treen shoved a short pass to Myles who backhanded the rubber past Bell from close-in to put the Dunnies four goals up.

Then the penalties started to roll. Crawford went off, closely followed by Ted O'Connor. A minute later Pat St. Hilaire got chased and the Macs played two men short. Then came the penalty shot.

The Macs battled gamely but the close checking of the Dunnies who consistently cleared the puck into the Belleville zone left them scoreless. With less than two minutes to go the Dunnies raced in and Tom O'Connor scored his second goal of the night on a short breakaway.

Boxing Shows To Continue On Television

NEW YORK (AP)—There will be Wednesday night boxing on your ABC television screen for the next two years, it was announced Tuesday.

Oliver Treyz, American Broadcasting Company vice president, and James D. Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, said at a press conference that the two had entered into a multi-million dollar agreement to extend the present series to June 1, 1959.

Only last Feb. 27, the IBC announced a two-year extension of the broadcasting and telecasting of the weekly Friday night fights over the National Broadcasting Company. The sponsor of the Friday night fights, Gillette company, announced the total annual cost to it was $10,400,000. Of this sum, $6,000,000 was for network time paid weekly and paid each main event fighter $6,000 from the radio-TV receipts.

It was announced that the Wednesday night radio-TV fight program would cost the sponsors between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000 a year. Of this, Norris said the IBC would receive $18,500 weekly. The main eventers would get $4,000 each.

Senior Back With Dutchies

KITCHENER (CP)—Goalie Bob Solinger of the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen lineup Tuesday night as his team met Windsor Bulldogs in the fourth game of their best-of-seven finals for the Ontario Hockey Association senior A western division championship.

The Dutchmen won the game 8-2 and lead the series 3-1.

Club officials said Harold (Boat) Harris' injury was serious as a replacement for Senior in a Sunday game, but will not likely reappear in the series. Hurley plays for the affiliated senior B Elmira Polar Kings and will be under that club.

Officials explained Senior's replacement was part of a general team rearrangement for the game in Windsor as it was turned out to be the club's first win in Windsor since Dec. 17, 1955.

Hurley three years ago led league goalies and won the Nat Turoffsky trophy. If he played two more games with Dutchies he would qualify to share with the Kitchener-Waterloo club.

Three Share Lead Seminole Tourney

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Sam Snead, Lloyd Mangrum and Bud Holscher led the way into the semi-finals of the final round of the Seminole pro-amateur golf tournament today.

They posted three under par 69s over the 6,746-yard Seminole Golf Club course Tuesday. Ben Hogan playing in his first tournament of the winter, had a 72.

Hogan teamed with singer Bing Crosby for a best ball score of 66 but were defeated by leaders, who carded 65s in that division.

They included Holscher and his partner, Shaw Walker of Muskegon, Mich., and Gardner Dickinson of Panama City, Fla., and William G. Curran of Detroit.

The pro-amateur tournament attracted 82 teams and a gallery of more than 3,000 on opening day.

Home Run Sluggers Find Range Blast Out 23 in Eight Games

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Home run sluggers are beginning to find the range on the exhibition circuit and the National Leaguers are far ahead of the American in manufacturing the four-ply wallop.

In eight games on the grapefruit-cactus circuit Tuesday, there were 23 homers and many of them broke up the ball games. Ten clubs have each played 10 exhibitions, the other six have completed 11 each and a total of 161 homers have been hit—99 by National and 62 by American League teams. This follows the trend: Last season National Leaguers socked 1,219 homers compared with 1,075 for the American.

SOX LEAD AMERICAN

New York Giants and Philadelphia Phillies have each hit five exhibition homers while Chicago White Sox lead the American loop with a dozen.

Dick Stuart, the Pittsburgh rookie from Lincoln of the Western League where he belted 66 homers last year, Jim Lemon of Washington and Hank Aaron of Milwaukee each have hit five exhibition circuit clouts.

Stuart got two home runs Tuesday as Pirates defeated the White Sox 9-3. Stuart's first blow came in the fourth inning after Bill Virdon had singled. Stuart's second came in the seventh with two mates on base.

Lemon's first circuit clout came in the fourth inning off Pete Ramos with Pete Runnels on base. Aaron's fifth came in the eighth inning off Ramos with Bobby Thomson on base.

Ted Kluszewski, Cincinnati first baseman, hit his first homer of the spring, a grand-slammer in the third inning which helped Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over St. Louis Cardinals.

Phillies hit three homers and Tigers two as Philadelphia took a 6-3 decision in 11 innings from Detroit. Don Leonard, reserve catcher, led off the 11th with a homer, and Phils added another on three singles. Earlier two Phil rookies, Harry Anderson and Fred Van Duren homered, while Detroit's Vic Kuenn and Charlie Maxwell each hit one for Detroit.

LENNON HITS HOMER

Bob Lennon, up for another trial with the Giants, doubled a three-run homer in the fourth inning as the New Yorkers came from behind to defeat Chicago Cubs 5-4. Rookie Bob Schmidt also homered for Giants.

Home runs put the Yankees back in the game against Milwaukee Braves, and Billy McDougald's clutch double in the ninth inning drove in the tying and winning 4-3 decision. Mickey Mantle and Woody Held each homered with a man on base.

Baltimore Orioles downed Cleveland Indians 8-4 and Washington Virdon, traded to Pittsburgh, hit .319 to .214 by Bobby Del Greco who came from Pittsburgh to St. Louis as a centre field replacement, he is still batting .319.

In early December, Tom Poholsky, Jackie Collum and Ray Katt shuffled off to Chicago Cubs for Sam Jones, Jim Davis, Hobie Landrith and Eddie Miksis. Later he sent Rip Repulski and Bobby Morgan to Philadelphia for Del Ennis, the righthanded long ball threat he had been searching for a year. Recently he picked up Hoyt Wilhelm from New York for Ray Moore in a straight deal for first baseman Whitey Lockman.

Without giving up too much front-line strength, Lane appears to have added a regular outfielder, a starting pitcher and solid relief help.

HAVE A GOOD CHANCE

Small wonder then that Hutchinson said:

"If we can get a couple of breaks, we have a chance at all the way. . . .

"I think it's going to be another race like last year. Nobody is going to get off fast and make a runaway of it like the Dodgers did a few years back.

"We've got at least three pitchers capable of winning 20—Herm Wehmeier, Sam Jones and Vinegar Bend Mizell. Boyer should be improved, Hal Smith looks like a better catcher and Ennis will help us. Stan (Musial) could do better, settled down at first base for the year."

INFIELD SET

The Cardinal infield is just about set with Musial (.310) at first, sophomore Don Blasingame (.261) at second, 34-year-old Alvin Dark (.275) at short and Boyer (.306) at third. Dark will be spelled by Dick Schofield (.295 at Omaha) or bespectacled Eddie Kasko (.303 at Rochester). Miksis (.239) a handyman for the Cubs can help spell Musial and take a whirl in the outfield.

Centre field is the problem. Wally Moon (.298) in left and Ennis (.264) with 26 homers and 95 runs batted in for the Phils) in right field are the fixtures. Chuck Harmon, who hit .360 at Omaha, after he came to St. Louis from Cincinnati is also getting a chance to take the centre job. Del Greco must pick up on his hitting to beat out Harmon. Both centre fielders are fine defensive men. Hitting will settle the issue.

Smith (.282), a winter sensation in Havana, is the No. 1 catcher with the left handed hitting Hobie Landrith (.222 at Chicago) to help.

Dutchmen Grab 3-1 Game Lead Wallop Windsor Bulldogs 8-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Even the goal posts and disallowed goals can't stop Kitchener Waterloo Dutchmen in their playoff scoring rampage.

Tuesday night at Kitchener, Dutchie sharpshooters hit the goal posts five times and had one goal disallowed, but they romped to an 8-2 victory over Windsor Bulldogs in their Ontario Hockey Association senior A western division final series.

Kitchener leads the series 3-1, having dropped the opening game.

DUNLOPS WIN

In the OHA eastern division finals at Belleville, Whitby Dunlops whipped McFarlands 6-1 to take a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven final series. Dunlops were two goals at the end of the first period, 2-1 after the middle period and then scored four times in the final period.

George Scholes and Jack McKenzie gained Dutchies with a pair of goals each. Ken Laufman, Gerry Theberge, Butch Martin and Don Ruth also notched one.

Frank Bathgate and Joe Klukay were the Bulldogs' marksmen.

Paul Knox, left winger for the Dutchmen, suffered a broken nose from a high stick in the first period and did not return to action.

TWO SCORE TWICE

Tom O'Connor and Gord Myles each scored twice for Dunlops and Bobby Atherstey and Dus Gagnon each scored once.

Minnie Menard scored the lone McFarland goal.

Bob Solinger, former National Hockey League goaltender, played another standout game for Dunlops.

Windsor and Kitchener tangle tonight in Windsor and a win for Dutchies would end the series.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association senior A southern group, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds visit Sudbury Wolves in the second game of their two-game total - goal series to determine which team will meet North Bay Trappers in the latter's playdowns. Wolves won the first game 5-2.

In the eastern division finals Whitby is at Belleville Friday night.

OLYMPIC ATHLETE DEAD

AMOS, Que. (CP)—Andrew I. (San' Miller, 58, an athlete who represented Canada at the 1924 Olympic Games in Paris, died here Tuesday night.

He was born in Sussex, N.B. and was widely known for his association with mining in that province and in other parts of Canada.

Mr. Miller participated in the high jump at the 1924 Olympics and at one time held the Canadian, British Empire and Canadian high-point man on Canadian track and field teams for two years.

Home Run Sluggers Find Range Watson Takes Dim View of Rangers' Chances

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Ranger coach Phil Watson today took a dim view of his team's chances in the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs. He should be anywhere from 5-1 to 5-1 underdogs in the first series," Watson said.

"We've only got two games to play at home (Madison Square Garden) and the rest on the road" said Watson, "and I'd say that Boston should be 5-1 against us and Montreal 5-1. After all we've only won 10 games on the road this season."

Rangers, who last week clinched fourth place in the regular season standings, play their first game of the best-of-seven semi-final series in New York Thursday. Then on the 26. It will be against either Bruins or Canadiens, depending on which club finishes second.

The second game also will be played in New York. But, because a circus will then move into the Garden, Rangers, Leafs and manager Freddie Hutchinson had made impressive gains in their first year.

Although Lane's ears still burned from the tongue lashing Virdon, traded to Pittsburgh, hit .319 to .214 by Bobby Del Greco who came from Pittsburgh to St. Louis as a centre field replacement, he is still batting .319.

By JACK HAND

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) The gossip around major league baseball camps this spring is that St. Louis Cardinals are the most improved team in the National League. While Brooklyn and Milwaukee have been standing pat and Cincinnati making only one major move, the Cards have continued to shift key men hither and yon.

A year ago the league waited anxiously for general manager Frank Lane to start the wild trading that marked him the David Harum of the American League when he was at Chicago. They didn't have to wait long. Soon St. Louis fans were moaning about the departure of local favorites such as Harvey Haddix, Bill Virdon, Red Schoendienst and the promising young Jackie Brandt.

MOVED TO FOURTH

When the dust settled Cardinals had moved from seventh place to fourth although still a staggering 21 games off the pace. Lane and manager Freddie Hutchinson had made impressive gains in their first year.

Although Lane's ears still burned from the tongue lashing Virdon, traded to Pittsburgh, hit .319 to .214 by Bobby Del Greco who came from Pittsburgh to St. Louis as a centre field replacement, he is still batting .319.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was downtown shopping today, and after dinner she said to pop, Goodness, William, what would happen to us if we lost our sense of humor?

Our laffter would probably sound very hollow, pop said, and ma said, I had some time on my hands after I got through shopping this afternoon and I saw a long line of people outside the Narcissis, so I assumed the picture must be good, so I dropped in to see it. Well my dear, it turned out to be a painfully silly slapstick comedy without an ounce of wit or a shred of intelligents. Can you imagine, I thought they actually threw pies in each others faces in the way they used to in the ignorant days of Noah's Ark, Honestly, William, I mean really, I was in danger of getting up and walking out, she said.

What stopped you? pop said, and ma said, I remembered my tickit had cost me 2 quests, so I flung myself in the theater with a grate face, she said.

That must of made it even harder to take, pop said, and ma said, Well no, I just marvelled to myself at the scentless number of nitwits it must take to populate the world, and the thought amused me in a superior kind of way, and I actually had to laff. So you see, there is a source of humor saved me from waisting my 75 cents she said.

I'll say it did, pop said.

And he laffed like anything to prove it.

BRITISH RAILWAY

The confederation chiefs decided Tuesday that their members in "covering" mines mileclaneous skilled and unskilled workers in the manufacturing industry—will begin sporadic walkouts in selected plants on Saturday to be followed April 6 by a mass strike.

HUGE WALKOUT

A mass walkout would mean that one person in every 17 would be on strike and that 4,500 firms would be at a standstill.

The conference today faced a fresh peace bid by Labor Minister Iain Macleod.

MacLeod arranged to confer with representatives of the factory workers' employers, who have flatly refused the wage increase on the grounds that it would price them out of world markets.

Shipbuilding employers met MacLeod Tuesday and he was understood to have urged them to return to the negotiating table.

Workers likely to carry out the lightning strike have reportedly dubbed the "chaos commandos" by sections of the British press.

MAJOR OBJECTIVES

Main targets for the stoppages beginning Saturday are expected to be marine engineering firms, major factories and important electrical and heavy engineering establishments.

The Times says in an editorial that Communist leaders in the unity conference have done their utmost to "bring Britain's greatest industry to a standstill."

"How much the present deplorable situation can be attributed to the ceaseless activities of the Communists is hard to estimate but there can be no doubt that their part has been important," the newspaper says.

"As things stand unhappily, today, the unions are not Communist-led, but they are Communist-pushed."

See Tax Boost Timed With Eye To Future Vote

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government has been accused of increasing taxes in an off year to carry it over the next provincial election by Liberal Opposition Leader Oliver.

Mr. Oliver made his accusation in the Legislature Tuesday while the House was considering two bills dealing with increased taxation. The Liberals opposed both moves while the Progressive CCF party supported the government.

One bill would increase the tax on diesel fuel used in motor vehicles from 11 cents to 20 and the other would raise tax on corporation income by two per cent to 11.

Mr. Oliver termed the government's move a "mad dash" to have the increased taxes installed and forgotten by the next election two years away. He said no real need has been proved for the increases.

DEFEAT MOTION

At attempt was made by the Liberals to have the corporation tax bill deferred for a week to have it redrafted to provide for a was defeated 58 to 10 after the Speaker ruled the motion a technical method of killing the measure. CCF members supported the government.

The same division was accepted for second reading of the bill.

John Wintermeyer, Liberal financial critic from Waterloo North said the proposed corporation tax increase had an inflationary tendency because consumers could have to absorb the increase in the graduated income tax, making price of manufactured products.

Premier Frost told the House for the increases on the Federal government, saying the Ottawa administration's tax-sharing financing forced Ontario to impose double taxation.

CCF SUPPORTS

CCF Leader MacDonald said the increase should not cause any problems. He said the government should raise the money where it was—in corporations.

He suggested the tax should have been put on a graduated level so revenue could be raised in accordance with the income of corporations.

Albert Wren (L—Lab—Kenora) said the increase in the tax on diesel fuel would crucify the diesel industry.

Provincial Treasurer Porter and Premier Frost said the diesel trucks were not contributing their fair share of highway costs under the old tax.

The proposed new tax, effective April 1, would make the tax structure more equitable and fair, said Premier Frost.

The bill was given second reading on a 58 to 10 vote with only the Liberals opposed.

The government defeated two motions of non-confidence in the legislature in the afternoon of the three speech debate.

The lack of confidence motions were moved as amendments to the address in reply to the throne speech. The reply was approved by a voice vote.

A CCF motion, which failed to get Liberal support, called for the government for failure to build a publicly-owned distribution system for natural gas. It was lost on a voice vote.

The Liberals' motion was defeated 76-13 with the CCF members voting with the Liberals. It said the Progressive Conservative government failed to meet the needs of agriculture, education and municipalities.

Lonely Hungarian Refugees in London Were Taking Goose Out for a Drink

LONDON (AP) — Hungarian refugees Gyula Torok and Jeno Boka told a magistrate Tuesday the only friendly face they encountered in Britain was on this goose in St. James Park. By chance, they had a bit of bread on them and—but let interpreter Paul Slomovic tell it:

"The young men, who are only 22, were homesick and lonely. They wanted someone to talk to. They stopped a number of people, but since they speak only Hungarian, no one could understand and walked on.

"Then they met Sir James Park and saw this goose lying on the grass, so they went and talked to it. It seemed friendly, so they picked it up.

"They were looking for some place a little more private where they could offer it a drink from their bottle of rum when the police-man came along.

"That was all there was to it—just a little adventure that started out of loneliness."

Magistrate Sir Laurence Dunne said: "It is regrettable when visitors to a city the size of London can find nothing in the way of companionship this side of a goose.

He pointed out, however, that whatever may be the custom in Budapest, it is against the law to disturb the birds in London parks. He fined Torok and Boka £2 apiece.

Spending Program Of CNR Approved By Committee

OTTAWA (CP)—The 1957 spending program of the CNR — curtailed because of its possible effect on inflation—has been approved by the Commons railway committee.

The committee gave its okay to the expenditures Tuesday night—after its annual scrutiny of CNR affairs—following a statement by company President Donald Gordon that the management has severely restricted capital outlays because of possible inflationary effects.

Mr. Gordon told the committee that, while the government-owned system plans $268,107,000 spending on capital projects this year, it had shaved $120,000,000 off the cost of projects recommended to the management by field officers.

While the program was up from the $167,000,000 of 1956, the new projects consisted largely of expenditures for which the company had been committed before the start of the year.

The CNR planned originally to order 834 diesel units. These have been cut to 750.

The committee also endorsed the operating budget of the CNR, calling for $7,000,000 surplus in 1957, and the 1956 annual report showing a surplus of $26,100,000. The committee also approved the 1956 report and 1957 budget of Canadian National Steamships.

RARE CHEESE

THE HAGUE (Reuters) — A piece of Dutch edam cheese which lay in sub-zero temperature for 45 years without losing its freshness and taste was presented Tuesday to the firm which supplied it originally. A South Pole expedition found the cheese this year at a depot of Britain's 1912 Shackleton Expedition.

Will Support Price of Dry Skimmed Milk

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Gardiner has announced the government will support the price of dry skimmed milk.

He said Tuesday night the agricultural products prices board has been authorized to provide a support price of 17 cents a pound for spray processed and 14 cents a pound for roller processed Canada first quality dry skimmed milk.

The minister, who made the announcement here at the annual meeting of the Canada Milk Producers Association, said he hopes the measure would help bring sufficient stability to the dairy industry "to encourage producers to maintain their present production of milk."

The support prices will be f.o.b. storage points "at certain designated points throughout Canada." Mr. Gardiner said later in an interview the designated points will be announced before the next week.

It will be the first time the price of dry skimmed milk has been supported. The government already supports egg, butter and pork prices.

LAY GROUNDWORK

OTTAWA (CP)—A meeting of Canadian and United States officials has laid the groundwork for future discussions on use of waters of mountain and rivers crossing the boundary between the two countries. Main purpose of the closed meeting here Tuesday was to enable discussion of the differences between the two countries should be considered later. However, the delegates left it to their respective governments before the start of any talks is drawn up and published.

Announce New Way To Shrink Painful Piles

Science Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special) — For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or shrinkage (shrinkage) took places.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And soaring views and letters were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions were given help to thousands.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne®)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne® is the trade use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called "Preparation H®." Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Three Children Burned to Death In Northern B.C.

100 MILE HOUSE, B.C (CP)—Three small children were burned to death Tuesday in a log house 15 miles north of this Cariboo district community while their mother fought to get in to rescue them.

The three children of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Galbraith were Gail, 5½; Linda, 4, and Terry, 2. Their bodies were recovered after the fire had levelled the dwelling. They were in two beds in one of the three rooms.

Mrs. Galbraith was prevented by an Indian woman from climbing in a window to almost certain death when flames had driven her back from the door.

Leonard Galbraith is sawmill foreman for the Condietche sawmill. He had left for work, and his wife was in the nearby cookhouse when she observed that the house was on fire.

3 Electrocuted Trying To Rescue Accident Victims

Two Die as Car Hits Pole, Hydro Wires Kill 3 More

Succeeds Magsaysay

Carlos P. Garcia, 61, former vice-president, has been sworn in as president of the Philippines after returning to Manila from a SEATO conference in Australia. He succeeds Ramon Magsaysay, who was killed with 24 others in a flaming crash of his plane took off from Cebu Island. Garcia is an attorney and former teacher.

MAHNOMEN, Minn. (AP)—Two persons were killed today when their car careered off a power pole and three would-be rescuers were electrocuted in relays in an attempt to remove the dead and injured.

Killed when their car went into a ditch were William Schultz, 28, of Winger, Minn., Hole he and Mrs. Donald Haugen 21, also of Winger.

Schultz apparently died of injuries but Haugen was electrocuted. The younger man cried out "I'm being electrocuted" before he died at the scene. Six other occupants of the car were injured.

The first car on the scene was driven by Marvin Duncan, Jr., 18, of Fosston, Minn. Both he and his passenger, Arnold Rolf, 18, of Fosston, were electrocuted when they went to the Schultz car.

The same fate met Clark Heibdahl, 35, of Winger, who came along in another car and also brought in the accident victims.

Mahnomen is about 250 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

Woman Hurled Into Car Trunk, Crash Kills Two

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Freda Winter, 42, of Toronto died before the eyes of her husband early today when a car hurled her into the open trunk of their car as she watched her husband repair a flat tire on Highway 27 north of Woodbridge.

Bruce Winsley, 25, of Woodbridge, driver of the car which struck Mrs. Winter, was killed.

They were the second and third traffic victims in the suburban area during the night. Earlier, Robert Hall, 21, of Humber Summit, died when his car hit a tree. Injuries suffered in a head-on collision in York Township.

Mrs. Winter, 42, standing clear of the car, saw his wife thrown into the trunk and then hurled with the car for 50 feet into a wire fence.

Robert Munro, 22, of North York Township, stopped to help Winsley fix the fire and also witnessed the crash.

British Wants To Relax Red Trade Embargo

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan will press President Eisenhower to agree to relax the trade embargo against Communist China, it was learned today.

But Eisenhower is expected to be as adamant in Bermuda as he was with Indian Prime Minister Nehru in Washington last December in resisting the proposal.

Nehru failed to persuade Eisenhower of India's view that relaxation of the trade embargo and then slow withdrawal of U.S. diplomatic sanctions against Peiping are essential to obtain peace in the Far East.

Macmillan is expected to repeat that argument and, while not pressing Eisenhower to recognize Peiping at present, to stress that the embargo has outlived its usefulness.

Czechs Grant Athlete Leave To Wed American

PAGUE (Reuters) — Czechoslovakia today granted Olympic champion Olga Fikotova, 23, permission to marry American athlete Harold Connolly, 26, and settle in the United States.

Connolly, Olympics hammer throw champion and a high school teacher from Boston, spent a week in Prague earlier this month attempting to win permission for the marriage. He had to leave without taking Olga with him when his visa expired.

He and Olga, a national heroine here after she won the discus title at last year's games, fell in love while they were competing in the Olympics at Melbourne.

LIBERAL AND CCF MEMBERS WALK OUT IN PROTEST

Govt. Calls Bill for Study at 11 O'clock

TORONTO (CP) — Liberal and CCF members walked out of the Ontario Legislature Wednesday night, declaring the calling of a 60-page bill for detailed study late at night was a breach of faith. Provincial Treasurer Porter called the bill—a 106 clause revision of the Highway Improvement Act—for study at 10:35 p.m. He was acting in the absence of Premier Frost.

CCF Leader MacDonald said it was a breach of faith to call the bill after the House had been assured by Premier Frost that no contentious bills would be proceeded with against the wishes of the Opposition.

Mr. Oliver asked that the bill be held over. He said some of his group who were absent had planned to speak on the bill.

"The only regret we should delay the business of the House because you have not your members here," he was asked.

Mr. Oliver replied: "At 11 o'clock, sir."

Mr. Porter said he was not responsible for the incapacities of the opposition.

"Ram it through," Mr. Oliver said as he walked out of the House followed by the only other member of the Liberal Labor opposition present. Two members of the three-man CCF party left shortly after.

The House, sitting as a committee of the whole, passed clause-by-clause study to the bill, but Mr. Porter did not move that the bill be reported to the Speaker, which would have ended debate on it in committee.

This, he said, would give the opposition an opportunity to discuss the bill later and go over it in detail if they wish.

Outside the House, Mr. Oliver said there was lots of time earlier to call the bill. "It was a political move at zero hour to bring a bill of that importance into the House."

It should have been an act of courtesy to hold a bill of this character, he said.

After the House had adjourned, Mr. Oliver said perhaps if Mr. Frost had been here he would not have taken a different line but was here and I had the responsibility."

They are sitting here and trying to get through some business. Members are paid to be on hand when the House is sitting," he added.

Logging Industry Tax Assailed

TORONTO (CP)—The Liberals have again attacked the Ontario government for increasing taxes.

Charles MacDonald (Liberal, North) said in the legislature Wednesday the province's present tax on the logging industry must be put Ontario-made newsprint out of the American market.

He spoke during second reading of a bill which would adjust the legislature's pay to go on hand revenue. Second reading was then carried on a vote of 68 to 11 with the CCF party supporting the government.

Earlier, MacDonald said the measure was better than nothing but he suggested not enough tax revenue was being projected by the logging industry to compensate for "this huge resource being turned into the funny papers of the American public."

Shocking of Different Brain Areas Produces Different Reactions

(Editor's note: Electric explorations of the brains of animals and a few humans have shown that the shocking of different areas produces different reactions—ranging from fear to pleasure. How this research is helping the study of mental illness is told in the following articles on the human mind.)

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

NEW YORK (AP)—Deep within your brain may lie groups of brain cells that could give magnificent feelings of bliss and pleasure.

These and such amazing "pleasure centres" have been found in rats' brains.

Activate a pleasure centre with a tiny electric shock, and even a very hungry rat likes the result better than eating. The feelings can gratify the drives for hunger, thirst and sex.

Arrange the set-up so the rat can press a lever. Every time he will do it up to 5,000 times an hour. Some rats stimulated themselves 2,000 times an hour for 24 hours.

But produce the shocks in nearby brain areas, and it hurts. The shocks in different parts of human brains have frightened people, or given them hallucinations, or warm, pleasant sensations, or made them more friendly and talkative.

Flees in Shower of Bullets But Convict's Freedom Brief

MONTREAL (CP)—A 44-year-old convict who fled the penitentiary at nearby St. Vincent-de-Paul in a shower of bullets was recaptured, injured and lodged in early today.

Marcel Aveline had only eight hours of freedom after he tricked a new guard into allowing him into the prison tower and fled to a nearby highway. He stole and wrecked a station wagon and hid for six hours with an elderly resident of St. Eustache-sur-le Lac, 10 miles west of here, before being caught in a freight yard.

Aveline, serving an indefinite term as an habitual criminal, and two other hardened convicts attempted the escape after forcing a prison guard at dagger point to undress and give them his uniform.

Aveline donned the uniform and gained entrance to the prison tower. After disarming the tower guard he signalled the two other men to scale the wall. Both failed to escape.

Gerard Seguin, 37, serving an 18-year term for armed robbery, sprained his ankle jumping from the wall and was captured immediately. Roy Culligan, 35, serving a life sentence for manslaughter in connection with the bludgeon slaying of T. J. McCarthy, prominent Montreal restaurateur, gave up when the guards opened up with machine guns.

But despite the bullets, Aveline made his way to the highway and stole a station wagon, believed to belong to one of the guards. With provincial police and a prison guard in pursuit and firing, he drove at 100 miles an hour to St. Eustache, where he wrecked the vehicle and had to abandon it. He fled on foot pistol in hand.

More than 75 policemen and guards formed a cordon around the area but Aveline holed up with 73-year-old James Silcock, posing as a provincial policeman who had had an accident and was waiting for someone to pick him up. He had an injured ankle and was bleeding from the nose after the accident.

"After a while, I began to get suspicious because he wouldn't let me leave the car door," Silcock told police. "Then I heard a radio broadcast about the convict escape and figured this might be the man."

Aveline, my wife is 68 years old and has a heart condition and I didn't want to do anything to cause her grief. So I played along with him.

After about six hours at the house, Aveline borrowed some civilian clothes and left, taking Silcock's car. Police, who surrounded him in a freight yard. He gave up quietly.

Greeks Reject NATO Offer To Mediate for Cyprus Peace

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Greek Cypriots and the Greek government have rejected a British-approved offer by NATO to mediate for peace on Cyprus.

Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd told the House of Commons Wednesday that Britain is willing to let NATO try to settle the controversy over the Mediterranean British colony in the Mediterranean. The offer was the latest effort at reconciliation among Britain, Greece and Turkey—all NATO members.

Within hours, Greek and Greek Cypriot leaders declared their opposition.

The Turkish government made no official statement but sources close to the foreign ministry said Turkey would welcome NATO consideration. The sources added that Turkish delegates at the UN already had discussed the issue.

Most of the 400,000 Greek Cypriots want Cyprus united with Greece. Some 100,000 Turkish Cypriots oppose this.

Mayor Themistocles N. Dervis of Nicosia said that "The Cyprus problem is not a question of negotiations among the governments of Greece, Turkey and Great Britain, but one which affects the peaceful self-determination of Cyprus."

"It should," he said, "be settled by the Cypriots themselves." Archbishop Makarios, the representative of the Greek Cypriot people, announced in Athens that the archbishop should be freed from exile on the Seychelles Islands unconditionally in order to resume negotiations with the British government."

EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground movement, has offered a truce if its underground war if Britain would end Archbishop's Indian exile. But Lennox-Boyd said he will only tell Parliament that Makarios is free to go wherever he likes if he would call a halt to the anti-British violence on Cyprus. But he added: "Britain could not return to the island, where the British people helped direct the Greek campaign.

In Athens, Premier Constantine Karamanlis attacked Britain's acceptance of the NATO conciliation offer. He said it ignored a UN General Assembly resolution, passed last fall, calling for a hearing for resumed negotiations and aimed at striking democratic solution on the island.

Egyptian-Israeli Statement Of Non-Belligerency Sought

CAIRO (AP) — UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today began talks with Egyptian officials in an effort to get an agreement on operation of the Suez Canal and to ease Arab-Israeli tensions still threatening the Middle East with violence.

Arriving in Cairo after midnight by plane, Hammarskjold talked with his aides, rested briefly in his hotel and then went to see Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi.

The secretary-general was to call on President Nasser later today.

Egypt was expected to balk at the plan Hammarskjold has reported to be planning to make for an Egyptian-Israeli proclamation of non-belligerency.

While the Israelis have said all along they are ready to talk peace with the Arab states, only the Arab allies of the 1948 Palestine war have used the controlling technical state of war as a basis for their economic boycott of Israel and their refusal to let Israeli ships use the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba.

Hammarskjold was met by UN officials who have been stationed on the troubled scene, including Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commander of the UN Emergency Force; Undersecretary Ralph Bunche and Dr. Raymond A. Wheeler, UN chief of the Suez Canal clearance operations.

A UN press spokesman said he did not know whether Hammarskjold would visit the canal area and the Gaza Strip or how long he would remain in Egypt.

For the Gaza Strip, Hammarskjold was expected to try to work out a plan like that worked for the Mediterranean coastal area militarily while leaving it under Egyptian administration. It now serves as the stationing of UNEF troops along both sides of the armistice demarcation line in Israel, a proposal Israel rejected previously in regard to its territory.

Sources in Tucker's Town, Bermuda, where Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower are meeting, said Britain now believes it might help ease tension if Israel would accept the placing of UNEF troops further east on her frontier points inside Israeli territory.

Although Egypt so far has not sent combat forces into Gaza, their presence, consisting of their positions inside the strip Wednesday and moves further reinforce their lines along the frontier.

Twenty Toronto Policemen Quell Twelve Rioters

TORONTO (CP) — Three men and two women were arrested early today after 20 policemen quelled a riot near Queen and Bathurst Streets in midtown Toronto.

Police said about 200 onlookers watched as police separated the rioters in a half-hour battle.

Officers said "the fight started in a grill when an unknown woman punched her male friend in the nose after accusing him of stealing her liquor permit. In minutes most of the patrons were involved in a brawl that spilled into the street.

HOUSE RESUMES BUDGET DEBATE. MAY CLOSE SOON

Likely to Dissolve End of Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons members today resume the budget debate in the expectation that the current session of Parliament will not last much beyond the end of next week.

General speculation on Parliament Hill has been that dissolution will come in late March or early April to be followed by a federal general election in June.

Finance Minister Harris last weight to the speculation in the Commons Wednesday when he mentioned that the session "appears to be drawing to a close." He was asked by J. J. Brooks (PC—Royal) whether legislation will be brought down this session to change welfare and veterans statutes involved in Wednesday's pension announced in Mr. Harris' budget last week.

HAVING IN MIND

Mr. Harris replied that the government "will do what it can to make provision for the additional payments which will take effect July 1, and the method of which will be considered carefully, having in mind the timetable of the new session as it appears to be drawing to a close."

Outside the Commons, Mr. Harris said the government could ask Parliament to vote money to cover the payments for the autumn. Parliament, which would then sit for only a few days this session, then would have an opportunity to amend the statutes on a permanent basis.

Apart from the $6 old age pension increase, Wednesday's budget proposed similar increases in blind persons' allowances, paid to needy persons between 65 and 69, the disabled and the blind. Veterans' benefits and family allowances also would be increased.

Today will be the second of a possible maximum eight days allocated for the budget debate, a period Commons is not restricted to the budget itself.

GOVERNMENT BILL

Donald Fleming (PC — Toronto Eglinton) Wednesday charged the government has failed to hide overtaxation of the people by the transfers of federal tax revenues to the civil service superannuation account and to a reserve for defence projects, capital assets.

On transfers, he said as the Commons approved final supplementary estimates of $1,000,000,000, there was no effect that the government's surplus for the year would be reduced by the transfers of $382,000,000 to the defence account.

"It is time," he wondered at that this stratagem is resorted to on the eve of an election," Mr. Fleming said, describing the transfers as a "political manoeuvre" to hide over-taxation.

The transfers merely meant that the taxes were collected, but they did not change the government's financial position.

Mr. Harris replied that if the transfers had been budgeted as a part of the year, the total amount of tax revenues would not be changed. Through the system of end-of-the-year transfers, the government was merely making transfers in years when its revenues were not so large.

Canada Backing British View UN Role Is Limited

Must Not Be Entrusted With All World Problems

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (CP)—Ready Canadian support of a British contention that the United Nations must not be entrusted with all crucial world problems was anticipated today as Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower held the first formal session of their Bermuda conversations.

The British and American leaders met in the boardroom of the Mid-Ocean Club, the exclusive hostelry where they held an informal dinner talk Wednesday night on the range of global problems they will tackle during the rest of the week-end.

The Middle East crisis was announced as the most urgent issue on the agenda as Macmillan and Eisenhower formally began their talks at 9:30 a.m.

(Reuters news agency said a possible boycott of the Suez Canal should Egypt discriminate against British and French shipping will be among measures to be considered. Britain was understood to put forward the idea in a proposal.)

A conference spokesman said the two statesmen opened formal discussions this morning with short opening statements as general lines then went on to the Middle East.

Canadian officials here in advance of the talks starting Monday have made it clear that Prime Minister St. Laurent were the Commons called his attention that the future of the UN will be a prime topic of the Anglo-American conference called to heal wounds in relations suffered during the Suez crisis.

But they are prepared to discuss the UN thoroughly, even though Anglo-Canadian trade will be the chief subject of the St. Laurent-Macmillan talks, together which follows the Big Two talks.

In the Canadian view, the British feel isolated not only from the United States but also to some extent from the Commonwealth as a result of the Anglo-French military intervention in the Suez Canal Zone last fall. They feel frustrated it is said here, by the Commonwealth double standard in the U.N. That is, Britain obeyed the UN's wishes in withdrawing its troops while countries such as Russia and Egypt continue to defy the UN and even treat them with contempt.

It is understood that Macmillan doesn't feel there is a genuine revision of the UN charter, but that he will point out to Eisenhower that complete reliance cannot be placed on the UN to solve difficult world problems.

Noranda Miners Support Gaspe Copper Strike

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)—Smouldering labor problems in this Gaspe Peninsula mining centre are threatening to spread to Noranda in Northwestern Quebec.

Noranda and Murdochville locals of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) have agreed to act together in an effort to settle a strike here which has shut down operations at Gaspe copper mines since March 11.

Roger Richard, spokesman for the Murdochville local, said Wednesday the 1,800 men employed at Noranda Mines have agreed not to sign a new labor contract until Gaspe Copper Mines Ltd. signs the strike. Gaspe Copper is a subsidiary of Noranda Mines.

Murdochville and Noranda, which have been brewing for more than a year, stem from the two union as bargaining agent for the workers.

Teen-age Chicago Gangs Producing Headlines Like Mobsters of Past

CHICAGO (AP) — Teen-age gangs now are producing Chicago headlines of the same type the adult mobsters did in the past.

The headlines are over stories of crimes of violence—such as the shotgun slaying of a boy in a hamburger attack and a man in a motel robbery.

"There's no use burying our heads in the sand," said Walter Deverenx, chief investigator of the Chicago crime commission. "This city is not safe to roam in and it's getting worse."

The police juvenile division says the startling 1956 13,429 cases were noted.

Thirteen white youths are under indictment for murder in the gunmurder-slaying of Alvin Palmer, a Negro teen-ager who was attacked as he stood at a bus stop. Four other teen-agers have been indicted for murder in the fatal shooting of Emmett Kelly, 17, during a robbery of his suburban motel.

A crime official recently summed up the situation this way:

"You can't blame the police. There aren't enough police to go around. You can't blame the courts. They're overcrowded and they can't get witnesses to testify. You can't blame storekeepers and shop owners for not signing complaints or testifying against them. They know they'll get brick or bullets through their windows. You can't blame hoodlums or kingpins—and the only people you can blame are their parents."

FAILS TO HEED HIS OWN ADVICE

The old story about the man who was always urging others to take certain action that he failed to heed his own advice might well describe a certain local man today who found himself in the bad graces of the law for failure to purchase his 1956 auto markers.

During the course of his day's work the gentleman last mentioned was heard frequently urging motorists to acquire their auto markers before the March 14th deadline.

Yesterday the man was stopped by police for having 1956 markers still displayed on the rear of his motorcar and also charged for not having his 1957 operator's license.

Mayor, Council of Progressive Middleton Park Put Particular Stress on Beauty, Playgrounds

TRENTON (Special) — Middleton Park at the front doorstep of Trenton can claim to be the second largest town in the Trent Valley district. It can also boast about its popular Chief Magistrate and he believes some of the enthusiasm rubbed off on him. He is finishing his 20th year with the air force and will tell you he has liked every minute of it.

It was while S/L Piroth was Commanding Officer at RCAF Station Uplands that he became involved in municipal affairs. He continued to follow this interest as Chief Administration Officer at RCAF Station, Summerside, P.E.I. Ever since he's devoted much of his spare time in the administration of affairs for fellow airmen and their families.

Presently S/L Piroth is a Personnel Staff Officer at Station Trenton.

If you meet his wife Madeline you'll probably recognize her. In any event you've heard of her father Fred Ward, Q.C. prominent Picton lawyer. The Piroths live quietly at 8A Hewson Boulevard, Middleton Park. They have two children, Peter and Marilyn.

And before you finish your talk with Mayor Piroth you'll learn that he is proud to tell you Middleton Park has its own milk and bread delivery and a modern geriatric service available to Park housewives.

Collision Causes $300 Damage

Damage of approximately $300 to two vehicles resulted Wednesday night in a two-car collision on the east approach to the Bay bridge Road. Provincial Police said that cars driven by Arthur McCaffery of Corbyville, and Robert Hanthorn of Carrying Place were involved.

Mr. McCaffery was reported northbound when cars in front of him braked suddenly. He applied his own brakes but his car skidded out of control into the path of the approaching auto driven by Mr. Hanthorn.

Three Papers, Radio Station, CBC Summoned

TORONTO (CP)—The three Toronto daily newspapers, the CBC and radio station CKEY Wednesday were served with summonses charging violation of the Lord's Day Act in Sunday operations.

The summonses, issued by Justice of the Peace James Rennicks, on instructions of Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario, call upon them to appear in court April 3 to answer the charges.

The newspapers are The Telegram, the Toronto Star and The Globe and Mail.

Mr. Roberts said Wednesday he was not sure whether the five organizations will be charged jointly or separately.

"That would be up to the courts and counsel and it would be most improper for me to comment," he said.

Mr. Roberts announced in the legislature Tuesday that he has instructed officials of the crown to take action against The Telegram, under the Lord's Day Act, for publishing a Sunday newspaper.

The Telegram launched a Sunday edition of the newspapers last weekend.

Farm Federation Meeting Hears James Jacklin

The Sidney, Thurlow and Tyendinaga Federation of Agriculture held a meeting recently at Cannifton with a rather small, but enthusiastic gathering.

Mr. Percy Ray, president of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture, introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. James Jacklin, of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

To begin his speech, Mr. Jacklin pointed out that the Ontario Federation of Agriculture has been in existence for some 30 years and that it now represents 104 farm organizations in Ontario from commodity groups to Women's Institute, Junior Farmers and county associations.

Each year the Ontario Federation of Agriculture presents a brief to the Ontario Legislature and the Federal Government, putting forth the wishes of the groups it represents and always is well received by the two governments.

OPEN HOG MARKET

Mr. Jacklin mentioned how the Counties of Grey and Bruce last year voted to put their hogs on the "open market" and through their actions the price of hogs stayed up last year, even though more hogs were marketed than ever before excluding 1953.

The counties of Grey and Bruce are now using television time and have thus become the first farm organization to use this medium of advertising.

Also speaking at the meeting were Mr. Percy Ray, president of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture; Mr. Roy Sills, vice-president of the Hastings County Hog Producers Association, Mr. Les Grills and Mr. A. O. Dalrymple.

Mr. Les Grills stated that perseverance had built his business from a small beginning and so must the federation use the same principle to make it a success.

The ladies served tasty refreshments at the close of the meeting.

New Telephone Directory in Mails Next Week

Residents and businessmen of Belleville and vicinity will receive a heavier-than-normal mail next week. The mailman's extra load will be caused by the distribution of the new telephone directory, a book which contains more than 12,500 new and changed listings.

"The 1957 directory will become effective on April 7 and subscribers could save themselves time and possibly the trouble of ringing incorrect numbers by using it only after that date," G. W. Proctor, Bell Telephone manager here, said today.

The manager also suggested that telephone users avail themselves of the blue book of telephone numbers, which can be obtained free at the Bell business office, to keep an up-to-date list of local and out-of-town numbers most frequently called. Blue books come in both regular and pocket sizes.

The new telephone directory includes listings of customers in Trenton, Madoc, Marmora, Picton, Stirling, Tweed and the surrounding territory, as well of those of Belleville.

Distribution of this year's issue will amount to 29,358 copies, an increase of more than 1,700 over last year. In Belleville alone the post office will distribute 12,900 copies of the new directory, which represents an increase of 900 copies over the 1956 total.

Jack Fullerton Heads City Softball League

Jack Fullerton of the Provincial Police, Belleville detachment, was named president of the City Softball League at the election of officers held last night.

Constable Fullerton succeeds Bob Bland as president in the league's second year of operation.

Bob Tulloch of Bell Telephone will fill the vice - president's office for the 1957 season, replacing Ray Kowal.

Bill Muirhead of I.A.C. was elected secretary - treasurer when Leroy McBrien, who handled the job last season, resigned.

Nine teams are expected to compose the league at the present time. They are: Loblaws, Police, A. and P., The Banks, Meat Johnson, Corbin Lock, Bell Telephone, Brown's Bread and the Bakelite-I.A.C. Combines.

The entry deadline is Monday, April 1st. All teams must have the $15.00 entry fee in secretary Mulrhead's hands by that date.

Spring Floods Not Likely Say Officials

Waters of the district are very low and unless there is a large amount of snowfall or rain, there will be no spring floods, according to officials of the Department of Lands and Forests at Tweed.

In a district roundup, the officials report plenty of signs of spring in the district. Redwing blackbirds which have frequented Prince Edward County for some time are now seen in northern parts of the district. Sap buckets are making their appearance and robins and killdeer plover are more or less numerous.

Muskrat trapping is under way, but officials do not anticipate a good catch. The animals have decreased in numbers along with the price of pelts.

Conservation officers of the department are readying for the annual duck census. They ask full co-operation from all sportsmen to see that the fish are not molested in any way during their spawning activities.

THE NEW MUNICIPAL TAX SYSTEM

This year Belleville has two tax rates, 74½ mills and 61½ mills.

Different tax rates on property in the same municipality are not unique. Such situations have arisen frequently in the past, but they have been the result of different rates for public school and separate school supporters.

This year the difference in rates here is not based on the religious affiliations of property owners, but on the nature of the properties taxed.

As the result of new grants from the Ontario government, not only Belleville but all Ontario municipalities will have different tax rates for residential property and for commercial and industrial property. The Ontario grants are to be used to reduce taxes on residential property only.

Since the possibility of differences between the public and separate school rates still exists, this means that there could easily be four rates in a community, one rate for residential property of public school supporters, another for residential property of separate school supporters, a third for commercial property of public school supporters and a fourth for commercial property of separate school supporters. Indeed, a fifth rate is possible, for urban municipalities have the power to exempt agricultural land within their borders from certain taxes. All these various rates may be further varied by local improvement taxes.

The possibility of a variety of tax rates may strike some observers as a drawback from the new grant system. More important, though, would be any wide variation in the differential between residential and commercial rates in different municipalities of similar size and nature.

It just so happened that the same day that Belleville struck its tax rates, Owen Sound also set its rates.

Here in Belleville the rate for residential property was reduced by 3½ mills from last year's rate, while the rate on commercial property was increased by 3½ mills. There is thus a 7-mill spread between the two rates. Or, to put it another way, the rate of 74.5 mills represents 91.4 per cent of the commercial rate of 81.5 mills.

Owen Sounders were not so lucky. The residential rate remained unchanged, at 74 mills, while the commercial rate was increased to 79 mills. The spread, though, is practically the same as Belleville, 7½ mills, but the residential tax represents a somewhat lower percentage, 90.5 per cent, of the commercial rate.

The difference in the differential of the residential and commercial rates as between Owen Sound and Belleville is therefore negligible. If, over a period of years, one city consistently keeps the spread between the two tax rates at a lower figure than other centres, it may indicate that industry is attracted to it. How speed between the two rates may not be indicative of any real tax advantage, rates may not be indicative of any real tax advantage, but, human nature being what it is, it would appear likely that owners of commercial property are going to be quite conscious of differences in the two rates.

One would not suppose that the grant structure would result in different tax rates and decisive differences in the spread as to make likely any considerable differentials in rates in different municipalities. However, few municipalities have yet set their tax rates under the new system and this will be a point which will bear watching.

It will be a year or so at the least before events have made it possible to judge the full extent of the advantages and disadvantages of the new system.

TRADE EGGS IN ONE BASKET

A release from the Federal Department of Trade and Commerce says that "the United States was again Canada's leading trade partner in 1956."

Accompanying statistics amply prove this statement. The figures show three-fifths of our total exports and supplied almost three quarters of our imports.

The role of the U.S. in Canada's foreign trade is so important that our economy is almost dependent on it as it is on the domestic market.

That ought to cause us to ponder.

Our trade barely controlled over certain economic factors which influence the domestic market. No such control is exercised by them over factors which could affect the U.S. market.

In other words, out dependence on the U.S. both as a market for the goods we produce and as a supplier of the goods we need, lies our economy to the caprice of foreign buyers and places our fortunes in the hands of a government over which we have no control and in whose actions we have no voice.

It should be granted that, not only is this not a new situation as far as Canada is concerned, but that the same thing holds true, to a lesser degree, for all other nations.

The depression of the late 'twenties proved conclusively that no country can escape the effects of economic distress in other countries.

But, while it is impossible for any country to isolate its economy from the world as a whole, and particularly ridiculous for any country depending on foreign trade to the extent which Canada does for a substantial part of hers, it is still true that a grave danger in putting all our trade eggs into one basket.

That statement has been made many times, over many years, by many writers, but it is one we should do well to hear in mind. Everything possible ought to be done not only to obtain alternative markets for the goods we produce, but also to secure alternative sources of supply.

One process has the advantage of fulfilling both these needs at the same time. That is the manufacturing here out of raw materials which we now export to the U.S. so that that country can make the goods we later buy.

"T"

The pronoun I may mark the bore,
Too often used and sadly frayed,
Than one who knows it sounds no more
When final count is being made.

By persons who employ it most
I, frequently, is apt to be
The preface to an idle boast
With which we may or not agree.

The pronoun I is worn and thin,
And needs from all of us a rest.

A word of cheer for those who win
May show the loser at his best.

Let's spare the pronouns I and me,
From pleasant speech let them retire,
And in our conduct try to be
The sort of people friends admire.

We, not at best a selfish lot,
But if we'd keep the common touch
And live our creeds, perhaps we'd not Abuse the pronoun I so much.

Farms Fewer But Better

Ottawa Journal

There were fewer farms, fewer farmers and fewer men under cultivation in Canada last year than five years ago, says Dominion Bureau of Statistics in the authority. Yet we still hear of surplus food products, of a mountain of unsold wheat on the Prairies, and no very noticeable increase in the food prices we are taken place. Also there has been a steady increase in the population of Canada's population in those five years and a high level of prosperity.

While industry everywhere has been doing up new buildings and hiring armies of new workers, all of whom buy more food, it seems possible that fewer people are actually producing the increased quantities of cereals, meats and dairy products that must have been required. If fewer people have been produced in those five years scarcity and luxury prices would have been inevitable.

This seeming paradox comes from a change in circumstances. The Gordon Commission report in 1925 showed that then and thereafter the trend in the years ahead farmers would become an increasingly smaller percentage of Canada's total population. Actual decline in the number of farmers compared to urban dwellers started in the Eastern provinces many years ago. Yet there has been no scarcity of food and none is foreseeable. The farmer has accepted and practised automation. He has also adopted scientific methods of production which enable him to grow two blades of grass grow where only one grew before. Modern science farm, which barely supported those who lived on it, has become mostly a mechanical job of farming as "a way of life" has given place to farming as a business. Rust-resistant and early-maturing grains have become commonplace. Better animals, higher producing strains of dairy cattle, have become a must. In short, the farmer has either adopted scientific methods and mechanization—or has looked for a job elsewhere. Agriculture has become a highly specialized and machine-wise business.

True not all farms are in this category. Like the fast-vanishing corner store there are still those who prod along as their fathers did. But farmers who can afford to plod are becoming fewer every year and those who have kept pace by modern methods are easily able to produce more with less manpower and fewer acres.

Farming has come along just as far as modern business and the machine age.

Second Best Selling Book

Timmins Daily Press

We have on occasion referred to the Bible as the world's best seller. But few readers in Canada are familiar with the second best.

That second best seller is a time honored institution called "Moore's Almanac," which is circulated on this side of the Atlantic by the thousands and for British readers.

Francis Moore, originator of the publication, was born at Bridgenorth, in Shropshire, on January 29, 1657—slightly more than three centuries ago. His parents were very poor and he had no early education, he educated himself as best he could.

Going to London he became a cobbler of sorts, but not the sort of cobbler his employer could boast of.

A row resulted, and Moore finally himself out of a job and having studied medicine from books he began to dabble and found himself a physician, astrologer and schoolmaster.

He published a small booklet, chiefly to advertise his medicines, but included also a few long-range weather predictions.

Some of the predictions seem to have hit the mark; so, year by year, he added to the booklet until urging people to buy his medicines, and including an increasing number of predictions, a fair share of which came true.

Moore apparently vanished from the scene. There were, in fact, those who thought him dead in time to time. Eventually the medical portion of the publication was dropped, and Old Moore's Almanac kept going, to marvel at the accuracy of predictions and general information and thus to keep its author's name alive. Among its more recent achievements, Old Moore's Almanac, months before the event, correctly predicted the general strike in Britain, even to the setting the exact day. In the 1936 issue Old Moore predicted the abdication of Edward VIII, which occurred in December.

In the Old Country, Old Moore's Almanac, after 300 years, is a well-established institution.

He Projects Personality

Brockville Recorder and Times

The announcement that the Edgar Bergen television quiz show "Can You Tame Your Wife?" will soon go off the air may not be taken as indicating a decrease in the world's shaking event—but it at least affords an opportunity to pause a bit and discuss the relative merits of the famous Bergen as a ventriloquist.

Edgar Bergen, long ago back in the early days of radio, established himself as probably the world's best known ventriloquist—but it wasn't until a little more than a year ago that he gained any prominence in television. During his years on radio Bergen, with an unseen audience, felt into the habit of letting his lips move when his characters were "talking". Such a habit is easily spotted on television, it was felt, which accounted for his long delay in entering video.

But once the plunge was taken, the audience soon became absorbed in the personalities of the characters—Charlie McCarthy, Mortimer Snerd and Effie Clinker — that they hardly noticed whether Bergen moved his lips or not. He even turned this fault into a joke, as scarcely a program went by that poor Bergen wasn't reminded by one of his "dummies" to move his mouth a little more.

There are many other talented ventriloquists who frequently appear on television. They constantly assure their audience of their ability to keep a straight face—or a stiff upper lip, as the case may be — but their dummies are sadly lacking in personality as compared to Bergen's. Mortimer or Effie. The secret of Bergen's personality projection has been, not so much his ability as a ventriloquist, but his powers of projecting person and life into the wooden dummies to such an extent that they seem almost human.

This particular television program, which has managed to run up several husband and wife radio teams, has developed considerable incomes for many years into the future, has been a combination of human and dummy. There have been those in the steering and control channels that Bergen has injected too many off-color jokes through the mouths of his dummies, but even the whole it has been a good half hour of entertainment commercials included — coming as a bit of relief after the nerve-wracking $64,000 Question.

Ever Hear Cabbage Cry?

Hamilton Spectator

A folklore character who has almost faded from the modern scene is the henpecked man, the husband who just can't do anything in the house, and the poor bachelor who "can't boil water without burning it." It is a happy little figure, particularly for husbands. By mutual consent feminine science and masculine are something near to the necromancer's art and quite outside the range of human capability. Electrification of the home and the wife who goes out to work have blown the fable sky high.

Marius Pope, a British journalist and bachelor, has got proof of his abilities in the kitchen, has published it in a book, and which is fair enough for the culinary art (and don't mean fine cooking) and bolting, the individual art displayed by the real chef with an International outlook) requires the senses perhaps more than it does quantitative measurement and precise timing.

The late Sir Jogendra C. Bhose, the Indian scientist, did a considerable amount of research work with vegetables and flowers. He discovered, for example, that the edible cabbage, when plunged into boiling water, reacted so violently that it emitted certain elements that he believed it "screamed". He conducted similar experiments on various vegetables to measure what he called their "sensitiveness".

Bhose was able to prove conclusively that trees, lilies and flowers reacted to the passing of a small cloud in a clear sky above them, so that they communicated one with another. This was, of course, a confirmation of a logic belief in his own country that flowers "responded" to human sympathy. It supported Mr. Pope listens for "saucepan hymns". He probably waits for that precise moment—and there is only one— when his instinct tells him to remove the pan.

20 YEARS AGO

MARCH 31, 1907

Mr. Leslie Woodley is home from Hamilton to spend the weekend.

Mr. Bert VanAllan is home, from Queen's University, Kingston, to spend the weekend at his home on Dundas street.

Mrs. Arthur Webster of Toronto is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Ed. Ketchesson, East Bridge street.

Today is officially the first day of spring. Yesterday, however, there was a snow storm which looked as though it might develop into a full March lion before it did not. Dilling last night the temperature rose to 60 degrees and by 10 p.m. it was necessary for the public to open their windows. Illies are showing signs of life and the robins have been in the city for some days.

Bhose was able to prove conclusively that trees, lilies and flowers reacted to the passing of a small cloud in a clear sky above them, so that they communicated one with another. This was, of course, a confirmation of a logic belief in his own country that flowers "responded" to human sympathy. It supported Mr. Pope listens for "saucepan hymns". He probably waits for that precise moment—and there is only one— when his instinct tells him to remove the pan.

Steam Kettle Falderal

Old, old timers will remember how persons with consumption used to keep room, home and neighborhood perfumed with creosote — that powerful antiseptic that would kill any microbes it could reach. Of course, it couldn't reach the tubercle bacilli that had invaded lung tissue.

From time to time some knowing person tells me how to save life by putting the child with croup under a tent and pumping the tent full of vapor from a croup kettle or steam kettle.

In my horse-and-buggy days, I found simpler treatment far more effective than all this steam-kettle or croup-kettle falderal. Just let the child breathe cool or cold damp night air.

If cool or cold, damp night air is not available, the next best thing is humidified air. The indoor atmosphere, however heated, should be kept moist and conditioned by evaporating not less than a gallon of water for each room every day the house is heated.

I believe proper air conditioning, keeping the heated air properly moist or humid, is effective in preventing and relieving croup or other troubles for which steam inhalers or tents or vaporizers were formerly used.

From observation and experience, I am convinced that steam kettle falderal belongs in the museum alongside liver pills, leeches, nightcaps and pneumonia jackets.

Breathing cool of cold, damp night air proved beneficial whenever croup, bronchitis, pneumonia or laryngitis patients or their families had enough confidence in my judgment to go along with what probably seemed a dangerous experiment. Provided that the patient is comfortably warm, breathing such air is a remarkably soothing, sedative, restful and conducive to quiet sleep.

Strength for The Day

NO WHINING PLEASE

A man whose life had meant much to the up-building of a certain educational institution died a few months ago. He left a letter received from his daughter occurred these words:

"My father never felt that the institution he served owed him anything. He impressed upon mother and me many times over, that we were not to mention the 'passing of the hat' among the members of the school family for him. He felt it a great honor, sense of gratitude for the happy, comfortable life, the fine friends and associates he was privileged to enjoy because of his connection with this educational institution."

Nobody owed this valiant man a living! How different from much of the whining we hear today. "I don't get a square deal." The rich guys and people who have the good luck always come out on top."

"If I hadn't had a dirty deal all along the line, I might have amounted to something."

And over this unwholesome chatter there hangs a cloud of gloom.

"Nobody owes me anything. It was a privilege to do the things I did. I am grateful for the fine friends and the privileges of many years."

The world has no place for whiners. Christians and dissent? Yes, but not whining.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Life is a many-splintered thing. One of my cronies who has always been head over heels in debt was in a position the other day to give me three years ago in the confessional spirit that is engendered on Canadian Thanksgiving.

Counting the mortgages on his small home, his borrowings on his modest insurance policies and his consolidated debts, at the time he was close to $7,000 in the hole.

Today he is up-to-date or as near to it as possible.

Mr. William Bonter, Reeve of Marmora and Lake was in town today.

Sasquatch Musings

Quebec Chronicle-Telegram

A young anthropologist thinks that the perfect way to celebrate Dominion Day would be to send a party of scientists into the Canadian Rockies to track down the sasquatch, a primitive giant said to inhabit BC's remote mountain area. The sasquatch has been reported by the Indians of the Lumby-Vernon area for generations. The fact that this area adjoins the lake district of Okanagan is a solid court may or may not have something to do with the sasquatch legend.

Legend or not, it is an interesting story. There can be little doubt that somewhere a living sasquatch would bring fame to the Dominion. But would know we hope they don't find him. If there is a sasquatch, we hope he will remain where he is and not goes after him.

Discovery of the sasquatch could pose a real problem for Canada. It is to be presumed that he has been in the area a long time and could make him the original owner of such there be.

We have all respect for anthropology. The discovery of a primitive man might add to our store of knowledge. But we have yet to be convinced that our knowledge gained it worth the invasion of privacy of this particular tribe. We seem to have come far short in our treatment of Canada's Indians. We should commute out to the hairy sasquatch!

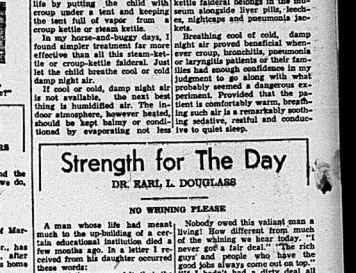
Our suggestion is that we leave the sasquatch alone. We have so little to offer him. If he exists, he should be happy in his mountain quarters. If he were not happy, there can be no doubt that he would spread further afield in search of grosser pastures. Since he chooses to inhabit his mountain fortress, and spurn our so-called advantages of civilization, let him be.

In many ways, the sasquatch is more valuable as a legend. Like Ogopogo in his lake, he can provide many timeless stories of the mysterious in which he is reported to have shown his face.

Harbingers Of Spring

Louisville Courier-Journal

Our hearts go out at this time of year to those indomitable, golden-headed little harbingers of spring, the crocuses, butter-cups and daffodils that push their blooms into the air to brighten the drab surface of our lawn and garden with splashes of color. As long the hedge-row and the terrace wall they should be proud in their early, so brave in the uncertain air.



Then the window we watch them with the nervous and helpless concern of children watching a young bird flown too early from the nest. Can they survive the late frosts, alas? Or have they been betrayed by that agent of treachery that, stirred their sleeping roots and sent them surging upward into the dim sunlight, to be cut down by the frost as the too-adventurous robin, too early from the soon, falls victim to the cat?

Each morning we look out to see how they have fared, and gone sole sorrowfully with the thought that perhaps they have a purpose, even if they die to serve it. At this dull time of year, before the golden splendor of the wall of winter, we need a little show of bravery, of spirit, some small reminder that it won't be long until the winds will soften and the sun will shine and around us life will come bursting through a puff of spring.

Return to Europe

Growing Inflation Disturbing To Complacent Dutch People

The sign on the airport control tower stated only "Elevation four-ty feet below sea level." But this is sufficient proof to me that I did only be in one country — Holland. However, such a sign might well be tacked up all over the country, since there are many houses which are indeed below the level of the sea, and it is no uncommon sight to look out of a second storey window and see a barge go chugging by at exactly the same level. I think I would be inclined to keep a spare row-boat handy in case the dike broke, but the Dutch seem to have all the confidence in the world in their dikes. At least, no extra row-boats are in evidence.

Much as I like Switzerland with all its mountains, it is a pleasant change to spend some time in The Netherlands. The country is really flat, but it must be admitted that there are a few hills scattered about, especially in the south. However, I rather imagine that a true Dutchman feels rather uneasy about having these hills in his country and wishes they would just get up and go away.

DUTCH HOSPITALITY

Another thing I always look forward to when coming to Holland is the wonderful Dutch hospitality, and I know no other country in Europe where Canadians would feel so much at home. If you don't speak Dutch you need not worry too much since so many people here speak English that you will have no trouble at all. And if by some chance you already speak Dutch, well so much the better.

But first a few impressions of the country. You have probably seen many pictures of Dutchmen walking about in wooden shoes. That is true, many of them do, and not just to satisfy the tourist trade. This does not mean that you can expect to see them walking down the main street of Amsterdam, but it is no uncommon sight to see the farmers or fishermend tomping about in them. Often, if you go up to a Dutch farm house, you will see a whole row of these shoes — from the very small ones for the children to the very large ones for the father. They are always left outside which accounts partly for the fact that Dutch houses always seem so clean. The only thing is that these shoes are pretty hard on socks, although I hardly think that a Dutch housewife who can't mend socks well can be sued for divorce.

The Dutch are the greatest people in Europe for riding bicycles. If you want to get an idea how dense the traffic can get, just stand near a busy street at five o'clock when everyone is getting out of work, and you will see what I mean. In fact, it gets so bad at times here that I am more afraid of being hit by a bicycle than I am by a car. But all this does not mean that traffic becomes hopelessly snarled since all over the country there are excellent bicycle paths which keep the cyclists off the roads.

EVERYBODY RIDES

Everybody rides here, even grandmothers and mothers-in-law, and you can often see a woman riding along with her three-year-old child seated over the rear fender. This love of cycling extends right up to the Dutch royal family, and it was not so long ago that Queen Juliana decided to cycle to church. Try as I might, I just can't seem to imagine a royal family in England doing the same thing.

As you can well imagine there are canals all over the country, and Amsterdam is often called "Venice of the North. Because of all this water it is obligatory for Dutch school children to take swimming lessons, and not only that, they have to pass an examination in this subject.

For anybody who might someday want to learn Dutch, I can assure you it is not a difficult language to learn — in fact it is the closest language to English there is. Were you to pick up a Dutch newspaper or book, I'm sure there would be many words you would recognize. However, it is also considerable like German, and the pronunciation is quite difficult for English-speaking people. My Dutch friends still laugh sometimes at my attempts to imitate the gutteral sounds. I have often wondered which language might be considered more gutteral — Swiss German or Dutch, but the other day one of my Dutch friends said he thought Swiss German sounded quite soft compared to his language. So if a Dutchman is willing to admit his own language is harsh, I guess it must be.

NAME PLATES

In attending church services last Sunday at a nearby Dutch Reformed Church, I was quite surprised to find name plates on the seats — a practice, I believe, which has just about disappeared in Canada. I was told that each member of the congregation may have a seat continually reserved for him upon payment of a small fee. This seat will be reserved until five minutes before the start of the service, at which time, it may be occupied by any other member of the congregation who has had to remain standing until that time.

Holland has been blessed with a rather stable government since the end of the war, and in spite of having lost almost all her overseas empire, has made a remarkable recovery. However, Mr. Drees and his cabinet have been in for an increasing amount of criticism lately due to their so far ineffective efforts to stop a disturbing amount of inflation which has hit all ports of the economy in recent months. In fact, prices here have risen about eight percent in the last year — one of the highest rates of increase in all Europe, and certainly more than in Canada. Holland still remains one of the cheapest countries to visit in all Europe but if the government doesn't do something effective soon, the Dutch, normally quite a complacent people, are going to get up in arms about it.

JESUS LOVED THEM

by Patrick and Garrison

ANDREW

"One of the two which heard John speak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother."
—John 1:40

Andrew, like his brother Simon Peter, was a fisherman residing in the town of Bethsaida on the shore of Galilee.

A follower of John the Baptist, by whom he was directed to Jesus, he at once recognized the Nazarene as the Messiah, and hastened to conduct Simon to Him.

In the Gospel lists of the Twelve, he is always named among the first four who were called to discipleship.

The Scriptural narrative indicates that during Jesus' ministry, Andrew was a constant companion. He was present at the Last Supper; he was among the group of disciples to whom Jesus appeared after His resurrection; he witnessed the Ascension; and he shared in the glories of Pentecost.

Although he, like almost all the others of the Twelve, did not show open revolt during the trial and crucifixion of his Master, Andrew apparently did not lack courage.

Ancient writers say that he went as a missionary through Sythia and adjoining countries, an undertaking which, in those days involved not only the usual hazards of travel, but the likelihood of arousing the wrath of pagan rulers who mercilessly put to death the preachers of the new doctrine of Christianity.

Andrew's travels are said to have taken him through Thrace, Macedonia, Cappadocia, Galatia, Bithynia and Achaia. It is conjectured that he founded a church in Constantinople, but there is no conclusive historical record of his having done so.

Most historians agree that his career had its tragic end at Patrae, a city of Achaia. There the proconsul, Aegeas, outraged by Andrew's preaching, ordered him to offer a sacrifice to the pagan gods. The Apostle refused, whereupon the Roman governor had him scourged and crucified.

To make his death more painful, he was bound rather than nailed to the cross (commonly held to be in the shape of an X). After hanging in agony for two days, he is said to have died on Nov. 30, A.D. 60.

Later he came to be revered as the chief patron of both Russia and Scotland.

PETER

"And when Jesus beheld him, he said, Thou art Simon the son of Jona: thou shalt be called Cephas, which is by interpretation, A stone."
—John 1:42

Before meeting Jesus, this disciple was known as Simon ("hearer"). He was the son of a successful fisherman named Jona.

His brother Andrew, a follower of John the Baptist, had been present when the evangelist had baptized Jesus, and when he had said, "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world."

Andrew hurried to tell Simon of the event. "We have found the Messiah," he declared excitedly, and took Simon to see Jesus.

Jesus, immediately upon seeing him, recognized him, and gave him the surname by which he was ever afterward to be known—Peter, the rock.

Peter was not merely a "big fisherman" living in a rude hut by the sea, but a well-to-do ship owner, who left a life of comfortable circumstances to follow Jesus.

But before the Resurrection and Ascension, when he set out to establish the Church in the world, there is little doubt that Peter still thought of the Messiah as the political figure foretold by the Jewish prophets.

In the apostle's evangelical history, his character is portrayed with great clarity.

Yet there were contradictions in his make-up, as there are in that of all men. Complete renunciation of the world was not easy for him. When Jesus said, "It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God," Peter was a little dismayed.

"Then answered Peter and said unto him, Behold, we have forsaken all and followed thee; what shall we have therefore?"

As one writer has observed, "He was called to work for the Kingdom of God, and he thought as men do."

Peter's challenge was, in fact, the challenge that has faced all men in all ages, including our own. He had the same weaknesses, and some of the same strength. He fell asleep on the night of Gethsemane, following the Last Supper. In overweening self-confidence, he cried: "Lord, I am ready to go with thee both into prison and to death," then denied that he knew the Man.

But in his strength he defied the Roman emperors, and according to tradition, was crucified head downward by Nero in Rome.

The church he established has lasted almost 2000 years, and is stronger than ever today.

Weddings

JACKSON — WARD

A lovely wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents at two-thirty on Saturday, March 9th, when Mary Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril H. Ward, Brighton, became the bride of John William, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Morley Jackson, of Bloomfield. The Rev. Stephen Spurrell performed the double-ring ceremony in a beautiful setting of baby pons and red tulips in tall standards with dracinas and ferns as the background.

"The Lord's Prayer" was played by record prior to the ceremony, and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street-length gown made on princess lines of pink crystalette, embossed with white, featuring a bolero jacket with three-quarter length sleeves. Her accessories were in navy and her flowers a colonial bouquet of pink roses and pheasants.

Mrs. Keith Perry, East Lake, was her sister's attendant. Her dress, on princess lines, was of navy crystalette embossed with white, featuring a V-neck and elbow-length sleeves. Her accessories were pink and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses.

Mr. William Woods, Bloomfield, was groomsman and Mr. Roger W. Ward, Trenton, brother of the bride, was usher.

The reception followed at the home. The bride's mother chose navy faille with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations and stephanotis. The bridegroom's mother was in beige crepe with brown accessories and corsage of pink carnations. The dining room was decorated with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. The bride's table, covered with linen damask cloth, was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped by red roses and stephanotis. Tall pink tapers flanked the cake. Pouring tea were Mrs. J. Lorne Pickering, Picton, aunt of the bride, and Mrs. Roy O. Dulmage, Belleville, aunt of the bridegroom's mother were Mrs. Charles Brushey, Misses Donna Ralston and Jane Ann Thompson.

For a trip around Lake Ontario the bride donned a sand tweed box suit with lighter panama colored accessories and an all-white corsage of carnations and stephanotis.

A congratulatory telegram was received from the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. D. G. Ward, in Gimli, Man., and a phone call from her brother, Douglas Ward of Winnipeg who was enroute to Biloxi, Mississippi.

Guests were present from Hamilton, Winona, Belleville and Picton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will reside in Bloomfield.

Spring Tea Sponsored by OES Most Attractively Successful

Through an archway of gently swaying fringes of yellow, blue, green, red and white streamers the focal point of an attractive spring tea held yesterday afternoon in the Masonic Temple under the auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star, 53, — the prettily arranged tea room.

Beyond the white picket fence with its open gate and graceful ferns, was long tea table daintily appointed with white damask covered by a lovely floral centre of white and yellow baby mums and red, green and white streamers, emblematic colours of the Order, flanked by brushed silver candelabra with tall green, flickering candles, and at either end, the silver services. Large trays of assorted little cakes having a yellow mum as centre, and the trays of dainty sandwiches resembling tiny gardens of flowers with their variegated hues.

The little guest tables, each with the centre of a crystal globe containing a little chrysanthemum or carnation, each in one of the order's emblematic colors, the silken white flag with its emblem-bearing star, constituted by tall, white standards of ferns, and the colorful Union Jack, proclaimed to all and sundry the motto of the O.E.S.

Women's Activities

CENTENARY W.A.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. R. Thrasher was hostess to the meeting of the members of Centenary W.A. with a good number present.

During the business period, Mrs. F. M. Nobes gave a report of a meeting of the sectional rally executive.

Plans were made for several banquets in the near future. An invitation to an "apron tea" at Wesley was accepted.

Mrs. R. Thrasher read "thank you" notes from three members who have been ill.

Mrs. P. Sutherland opened the devotional program with a verse on "Peace," Mrs. W. Short read a poem, "The Prayer of Faith"; Mrs. F. Edmondson read the Scripture selection from Psalm 37:1-18 and Mrs. Sutherland gave an address on "Fret Not", basing her remarks on the Scripture lesson, "In David's time the people fretted and it was then as it is now, that only in prayer and trust in the Lord are we to find peace within ourselves."

A reading entitled, "Kindness" was given by Mrs. F. Aikens.

CENTENARY W.M.S.

Mrs. R. Thrasher was hostess to the March meeting of the W.M.S. Mrs. H. Hancock opened the meeting. Mrs. F. Edmondson invited the ladies and their families to an open meeting of the Mission Band.

Mrs. B. Harder and Mrs. R. Edmondson gave most interesting reports of the year's work and of the program of the Belleville Presbyterial meeting.

Mrs. Hancock conducted a question and answer period with Mrs. H. Lehman answering the questions about her work among the African people of Nigeria, where she is a missionary nurse. She told of a typical Sunday when early devotions and church services were held, of no work during the best of the day, time after noon calling and since the Africans really eat only one meal a day and that at night, so there are no services held in the evening.

Mrs. Lehman told of conditions are gradually becoming better, that radio is being used and newspaper "The African Challenge" printed in Lagos, has a big circulation and is a mouth piece of combating communistic literature.

Mrs. H. Hancock voiced the appreciation of the members to Mrs. Lehman and presented her with a gift. Words of cheer for friends at Centenary as she goes back to her work in the south country of Nigeria.

All joined in singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds."

Mrs. E. Hart and her conveners served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

SOAPY LEAVES

Leaves of one species of acacia shrubs in Africa and the Indian Ocean are used as a sort of soap.

Gamma Mu Elects Officers

The regular meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Joan Alexander.

A business meeting was conducted at which time the following slate of officers was elected for next year: president, Barbara MacDonald; vice-president, Norma Cochrane; and vice-president, Dorothy Mallory; treasurer, Joan Alexander; recording secretary, Barbara Pringle and corresponding secretary, Dorothy McCormick.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Joan Alexander spoke to the group on "The Origin and History of Speech."

Soroptimists Enjoy European Beauty Scenes

Soroptimists International of Belleville were entertained following the regular dinner meeting at Lathimer's Town room by Miss Doris Lloyd in a travelogue of exquisite pictures taken on her recent trip to Britain and the continent.

To some of the members and guests, the pictures brought nostalgic memories as they retaked their visits to the same places; to others, wistful thinking that they might enjoy these experiences in the future.

"A panorama of delight unfolded as the cloud visited London with its Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly Circus, St. Paul's Cathedral and London Bridge.

"The English countryside unfolded quaint inns, villages and stately homes.

Then on to Paris, France, with its charm and romance; Bridge-land with the towering Alps, snow-capped and cloud wreathed; Italy with its history and architecture of the ages. The delicate tracery of Italian cathedrals so breath-taking in beauty.

Back to Canada and the peaceful Ocean; up the majestic Saguenay; and home to Hastings County pictures long to be remembered.

Miss Lloyd was thanked and congratulated by Mrs. Prudence Bennett for her contribution to an enjoyable evening.

MOISTURE HELPS SKIN RETAIN YOUTHFUL BLOOM

Sketched by Mary Frances Robinson

Lotion containing moisture-balancing ingredients help to prevent, even dry skin.

For years beauty experts have stressed the importance of lubrication keeping the skin fresh and firm, and to prevent drying. Until comparatively recently, however, moisture was not emphasized in complexion care programs. Today it's a different story. Dermatologists and cosmeticians agree that a proper balance of moisture in the skin is an absolute necessity if dry skin is to be prevented and corrected. And now, most of the latter are featuring creams, lotions and other products designed to provide the needed moisture. there are many of them on the market these days so if your skin happens to be dry, it will not be difficult for you to find one which pleases you. You may not, however, understand just why you need these moisturized creams or lotions. To give you a better idea, we will quote Dr. Herbert Heinrich, who is the Director of Cosmetic Research in one of our largest laboratories. Says Dr. Heinrich:

"The skin is composed of an upper layer, the epidermis, about five one thousandths of an inch thick, and a layer, the dermis, about seven one hundredths of an inch thick, containing, among other things, the all important capillary blood supply. Through both the layers pass the hair follicles. Oil glands surrounding the hair follicles synthesize and excrete their entire supply of oil on the surface of the skin. The amount of fat or oil that a person consumes has no effect whatever in creating an oily or dry skin, since the secretion of skin oils through the hair follicles is regulated by the needs of the skin. Eating oils and fats will give you more fat under the skin but not necessarily in the skin. The dehydration of dieting or age will make your skin sag and feel dry.

"You are born with more hair than you will ever have the rest of your life. Part of the life process is the constant loss of hair. The skin, on the other hand, is constantly re-creating itself: it takes about one month for a particle of skin to grow from the basal cell, to due and to be shuffled off from the surface of the skin.

"You are born with a skin of more or less resiliency or recuperating powers towards external influences and agents. Anything as much as possible about your skin is part of the job of keeping your skin young and healthy with the right balance of oil and moisture. Part of the skin's "defence" is the "acid mantle", a minute layer of scale formed by dead particles of skin which are constantly being piled up on the surface, and which protect the vital proteins of the skin against attack by alkaline substances found in soap, detergents, etc. Though cleansing is necessary to reach the soil embedded in the dead particles, it is important to know the right cleansing agent for your skin, and to protect it from too deep an attack against the vital proteins, frequently resulting in rash and excessive dryness.

"Older skin has skin proteins of lesser recuperating power— sometimes only one-tenth the amount that the young person has—and it therefore less able to counteract against alkalinity. Older people should therefore stay away from soap unless it is rinsed very thoroughly.

Why is skin dryer in the wintertime, even for active summer sunbathers? Because the structure of the skin requires surface moisture to spread the oil which is pumped up by the oil glands in the hair follicles. Both cold air outdoors and the hot dry air indoors retard the rise of moisture on the skin (it comes out through every pore). The cold air makes the oil sluggish and sometimes freezes it at the surface. Wintertime makeup should be done fifteen minutes after applying skin freshener, in order to give the new supply of oil and moisture time to spread and give a fresh, youthful base for makeup. Otherwise you get a dry and unnecessarily sagging and wrinkled look."

GOOD MANNERS

TODAY'S MANNERS-MEMO: ABOUT CIGARET ASHES

Cigaret ashes belong in an ashtray. Not on a plate. Not on a saucer. Not in a cup. Not in a vase. Not on the table. Not on the floor. In an ash-tray . . . please!

HOW TO INVITE FIANCE'S PARENTS TO ENGAGEMENT-ANNOUNCEMENT DINNER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just become engaged, and my mother and father are planning to give a small dinner at our house, at which my engagement would be announced. My fiance lives with his parents in a suburb not very far from where we live, but, although I have been to their home several times, my parents have not met his parents. Now comes the question as to how they should be invited to this dinner. Would it be all right to invite them through my fiance, that is, ask him to tell them we would love to have them come? Or should I telephone to them?

Helen R.

Let's go back a step, shall we? I do hope that very, very soon, now that your fiance's parents know about the forthcoming engagement, they will make to you and your parents the first social move they should make . . . come to see you and your parents, to welcome you into their family, and to tell you of their happiness in the engagement? If it seems apparent that they don't realize about this duty of theirs, you can easily "hint" to your fiance to "hint" about this to his parents.

When they come, your mother and father would naturally speak about the dinner and most cordially invite them. However, if this welcoming-in touch-by-family call doesn't come about soon, I suggest your mother telephone to your fiance's mother, and invite her and her husband to come to the announcement dinner. Not at all correct to invite them via your fiance . . . not at all correct for you to give the invitation. Your mother, as hostess, directly gives this important invitation.

WHOSE NAME COMES FIRST IN SIGNATURE?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the names of husband and wife are written together in the signature (for example, to a letter or greeting card), whose name should come first? Your answer is very important to us, and will settle a quite stormy discussion we are having. — B.R.

When the names are written, it is the rule-of-courtesy that the one writing the names should write the other's name first. Mary writes "John and Mary," John writes "Mary and John." Naturally the polite thing to do . . . don't you agree?

Macaroni and Spaghetti To Suit Everybody

By Mary Moore

Is spring busting out all over for you? I've had homegrown pussy willow and home fed blue jays in my city garden for weeks. And now crocuses so that makes spring official.

From an epicurean editor I received a letter from which I quote: ". . . the expensive cuts and side dishes (you) mentioned . . . out of this world — that is out of line with (her) budgeted purses." This startled me a little for not more than a week before I received a letter from a reader in a large city saying "Mary, do you have to be so plaguey practical and parsimonious all the time? Remember there are a lot of gourmets in your audience?"

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY

Macaroni and Meat Balls, Green Salad of Endive, Red Italian Onion Rings, Lettuce, Cucumber with French Dressing, Baked Apples with Pouring Cream, Coffee.

SUNDAY

Sunday Pot Roast (see Wednesday), Spinach Ring or Loaf, Mixed Kernel Corn and Carrot Dice, Shredded Fresh Pineapple, Hermit Cookies, Coffee.

What's a girl to do? Steer a middle course across a tight-rope? I'll try to be a reasonable facsimile of Solomon (minus beard) and give you economical dishes that taste as if Nectar created them. Macaroni and cheese are the basis.

SPAGETTI SUPREME

(no meat) Break spaghetti into 1-inch pieces and measure 1 1/2 cups and boil in 1 quart salted water 15 minutes and drain and rinse with hot water. Heat together 1 cup milk and ¼ cup butter until butter melts and pour this slowly into 3 beaten egg yolks, stirring. Add the cooked spaghetti and 1 cup grated medium sharp or old cheese, and 2/3 cup coarse bread-crumbs, 1 tablespoon each chopped parsley, onion and pimento, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, Mix. Beat 3 egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold gently into the mixture. Turn into greased casserole and stand it in pan of hot water. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for 35 to 40 minutes or until puffed and golden. Your servings.

MACARONI WITH MEAT BALLS

(Italian style) one lb. ground beef, 1 cup breadcrumbs, ¼ cup grated old cheese, 2 eggs, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 clove of garlic chopped very finely, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper; 4 tablespoons olive or salad oil, 1 small onion chopped, 1 6-oz. can tomato paste, 1 No. 2 tin (2½cups) tomatoes, ½ to 1lb. spaghetti. Mix together first 8 ingredients and add a very little water — just enough to moisten it. Shape into 1½-inch balls and brown in hot oil on all sides. Remove from pan. In the same pan saute the chopped onion until limp. Add tomato paste and stir for 1 minute, then add ½ cup water and the tomatoes, bring to boil, reduce heat to simmer, add meat balls, and simmer 1 hour. Boil the spaghetti in very large quantity of salted water until tender enough to eat, but not soft. Let the Italians cook it about 10 minutes. Drain the spaghetti, arrange on platter, spoon meat balls and sauce and arrange on top, pour sauce over. Old grated cheese such as Cheddar or Parmesan could be passed.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WATCH OUT, OR YOU'LL SCARE HIM AWAY

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I have recently been going with a boy, 19, who is a little bashful. I'm 16. I like him a lot and I feel he likes me and would like to go steady with me, but just can't seem to be able to ask me. Do you think it would be proper for me to ask him?

Also, how can I make myself feel at ease with him, as he does not contribute much to a conversation. — M.J.G.

Dear M.J.G.:

It isn't Leap Year, so I wouldn't advise asking this boy to go steady. I can't think of anything that would make him more bashful than he already is. It would probably scare him away entirely.

If you've been going out with him, he must at least have the ability to ask you for dates, so your part should be to show pleasure when he invites you and then let him see that you enjoy being with him. You can also show this by inviting him to your home to spend an evening now and then. If you invite some other couples at the same time, the conversation will be general and lively, and his lack of small talk won't be too obvious.

Again, you can do a lot toward making conversation with him when you're alone by finding out, through the right kind of questions, what his special interests and hobbies are and then getting him to tell you about them. There is nothing that will bring talk out of people, even shy ones, more quickly than by getting them on a subject close to their hearts.

Let's see, now, what you can do with these suggestions and write again and let me know. If you would like to have the names of some books on teenage problems, including dating, send me a stamped self-addressed envelope and I'll put one in the mail.

TRY THIS WAY TO GET HER INTERESTED

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a boy of high school age and there is a girl I think a lot of.

The trouble is that she likes boys two or three years older than I am; and when I tell her how much I think of her she does not believe me.

Can you tell me what to do?

— H.F.

Dear H.F.:

There are two things I think you might do to try and stir up this girl's interest in you.

The first is to go in for some high school sport or other activity and become so good at it that you'll just naturally get talked about and girls will be competing for your attention.

The second thing is not to press this one girl too hard for dates, or keep telling her how much you do think of her, but take other girls out occasionally. Don't ignore her, of course. Invite her out once awhile, but have other dates, the combination of a reputation for special skill in some sort of activity and at the same time being popular with girls in general, caring many a fellow the usual title of "The Man I Was Most Like To Be Seen With" that could go for that one girl,

News From Rome

By TRACY ADRIAN

Alberto Fabiani, one of the top Italian designers, has come out with a collection that is faithful to classic lines but is also moulded into today's trend, enriched with important details and his own feelings for line and color.

An example is this costume taken from his summer collection. It consists of a black linen dress and a pale blue linen jacket. The dress is a sleeveless sheath which is topped with a short coat. The topper has no collar and set in sleeves. There is a bow in front and a deep pleat pressed in the centre of the back.

Foxboro W.I. Hears Paper on 'Education'

Mrs. W. Simmons was the gracious hostess when the Foxboro Women's Institute met for its March meeting. Mrs. Hubble presided and opened the meeting in the usual way.

Correspondence, including letters from Mrs. Biggerstaff, provincial president of the Women's Institutes and Mrs. Ryan, district secretary-treasurer, was read, also a letter from Chicoutimi regarding catering at the Institute meeting.

It was decided to cater at the Fair for the first two days.

It had been brought to Mrs. Hubble's attention that a child from the district was in the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

Following a discussion it was decided to take an action in the matter for the present.

The meeting was under the convenership of Mrs. C. Bamber who took charge and called on Mrs. Bryton who gave a most interesting paper on "Education, Yesterday and Today". She also read a most appreciate poem on the same subject.

Mrs. Bamber read a most timely paper, also on Education, "Let's Stick to the Three R's" by Prof. Reeman, stating that it might be better for the children if they were to follow some of the "old fashioned" principles of education.

Following a reading, "Not Wanted" by Mrs. Hombough, Mrs. Bamber read "What Skill and Love Can Do For the Retarded Child", saying "love can do a great deal for the retarded child by showing them they are really wanted; also a great deal of patience and understanding is necessary in helping such children learn.

Eighteen members and two guests were present.

At the previous Saturday had been "Achievement Day" for the Girls' 4-H Homemaking Clubs of Hastings, some very well made and nice slips were on display at this meeting, together with the girls of the Foxboro clubs' record books, and comments by Miss Thibodeau, home economist.

Mrs. Jamieson and Mrs. Hubble as club leaders gave a most interesting account of that day.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and lunch committee, and a social hour was enjoyed.

Holloway St. E.A. Holds Panel Discussion

The March meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of Holloway Street United Church was held in the church parlors with the president, Bernice Fox, in the chair.

The meeting was opened with a hymn and followed with a prayer by Bernice, "Insights from Day to Day."

Lenore Wilkes gave a report on the work night which was held a week previous to this meeting and it was encouraging to hear that the work which was planned for the bale was now completed and ready to pack. After other items of business were discussed the meeting was turned over to Alice Hessmin and her group.

The theme of the worship service was, "Not Your Own Things." The Scripture reading, taken from Ephesians, was read by Betsy Best.

The study period for the evening was on Malaya and Indonesia and other surrounding islands, and, with a map of these islands, Alice gave an idea of the geographical aspect along with historical events, which proved interesting.

Margaret Jones, Loreta Fitzsimmons and Alice led a panel discussion on the "Problems of Christians on These Islands."

After the meeting closed, a singsong, led by Jean Campbell with Eleanor Hessmin at the piano, was much enjoyed. This was followed by a delicious luncheon by Alice and her group.

St. Joseph's PTA Sees Method of Teaching Deaf

The March general meeting of St. Joseph's P.T.A. was held recently in the school auditorium. Mr. S. McKenna, president, opened the meeting.

After the business meeting was over, certificates were presented to the winners of the school spelling contest: Patricia Fahey and Douglas Dumiaix.

Mr. Meagher presented prizes to the winners of the oratorical contest. Stephanie Butler won the Fred Maund award for the girls and the winner of the Paul Mercier award was James McCarey.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. George Whalen introduced the guest speaker, Miss C. Maloney, of the Ontario School for the Deaf. Miss Maloney outlined the difficulties of deaf children and the method of teaching them. With six pupils from the school, Miss Maloney gave a demonstration lesson.

Mr. Meagher thanked Miss Maloney on behalf of the members.

The Rev. Sister Mary Helen Rita's class won the attendance prize.

Coffee was served by the mothers of room VI.

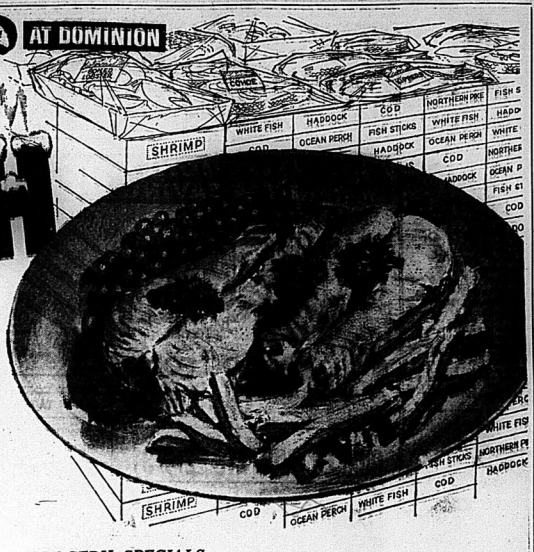
Quinlena Rebekah Lodge Pays Tribute, Presents Jewel

Tuesday evening the regular meeting of Quinlena Rebekah Lodge No. 123 was held with Sister Greta Adams, Noble Grand, in the chair.

After opening Lodge in regular form, Sister Greta Adams, N.G. welcomed visitors from Saskatchewan, Cobourg and Trenton. Among those from Trenton was their Noble Grand.

The Quinlena Sisters performed the sorrowful duty of draping the Charter for their late Sisters, Margaret Cherry, and Margaret Sheddock.

A class of five candidates received the Rebekah degree, exemplified by the Quinlena degree team, under the direction of Sister Dorothy Harwood, P.N.G., the members of the team looking lovely in their pastel gowns.



Following regular business, a pleasant ceremony took place, that of presenting to Sister Addie Thompkins P.N.G. of Friendship Lodge, Wynyard, Sask., with her 25 year jewel.

As she is at present living here, her home Lodge asked Quinlena to perform this ceremony for them.

After a few words from the Noble Grand of Trenton, all retired to the upper hall and enjoyed a short time of Oddfellowship, while partaking of the delicious refreshments prepared and served by Sister Irene McMartin, and her assistants.

SPRING TWEEDS

By VERA WINSTON

Tweed continues its popularity, probably because it is now mostly soft and springy in its weave. Nice soft tweed in gray is used for an easy-to-wear spring suit. The jacket, while boxy, still manages at least a suggestion of shaping. It has bone buttons at the yoke and interesting buttoned, tabbed pockets. The skirt is straight in back and has two stitched seams in front.

Women's Activities

EGGLETON W.M.S. and W.A.

MADOC JUNCTION — The regular March meeting of the Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Warren Harlow.

The W.M.S. president, Mrs. B. Stapley, presided over a program which had been prepared by Mrs. Milton Reid and Mrs. W. Harlow and consisted of a worship, reading a poem, "A Prayer for a Missionary."

Miss Joyce Stapley presided as pianist.

The Scripture lesson from selected portions of the 2nd chapter of Ephesians, was read by Mr. Dyson. Discussion on the lesson followed with Mrs. Harlow as leader and Mrs. Dyson, Mrs. G. Jervis, Mrs. C. Bridges and Mrs. B. Stapley taking part in the discussion.

A lovely solo, "It's Just Like His Great Love," was sung by Mrs. Maurice Clancy.

The secretary read the minutes and gave the roll call, showing 17 adults and several children present.

Members were reminded to bring articles of clothing for the missionary bale either at the April or May meeting as the bale has to be sent before June. A special collection is to be taken to pay the shipping charges on parcels for Overseas Relief.

The W.A. president, Mrs. Carl Bridges, took charge for the business period.

Mrs. C. Fichett offered her home for the April meeting, and Mrs. W. Harlow was appointed to prepare the program.

Motion made by Mrs. William McMullen and seconded by Mrs. M. Reid that bills for baby blanket, varnish and paint for church be paid.

Plans were discussed for holding one more pot luck supper at the school. Date decided on, Wednesday night, April 3rd., with Mrs. Harry Clarke arranging for the program of the evening.

It was decided to have a special service at Eggleton United Church at 2.30 p.m. on April 7. It is hoped that all in the community will be present and an invitation is extended to all those who formerly attended church here.

At this time, the W.M.S. president, Mrs. B. Stapley, thanked the hostess, Mrs. Harlow, for her hospitality and the program convener, Mrs. Milton Reid.

Mrs. Stapley also spoke a few words of welcome to the visitors present.

A poem "My Neighbors," was read by Mrs. Murney Hickey.

Mrs. William McMullen gave the report of the Belleville presbyterial W.M.S. held recently at Bridge Street United Church in Belleville.

The chapter from the study book dealing with Hong Kong and Formosa, and the work being done by missionaries there, was given by Mrs. Clarence Fichett.

The hostess served refreshments and a social half hour was enjoyed.

W.I. Celebrates 60th Anniv. Of Organization

WOOLER — The Women's Institute celebrated its 60th anniversary this year. The Wooler branch marked the occasion in the club room on Tuesday evening with 30 women in attendance. In the absence of the president, Mrs. N. E. Haggarty, the first vice-president, Mrs. H. B. McColl, presided, with Mrs. Neil Nelson acting as secretary.

Those who were in the costume of the period 60 years ago were Mrs. W. Scott, Mrs. Alden Arthur, Mrs. A. G. Austin, Mrs. E. Mitchell, Mrs. Vera Teal and Mrs. Pat Morrow. These members took part in the program.

Mrs. Mac Anderson announced the fashion show to be held March 26 and asked each member to bring homemade candy to sell.

HISTORY OF ORGANIZATION

Mrs. E. Scott presented the history of the Women's Institute organization which was started 60 years ago in Stoney Creek, and now is found in 37 countries with 6,000,000 members. The Associated Country Women of the World is linked by the common bond of workers to improve their homes, families, lives, communities and nations.

February 19, 1897, at the inception of the Women's Institute, a little acorn was planted at Stoney Creek which has since grown to a great oak tree with branches spreading far and wide across the world, Mrs. Scott told her audience.

"Here we pay tribute to Adelaide Hunter Hoodless," she continued, "who took great interest in what today is our W.I." Mrs. Scott described a sad experience in this woman's early married life, when she lost her eldest child, a young son of 18 months. When her doctor told her the death could have been prevented if the child had not been fed impure milk, the mother felt she was to blame. She decided to do all in her power to teach young mothers a better way of living.

Mrs. Hoodless spoke at Guelph College where she impressed the staff. She did not agree that girls and boys should receive the same education.

Girls, she believed, should be educated to fit them properly for homemaking. The speaker described the homemaking clubs for girls, now known as 4-H clubs.

Mrs. Scott told of Mrs. Hoodless approaching the Ontario government in 1900, asking that provision be made for scientific education for girls. She persuaded Sir William MacDonald of Ottawa to contribute $200,000. It was through this, Mrs. Scott said, that MacDonald Institute at Guelph was born. The Institute women of Ontario placed a life-size portrait of Adelaide Hunter Hoodless in the reception room.

Mrs. Hoodless worked for home and country, but first home, according to the speaker. "She called it a magic world — a place where God proposes to give His children a little foretaste of Heaven; a world of strife shut out and love shut in," Mrs. Scott continued.

She was born and reared on a farm in St. George, Ontario, where a cairn has been erected just a few miles from Stoney Creek by the W.I. of Brant County in her memory.

One of the chartered members of Wooler W.I., Mrs. Norman Montgomery, Belleville, related how she and the late Mrs. E. Terrill drove a horse and buggy all over the community, calling on the country women in 1901 to interest them in organizing the Wooler branch of the Women's Institute.

The purpose of the organization is to raise the standard of living and homemaking.

The motto "For Home and Country," was chosen in 1903 by Laura Rose Stevens. The royal colors, blue and gold, were chosen for the W.I. The members present were told that queens to this day are members of the organization.

In closing, the group stood and paid tribute by repeating the motto. Mrs. Redcliff sang a solo and refreshments were served during a social half-hour.

RCAF Men off Duty in Egypt

"Though it's one of the world's "hot spots" today, Egypt is still something of a tourists' paradise, and RCAF personnel serving with the United Nations Emergency Force in the Middle East are taking advantage of their off-duty hours to see most of the tourist attractions. These photos show airmen in a few of Cairo's more scenic settings during a guided tour arranged for UNEF personnel in their time off. At top left, Flying Officers T. C. Bacon of Vancouver, George Foster of Winnipeg, R. P. Howard of London, and their guide relax at an outdoor restaurant on the banks of the Nile. A camel ride in the shadow of the pyramids is almost a "must" when touring Cairo, and LAC J. D. Bovell of Winnipeg goes along with tradition at top right. Entering a mosque, at lower left, F/O Foster has a pair of slippers placed over his shoes by an Arab attendant, and at another stop on the tour — Cairo's world-famous museum — the airmen find themselves dwarfed by two of the largest statues in an impressive collection. In the bottom right photo are, from left, Sgt. L. P. Bopp of Preston, Ont.; LAC Bovell; F/O Howard and F/O Foster.

Mr. Garden, of the Garden Bros. Circus, was present to discuss plans to bring the circus to Campbellford, sponsored by the Lions Club. After discussing the contract, it was agreed by all members that they bring the Garden Bros. Circus to Campbellford on June 19th, for an afternoon and evening performance.

Following the reading of the minutes and the correspondence, the guest, Roy Spencer was introduced to the group by Lion Ralph Welch. Mr. Spencer complimented the members of the Campbellford club on the fine work they are doing and then reviewed the main points of the Lions convention to be held in Peterborough in June. He urged all members to attend.

The speaker chose as his subject 'Lionism' and stated the advantages of belonging to a service club. Lionism is one of the biggest organizations of service clubs in the world although it was not organized for size but for what can be done for the welfare of the community and its citizens. The speaker told of the debt all service organizations owe to a community and can only be done by each member contributing his part.

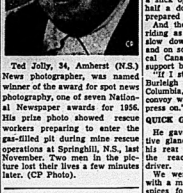
WINNING CARTOON



This is the cartoon which won for James G. Reidford of the Toronto Globe and Mail the 1956 National Newspaper award for cartooning. The cartoon was published May 18 and concerns the contentious closure on the pipeline debate in the House of Commons with the Peace Tower depicted as a guillotine. Reidford, 45, won the NNA award for cartooning in 1950 when he was with the Montreal Star. (CP Photo).

SPOT PHOTOGRAPHY

CARTOON AWARD

EDITORIAL AWARD

Andre Laurendeau of Montreal Le Devoir is winner of the 1956 National Newspaper Award for editorial writing. His entry was a folio of articles signed with his own name or the pseudonym "Candide." They covered such subjects as the Quebec political scene, commercials in television broadcasts, the Colomo Plan and impressions of a conversation with a taxi driver. The award is by Gaby of Montreal. The awards and citations will be presented at a dinner in Toronto April 27 given by the Toronto Men's Press Club. Speaker will be External Affairs Minister Pearson.

The National Newspaper Awards, designed to reward and promote excellence in Canadian newspaper work, were originated by the press club in 1949 with the support of the late George McCullagh who guaranteed funds for five years.

The basis of support has since been broadened and the following newspapers and groups now contribute to the awards fund:

Frustrating, Restrictive Life Of UNEF Canadian Shown To Writer on 'Grocery Run'

ABU SUWEIR Egypt (CP)—The irritating isolation and frustrating restrictive life of a United Nations Emergency Force Canadian has been demonstrated to this reporter who got the only glamor bonus of a stick operation tour—a peak at half a dozen Arab girls as they prepared for a swim.

And the big six-wheeler I was riding as super-cargo didn't even slow down, its precisely smooth and on schedule has the mechanical Canadian routine of UNEF support become.

"If I stop," explained Pte. Bob Burleigh of Toronto and British Columbia, with a rueful grin, "the convoy will run into us—we gotta press on."

QUICK GLANCE

He gave the girls an appreciative glance and then smiled into his rear vision mirror to watch the reaction of the following driver.

We were on a "grocery run" with a mixture of exotic food and spices for Indian and Pakistani ans; and I was along to report a day in the life of a representative Canadian soldier with section three of "B" platoon of the service corps.

The troops accepted me with good humor and got a kick out of showing me everything from making a bed so it would pass inspection and slinging pack pouches to introducing me to their families by way of photographs.

And finally they taught me a lesson in UNEF relations by hitching a trailer so the beet wouldn't have to ride with the mutton and thus offend religious susceptibilities.

THREE-MAN CREW

I joined the section at dusk and in candlelight—a generator provides the electricity for certain periods only—was introduced to my crew: Cpl. R. R. (Dick) Dickson, of Lewisham, Ontario, Northlake, N.B., Pte. Dad Burleigh, 35, and Pte. Wally Dreibelbis, 26, of Montreal and Petawawa.

I took the fourth bed in their nearly kept desert tent which sits on a tile foundation to keep down sand dust and which is white on the outside to reflect heat and heat and dark red inside to discourage persistent flies.

Reveille is at 6 a.m. but Canadian support troops haven't anything as regimental as a bugle and our tent, for instance, depended on the quiet rip of a leather-encased travelling clock.

GOOD BREAKFAST

We walked about 300 yards to the mess hall for breakfast—choice of pancakes and syrup or bacon and eggs, with coffee, bread and butter and fruit juice.

By 7 a.m. we were in the cab of the "deuce-and-a-half" with our instructions from Lt. Cpl. Allan Johnson of Moose Jaw, Sask., the dispatcher. He consulted a chart and told us when we reached the next oil change and inspection, where to collect our load and where we were going.

The transport sergeant — Alex Jones of London and Wiarton, Ont., gave us a close scrutiny and depot.

We were on our way to the supply depot.

HAPPY RECIPIENTS

Our convoy headed for an Indian paratroop battalion stationed about 100 miles away. They were located in an old battered railway station and were glad to see the assortment we brought ranging from cabbage, cauliflower and fruit to butter, eggs and meat.

On the drive home through the hot sun and peeled down to our shirts, we talked again of home. The drivers wondered if their wives were shovelling snow. "I wouldn't mind even that just to be home," said the corporal.

We arrived back at this base in time for a supper of beef stew, potatoes and cheese with fruit cocktail and a cinnamon roll. Then to the crowded recreation hall for movies.

Mayors, Reeves Ask Equal Share Education Costs

GRIMSBY (CP)—Mayor A. L. McCrae of Welland, president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, has called on the Ontario government to share with municipalities 50 per cent of education costs.

Mayor McCrae Wednesday night told the Ontario Urban and Rural School Trustees Association the provincial government promised in 1943 to assume 50 per cent of the costs charged against real estate.

In this total cost of education in the province amounted to $109,-139,000. Of this the municipalities paid $61,400,000 and the province $38,708,000, he said. By 1956 education costs stood at $221,183,000 of which the province paid $84,025,-000 and the municipalities $147,-128,000.

SHARE "DECREASING"

"No amount of juggling of figures can bring the provincial contribution close to the 30 per cent promised in 1943," Mr. McCrae said. "Evidence would indicate that while the amount of provincial assistance to education is increasing yearly, its share of the total cost is actually decreasing."

He said elementary and secondary school attendance 10 years ago was 600,000. Today it is 1,050,000 and by 1965 it is expected to reach more than 1,300,000.

"Based on the trend since 1949, we are faced with the inevitable fact that educational costs are rising at the rate of approximately $18,000,000 a year."

He said the federal government should also contribute towards the costs of education.

MINERAL WEALTH

Ghana, the new independent state established in Africa, has the richest known deposits of bauxite, used in making aluminum.

HMCS Labrador At Portsmouth For Long Cruise

PORTSMOUTH (CP)—Canada's Arctic patrol vessel HMCS Labrador sailed into Britain's huge Portsmouth naval base Tuesday on the start of a month-long cruise through European waters.

The visit, like that of the Royal Canadian Navy destroyer escort St. Laurent last summer, is primarily designed to demonstrate Canadian achievements in modern ship design.

"The Labrador is one of the most modern icebreakers in the world and we felt that naval and scientific bodies in Britain and other European countries would welcome an opportunity to inspect her," said Capt. Thomas Charles Pullen, commanding officer of the 6,500-ton ship.

There were indications the Labrador would create the same sensation in naval circles as did the St. Laurent when she visited London last June after escorting the royal yacht Britannia on the Queen's state visit to Sweden.

WERE IMPRESSED

British naval designers were impressed with the St. Laurent's revolutionary lines and some top ranking royal navy officers are reported to have said Britain had nothing that could compare with her.

British press, radio and television representatives were on the dockside to welcome the Labrador.

Petty Officer Robert Richey of Timmins, one of the original crew members when the Labrador was commissioned at Sorel, Que., in July, 1954, said she is not an easy ship to sail in normal weather.

"Her draught of 30 feet, considerably greater than that of the aircraft carrier Magnificent, is designed to prevent her from rolling over when she rides on ice but makes her shudder under normal sailing.

Airborne Magnetometer, Only One of Kind in World, on Canada's Secret List 4 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has removed the security clamp which has kept secret for more than four years the development in Canada of a huge airborne magnetometer, able to make mass recordings of the earth's magnetic fields.

The project was classified secret until recently because an important component is similar to equipment used in automatic navigation devices for pilotless aircraft and guided missiles.

Weighing half a ton, the magnetometer, only one of its kind in the world, measures the strength and direction of the earth's continually-changing magnetic fields. This information is required for navigation charts.

MEASURE DEVIATION

A compass does not point true north but in the direction of the magnetic north. If a mariner or a navigator of an aircraft wants to determine true north he must know the number of degrees his compass is east or west of true north.

The degree of error is different all over the world because of the varying intensity and direction of the magnetic fields. These fields and the magnetic north are constantly shifting due to changes in the structure of the earth's magnetic core.

Magnetic charts showing the direction and intensity of the earth's magnetic fields have been prepared from observations. But the observations made at scattered points over the surface of the globe.

The information has been inadequate from the settled areas where readings can be taken. However, this does not apply to remote areas such as the Arctic and Antarctic.

On the high seas, no important magnetic surveys have been made since 1926, and the role of changes in the magnetic fields since then has undoubtedly resulted in large errors in present navigation charts.

FAST RESULTS

The magnetometer's heart is a device which picks up the direction and intensity of the magnetic fields from the aircraft operating at heights up to 10,000 feet. These recordings pass through a bank of electronic computers, giving instant readings in the form of numbers and graphs. These readings make it possible to immediately determine the strength and direction of a magnetic field in a particular area.

Key to the machine's success is a horizontal gyro-stabilized platform, which keeps the recording instruments level while in flight.

Exact cost of the machine, built at the Dominion Observatory between 1950 and 1952, is not known because it includes considerable equipment used in other projects. However, a private company recently estimated it would cost $100,000 to duplicate the machine.

The magnetometer was developed by Dr. P. H. Serson and Dr. Kenneth Whitham of the Observatory's geomagnetism laboratory and Dr. Stanley Mack of the Defence Research Board.

Dr. Serson said the magnetometer will permit major improvements in existing magnetic charts.

The magnetometer is so large that it must be installed in a four-motored transport aircraft. The stabilizer and recording instrument are encased in a box eight feet in length, four in width and four in height. The unit weighs 250 pounds.

The electronic computing equipment is mounted on a number of panels on sturdy tables. More than 200 tubes and 24 electric motors are in operation when the magnetometer is in use.

The machine was installed in an RCAF North Star for tests in 1953 and 1954. In 1955 the magnetic fields of the three Prairie Provinces were charted in detail in three weeks. It would have taken years to do the job by ground methods.

Dr. Serson said the observatory crew is negotiating with a private company for an aircraft for operations this year. It hopes to charter a four-engine plane and to survey British Columbia and an area stretching several hundred miles over the Pacific Ocean.

If Dr. Serson's estimate the project will involve some 25,000 miles of flying and take about three weeks. He said it would take many years to do the same job through ground parties through B.C. and taking magnetometer readings from a ship in the Pacific.

Terry Rashotte, vice-president of the newly formed Chamber of Commerce in Tweed, brought greetings from the Tweed club and hoped the two Clubs would work together for the betterment of both communities.

Madoc Chamber wishes to extend its thanks to the Kiwanis Club for the use of the rink the night of the old timers' game and to the Review for advertising. The net proceeds turned over to the band were $43.

Gordon Pigden's committee was highly praised for the attractive tourist folder just compiled and complimented the Review for the excellent work in printing it.

Providence Reds won their second straight American Hockey League championship Wednesday.

Although they didn't play, the Reds clinched first place when Cleveland Barons, only team with any hope of overtaking them, dropped a 5-1 decision to the last-place Springfield Indians.

The Reds have a five-point margin over Cleveland and Rochester Americans, tied for second place. Hershey Bears, 54 winners Wednesday night over the fifth-place Buffalo Bisons, are another point back in fourth.

At Springfield, Barons took an early lead on a goal by Gord Velpreva but Gerry Ehman tied the score before the first period ended. Ken Schinkel made it 2-1 for Indians with the only goal of the second period and Harry Pidhirny, Schinkel and Moe Collins added three more in the third.

At Hershey, Bears rallied in the third period with goals by Don Cherry, Lorne Davis and Obie O'Brien to overtake the Bisons. Donc Fisher, with two goals, and Al Nicholson were the other Hershey scorers while Pete Conacher got two for Bisons and Sam Bettio and Alex Hucul got the others.

Pro Football Readies Team For Legal Fight

WASHINGTON (AP)—Pro football is sending the first team into its campaign to get out from under the federal anti-trust laws.

Bert Bell, commissioner of the National Football League, saw that Congress members Wednesday. He scheduled other meetings today.

Bell is out to convince Congress that professional football is set up in the best way possible to assure real competition among teams and to entertain the fans.

He came here because the Supreme Court ruled last month that pro football is subject to anti-trust jurisdiction. The court hasn't said the league is guilty of any violation, but some lawmakers have suggested the player draft and reserve clause practices are questionable.

Bell reported he found some support among the lawmakers.

Bell also said he is "definitely in favor" of a players' association as long as it would not interfere "with a coach's "discipline" over players. NFL owners, at their annual meeting earlier this year, refused to recognize such a union-like organization.

Golfers Split Tournament Gold

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Pete Cooper of Oakland and Walter Burkemo of Franklin Hills, Mich., tied in the 36-hole Seminole Golf tournament with 139s, Wednesday to split first prize money of $2,800. Both fired 66s.

Veterans Sam Snead and Ben Hogan had 141s, to split the next prize money of $1,200. Al Balding of Toronto finished with 73-73—146 three strokes out of the money.

Quebec Hockey

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Trois-Rivieres Lions, fighting to overtake Montreal Royals for the third playoff position, earned a 5-1 overtime tie with Shawinigan Falls Cataracts Wednesday night in a wide-open game before 3,000 Quebec Hockey League fans.

The deadlock cut Montreal's lead over the fourth-place Lions to one point. Each club has two games left to play in the 68-game schedule.

Dick Bouchard opened the scoring for Shawinigan Falls at 13:54 of the first period. Ron Attwell squared the count midway through the second period.

WINS TITLE FIGHT

TOKYO (AP) — Leo Espinosa, Orient bantamweight champion from the Philippines, retained his title Wednesday with a decisive victory over Masakazu Ori'ka of Japan in a 12-round bout. Each weighed 118.

A crowd of 3,500, half filling the International Stadium, saw Espinosa punch his way to the unanimous decision. He floored Otsuka for a count of three with a right to the chin in the third round.

Long-Shot Golfer Short on Prizes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) George Bayer swung his driver and his ball settled on a palm-shaded green some 350 yards away.

The crowd watching was duly impressed by the man who probably is golf's greatest one-shot attraction. They crowded around for autographs and advice from the man who hits a ball farther than anybody in the world.

On the tee, Bayer is the greatest. Yet he never has won a pro tournament. Three times he has finished second, the latest at Mexico City.

Until tournament play starts, Bayer is the star. His longest measured drive carried 420 yards before it hit a man at Las Vegas. But he can't win.

Bayer lives for the day when he no longer will be a curiosity but a genuine all-around golfing star.

"I've been playing very badly this year. My problem is getting four good rounds together. I always seem to come up with one bad round that ruins me."

STAND-BY FOR GUMP

NEW YORK (CP) — New York Rangers have named Ray Mikkelsen of Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League as standby goalie in the National Hockey League Stanley Cup playoffs in case of injury to Lorne (Gump) Worsley. Only Mikkelsen has an average of 2.02 in the league. Ranger officials said he is the only Clutch-caliber goalie in the farm system not busy with playoffs next week.

Niagara Kegler Leads Bowlers

TORONTO (CP) — Lodge Nazwaski of Niagara led the men's division in the first half of a ten-game block in the quarter finals of the Eastern Canada singles five pin bowling championships Wednesday.

Nazwaski racked up 329 in his first games of match play against Charles Thoms of Kirkland Lake to finish with 1,398 points, 43 more than his closest contender-Walter Souchen of Ottawa.

The ladies division of the quarter finals saw some close matches. Dolly McLay of Waterloo earned a 26 point lead on Mabel McDowell of Toronto and a total of 1,188 for the day.

The final five games of the quarter finals will be played today with the losers dropping out.

Beliveau picked up two assists Wednesday to move to within a point of league-leading Gordie Howe of Detroit. However Beliveau has only one game left to play and Howe has three remaining.

Canadiens, 'Five' Win Peewee Midget Titles

Canadiens captured the peewee hockey championship with a double victory over the Maple Leafs last night while Team Five Midgets whipped Team Six to take their division title. One half of the bantam finals was also played with the Red Wings taking a 5-3 win over the Canadiens. The second game of this goals-to-count affair will be played at 10.00 a.m. Saturday.

MIDGET

In the single midget game, Team Five walked over Team Six by a 10-1 score and took the series 16-3.

Johnny Brennan racked up a new high point total for the year and possibly an all-time minor record here when he gained nine points for Team Five. Brennan scored four goals and added five assists, enough to take the series by itself. Bernie Boulter scored three goals, Wayne Wills had two goals and an assist while Harvey registered one and one. Thomson also drew one helper. W. Wood scored the lone Team Six marker unassisted.

PEEWEE

Canadiens squeezed out a 3-1 win in the first game of their peewee final series then blanked the Leafs 5-0 in the second game.

Mike Culhane, Jimmie Rutherford and Fred Spafford tallied for the winners in the first contest with Dennis Ray gaining an assist. Norman Richard was the Leaf marksman with Jay Kiser assisting.

Culhane and Spafford scored again in the final game while James Hurst, Brian Skinner and Dennis Ray also dented the twine. Jimmie Rutherford gained a brace of assists.

BANTAM

The bantam fixture saw Doug Dafoe, Ted Hook, Hubert Poirier and Graydon Scott each obtain a goal and assist for the Wings' 5-3 win. Bob Duggan added the other goal with Paul Zakos earning one helper.

Jim Dahl had a goal and assist for the Canadiens while Garry Duval and Garry Reid netted the other markers. The Habs must now win Saturday's game by three goals to capture the championship.

GONZALES WINS

MUNCIE, Ind. (AP)—Pancho Gonzales overpowered Ken Rosewall of Australia Wednesday night in their cross-country professional tennis tour, 6-8, 6-4, 6-4. The victory gave Gonzales a 25-19 series lead.

Windsor Bulldogs Dying Hard Earn 2-2 Tie With Dutchmen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Windsor Bulldogs can thank goalie Don Head for keeping them in the playoffs.

Head turned away 38 shots Wednesday night as Windsor earned a 2-2 overtime tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, and staved off elimination—by the slimmest of margins—from the finals of the Ontario Hockey Association's senior A western division.

The left Dutchman with a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. But they have given points, and need only one more to wrap up the western division championship.

That means Windsor must win all future games to stay in the running since even a tie would give Dutchies the series. The sixth game is set for Kitchener Saturday.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association's senior A southern group, Sudbury Wolves piled up a 9-0 score and eliminated Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds. The Wolves won the two-game, total-points set—for the right to meet North Bay Trappers in a best-of-five final series—by a 16-2 margin. They won the first game 5-2.

South Porcupine Porkies went into a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Porcupine Mines Senior League finals, defeating Timmins Flyers 5-3. One game was tied.

At Windsor, Head got some competition at the other end of the rink, where Kitchener netminder Bob Senior was also brilliant, stopping 36 shots.

Dutchies took a 2-1 lead in the first period on goals by Ken Lauffman and Harry Psutka. Walter Pawlyshyn was the Windsor marksman.

Frank Bathgate got the tying goal at 6:21 of the second, then the teams played through one overtime period without scoring.

At Sudbury, Wolves led 3-0 after two periods, then rattled in six straight goals in the last frame.

Norm Guimond and Bobby Forhan fired two goals each for the winners; singles went to Armand Lemieux, Billy Watson, Nick Tymuk, Hub Beaudry and Andy Voykin.

Wolves and Trappers open their series at North Bay tonight.

Bobby McNeil and Eddie Kulik each shot two goals for the winners at South Porcupine. Billy Adamo got the other. Walter Para had two for Flyers. Tootie Campbell scored the other.

At The Belle

Paul Newman, Star of "Somebody Up There Likes Me," in a New Powerful Role

One of the country's most controversial subjects, that of the guilt or innocence of Communist Korean war hero accused with collaboration with the Reds, is the dynamic theme centred in MGM's powerful drama, "The Rack", showing Tonight for the last times at the Belle Theatre, with Paul Newman, star of "Somebody Up There Likes Me", in a new powerful role, also starring Wendell Corey, Walter Pidgeon, Edmond O'Brien, Anna Francis and Lee Marvin in leading roles.

In starkly realistic terms reflecting the headlines, news stories and photographs currently appearing in every newspaper in the country, "The Rack" depicts the court-martial of a highly decorated young officer.

In defending the accused his counsel, Lt. Col. Frank Wiseman, probes into facets of his family background, reveals the boy's loneliness in his relationship with his well - meaning but disciplinary father, and sheds new light on the effects of the physical and mental tortures which brought Capt. Hall up to the breaking point, raising the question of whether Hall or his family, the military, and society are the real offenders.

The verdict of the court-martial has gripping emotional repercussions not only on the defendant and his father, but also on Aggie Hall, the girl who had married Edward's brother, killed in Korea. It is she who stands by him in his ordeal.

For moviegoers on the alert for something different in the way of suspense laid in the midst of a gripping chain of dramatic events, "The Rack", more than fills the bill.

"Cuckoo Clock", a very funny Fox Avery MGM Colorfun Cartoon, and the popular Belle News of the Week, are exhibited on the same program.

Police were called when Whitney supporters said Barrys Bay fans were jabbing them with needles. None were found.

Earl Holliman Always Wanting To Be Actor Now 'Sensation'

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Latest "overnight sensation" in the movies is Earl Holliman.

Overnight sensation? The gay, only has penned to be an actor since he was six, hitchhiked to Hollywood when he was 15, came here again in his '20s and used every subterfuge he could to get into the studios. Finally he found recognition — in his 15th picture.

Earl is the gangly character who rocked preview audiences as the younger brother in "The Rainmaker. Hal Wallis signed him for a picture a year, and now he is playing one of the leading roles in "Don't Go Near the Water."

Decked out his sailor's uniform, Earl paused between scenes to tell of his amateur story. He was the youngest of 10 children born in Louisiana in what he describes as "real tobacco road country." His farmer father died six months before Earl was born. The Holliman and sisters were put in an orphanage, but Earl was adopted at one week by a traveling oil worker and his wife.

"Even before I was six years old, I always told people I wanted to be an actor," he said. "When I was in the U. S. Air Force, out for Hollywood, determined to break into pictures. I hitchhiked all the way from Louisiana, and I can remember fitting my shoes into the footprints at Grauman's Chinese and walking down Hollywood Boulevard. I wore dark glasses, and I hoped people would think I was an actor.

He discovered the law wouldn't allow him to work at his age, so he thumbed his way back home. He joined the navy and served a year before his age was discovered. He went back to school in Oil City, La., then joined the navy again.

Later he was determined to assault Hollywood again and came here to study at the University of Southern California and Pasadena Playhouse. He took factory jobs around town, meanwhile trying everything he could to get acting work.

"I used to tell the guard at Paramount that I had an appointment with the barber on the lot," Earl recalled. "That got me in every time."

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE OLD BRIGADE

The home-town fireside coaches were at it again following the Dunlops 6-1 defeat of the McFarlands in that second game of the series.

It is a pity, a downright shame, that so much coaching talent is going to waste. These Post-Mortem Petes could get themselves a lot of lettuce if they put their God-given abilities to good advantage.

What should happen to the greater majority of these post-game pip squeaks is what occurred to a fan who was giving Leo Durocher the benefit of his baseball wisdom during a Giants-Dodger battle a few years back.

"The Lip" listened to the tirade from the second inning on. Then he turned over his third-base coaching job to an assistant and strolled over to where the wisenheimer was sitting.

He greeted him cheerily and drew him into conversation.

"Where do you work?" he asked.

The "coach" gave him his business address.

"Fine," satified the "Lip". "I'll be at your office at nine in the morning."

The "coach" looked surprised. "Nine o'clock. How-come?" he asked.

The "Lip" let a sarcastic grin envelop his features.

"Since you know my job so well I thought you'd like to take over tomorrow's game," he said. "I'll look after your business."

One trail these midnight quarter backs have is consistency. When the McFarlands come up with a win, they're interested in the price of pop in Honolulu. When the Macs meet a reverse, all the brilliancy of their talent is aired. Some of them are so proud of their mental prowess they write letters to newspapers. But the telephone rings just as they are about to sign their name, and in the haste to get the missive in the mail the signing ceremonies are overlooked.

What was that verse from a well-known poem? In sports parlance it would read something like this:—

"Full many a "brilliant" mind of ray serene
The vain untutored heads of 'experts' bear
Full many a 'coach' is born to act unseen
And shoot his wisdom from his favorite chair."

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT

This evening in Memorial Arena something or another should be settled. It's the night of the annual Police-Firemen hockey club clash. The only thing definitely establishes thus far is that the team scoring the most goals wins the game and the "Brace Trophy."

The firemen puckists held solemn conclave the other night and by individual vote tacked nicknames on the squad. No player was allowed to name himself.

When the smoke had settled and the names came out of the hose, they read something like this. And it is the official line-up, the "Smokies" say — but you never can tell. Coach Bert (Royal Winter) Fair; defence — Fred (Blackie) Dalinard; Ray (Gimpy) Hosking; Leo (Silver Top) Culhane; Ray (Slash) Reid; forwards — Bruce (Luke) Diamond; Lyle (Clem) Wannamaker; Fred (Mouse) Smith; Johnny Richard) Browning; George (Land Jubber) Woodhouse; Bob (Hawk) Emerson; Al (Teeder) Rump; Vic (Solo) Card; Jack (Slim) McKay. No goalie is mentioned but it is reported one of the Trenton Fire Department's pumpers has been assigned to the job.

The police department has rounded up a good riot squad under Coach Jack (Fearless Fosdick) Fullerton and Manager Murray (Quick Inspector, the Needle) Robertson. They have Art (Diesel) Taylor in the roundhouse; Ken (Truncheon) Robertson, Bob (Curried) Rice; Reg (Smack 'em And) Rackham; Al (Heartburn) Cockburn and Jack (Filtered) Keen on the defence with George (No Relation) Evans; Dick (Martin And) Lewis; Larry (Fringe on Top) Calnan; Manager Robertson; "Fosdick; Jim (Groom) McBride; Gord (No-Hit) Oliver and Charlie (Never) Peters on the forward line.

Then of course there will be the one and only Syl Apps of Maple Leafs fame who is the referee with Moe Benoit and Paul Payette linesmen.

And there will be beauty and skating rhythm in the Quinte Skating Club figure-skating stars under the supervision of Jack Dickens, also clowns, bands and other entertainment between periods. It is likely the Shrine Club under the "Ole Boller" Lloyd, Ken Vivian, Lee Grills, John Wrean, Jack Bush and others will have some of their crippled kiddies "sweethearts" on hand to view proceedings. For after all the show is for them and them alone. Every nickle goes to aid them in their battle for a better, brighter future.

So buy a ticket, willya, mister? They're only twenty-five cents. If you have other engagements, buy one anyway. It will make you feel better.

SAY U.K. PAY BIGGER

SAFFRON WALDEN, England (Reuters)—Home Secretary R. A. Butler told a political meeting Friday that Britain has bigger pay cheques and less unemployment than other European countries. As a result, he said, "One family in 14 owns a car in this country, against one in 29 in Germany and one in 17 in France."

WANTS DECREASE

TORONTO (CP)—The Metropolitan Toronto executive committee Tuesday rejected a Toronto city council proposal for a general 26 per cent increase in wholesale water rates for the city and its 12 suburbs and voted for a flat 2.9 cent increase.

Boom-Boom Fires the Winner With Seconds Left in Game; Beliveau Point Behind Howe

By RON ANDREWS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bernie (Boom-Boom) Geoffrion continues to show why the rest of the Montreal Canadiens rate him as the team's key player.

In Wednesday night's only National Hockey League game, Geoffrion scored with 39 seconds left to play to give Canadiens a 2-1 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The victory enabled Montreal to take over sole possession of second place in the standings and left Boston Bruins with an uphill battle if they hope to wind up the 70-game schedule in that position.

An elbow injury, which continued to bother him throughout the season, forced Geoffrion out of 29 scheduled games. In those contests, Canadiens won only eight while losing 15 and tying six for 22 points out of a possible 58.

SURPRISING DIFFERENCE

In the 40 games in which the veteran right winger has played, the defending Stanley Cup champions won 26, lost eight and tied six for 58 of a possible 80 points.

Observers figure Geoffrion's absence cost the team its second straight league championship.

Canadiens now have 80 points, two more than third-place Bruins, and one game left to play, against last-place Chicago Black Hawks at Montreal Saturday. Bruins have two games remaining.

They can climb back into a tie with Montreal tonight by defeating Red Wings at Detroit.

Geoffrion's goal climaxed one of the fastest attacks of the night onto this season. A crowd of 13,352 was treated to end-to-end rushes throughout and spectacular goal tending by both netminders.

Montreal goalkeeper Jacques Plante made 28 saves, 14 in the second period when Leafs went all out on attack. Ed Chadwick of Leafs stopped 24 shots.

The winning goal was the best of the night. Montreal centre Jean Beliveau, who also received an assist on the first Canadiens goal, carried the puck to the Toronto blueline before passing to Geoffrion, who zipped past the Leaf defencemen. He crossed in front of the Toronto net and drew Chadwick to one side before firing the puck high into the corner.

TWO SCRAMBLES

Left winger Don Marshall scored Canadiens' opening goal from a scramble in front of the Leaf net early in the first period. Rookie left winger Bob Pulford tied the score on a similar play near the eight-minute mark of the second.

Canadiens, led by Plante, surrounded referee Ed Powers after Pulford's goal and argued that the Leaf was in the goal crease when he scored.

In the third period, Canadiens twice enjoyed a man advantage but couldn't get a shot on goal.

Toronto centre Ted Kennedy and defenceman Jim Thomson were benched for the game to allow the younger players to show the Leaf officials what they could do.

Centre Frank Mahovlich was elevated to Leafs from Toronto St. Michael's College Majors for the first of a three-game trial. The 18-year-old junior, who led the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series goal scorers with 52 goals in 49 games, played on a line with left winger Sid Smith and Ron Stewart.

He set up several good passes for his wingers but each time they were foiled by Plante.

Beliveau's two assists gave him 83 points, one fewer than league-leader Gord Howe of Detroit Wings have three games left.

May Not Lose Heads But Bodies May Be Elsewhere

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe has been equivocal on the question of whether Howie Meeker, Hap Day and King Clancy will keep their jobs with Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League.

The president and managing director of Maple Leaf Gardens has said nobody would "lose their heads" but Wednesday refused to say whether he will ask they be rehired next season.

"I'll report to the board of directors and a decision will be announced within a week."

He said Hap Day told him Wednesday that he wants some time before saying whether he will be available again next season as general manager. But coach Meeker and assistant general manager Clancy both have told him they will be available, he said.

Smythe's statements did little to calm a flurry of speculation among Toronto sports writers that Day and Meeker would be out in a general shaking of the team.

SMITH RETIRES

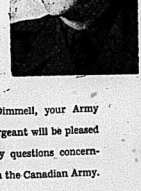
Meanwhile, Sid Smith, left wing veteran of eight years with the team, announced his retirement.

Smith, Leafs' leading scorer for four of his eight seasons, said he had long felt this would be his last season.

"I have no grievances," he said. "I merely think that the time has come for me to step down and make way for some younger players."

Nothing was heard from Jim Thomson, Leafs' captain and secretary of the NHL Players' Association which came in for strong criticism from Smythe at his Sunday press conference. Thomson was left behind in Toronto when Leafs went to New York for their game Sunday with Rangers.

Sid Smith Will Leave Leafs at End of Season



TORONTO (CP) — Sid Smith, during his eight years with Toronto Maple Leafs one of the most prolific left wing scorers the team ever had, will play his last National Hockey League game Sunday when the Leafs finish their season in Detroit.

Smith, 31, announced his retirement Tuesday night.

"I have no grievances," he said. "I merely think the time has come for me to step down and make way for some younger players."

Smith, a native of Toronto, said he has felt for some time that this would be his last season with the Leafs, and said he would have announced his retirement earlier if the team had not been fighting for a place in the playoffs.

He scored a total of 184 goals in regular play during the eight years, and an additional 17 in playoffs. Smith twice won the Lady Byng Trophy for the player best combining ability and sportsmanship.

Skinny Cuban's Smoking Ball May Tab Him Top Senor 'Bum'

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They can call him the great Gutierrez, or the mighty Valdes, it made no difference today to manager Walter Alston of Brooklyn Dodgers. All Alston knows is that the skinny six-foot-three Cuban with a smoking fast ball may be around Flatbush a lot longer than most people thought.

Gutierrez, or Valdes, who had a 22-8 record with Portland of the Pacific Coast League last season, displayed some more of his classy hurling on Wednesday as the Dodgers edged St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 in an 11-inning exhibition game at Vero Beach, Fla.

Rene added three more hitless and scoreless innings in his second appearance as a Dodger. He walked two Cardinals, and another reached base on an error, but none got past first.

In his Brooklyn debut Sunday, Valdes came to the mound with the bases loaded and none out in the eighth against Detroit Tigers. Five of the Tigers popped up and the sixth bounced back to the box as Valdes preserved a 3-2 Dodger victory.

PARENTS NAMES

Valdes is known in Latin America as the great Gutierrez, which is his father's name. At Portland it was the mighty Valdes, his mother's maiden name.

Valdes is signed to a contract with Los Angeles Brooklyn's new coast league farm club, but if he keeps up his kind of pitching he could become an Ebbets Field inhabitant.

Elsewhere:

Detroit Tigers, smarting under criticism of manager Jack Tighe after losing eight of 10 exhibitions, clubbed four Pittsburgh pitchers for 11 hits, including a two-run homer by Charley Lau, to defeat Pirates 8-4.

Don Larsen of New York Yankees made his first appearance since his no-hit perfect game and was battered soundly by Cincinnati Redlegs who won 20-6. He pitched three innings, gave up a homer to George Crowe, two triples, two doubles, a single and five runs. All told Redlegs collected 25 hits.

Two walks with the bases loaded gave Milwaukee Braves a pair of runs in their 2-2 verdict over Kansas City Athletics.

The Brooklyn Dodgers

Manager Alston Says Team Just as Good as Former Clubs

By JOE REICHLER

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers are just as good, possibly better than when they won the National League pennant last year and were regarded as the team to beat for the 1957 flag.

That is the opinion of Walter Alston who, in his three previous years with the Dodgers gained a reputation of sorts as being an ultra-conservative manager both in expression and action.

So it came as a surprise when the dignified Dodger skipper made such observations as these:

"I think our chances to win are just as good as they ever were. . . .

"If a couple of our lefthanders come through, we could have the best pitching staff since the days here."

"Our hitting should be better than last year with some of the fellows, such as catcher Roy Campanella, still to come around. They were supposed to. . . ."

Alston acknowledged he is confident and satisfied but he hoped they would be eliminated by the time the regular season gets under way in four weeks.

"We're not yet decided on who will be the first baseman, third and left field," he said, "and we're still looking for a second baseman. Jim Gilliam, Karl Spooner's alleged successor, Johnny Podres' back. If Campanella's hand is all right, our attack can be strengthened 25 per cent. If Spooner and Podres come through, we could have the best pitching in the league.

"Remember, we didn't have Sal Maglie and Don Bessent until the season was nearly gone. Carl Erskine had arm trouble. Roger Craig should be better now that he's put in a full season in the big leagues. Don Newcombe ought to have another good year, maybe not as good but well enough. Don Drysdale and Sandy Koufax have shown remarkable improvement this spring."

Alston's biggest disappointments thus far have been the poor showing of Charlie Neal at second base and rookie Don Demeter, who was counted on to take over the left field post after hitting 41 homers at Fort Worth last year.

If Neal comes through, he will be the second baseman with Jim Gilliam shifting to third base or left field. If not, Gilliam will be at second and either Randy Jackson or Don Zimmer will be at third with left field still a wide open berth.

Alston apparently has lost confidence in outfielder Sandy Amoros who failed to display his poor defensive work with his bat. Fixtures include Gil Hodges at first, Pee Wee Reese at short and Jim Gilliam at shortstop, Duke Snider in center, Carl Furillo in right and Campanella behind the plate.

John Roseboro, rookie catcher from Montreal, has shown good speed, a good arm and good power, according to Alston, but his catching still leaves much to be desired.

Will Alston think the Dodgers would miss Jackie Robinson?

"I really can't answer that until I see how the young fellows make out," he began. "But there's no doubt, Jackie Robinson could get us up for the big games more than anyone I ever knew. He's probably miss his spirit and determination. But how much we'll miss it will depend upon how good the players who will take his place make out."

Balding Tenth In Pro Standing; Doug Ford Tops

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—Al Balding of Toronto was placed in 10th position in the Professional Golfers' Association top 10 tournament standings Wednesday.

The former Erindale professional who started on the United States professional golf circuit last fall, got in under the wire with 261 points.

Doug Ford of Mahopac, N.Y., winner of the $35,000 Los Angeles open in January, continued to pace the 1957 money winners. He has pocketed $13,848 in cheques in PGA co-sponsored events this winter.

Dow Finsterwald of Toquesta, Fla., has moved into first place in the point standings with 329.50. The point system of ranking players is designed to encourage "name" golfers to play in more tournaments.

Figures include the St. Petersburg Open, which ended Sunday.

Second is Fred Hawkins, basketball department is Arnold Palmer, 27-year-old power hitter from Latrobe, Pa. Winner of the $50,000 Houston Open, Palmer has grossed $10,218. Fifth is Art Wall of Sanford, Fla., winner of the Texas Open, is third with $7,998.

Others among the leaders are Ed Furgol, St. Andrews, Ill., $6,586; Art Wall Jr., Honesdale, Penn., $6,520; Bill Casper, Jr., Bonita, Calif., $5,259; Jackie Burke Jr., Houston, Texas, $4,702; and Mike Souchak, Grossingers, N.Y., $4,345.

Wall is second in the point standings with 353. Furgol, the leader last week, is third with 352. Contestants are awarded points depending on their finish in tournaments and for registering for tournaments at least two weeks in advance.

Demerits are assessed for misconduct. The top 10 players at the end of the season will share $1,-800 in each participating tournament start.

Others among the point leaders are Ford, 329; Casper, 320.50; Hebert, 293; Palmer 289.50; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill., 275; Doug Higgins, Midland, Tex., 268; and Balding, 261.

Aragon Hopes For New Trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for Art Aragon filed with Superior Court Wednesday an affidavit from a new witness whose testimony they hope will earn the Los Angeles boxer a new trial.

The Golden Boy was convicted of fight fixing on testimony the boxer Dick Goldstein that Aragon offered him a bribe to throw a fight.

Attorneys Jules Covey and Paul Caruso filed an affidavit from a liquor store clerk who said Goldstein told him that Aragon was innocent.

Lawrence Durrah, 35, said in his statement that he and Goldstein were listening to a radio news report of Aragon's trial last Feb. 20 in the liquor store where Durrah works. The clerk said he told Goldstein the hoped Aragon would be acquitted.

He said Goldstein replied:

"I am sure they will find him innocent because he is innocent. No one knows better than I that he is not guilty.

"He never offered me any bribe at any time."

The welterweight boxer's attorneys said that Durrah came to them voluntarily on the day that a jury found Aragon guilty of trying to bribe Goldstein.

MIAMI (AP)—Calumet Farm's Gen. Duke and Iron Leige finished one-two in a driving rain and a sloppy track in the $18,695 Fountain of Youth Stakes at Gulfstream Park Wednesday and made it stand up against a foul claim.

But Calumet's other star, Barbizon, last year's champion two-year-old colt, suffered his third straight defeat as a three-year-old. He finished fifth, about 12 lengths behind his stablemate.

Better Image owned by W. S. Miller, was third.

A foul claim was lodged against Gen. Duke and Ted Valenzuela, jockey on Elmendorf Farm's fourth place Moon Crazy. He claimed the Calumet speedster veered in on him after the eighth pole and he had to check his mount. After studying photos, the stewards rejected the claim.

Ridden smartly by Willie Harback and carrying 119 pounds, Gen. Duke covered the 1-16-miles in 1:44, two seconds off the track record shared by Hash Night and New Trend.

It's up to Willie to Offset Giants' Poor Pitching Staff

By JERRY LISKA

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The chances of New York Giants improving their sixth-place National League finish of 1956 seem to rest mainly on whether Willie Mays can offset what is probably the league's poorest pitching staff.

Aside from Johnny Antonelli, who had a 20-13 record in 1956, there isn't a Giant hurler who won more than seven big league decisions last year.

Andrew Rodgers, rangy excricket player from the Bahamas, thus far falls into the "can't miss" category at shortstop where he has displaced Darryl Spencer, a .221 hitter last season. In his first nine spring exhibition games the 22-year-old Rodgers slammed 12 hits in 23 trips, including four homers, for a .348 average.

ROUND BASE OPEN

Another rookie on the spot, Ossie Virgil, has been getting a chance at third base where the enigmatic Foster Castleman and nonchalant Hank Thompson could have done much better last year. Virgil hit .305 for Minneapolis last season.

The glister who must produce is 38 - year - old Hank Sauer, now tabbed as manager Bill Rigney's second left fielder. Rigney is banking on Sauer, league RBI champion in 1952 with 121 for the Cubs, to have some thunder left. Playing in 73 games for St. Louis Cardinals last year, big Hank batted a good .288.

A player who could make a big difference for the Giants is first baseman Gail Harris, who again is hitting the bide off the ball this spring. In the past Harris cooled as the summer sun got hot, three times winning his ticket back to Minneapolis.

Four positions are in capable hands, including centre field, where the incomparable Mays is roaming second base, guarded by old pro Red Schoendienst; right field, occupied most of the time by Don Mueller; and catching, where Ray Katt and Whitey Lockman, veterans Wes Westrum must carry a heavy load.

About the only good thing you can say about Rigney's pitching is that he has something southpaw Antonelli and more leftie—seven —than any other National League club. The advantage of the latter is that Giants have some trade bait in that department.

Rigney's list of starters, beyond Antonelli, includes Al Worthington, 7-14 last season; Ruben Gomez (7-17), who came back to the Giants when Jackie Robinson abandoned baseball; Ruben Gomez (7-17); and somebody from among Joe Margoneri (6-8) and Curt Barclay and Pete Burnside, who won 20 between them at Minneapolis last year.

VIKINGS WIN AGAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Victoria College Vikings moved within one game of the Western Canada junior basketball title Wednesday with a 71-55 victory over Winnipeg Imperials.

Winnipeg won the first game 71-64 and Victoria the second 68-51. The fourth game will be played here Friday. The Western Canada champion will meet Toronto YMHA Junior Whites for the Canadian junior title.

Seven Men For Newcombe Is Redlegs' Latest Offer

While nobody has offered the Brooklyn Dodgers a million dollars for Don Newcombe—as did the Red Sox for Cleveland hurler Herb Score—the huge right-hander, seen above, has the satisfaction of knowing the Cincinnati Redlegs offered seven players for him. But the offer was turned down by Vice-President E. J. Barzat, who reiterated he hadn't taken the proposal "too seriously." The Cincinnati G.M., Gabe Paul, who wanted to give the Brooks $300,000 for the huge 27-game winner last October 29, said he's only thing he wanted was a combination from the Dodgers that Newcombe's arm was in healthy condition.

Million-Dollar Score 'Gag' Has Publicity Stunt Earmarks

By HAROLD KAESE
The BOSTON DAILY GLOBE

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — The most discouraging thing about organized baseball is its lack of leadership. The most discouraging thing about Boston Red Sox is their lack of leadership.

On Friday at Bellelair, Fla., Ford Frick will hold a meeting with 16 big league club representatives to plan baseball's defence against the anti-baseball bills now awaiting congress.

The Red Sox will be represented by Jack Hayes, their lawyer from Boston, rather than by Joe Cronin, their general manager. Cronin will be in San Francisco, his hometown, with Red Sox.

It is quite possible that he and Hank Greenberg would not get an enthusiastic reception at Bellelair.

BACK TO THE WALL

Baseball's back is against the wall for several reasons. One is the Supreme Court's decision that pro football is a business and not a sport. Another is the decision of a New York judge that the International Boxing Club is a boxing monopoly.

Baseball, quite previously ruled a sport by the Supreme Court and not subject to anti-trust laws, at present is confronted by three bills pending in Congress. Two of the bills generally are defined as "unfavorable" to baseball.

The third bill sets up a "code of fair play" for sports, joining baseball, pro football and basketball in one category, rather than declaring them subject to monopoly laws.

Now, at this crucial moment in baseball history, the organized game is made more easily suspect, irresponsible and sillier than it has since Judge Landis "freed" 20 or so chattels nearly 20 years ago.

Cause of the new embarrassment is the $1,000,000 offer the Red Sox say they made Monday to the Cleveland Club for Herb Score, a superb young lefthanded pitcher.

The reaction of a casual bystander may be: Who is dumber —Cronin for making the offer, or Hank Greenberg for refusing it?

But the reaction of a Red Sox player, who will have to remain anonymous for his own good, was more to the point:

"How can a man be worth a million dollars and not get any of it for himself?"

If Score is worth a million dollars he should at least collect a five-per-cent interest on himself annually, which would be $50,000, or more than twice as much as he is getting for 1957.

Can't you hear congressman Emanuel Celler asking, "how can teams suggest and refuse deals of a million dollars for just one player and not be considered a business?"

This not only is business, but it is big business.

There is a general feeling that the Cronin-Greenberg transaction was a gag. If so, it was a sorry sort of a gag for baseball.

The million-dollar deal has all the characteristics of a grandstand play, a publicity stunt, although Cronin says he was surprised Greenberg announced it.

Good Thing for Red Sox Bid Of Million for Score Refused

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—To be a man is a million in one thing but to have a million in a man is another, so for their peace of mind maybe it's a good thing the Boston Red Sox their bid for Herb Score was turned down by Cleveland Indians.

The care and feeding of $1,000,000, all tied up in one ball player, would be a grave responsibility. Around the clock guards and transportation in an armored truck would be the least that could be expected.

When first we heard of Joe Cronin's $1,000,000 offer for Hank Greenberg for the fine young pitcher our reaction was who's spoofing whom? It sounded preposterous.

And then we began to think of other ball players who had been sold for $100,000 and up.

Cronin himself went to Red Sox from Washington, as player-manager for a sum estimated at $250,000 and a ball player, one Lynn Lary. Figuring Lary must have been worth a few boxtops himself, the total invested by owner Tom Yawkey in Cronin must have been considerably more than the cash involved.

That deal was in 1934, at the height, or depth, of the depression, when a dollar was a dollar and not a bloated two-bit piece. So considering inflation that $1,000,000 today does not seem too much out of line.

There were quite a few other respectable figures paid for ball players in those days of the fat dollar. The Cubs paid the Phillies $125,000 for Chuck Klein after the 1933 season, and the White Sox paid Connie Mack $125,000 for Al Simmons about the same time.

The total involved in the sale of Babe Ruth to New York Yankees by Red Sox after the 1919 season is difficult to figure. The cash involved was reported to be $105,000 but Jake Ruppert also took over the mortgage on the Boston park, which was about to be foreclosed, so the sum involved there is anybody's guess.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, March 22, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Mercury, Mars and Uranus are again in vigorous and inspiring aspect. There is much you can accomplish in the way of personal achievement. Aim for attainments in matters important to yourself and others.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Activities connected with medicine, surgery, assaying, construction, engineering, road - building, mechanical and military interests generally favored. Mental activity, learning also encouraged.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Grand indications — with Mercury, Mars, Uranus well aspected. Do not, however, become too exuberant and over-extend yourself. Proper allocation of time and tasks urged.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — You can garner knowledge from other than your own sphere this inspiring day. Shoulder responsibilities but not with fear or anxiety. You have the God-given wherewithal to succeed.

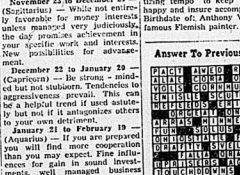
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Strengthen all your fortifications now with sound purpose, attention to details, accuracy and system. There are many opportunities and you don't want to miss the really important ones.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Do not permit the foibles of others or trifling matters to stand in the way of accomplishment. This can be a truly productive, interesting period if you handle it well.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Venus' position stresses patience and tact in all delicate situations, domestic matters. Be motivated by your innate sense of justice and industriousness. You can gain worthwhile returns.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — An unusually good day for vigorous matters and ingenious ideas; also for discreetly aggressive action. Your day for attainment!

November 23 to December 21 — (Sagittarius) — While not entirely favorable for money interests unless managed very judiciously, the day promises achievement in your regular work and interests. New possibilities for advancement.



December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn) — Be strong - minded but not stubborn. Tendencies to aggressiveness prevail. This can be a helpful trend if used astutely but not if it antagonizes others to your own detriment.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — If you are prepared you will find more cooperation than you may expect. Fine influences for gain in sound investments, well managed business ventures.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Grand Uranus and Neptune aspects should encourage you to top previous records in work, study, teaching, research, any demands of day's program. Have some relaxation, too.

You born today just naturally gather knowledge as you go along, no matter how humble or otherwise your beginnings. You are trustworthy, but may be too trusting! Big assets: Integrity, sympathy, lack of self - aggrandizement. Be confident, duly aggressive; strike a busy-but-not-frantic tempo to keep your life happy and insure accomplishment. Birthdate of: Anthony Van Dyck, famous Flemish painter.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma started to yawn ladylike yawns, behind the back of her fingers while we were eating breakfast this morning, so I wonder I feel more like going to bed than being up. She only woke me up a dozzen times, she said.

Did you dreem about a dog? pop ask her, and she said, Now William, you know very well I meen the Advertising Dog. I dont see how you can sleep like a proverbial log when that dog keeps me awake half the night. I dreemed someone was barking up twice, she said.

Well, I try to wake up and join you tonight, pop said, and ma said, William, I've reetched the end of my rope to the limit of my patience, and I intend to take some action.

It's agreent the law to shoot any dog but your own, and we haven't got one, pop said, and to me, Oh, a few mildly cutting words ought to be sufficient. After all, Mrs. Andersen isn't a bad naybor personly, she said.

That's right, she doesn't bark herself, pop said, and ma said, I meen there wont be any need to be nasty with her. It will be enough to adopt a reasonable attitude with a certain amount of fermness, ahs said.

That's the idea, just tell her she ought to be a tiny bit ashamed of herself, pop said, and ma said, Well yes, in a way, I meen not in just those words. Just ring her doorbell on your way to the office and speck to her, William, she said.

Yee gods, you're expecting me to do it? pop said, and ma said, Certainly, who else for land sakes?

Nobody eits, now that I come to think of it,"pop said. Well, if I happen to meet her and she brings up the subject, I promise to take advantage of the opportunity, he said.

Proving ma will probably have to do it herself. (

FUSSY OVER SEASONS

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A psychiatrist says more people kill themselves in the spring than in any other season. Dr. Lloyd West of Oklahoma City told a clinical society Wednesday night that the symptoms of spring fever which bring a feeling of well being to most persons have exactly the opposite effect on acutely depressed persons, making them feel more discouraged than ever.

Get Relief From Stomach Suffering

— and that Tired, Worn-Out Feeling

Syntona Herbal Compound Stops Gas, Indigestion, Sour Stomach. Relieves Constipation, Rheumatic Pains and Nervous, Run-down Condition.

People who suffer from weak upset stomach, constipation, nervous fatigue, rundown condition, or rheumatic pain are often surprised with the relief they get by taking Syntona Herbal Compound.

A Personal Experience

Mrs. Grace Constable, 30 Glenwood Avenue, London, Ontario, said in a recent report:

"I was troubled with indigestion, pains and a full heavy bloated sensation in my stomach. I would belch up hot, sour liquids and suffer with nervous conditions upset my nerves, kept me from getting a good night's rest and left me tired and sleepless and everything I ate but got no real relief until I began taking Syntona. Now I enjoy my meals, have little or no discomfort at any time and my nerves are calmed down. As a result I get normal, restful sleep and I am not always tired. I was before."

How It Acts

Syntona is a LIQUID formula of medicinal ingredients including 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots. Taken before meals, it actually helps you to digest the food you eat, relieves pain, acts as a system tonic and helps to rid the system of excess acids and impurities.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

OLD CROSSING

The first bridge across the river Thames at London, England, was built more than 1,000 years ago.

Court Hears Nurse Testify Logbook Altered

LONDON (CP)—The Crown suggested today that a nurse's logbook had been altered in the case of the rich widow Dr. John Bodkin Adams is accused of poisoning.

Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller startled the court with his attack on the records which lawyers for the 81-year-old doctor have used in challenging testimony from the memory by crown witnesses.

Holding up one of the little red books before nurse Marion Kendall, the crown counsel asked the middle-aged woman to look at the entry for Aug. 23, 1950. He then asked her whether something had been cut out of the page at the bottom.

The nurse replied "Yes" and added she could not say whether she might have cut out anything from a record she had made. She also said she did not remember what was on the page.

The entry cited was made three months before Dr. Adams' 81-year-old patient, Mrs. Edith Morrell, died. The Crown charges the doctor drugged her to death to benefit from her will.

The defence introduced the nurse's logbooks as a surprise two days ago and Manningham-Buller admitted he had not known of their existence. The books were not mentioned in the preliminary hearing when the Crown accused Adams o falso killing two other patients who lived near Mrs. Morrell in Eastbourne, south coast haven for the wealthy retired.

The attorney-general read the following from a supposed copy of the original logbook entry for Aug. 23, 1950:

"7 a.m. bottle of sleeping tablets now in drawer, found loose in bed. Mrs. Morrell very heavy. Dr. Adams called. Said: 'Poor soul, one half caffeine. Treatment given."

The Crown declared someone had written in the words "hypo grains one half caffeine" in pencil ink; while the rest of the writing was in blue ink. The prosecution said Adams of also killing two other eral also asserted the words "called" and "treatment" had been cut though.

Miss Kendall testified the words "treatment given" did not appear in the original nursing book which she was looking at.

Justice Sir Patrick Devlin leaned forward from his high perch in Old Bailey and asked to see the logbook. A slip of about one inch was missing from the bottom of the page.

Smallwood Urges Opposition to 'Hammer Away'

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Newfoundland legislature opened Wednesday and Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood urged the four-man Progressive Conservative Opposition to be "hammered away" at the government.

In the Nova Scotia legislature, Premier Robert Stanfield brought down a budget calling for expenditures of $126,000,000, an increase in the province's history.

The Newfoundland premier, noting his government had held a lopsided majority of 32 to 4, said he wanted to help the opposition and said "hammer away at us—it will make us better."

ESTIMATES SURPLUS

Premier Stanfield, in bringing down the first Progressive Conservative budget in the province in 24 years, estimated a surplus of $38,358 and revenues of $66,304,000.

He said he expected about $7,000,000 more income this year than last. He said, only $2,000,000 will be available for extension of services but that assistance needed to continue the rate of spending established by the Liberal administration which the Progressive Conservatives ousted from office in the October election.

The New Brunswick government's road building program came under attack from J. E. Leger (Lib.—Northumberland) who he was unable to learn where the millions of dollars, "supposedly spent on our roads," had gone. He said about the only major improvement was the Trans Canada highway on which the federal government shared the cost.

STUDIES POLICY

Premier Manning told the Alberta legislature the government is studying a new policy of redeeming unpaid mortgages that have been forfeited through tax default.

An amendment to the Liquor Act was presented in the Manitoba legislature which would forbid open bottles of liquor to be carried in car trunks except in personal baggage. At present opened bottles may be carried in the trunks of cars.

In the Saskatchewan legislature the city government's $15,000,000 budget was approved 34 to 17 in a vote which adhered to party lines.

Warns Red Cross Must Retain Independence

TORONTO (CP)—Col. J. A. McCannus, president of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, said today there are disadvantages for the organization in joining with other charitable groups in fund-raising programs.

In his report to the division's annual meeting, which ended today, he said the Red Cross, when it joins such programs, must make clear to the public that it remains independent in carrying out its work and that it retains its individual identity.

Red Cross legislation was passed last year permitting branches to enter into agreements with other welfare groups for the purposes of fund-raising, although these terms were set out in such a way that the least possible damage to the independence of the Red Cross would result.

MAINTAINS RIGHTS

"We specified the right to set our own budgets, spend our own money and maintain the identity of our name."

Branches in the Hamilton, London and Toronto areas joined the United Appeals, he said.

The financial results were good, each appeal passing its objective, but there were disadvantages in that the Red Cross was denied the opportunity of telling its story to the thousands who contributed.

Roy Lownes, chairman of the outpost hospital committee, said that despite a nursing staff shortage, 291 major and 2,926 other operations were performed and 6,450 out-patients treated at the hospitals to remote parts of Ontario last year.

Dr. J. L. Carroll of Brockville, chairman of the blood donor service committee—said the service will continue to be expanded until the whole province is being served.

This would mean widespread use of the plan called the "mobile" blood system." Teams in operation in Peterborough, Barrie, Cobourg and Brockville and recommended for centres with less than 50,000 people.

The system includes holding regular blood donor clinics once or twice a week, with donors to be called at regular intervals.

Mr. and Mrs. James Vandewater attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Wesley Coulter in Belleville on Wednesday.

CANADA

This attitude already has received a measure of support from Canadian External Affairs Minister L. B. Pearson. For instance, he said in a recent speech that there is a noticeable tendency in some countries to avoid facing up to the realities of national policy by relying completely on the United Nations. He has said the UN is no substitute for the formulation and execution of wise national foreign policies.

This argument strikes a responsible chord in the British delegation here because it feels the Anglo-African Bloc now is in a position to control voting on UN resolutions.

Pearson also objected to some countries in the UN criticizing Britain and France as "colonial powers" while ignoring the fact that Russia is the greatest colonial power in the world today.

The St. Laurent and Macmillan talks on this subject, it is considered here, are likely to bring Canada and Britain closer together after the Suez crisis.

SEEKS OUTLINE

American sources said Eisenhower, as a priority item, is seeking a full outline of Britain's plans to reduce its military forces around the world.

They said American officials see a serious possibility that the United States might have to make new commitments of its own to keep Western defences from being weakened in the face of continuing Soviet pressure.

Dock Workers At Southampton Join Strikers

LONDON (AP)—Dock workers went on strike at the port of Southampton today to protest the use of government tugs in sliding the liner Queen Mary sail for New York. The action threatened to paralyze the vast transatlantic terminal.

The 2,000 dock workers, mostly shore gangs who handle the direct traffic in the port, joined 10,000 shipyard workers and repairmen who have been on strike since Saturday as part of a nation-wide stoppage in support of a 10-per-cent wage increase.

The shipyard workers claimed repairs on the 81,000-ton Queen Mary had not been finished when the shipyard strike began last Saturday. The walkout of 250,000 workmen closed 70 shipyards and stopped work on 300 ships under construction.

REFUSE TO HELP

The crew of privately-owned tugs refused to help move the Queen Mary, and shore gangs declined to cast off her mooring lines. Cunard office workers handled the lines and six government tugs got her out of the harbor.

Union officials circled the big vessel in a launch and shouted to the civilian hands aboard the admiralty boats not to work. Their appeals went unheeded.

With Prime Minister Macmillan in Bermuda for talks with President Eisenhower, the burden of checking the epidemic of strikes at home fell to 43-year-old Labor Minister Iain Macleod.

OTHER STRIKES LOOM

Macleod was fighting two more giant strike threats from unions demanding 10-per-cent wage increases, the same percentage increase sought by the shipyard workers.

The threats came from engineering workers and railway workers. The engineering unions already have called a phased strike starting Saturday. It would bring out by stages 2,500,000 workers, whose jobs range from turning a nut in a small tool shop to operating the biggest machines in aircraft, automotive and electrical equipment factories.

The union plan calls for a first walkout by 1,000,000 men in 13 vital industrial regions, with others joining daily until key plants all over Britain are crippled by April 6.

MAKING FRIENDS

The Soviet government newspaper complained that too many scientific research institutions are located in the two big cities and that many duplicate each other's work.

Caretaker Saves $300,000 Building From Destruction

TORONTO (CP)—A caretaker, a former fireman in his native Italy worked half clad in dense smoke pouring pails of water on flames that neared cans of inflammable liquids in a suburban North York apartment Wednesday.

Firemen credited Egisto Picot, 45, with saving the $300,000 building and possibly the lives of some of its 100 residents.

Picot, awakened by a call from another tenant, rushed to a second floor apartment where fire was raging beneath the kitchen sink and threatening to ignite cans of lighter fluid and floor cleaners.

He soaked a scarf in water, tied it around his head and used water from the sink taps to douse the flames. Firemen arrived in time to do the mopping up.

Depths of more than 9,000 feet have been recorded in the Atlantic between Norway and Iceland.

SHOCKING

These are some results from new research using tiny electrical probes to explore secrets of the brain. The findings may become valuable in treating mental diseases.

Ultra-thin needles or electrodes are thrust deep into the brain, without causing any pain or damage.

The needles can be left in place for days or months. Tiny electric shocks can be set off at points along the needles, to stir specific areas of the brain into action. (It is entirely different from giving potent electric shock treatments for some mental diseases.)

This technique is helping scientists to explore the mysteries of the primitive brain, the deeper core of the brain which was well developed in animals 100 million years ago. It controls automatic affairs, like heart beat and breathing, and acts to rouse and satisfy basic needs such as hunger and sleep.

Over it lies the new brain or cortex, extremely high developed in humans, which is our thinking machine. The cortex has been fairly well mapped. It's known which areas record taste, smell, sound, and control movements of arms and legs according to our mental orders.

The cortex can give orders to the lower or old brain, and also the old brain can send orders or alarms to the cortex in the form of emotions and emergency impulses.

Now evidence is mounting that specific areas of the old brain initiate emotions of fear, anger, pleasure, and basic drives including hunger, sex and thirst.

At Yale University, research teams headed by Dr. Jose Delgado and Neal A. Miller can arouse pain, hunger, fear, sex drive, rage and other emotions by stimulating particular areas of the old brain in cats and monkeys.

A small cat, shocked at one point, will fight a much bigger cat. Shock a different point, and the animal is very tame. Shock still another point, and the animal's appetite jumps astronomically.

Not only one but several specific areas of the old brain produce the same given effect.

Dr. James Olds, now of the University of California, discovered the pleasure centres in rats. He and associates at McGill University in Montreal inserted electrodes into slightly different areas than those first touched by the Yale researchers.

Now the shocks became a reward, not punishment. Animals could be trained to do things by buzzing their pleasure centres, even to foregoing food when hungry.

The clincher came when the apparatus was arranged so rats could turn on the shocks themselves by pressing a pedal. They loved it.

Such research may help show what areas of the brain are tied in with what kinds of behavior, and even help diagnose various disorders, Dr. Delgado says.

The studies promise to aid in learning just how tranquilizing drugs—or even aspirin—perform their chemical effects.

Bermuda Talks May Give Canada Atomic Weapons

Turn to Defence Problems After Mid-East Discussion

TUCKER'S TOWN, Bermuda (AP) — Macmillan - Eisenhower talks today have a long-range bearing on Canadian defence.

Prime Minister Macmillan and President Eisenhower were scheduled to lead an afternoon discussion of mutual defence and security problems after reaching what spokesmen called an "gratifying measure" of agreement on complex Middle East problems.

British and American experts in atomic weapons took up the problem today of the United States' supplying such equipment to Britain. This was a follow-up of the recent visit to Washington of Defence Minister Duncan Sandys to Washington and Ottawa. Experts here include Donald Quarles, U.S. Air Force secretary, and Lewis Strauss, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

STUMBLING BLOCK

Since 1946, the main stumbling block to the U.S. supplying its allies with atomic weapons has been the congressional legislation known as the McMahon Act which prohibits the ex-port of U.S. atomic arms in the hands of its defence partners.

The fact that Britain and the U.S. now are taking up this subject on the highest level following Sandy's mission could be taken as a possible indication that the U.S. administration intends to ask Congress for amendment to the McMahon Act.

If the U.S. does supply atomic warheads to the United Kingdom it presumably also would supply Canada with like weapons.

The Canadian Army, for instance, already is revamping its operational procedures and tactics to adapt them to the atomic battlefield. Planning is being based on atomic weapons even though army as yet has none.

The first Canadian armed force unit which might be given atomic weapons presumably would be the infantry brigade group stationed in Europe as part of the NATO forces.

NEEDS LATEST

In the opinion of many Canadian defence authorities Canada will be failing farther and farther behind its allies let alone Russia in effectiveness of its armed forces unless it can obtain the latest weapons.

For instance, the U.S. Air Force within the consolidated United States now has supersonic jet interceptors armed with atomic missiles. But the Canadian Avro helps defend the same North American skies, but only subsonic fighters and won't get missiles—without atomic warhead — for about two years.

One Canadian authority said that as matters now stand the U.S. and atomic war Canadian forces would have to take it and be unable to dish it out.

Montreal Woman Has Quadruplets

MONTREAL (CP) — William Munro faced an acute housing problem today — parents of a large enough for a family that suddenly increased from five to nine when his wife gave birth to quadruplets.

Munro's first thought Thursday after learning that the quadruplets and his 34-year-old wife Audrey were doing well was that he would have to start looking for a bigger apartment. The Munros and their five children live in a three-bedroom home in suburban Pointe Claire.

The quadruplets — a boy and three girls—were reported healthy and active in incubators at St. Joseph's Hospital in neighboring Lachine. Mrs. Munro was weak but doctors said she would be all right after a good rest.

Montreal medical authorities said quadruplets occur only once in 704,969 births. The deliveries were two months premature.

Psychiatrists Give General Guides Which Will Prevent Mental Illness

Editor's Note: Psychiatrists agree that the one way to combat mental illness is to have a healthy mind. A general guide for avoiding excessive stress and strain is presented in this last of a series of five articles on the human mind.

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
NEW YORK (AP) — Mental disease is a plague cracking up thousands of minds annually. Sick emotions, fears, doubts and anxieties overwhelm millions of others.

But them are defences. You can help keep your own mind healthy, and your children's.

Here are some general guides to prevent mental illness:

1. Be realistic. Shun the romantic fiction that normal life must be smooth and rosy, with a guarantee "to live happily ever after" Normal life is full of reversals, contradictions, zigzags, changing problems.

2. Arm yourself with knowledge of human behavior to avoid needless stress and strain. Many mothers are mortified when their children of three throw temper tantrums in a supermarket. Yet up to 80 per cent of healthy children will have temper tantrums at times at this age.

3. Avoid unnecessary or prolonged physical or mental stress if you can. Learn the advantages of the body's hormonal and other protective mechanisms are involved in mental illnesses

4. Develop and use your talents and abilities. Stimulate children to use all their capacities, but don't push them beyond their talents. Boredom and inactivity are enemies of the healthy mind.

5. Give children love and security. But too much can be bad.

6. Work, especially constructive, that hard work itself ever leads to a breakdown. In this connection Dr. Menninger the serious dangers in the 35-hour or 30-hour week, unless people learn to use leisure healthfully.

7. Take liberal doses of rest, relaxation, play and humor.

8. Have a purpose or direction in life, something constructive.

9. We all need "greater tolerance, more trust—less suspicion, less impulsiveness, less hate, less fear" for mental health, Dr. George Stevenson of the National Association for Mental Health stresses.

GARSON HITS PC CRITICISM OF FEDERAL BUDGET

Defends Policy On Tax Cuts

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson says Progressive Conservative criticism of the federal budget indicates "a complete and complete irresponsibility."

And that, he added in the Commons budget debate Thursday, "puts them and their party on a par in the opinion of some with the Social Credit party in matters of finance."

Conservative members had called for bigger tax cuts and more social welfare payments while at the same time demanding that deficit be resisted.

He was replying to charges by Donald Fleming (PC — Eglinton) that he and other opposition members that the federal surplus for the last 18 months and its forecast of a surplus in the fiscal year starting April 1 mean Canadians are overtaxed.

WOULD LET PUBLIC SAVE

If savings would help defeat inflation, the public would have done its part, Mr. Garson said, the government should let our people save out of their own money, said Mr. Fleming.

"But the government was overtaxing the people so that it could spend—and create inflation."

Fred S. Zaplitny (CCF — Dauphin) said what Canada has at present is not inflation — "too many dollars chasing too few goods"—but the result of too much profiteering by large corporations.

He said the government should have raised basic exemptions on personal income tax to offset the effects of rising living costs.

Mr. Garson said a government should not "add to the fires of inflation." It was money spent by neither taxpayers nor government and it created no inflation.

Conservative financial spokesman J. M. Macdonnell interrupted to say that when the government uses a surplus to pay off the public debt, the money goes into the hands of others who could spend it. Mr. Garson disagreed.

Pope Liberalizes Rules for Mass

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Pope has liberalized rules for evening mass before an overnight fast.

The new rulings announced today extend liberalizations the pontiff made in 1953. They become effective next March 25.

The Pope now gives Roman Catholic bishops the right to celebrate evening masses daily "so long as it is required for the spiritual welfare of a considerable number of people."

Hammarskjold Said Urging Israelis Quit Desert Area

CAIRO (AP) — UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold is reported demanding Israeli withdrawal from the El Auja triangle in the Negev desert as an essential step toward Israeli-Egyptian peace. Israel is expected to refuse.

Hammarskjold today went into the second day of conferences dealing with operation of the Suez Canal and Israeli-Arab tension.

The conferences started while Port Said harbor was reopened for all shipping for the first time since November.

The port was closed with the Anglo-French landing there in November.

The Egyptian Ports and Lights Administration officially advised shipping companies Thursday that ships will be allowed to enter and sail from Port Said harbor from sunrise to sunset.

The secretary-general met for six hours Thursday alone with President Nasser. Hammarskjold and his aides refused to say what was discussed, but other sources indicated the meeting was devoted mainly to feeling out of respective positions.

Hammarskjold's reported belief that the Israelis quit the El Auja triangle is in line with his view that both Israel and the Arabs must adhere strictly to the 1949 armistice which ended the Palestine war if friction is to be reduced.

The 19-mile long El Auja triangle lies along the border between Egypt's Sinai Peninsula and Israel's Negev territory. Because it straddles desert trails, the armistice said it should be demilitarized.

Hammarskjold was said to favor complete withdrawal by Israel from the area. He recently reported to the United Nations that units of the UN Emergency Force could be stationed in the triangle.

In Jerusalem, official circles said Israel does not want to quit the triangle unless Egypt reverses its attitude of belligerency toward Israel. Egyptian officials have made it clear that Israeli shipping still will not be permitted to use the Suez Canal which it is reopened because Egypt considers herself technically at war with Israel.

Jerusalem informants said they expect Hammarskjold to spend next week further talks with Premier David Ben-Gurion.

Tel Aviv said Israel and Jordan clashes continued.

Israeli army headquarters in Tel Aviv said Israel and Jordan forces exchanged fire on the Israeli-Jordanian border northeast of Megiddo. The army said a Jordan patrol had penetrated Israeli territory and that when an Israeli patrol approached the scene, Jordanian troops opened fire from Jordan territory.

The Israeli army and Jordan patrol withdrew under the protecting fire, and that there were no Israeli casualties.

Israel also said Syrian troops fired on Israeli fishing boats in the hour border clash Wednesday east of Lake Hula. No casualties were reported.

In Gaza, Egyptian authorities set up bodies and let dug up near the Israeli border. The Egyptians said the bodies were those of civilians rounded up by Israeli soldiers Nov. 19 during the Israeli invasion and later killed.

Transcontinental Record Broken by U.S. Navy Jet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — After failing to set a speed mark for flight from Los Angeles to New York, a twin-engined U.S. navy jet bomber turned around the next day and broke two records on the homeward leg.

The Douglas Skyraider, piloted by Cmdr. Dale W. Cox Jr. of Spirit Lake, Idaho, and carrying two crew members, flew back to Los Angeles in a roundtrip record of nine hours, 33 minutes and 48 seconds, and an east-to-west record of five hours, 31 minutes, 57.89 seconds.

The bomber left Los Angeles at 9:11 a.m. PST and was in New York three hours, 39 minutes, 13 seconds, elapsed time, its west-to-east, is three hours, 44 minutes, 53.88 seconds set March 9, 1955, by Lt-Col. Robert Scott in a F-84F US Air Force Thunderstreak.

The former round trip record was 11 hours, 18 minutes, 27 seconds, made May 21, 1955, by national guard Captain John M. Conroy in an F-86A Sabre-jet. The old record, one of five long-haul, 24 minutes, 26.64 seconds, also was set by Conroy.

Skyraiders ruined Cox's hopes of beating the west-to-east record, set by Fred Bennett Field Cox and his crew ate sandwiches and sipped milk while 3,000 gallons of fuel was loaded for the return trip.

Then, with box lunches of fried chicken under their arms, they climbed aboard for the return. Twenty minutes after arriving in New York, the Skyraider was on its way back to Los Angeles. It required almost the full length of the runway before being airborne.

Top speed on the flight was 740 miles an hour. The bomber flew at about 34,000 feet.

Liners Berth Without Tugs To Beat Strike

LONDON (CP) — Ocean liners steamed into Southampton docks and berthed without tugs or mooring crews in a growing "beat the strike" campaign.

Government mediators, meanwhile, intensified last-ditch attempts to crack the British shipyard strike and head off an all-out walkout of 2,500,000 industrial workers scheduled to start at noon Saturday.

There were signs that Britain's other major strike, a walkout by the state-run railway system, might be averted by a wage compromise.

Southampton's tug operators, and mooring men have joined with the Queen Mary after the shipyard strikers charged that the Cunard Line had taken the vessel unfairly ashed from a strikebound repair yard. The strike was ineffective throughout the port when navy tugs helped the liner sail for the U.S. Thursday.

Helped by perfect weather, the 27,000-ton Caronia also was eased into the Southampton quay with 600 passengers from South Africa after an hour of manoeuvring, office workers of the Union Castle Line handled the mooring ropes.

Later the Norwegian cruise ship Venus repeated the operation to the applause and cheers of passengers on deck. Other liners were expected to do the same when they arrive in the next day or two.

NEW THREE-MAN BOARD TO CONTROL MILK INDUSTRY

Regulate Marketing Of All Milk Products

TORONTO (CP) — A bill designed to streamline the administration of the dairy industry by the department of agriculture and make available better marketing machinery for Ontario milk producers was given first reading Thursday in the legislature.

The legislation will establish a new three - man milk industry board which will take over the functions of the milk control board and the milk products marketing board. Minister Goodfellow said the bill gives power to regulate the marketing of fluid milk and products made from it.

The proposed act makes provision for the establishment of standards of production for milk and cream. Provision also is made for a pricing formula for the producer price for fluid milk and cream. The pricing formula committee to keep check on the costs and other factors that enter into milk production.

SETS IT UP

The bill would establish machinery for greater co-ordination of producer marketing within Ontario by the department of agriculture, setting sections of the legislation in line with that of Farm Products Marketing Act.

Reflecting the light money situation facing municipalities, the another bill the government increased the borrowing limit of the Municipal Improvement Corporation from $50,000,000 to $150,000,000. Municipalities obtain loans from this body at preferred interest rates.

In an amendment to the Ontario Fuel Board Act, provisions were made for the complete jurisdiction of the board respecting all matters of fuel and oil equipment. Another bill provided that corporations exporting lignite and gas by transmission lines must make suitable compensation or face arbitration in a county court, where the municipal board as the appeal court.

Health Minister Phillips introduced a new Cancer Act which consolidated the Cancer Research Foundation and the Cancer Institute in one body. Mr. Phillips earlier expressed the hope that the work of the foundation would be broadened to include cancer but also empowers the institute to operate the Cancer Hospital on Wellesley Street.

An unusual bill was one introduced by Attorney-General Robarts empowering the appointment of a legislative sanction for the Oxford member's purchase of property and sold by the crown. His was the highest and best bid, but the government of Legislation was necessary in order to ensure that the transaction did not prejudice the rights of a member.

The Water Resources Commission's powers were clarified in another bill, and the collection of water and sewage projects formerly contained in the public health act was transferred to it.

Three Assisting Plane in Distress Die in Collision

MOLINE, Ill. (AP)—Three men who climbed into a small plane to answer the distress call of another plane died Thursday in a collision of the two aircraft.

William Lawrence, the pilot who was alone in the plane in distress, escaped unhurt. One of the dead was Ray Lee, was a bent propeller and a few cabin punches.

Johnson was putting a two-engine Cessna through some tests when he noticed that a cockpit signal light indicated the landing gear was not functioning. He flew over the city airport and radioed the distress call.

Authorities said the rescue plane attempted to manoeuvre close to the disabled craft to check its landing gear and apparently bumped into it. The rescue craft crashed immediately.

Johnson then round he was able to lower his landing wheels and landed a few minutes later.

Military Personnel Being Transported To Tokyo Base

Believe Plane Crashed on Chain of Volcanic Islands

TOKYO (AP) — Fear mounted tonight for the lives of 67 persons aboard a U.S. military transport plane which disappeared early today off Japan as it neared the end of its transpacific flight.

Low clouds and rain squalls hampered air search and 30-foot swells reduced visibility of searching ships almost to zero.

Some Japanese aviation experts speculated the plane might have crashed on one of a chain of volcanic islands in the vicinity. One of them is Mount Mihara, a 2,470-foot active volcano into which a Japan Air Line plane crashed April 9, 1952, killing all 37 persons aboard.

The four-engined C-97, military version of the Boeing Stratocruiser, left Wake Island Thursday afternoon for Tokyo on the last leg of a flight from Travis air base near San Francisco.

CREW OF 10

The air force said 57 passengers and a crew of 10 were aboard. The passengers including 27 airforce personnel; 17 army and 13 navy men; two civilian government employees, both men; and a woman military dependent. Also aboard was a U.S. air force serviceman stationed in Japan.

All the crew, which included at least one woman, were members of the air force. The plane was operated by the military air transport service.

The plane's last reported position was 200 miles southeast of Tokyo at 2:30 a.m. (10:15 a.m. EST Thursday). The radio report gave no indication of any trouble.

The air force said the plane had enough fuel for only about 2½ hours flying past its scheduled arrival time.

As soon as the plane was overdue, a sea and air search was launched. Life rafts aboard the planes were equipped with flares and flashlights and most rafts aboard transports have radio transmitters for broadcasting S O S signals.

NO DISTRESS CALLS

Throughout the day, however, monitors picked up no distress calls from the missing craft or from planes and ships had joined in the search and dozens of Japanese fishing boats were asked to keep a lookout.

One report said if the plane did ditch in 30-foot seas, it almost certainly could stay afloat for at least 24 hours.

Another said the pilot could quickly, possibly before life rafts could be launched.

"God could ditch success fully in seas like that," he said. "The C97 was the ideal target plane to go down in the Far East since Feb. 22. In the seven previous cases where C97s were listed as dead or missing, including President Ramon Magsaysay of the Philippines.

Automatic Station Will Broadcast Weather Information From Antarctic

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — An automatic weather reporting station is being set up in Antarctica to daily weather reports from Australian Antarctic territory as part of this country's contribution to the International Geophysical Year beginning officially July 1.

Reports from the station, which will be left unattended for up to 18 months, will be collected with reports from two manned weather stations in the Australian sector.

The scheme opens up the possibility of automation taking over much of the gathering and collection of weather information throughout the world.

Commonwealth bureau of meteorology expects great hope eventually to see such stations scattered throughout the remote parts of Australia to help them overcome the difficulties of obtaining weather information from these uninhabited regions.

The director of the bureau, L.J. Dwyer, has been watching closely the latest trend in the use of automatic weather station. A British firm has developed the equipment for use in the Sahara desert and agree- to modify it to Australian specifications.

The equipment is battery-powered, can make regular weather reports and, at hourly intervals, if needed, and has a range of 600 miles in fine broadcasting conditions. If gives details of wind speed and direction, barometric pressure and temperature, and can be adapted to supply details of other variable atmospheric conditions.

A propeller-driven wind generator recharges batteries, which could in any event carry on for three months without recharging. Timing is governed by a pendulum clock which is the nerve centre of the station.

Nurse Admits Giving Drugs To Dying Woman

LONDON (CP)—A nurse who saw the death of the old lady Dr. John Adams is accused of murdering testified today she gave the ailing woman an injection on her own responsibility an hour before she died.

"If you are right and your memory is right," demanded Geoffrey Lawrence, defence counsel, "there was a serious breach of duty that night?"

"Yes," replied nurse Caroline Randall.

"It is quite inexplicable?"

"Yes."

She testified she gave Mrs. Morrell an injection of paraldehyde—a sleeping drug—an hour before the woman died but failed to record it in the nurses' log book.

Under intense questioning by the defence, Miss Randall described the final hours of Mrs. Edith Alice Morrell to a jury of 10 men and two women. Adams, 58-year-old bachelor society doctor who is charged with fatally drugging the rich 81-year-old widow to gain an inheritance under her will, entered a plea of not guilty.

At the beginning of the cross-examination Thursday Miss Randall testified there was no justification for earlier accusations at a preliminary hearing that heroin prescribed by Dr. Adams affected Mrs. Morrell adversely.

The stern-faced justice, Sir Patrick Devlin, stared coldly across spectators by suddenly asking the nurse counsel whether he contained that drugs administered Mrs. Morrell the night of her death were given "with the knowledge" of killing her.

Seemingly caught by surprise, Attorney-General Sir Reginald Manningham-Buller rose and after a pause replied:

"I must say I do submit that that is given deliberately by Dr. Adams and they accelerated the death of the patient. But I don't elaborate that point that and my medical evidence will indicate why."

"I am very much obliged," said the Judge politely. "That is what I wished to hear."

Chas. B. McGuire Former Bursar Of OSD Dies

Stricken with a heart attack while conversing with his wife at his residence, 128 Dufferin Avenue, after the dinner hour Thursday, Charles Bingham McGuire, former Bursar at the Ontario School for the Deaf, died suddenly before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. McGuire was born in Bruce County, 79 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James McGuire and had resided in this city for the past 30 years. Before coming to Belleville he resided in Stirling, conducting a grocery business in that village, and after his appointment as Bursar at the OSD moved to this city, where he has resided ever since. After his retirement, eight years ago, Mr. McGuire had lived quietly at his home on Dufferin Avenue and during the past few years had assisted in the treasurer's office at the City Hall.

The late Mr. McGuire took an active interest in community affairs in the districts where he had resided. In Stirling he entered municipal life and was elected reeve of that village on several occasions, and served with distinction in Council. He was then appointed as Bursar of the School for the Deaf and favored with distinction in that institution until his retirement some years ago. In all his municipal and civil servant life, he was highly regarded for his integrity and strict ideals. Among people he was held in high esteem and enjoyed a wide circle of friends, who will sincerely regret his sudden death. He was a man of deep religious piety and kindly smile.

He was an ardent sports fan, although he took no regular part in its activities. For many years he was an ardent lawn bowler and was a member of the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club and took part in many tournaments in the district. As a member of Bridge Street United Church he was most active in all branches of work in the congregation and served as a teacher of the church for many years. Fraternally he was identified with Stirling Lodge, A.F. and A.M. No. 239.

Surviving are his wife, the former Annie Elliott, one daughter, Mrs. Charles (Lillian) Allen, of Peterborough; one son, Percy C. McGuire, of this city; one sister, Mrs. J. T. McNair of Saskatoon, and a granddaughter, Margaret Anne, of this city.

Shrine-Police-Firemen Game Attracts Near-Record Crowd

There are warm appreciative smiles on the faces of the crippled kiddies of the city and district today.

For they were given ample evidence last night in Memorial Arena that the citizens and district residents are behind them in their battle for a brighter better future.

If you count their more fortunate counterparts on your fingers, over 3,000 folks of all sizes, dimensions and from all walks of life, packed the arena for the annual Shrine-Police - Firemen hockey brawl—whoops—ball.

The Shriners, police, firemen, Jack Dickens and his brilliant stars from the Quinte Skating Club, and assorted VIP's put on an evening's entertainment that should set a substantial sum for the Shrine Club's crippled children exchequer. There was not a dull moment from the time the first puck was dropped in the hockey game until the big fiesta was over. Incidentally the hockey game was also something even - steven, both teams scoring a trio of goals to make the game a close-run affair to stalemate.

The centre of attraction for the city's hockey small fry and a large crowd of adults was Syd Apps, former Toronto Maple Leaf hockey star, who refereed the hockey game, which was attended by approximately hunters and after the game the youngsters thronged on the ice in search of the autograph signature of the former National Hockey League great.

Mr. Apps took advantage of the opportunity to speak with and get the signatures of two of their favorite Belleville McFarlands, Gordie Bell and Floyd Crawford, who substituted for the originally scheduled Moe Benoit and Paul Payette at linesmen.

The boys were properly introduced to the large crowd by Recreation director Lloyd "Pinky" Dorian. A feature of the hockey proceedings was the pre-game ceremonies that saw the puck faced off by Belleville's youthful Larry Bates, who was attended by Inspector A. McDougall, Ontario Provincial Police, Chief Gerald Prince of the Belleville Fire Department and Lee Grills, chairman of the Shrine crippled children committee.

The musical part of the show was well taken care of by the crack drum and trumpet band of the R.C.A.F. Station Trenton. This fine musical organization rated one of the best of the Eastern Canada lived up to its reputation with stirring rhythm. The band's efforts were greatly appreciated not only by committee in charge but the thousands who heard it play.

There was all kinds of additional fun for the kids. Dick's Camel Herders, the only Canadian unit of its kind were there in full force to exceed all forced glory. Clowns of the Quinte Skating Club proved a riot of fun and delighted not only the many kiddies on hand but adults as well. They deserve high commendation for their part of the show. They included Don Foster, Bill Foster and H. Toole.

Adding skating rhythm and beauty to the show were the figure skating stars of the Quinte Skating Club under the supervision of Jack Dickens, Petite Jane McCutcheon, a star in the making, highlighted the large crowd with her "singles" performance as did Peggy Mrs. Joan Kells and Joe Calbury were also seen in singles numbers and their exhibition on skates received a splendid ovation.

The "piece-de-resistance" of the show the ice-clash between the police and fire departments resulted in no injuries, no friendships broken and no boarding, for the squads rounded out three periods of thrilling hockey with a three all stalemate.

GOOD GAME

It was a fine exhibition with the limbs of the law and the smoke-eaters battling hard for supremacy. The firemen held a 1-0 edge going into the second period but the "cops" roared back to tie it up. They scored two quickies in the third minute and it looked like a police victory. However they hadn't reckoned with the cool-as-ice black qualities of Vance's men who evened the count and almost won it before the final period ended in a whistle.

Vic Card was the scoring hero for the firemen, smacking home two goals, one of them the tying marker with Lou Chance netting the other. George Evans was the police sharpshooter with two goals in the third period and Bill Hall added the third tally.

Climaxing the evening's entertainment was the draw for the numerous prizes. Included in these activities were Shrine Noble "Bellamy" Lloyd who acted as aid to Imperial Potentate of Hamma Hamma Pale D. L. Storey of this city, Chief Gerald Vance, Noble Horace Wright and Noble Jack Canel Herders acted as spotters and runners.

Brief addresses were given by Shrine president John Weese, the heads of the police and fire forces and others.

It was usually one of the most successful Shrine-Police-Firemen events, excellently arranged and splendidly run.

Shrine president Weese today expressed the wholehearted appreciation of the Shrine and all nobles for the outstanding efforts of all who did make the annual affair winner function the success it proved to be.

Final Film Shown In Kiwanis Club Travel Series

A trip across the world and under the seas awaited the audience at the Kiwanis Club travel and adventure film series last night. Col. John D. Craig presented a feature "Let Is My Business", filmed during his search for high adventure.

Col. Craig took the audience on a treasure hunt at Silver Shoals, a group of islands off the north shore of Hispaniola. Here he took his camera under the sea to see the treasure of the 16th Spanish treasure galleons which once sank in the area. At about 13 feet long, was among the items the photographer discovered on the ocean floor. One gun which was brought to the surface and cleaned revealed the date "1613." To add to the excitement a white man-eating shark, about 22 feet in length came into the picture's view. Col. Craig said fish were attracted by the "bubbles" from the divers' gear.

The photographer transported his audience to the Philippine Islands, to mountain top ceremonials at places his group was able to film an airborne operation on Corregidor. After the war Col. Craig returned to the scene and filmed the area. He showed the Kiwanis members, very unhappy since their favorite fishing spot was no more. The man's importance was determined by the number of shells he carried. Col. Craig also showed the viewers, churches, and medical centres which he visited in the Belleville General Hospital.

Three Injured As Car Turns Over in Ditch

Thrown into a creek when their car went out of control on the second concession of Thurlow and turned end over end into the ditch, three young Tyendinaga township men escaped serious injury late Thursday night.

All three men, Carson Jackson, 24, of Shannonville, and Kenneth and Jim Howard, of Shannonville, were treated at Belleville General Hospital and then allowed to go home. They escaped with scratches and bruises.

The accident occurred about four miles east of Belleville as the westbound car driven by Jackson went out of control as it struck a patch ofloose gravel. The vehicle turned end over end into the ditch throwing its occupants into a creek. The car was badly damaged.

The men were taken to hospital by Bush's ambulance. Provincial Constable Pat McKenna investigated.

Police Blotter

Two Belleville juveniles are being held by Cornwall police after being stopped late last night in charge of a car cache reported stolen in this city.

Pte. Paul St. Pierre, 891½ Pinnacle street, complaining that his car had been taken from the Modern Grocery parking lot some time yesterday. He reported the car stolen at supper time.

Picton police reported that a truck owned by Leon Rutter had been stolen from the Prince Edward county town.

And locally, a 21-year-old man was taken to hospital to have his stomach pumped out after he had allegedly taken a dose of rat poison.

But God has left a loneliness,
The world can never fill.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

By CHRIS F. LEGGAT

The Salvation Army Wolf Cubs held their Father and Son banquet on Monday, March 4th, in the Citadel.

Mr. George Ellerby introduced the guests, who were Mary Lessels, Bagheera, Mrs. Ivany, C. F. Leggat, Captain C. Ivany, Phil Allcorn, Akela Cubs, John Townsend, district Cubmaster, Mrs. Townsend, Akela Sth., Velma Taylor, Akela 7th. and William Taylor, Baloo.

An excellent dinner was served by the ladies and was fully appreciated. Mr. Bert Wood who thanked Mrs. F. Mason, expressed the feelings of the entire gathering. He said, "In the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach, the mothers of the 7th have succeeded beyond expectations." Place cards described Scouting highlights for the past century.

Captain Ivany, a navy veteran, welcomed the fathers and added a special word of thanks to the leaders for their continuous good work. In his remarks he noted that in his day it used to be "All the nice girls love a Sailor." Now the "sailor" has been retired to "Buy Scout."

Whoever said this is a man's world should have seen Mary Lessels lead the singing, nobly assisted by the rest up to that point had been exceptionally quiet — everybody joined in "I've Been Working on the Railroad." Mary did a real good job and got the whole gang feeling good.

Akela Taylor will be glad to know that a good number of her Cubs were at the Y.M.C.A. swimming class on Saturday. This was mentioned at the banquet and it gave all a good feeling to know that the Cubs of the 7th are so responsive.

SPOKE ON LEADERSHIP

The speaker, Phil Allcorn, gave a most interesting talk. He spoke on the great obligation of leaders in training boys to fill the greater need for leaders of tomorrow. Setting the example is the big job, the example Boy Scouts should be to boys not in the movement, of leaders and fathers to be boys. This should start in the home; harmony in the home leads to order in the nation on which depends world peace.

No two groups are alike. Perhaps what distinguishes the S.A. group is the family aspect present at Cub meetings. It is in no small degree to the devotional period led by their Akela and sincerely followed. This is not surprising because, after all, the first promise a Scout makes is his duty to God.

Mr. Allcorn told of a personal experience. He moved a wall in his house to get a picture window in, and now he can see his garden and the beauties of nature. We should all, he said, break down the walls of ignorance in our boys' lives and put in picture windows so that they may look through the larger windows of opportunity and eliminate the limited vision of life.

D.C.M. John Townsend found himself a busy man with the pleasant duty of awarding stars and badges.

1st Stars — to Ted Lessels, Dennis Lane, Charles Weese, Bobby Young, Michael Wood, Philip Bardy Steve Keary, Gerald MacDonald and Dwayne Ellis.

2nd Stars — to Douglas Manastyr Ronald Lessels, Gerald Langman, Wayne Trice, Gordon Fudge, Robert Fletcher and Bill Percival.

House Orderly Badge — to Dennis Lane, Charles Weese, Stephen Keary, Ted Lessels, Gerry MacDonald, Bobby Young, Gordon Fudge, Gerry Longman and Bill Percival.

Team Players — Bobby Young, Wayne Trice.

Athlete — Bobby Young and John Lane.

Gardener — John Lane.

Guide — John Lane.

Artist — Wayne Trice, Robert Fletcher, Douglas Manastyf, Gerald Longman, Gordon Fudge.

Toymaker — John Lane, Douglas Manastyr, Gerry Longman, Gordon Fudge, Dwayne Ellis, Steve Keary and Ron Lessels.

On this pleasant note a most successful evening at the Salvation Army Citadel came to a close.

The emopetition was won by Victoria County with runners up being Durham, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward, Hastings and Peterborough, in that order.

August Completion Expected For Rebuilding Three Miles County Road South of Madoc

The familiar curves and dips in the Madoc county road in the Moira Lake area are changing as transformation these days as work crews of the A. H. McCoy Construction Company of Stittsville proceed wit blasting and grading operations for the three-mile stretch of road south of Madoc.

Getting underway late in December, the project will run to August before completion. it was stated today by job foreman Ivan Seabrook. The Stittsville firm has the contract for clearing the right of way, blasting of rock and regrading of the nearly three mile stretch of road.

The re-grading is being done as a road development project by the Ontario Highways Department which is paying construction costs. Under the agreement with Hastings, the county is charged with the responsibility of purchasing the required additional right-of-way and doing the fencing..

Already the right of way has been blasted through the rock formation of the "Island" at Moira Lake and lateral of the dips and turns so familiar to motorists, the road will swing in a gradual curve north from the railway underpass. A new bridge will be constructed over the connecting arm between the two bodies of the lake. Tenders for the new bridge to be built between the present road bridge and the railway, have not yet been called.

Including operators, between 20 and 25 men are employed in the re-grading project, about one half being local.

Plans are to use the same railway underpass although it is expected the underpass width will be widened. South of the underpass the road will swing to the right, generally following the present right of way with curves being reduced.

North of the lake also the road will generally follow the present right of way, again with knolls being blasted away and curves reduced.

The agreement with the province for re-construction of the Madoc county road as a secondary road culminated several years of effort on the part of Hastings county councillors to have the artery taken over as a provincial highway.

Regrading of the road will be done in sections, with the work now underway on the north end, one of two projects commenced last fall.

The other section on which work has been started is at Halloway where the road is to be straightened by a cut-off which will bypass the village.

Work on the Halloway by-pass was discontinued for the winter months.

POISONED MINDS

"His mind was poisoned against me."

We have all heard statements like that and have understood exactly what was meant. But we have understood it merely as picturesque figure of speech.

The "poison" to which reference was made was not a noxious substance, but a baneful influence by another person.

Now, however, scientists believe that it is possible that minds are literally poisoned, by substances produced in the human body.

Alton L. Blakeslee, the distinguished science writer for the Associated Press, reports that recent research indicates that mental illness may be caused by chemical poisons in the brain rather than by emotional disorders.

A few drops of a colorless, odorless liquid placed in a glass of water and drunk by a normal person will produce the symptoms of schizophrenia. The most common form of mental illness. Obtained from the blood of schizophrenics, a mysterious chemical named taraxein disorganized the thinking and impaired the concentration of seventeen volunteers who tried it.

Dr. Howard Fabing, a Cincinnati neuropsychiatrist, says that such discoveries raise "the tantalizing thought that mental illness could be caused by chemical poisoning of the brain rather than being something we worry and fret ourselves into."

This is a statement fraught with customary medical caution. The average man would say that if the blood of a mental patient contains a mysterious substance, and if this substance when injected into a mentally healthy person produces mental illness, it is obvious that the substance is the cause of mental illness.

The doctors, though, are wary of leaping to conclusions.

There is, also, another possibility. Even if it should be proven beyond all doubt that sick minds are poisoned minds, there is still the question of what causes the body to produce the poisons.

Presumably they are manufactured in some gland. Perhaps the research scientists have already determined where taraxein is manufactured. Apart from the content of Mr. Blakeslee's article we doubt that their studies have yet yielded this information. But, regardless of how the substance is produced in the body, there is the question of why it is produced. What activates this poison-manufacturing machinery?

Perhaps we shall find that this activating force is worry and fretfulness — for that although the mechanics will be found to be those of a sick mind will be found to be those of a poisoned mind, the old theory that worry is the prime cause will still hold true. There will just be another step in the process, an explanation of how worry can unhinge a person's mental processes.

WHAT ARE THEY FLEEING?

Father John Morrison, a Roman Catholic priest on the island of South Uist in the Outer Hebrides, is overwhelmed by Canadian interest in the population problem. Applicants of that island to emigrate to Canada.

The residents of South Uist have fought an 18-month campaign against the establishment of a guided missile range on their island. Now that has been comparatively little affected by recent technological changes.

With Hon. J. W. Pickersgill, Canada's Minister of Immigration, we commend the residents of South Uist for selecting Canada as a good place to make new homes if they lose their battle with the rockets.

We have, however, grave misgivings after reading one comment by Father Morrison.

He says that "if the worst comes to the worst," if "our efforts to stop the government's plan fail and they are determined to settle some 9,000 strangers on the island," then they will emigrate to Canada."

Why the reference to "9,000 strangers?"

Are the islanders fleeing the rockets — or men and women with strange ways and new customs?

If the former, Canada is an ideal refuge. There's lots of space where rockets are unlikely to land, at least until such a time as they are safe and trustworthy.

But if it is strange ways and new customs that the islanders dread, then Canada is no place for them.

Canada is a country where ways and customs are changing with great rapidity, and where Canadians are working mightily to make certain that these changes continue at an ever-increasing pace.

Perhaps those men and women of the Outer Hebrides are right, perhaps the old ways are best, but if this be true then they will not be happy here. They would feel much more at home on South Uist, even with guided missiles and 9,000 strangers.

There have been several suggestions as to where the emigrants might settle. Ontario, Columbia and Alberta were both mentioned, if we remember aright. The latest suggestion, though, is an island off the coast of Newfoundland. There, it might be felt, they would find a haven.

But not for long. Change will come to even the loneliest islands off our coasts. In any event, does Canada want an enclave, does it want 2,500 of its citizens living to themselves and following the customs of another land and another day? The answer, we believe, is in the negative.

WEEDS

Man walks his garden space about
And sees the growing weeds;
Of this there's not the slightest doubt,
The wind has blown their seeds.
And all they ask is wind and sun
And rainfall now and then,
And they will get their service done
In spite of watchful men.

It matters not at all to them
What many foes assail
And gardeners their ways condemn,
They never seem to fail.
A friendless world is ever busy occupy.
Yet save assistance needs.
Though costly roses seem to die,
It is not so with weeds.

The winds may sow them where they will
And there to live they mean
Man may invent strong stuffs to kill.
But many stay alive.
Unwanted they have been for years,
Unwanted they'll remain,
But gardens weed appears
Unchanged by man's disdain.

Would I had courage, strength of will
That triumph seems to need
And had the wisdom and the skill
To strive as does the weed.
Had but the wisdom and the grace
Been granted unto me,
With all my strength to fill my place,
Much prouder I could be.

World Loses Great Leader

Montreal Gazette

"We can't be neutral," said Ramon Magsaysay when he accepted the presidency of the Philippines in 1953. He advocated Philippine participation in the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization. He rejected the neutralism which was becoming popular in various parts of Asia.

It is believed possible that it was this definite pro-Western stand which caused his death on the weekend when his presidential aircraft crashed in mountains of jungle near his beloved islands. The sole survivor of the crash has reported an explosion before the crash which might have been the result of sabotage.

Magsaysay, who would have been 50 August 31, was general manager of a trucking concern when the Japanese began to overrun the Philippines early in 1942. The U.S. Army requisitioned 110 of the company's trucks; Magsaysay went along with them to Bataan. Magsaysay escaped from Bataan before it fell and then led a guerrilla movement with American officers, he organized and led the Filipino guerrillas and in his home province of Zambales.

At one time, he commanded 10,000 guerrillas; his forces did important work in preparing the island for reconquest in 1945 by knocking out Japanese air installations. General MacArthur made him military governor of Zambales Province. As he said, Magsaysay became a congressman; in 1950, he became national secretary of defence; in 1953, he was elected president, and, after that, it seemed certain he would be chosen for a second term.

It was not only Magsaysay's wartime record that caused this political success. As secretary of defence, he led the fight against the Communist-directed Hukbalahap rebels; as president, he completed the job of destroying them. As president, he also instituted sweeping reforms intended to help safeguard justice and lift the standard of living for every Filipino.

Filipino onlookers wept when the president's body was brought down from the mountain crash site. Their grief was understandable. But they are not the only ones to mourn. In the difficult, dark era of cold war in Southeast-Asia, the whole free world has lost a stout fighter and a sincere friend.

War on Colds Long Overdue

Des Moines Register

The president's lingering cold, now turned to a couch "down in my lungs," will bring nods of sympathy from the approximately 20,000,000 Americans now going through the torment of running noses, watery eyes, chills, headache and sneezing.

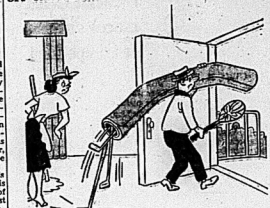
The ailment's cold miseries are duplicated a half billion times each year in the U.S. More than half the time people can count on catching at least three colds a year.

The so-called harmless common cold can be pretty serious business. It can lead to such ills as "bronchitis, pneumonia and other more serious ailments. It is a prime cause of ear infections, and resulting hearing loss and deafness. Science has been plugging away at the answer for more than two centuries. The search is still the most discouraging. The cause apparently isn't a single virus but several viruses, perhaps as many as 40. The problem of developing a vaccine to handle all of them is enormous, an insurmountable.

But a people that developed the atomic bomb and a nation which can change its name to the Uncommon Cold Foundation. We bet it all the chips in the world. A hot war on the cold is long overdue.

Knights of Air Outmoded

Ogdensburg Journal



Each time a new rocket weapon is unveiled lately, the question arises in our minds as to the doing in fighter planes anyhow becomes more acute. Now the U.S. Navy has demonstrated a rocket-propelled arrow with explosive warhead that the pilot says will chase enemy pilots "all the way home and shoot them down."

That would seem to settle it. Why get out of bed and into an airplane in the cold dark if that's all the chance for survival you have?

All the gallantry is vanishing from aerial warfare as once it did from battles between armed knights. When gunpowder came along, the knights wound up per-

OFF THE RECORD

Orange Juice By Tanker

Montreal Star

Some possibilities of the most intriguing sort are opened up by a pioneering scheme for the distribution of orange juice.

A tanker ship has just brought the first bulk cargo of juice from a pressing plant in Florida to New York, where the juice will have been piped ashore and into cartons, distributed and quite many scores of miles to some millions of breakfasts.

The fresh vitamine therein were coddled in vacuums and low temperatures, conditions of storage in suitability as a vitamin to those of its native habitat. Wonderful!

No more oranges to squeeze, no more rinds to dispose of. Open a carton, pour a glass.

What a saving in transport space, time and labor!

Why not, now, get our coffee in the same way? Think of the ease of morning coffee, brewed practically under the bath, and without about the trouble of tankers, or ships, needing only to be heated before going on the table.

Tanker ships are now in coinvoy as required. Tanker ships of tea, tanker ships of oil.

Visionary? Somewhat. But not so long ago, remember, if you fancied that the dinner, it entailed acquiring a fish, head, tail, fins, scales and all, and the rest of the original accessories.

It might have been conveniently brought to your door, in a cart, or its arrival heralded by raucous shouts of a tin horn if not by the "onshore" breeze. Remember?

Today, orange-free orange juice. Tomorrow, what?

Glorious Garden Time

Ottawa Journal

This is the time of year when the flower catalogue is favorite reading for everybody with a patch of garden. There is, in March, no more fascinating literature, because what the prospective gardener sees before him in the catalogue is not the readily attainable but the ideal. He will, he says, grow all the nice perfumes, cabbages and tomatoes good enough for prizes in any competition, and he picks out shrubs and seeds and bulbs with reckless abandon.

Even the chap who has been through all the mistakes that go to make up the subtle influence of the catalogue. Those whose experience in gardening does not seem confined to a struggling geranium in the kitchen window, or, at most, unaccountably-willing African violet, can be understood in their delightful contemplation of glories to come — it's all so easy, says the catalogue, but the old garden hand has less reason to let himself be foiled.

The fact is that gardens are not born, but made. A beautiful garden is the product of careful planning plus hard work — and more hard work. The rewards are there in satisfaction and the delight and envy of the passers-by, but the enthusiasm of March has to be carried through the summer months if the promises of the catalogues are to be achieved.

The difficulty is that gardening comes in the spring and summer when there are so many other nice things to do. A man has to get out and work if he is to keep turning to fishing or golf, his summer and he has to hoe and weed, to water and spray, when what he wants to do is to sit in the shade with a long cold drink. He has to resist the ravages of armies of bugs which congregate from the countryside on his small estate. There may be rain and in the sun flowers that thrive without it. And he is appalled at the way weeds can increase and multiply, at the singular tenacity Aquinas.

The world's first centre for mechanized storage and rapid delivery of great works of literature has been opened in Gallatarie, Italy.

In his opening speech, Father Roberto Busa, S.J., founder and director of the centre, said: "The need for detailed documentation in the fields of science and business has grown tremendously. Without it will be lost much basic information hitherto difficult to obtain at the instant disposal of everyone.

"Imagine preparing an index of all parliamentary debates for the last 50 years and noting how often the word 'democracy' appears and in what context! Men do not live long enough for such a job. But with machines, such documents can be examined, analyzed, and cross-indexed in a flash, and with a speed, never before possible."

A period of time involved is staggering. To index a work of, let us say, 1,000,000 words would take, by hand, taken three men 20,000 hours; to do the same with electronic brain would require 1,000 hours. To do the job with the newest electronic brain the process would take one person only 60 hours!

Father Busa has supply scholars with any information from its central indexes they may need.

One of the first jobs will be the completion of indices of the controversial Dead Sea scrolls (found nine years ago by Bedouins in caves near the Dead Sea) which have given new light on the Bible. Work will also be completed on a word index of all the words in the works of St. Thomas Aquinas.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

You Can't Fight Medical Foibles

Said the great Dr. Osler, in the sixth edition of his famous Practice, (1906):

"Chronic rheumatism . . . . is most common among the poor, particularly washerwomen, clay-laborers, and those whose occupation exposes them to cold and damp."

This pronouncement by the foremost medical authority of the early century strengthened the belief of millions of persons with chronic rheumatism, that their climate, real or imagined dampness and cold caused their joint ailments.

It seems to me, in the light of the progress we have made since Osler was at Hopkins, that we should now put aside nineteenth century concepts and apply newer knowledge of the problem of crippling joint disability.

Before we put Osler sack on the shelf, let me quote one thing he said that seems prophetic. The affliction (chronic rheumatism) "may arise as acute or subacute attack" (meaning, I suppose, what we here-and-now buggy practitioners called inflammatory rheumatism, later rheumatic fever). "It is most commonly comes on insidiously in persons of the middle period of life."

That's a good description of rheumatic arthritis, the physical degeneration of joint tissues and believe to be the nature of, at least, one of the forms of chronic joint disability. The cause of such physical degeneration of joint tissues or the first cause at any rate is nutritional deficiency through the years from childhood on.

You will notice I haven't even mentioned rheumatism or fever. I don't know anything about it. I don't believe any one does know anything about chronic arthritis to define it.

I do not mean to imply that acute or chronic arthritis doesn't happen. It happens, all right, though rarely, in certain cases of septicemia, gonorrhea, undulant fever, pneumonia, etc. I merely contend that, nine times out of ten, there's no sign of inflammation in affected joints or joints, and therefore it's a mistake to call it "arthritis" because that word implies microscopic examinations of the affected joint show only the signs of degeneration. And any one who lives a medicine can prevent, arrest, or cure that degeneration, in person in joint or other tissues is sadly mistaken.

Tomorrow, I'll describe precisely what changes occur in the process of degeneration which I shall call matia.

SPIRITUAL REBIRTH

What does the new Testament mean when it declares that we must be born again?

The Bible teaches that we are a combination of human and divine elements. On one side of our nature we are creatures made of the dust of the earth to which dust we shall eventually return. On the other side of our lives, we are created in the image and likeness of God. As physical beings, we are begotten by physical fathers. As spiritual beings, we are begotten by that Heavenly Father who rules over all the unseen world. In the spiritual world, just as we cannot become living physical beings without physical father begets us, so our latent spiritual natures cannot have life unless they are begotten by this Heavenly Father.

FACTS CONCERNING YOUR TAX DOLLAR

HEREWITH IS PUBLISHED A STATEMENT OF THE ESTIMATED RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES OF THE CITY OF BELLEVILLE FOR THE YEAR 1957 AS COMPARED WITH THE YEAR 1956.

FOR THE INFORMATION OF THE TAXPAYER

SO THAT YOU MAY SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW YOUR MILL RATE IS ARRIVED AT. FURTHER DETAILED INFORMATION IS AVAILABLE ON ANY ITEM HEREIN UPON REQUEST FROM THE CITY HALL.

FOOTNOTE 1

The provincial government has just announced an increase of grant on public works dept. expenditures from 33⅓% to 50%. Hence the big increase expected here.

FOOTNOTE 2

The provincial government has increased from 50% to 60% its share of relief provided to the unemployables of this city. (Refer to Footnote 14).

FOOTNOTE 3

The provincial government has increased this grant from $2.50 to $4.00 per capita, but has stipulated that it must be used to benefit residential property owners only. This accounts for the 2 different mill rates arrived at this year.

FOOTNOTE 4

This increases every year at the rate of about $1,000 per year.

FOOTNOTE 5

For the first time in some years no rebate was received last year from the P.U.C. re street lighting. Hence nothing is anticipated for 1957.

FOOTNOTE 6

This represents money received from Thurlow township people whose drainage is connected to the city's sewer system. There are many more homes so connected this year than last year.

FOOTNOTE 7

In 1956 budgeting in all departments was so close that very little remained at the end of the year to carry over to this year. As a matter of fact, there would have been no surplus at all if we had not received $6,000.00 more than anticipated from the Federal Government as a grant in lieu of taxes.

FOOTNOTE 8

As explained in last year's advertisement these represented "one time" benefits applied to reduce the rate and which would be non-recurring.

FOOTNOTE 9

The Federal Government has agreed to the payment of full taxes on federal government property which has made a great difference to this city in common with all others across Canada.

FOOTNOTE 10

The council has recently passed a by-law setting up a civil defence committee with a budget of $2,000.00 for this year. 75% of this expenditure is recoverable from the government.

FOOTNOTE 11

This represents the second and final year of budgeting funds to extricate the city-owned arena from debt. It should be self-supporting from this year on as far as current operating costs are concerned.

FOOTNOTE 12

Final payments were made last year on a number of old sewer debentures which resulted in a substantial reduction here.

FOOTNOTE 13

The welfare administrator, based on last year's actual costs has estimated a slight increase in the cost to the city of indigent patients in hospital.

FOOTNOTE 14

The estimates for relief to unemployed employables has been increased again this year and on this the province pays no grant. It does, however, pay 60% of the cost of relief to unemployables which cost represents the bulk of this total. (Refer to Footnote 2).

FOOTNOTE 15

In 1956 the city issued new debentures, first payments of which come due this year and reflect this increase. Chief of these new debentures was one for $200,000.00 for a grant to the hospital building fund. No substantial decreases can be expected on these totals by reason of final payments being made on outstanding debentures before 1959.

FOOTNOTE 16

One amount budgeted in other years for the executive and finance department has this year been broken down into 8 separate departments listed at the bottom of the expenditures and headed General Government, Manager's Office, Treasurer's Office, Clerk's Office, Assessment Office and Animal Shelter and Dog Catcher. Also, all printing and stationery previously budgeted for in the property committee budget are now included in each department's operating cost. The total increase here reflects substantial increases in the salaries to all personnel, the replacement of some obsolete office equipment, the provision of funds for the expense of carrying out annexation proceedings, the establishment of a fund for pension back service costs (which should have been started in 1950) and the stationery supplies previously referred to.

FOOTNOTE 17

The increase here allows for the purchase of a new earth loader ($12,500.00), a new storm sewer on North Frank St., a new sewer on part of Harriett St., a wage increase for public works employees and a normal increase in the cost of maintaining sewers, sidewalks and roads getting a bit older year by year.

FOOTNOTE 18

The increase here is largely attributable to a fairly substantial increase in salaries to the men of the fire department.

FOOTNOTE 19

The increase here is largely due to the increased salaries to the men of the police department plus the employment of two additional constables as required.

FOOTNOTE 20

The chief cost in this department is the money paid to the Children's Aid Society for ward maintenance costs. The continued effectiveness of the preventive officer of the C.A.S. reflects a reduction in cost to the city again this year.

FOOTNOTE 21

The money for Victoria Park this year will be spent on road building.

FOOTNOTE 22

This figure includes $3,000.00 for fire insurance premiums on city property previously shown as a separate expense. In addition to normal property upkeep expenses council has budgeted for 1,200 new glass faces on the clock tower, eavestroughs and electrical repairs to the Corby Library, 8 more aluminum windows and furniture for and renovations to the offices for the mayor and the city manager, not to exceed $2,000.00 (no broadloom is included).

FOOTNOTE 23

The per capita grant to the library has been increased from $1.25; to $1.30. In addition, council is assuming the cost of some major repairs as mentioned in footnote 22.

FOOTNOTE 24

Increased cost of street lighting and the provision of more street signs and signals, account for the difference here.

FOOTNOTE 25

Here is the complete list of civic organizations assisted by municipal taxation, Canadian National Inst. for the Blind $500; Belleville Bands $1,200; V.O.N. $3,250; Kiwanis Club $671.12; T.B. Association $500; Chamber of Commerce $1,000; Film Council $100; Children's Aid Society $5,000; YMCA $1,875.66; Sea Cadets $184.28; Canadian Legion $200; Central Ontario Cheese Makers Association $300; Fair Board $450.00; Albert College Building Fund $3,000; Belleville Community Nurses' Registry $300; A.N. & A.F. V. in Canada $200; and 3 School Year Books $90.

FOOTNOTE 26

Municipal borrowing on current account is expected to cost much more as a result of bank interest rate increases.

FOOTNOTE 27

This is now included in the Property Dept. budget.

FOOTNOTE 28

This represents the monies received by the public school board and the separate school board to operate and maintain the elementary schools of the city exclusive of provincial grants. The greatly increased grants announced by the province recently for school purposes have resulted in these amounts being held at last year level in spite of having more students, more teachers and higher salaries as far as the city ratepayers are concerned.

FOOTNOTE 29

This represents the city's share of secondary school education cost as determined by our proportion of the total assessment of the area divided into the total cost. This too would have been much greater but for the greatly increased provincial assistance announced recently.

FOOTNOTE 30

This represents the cost of hiring consulting engineers for the planning of the installation of storm sewers in the Parkwood and Churchill Heights areas. It does not now appear as if this work will be carried out in the foreseeable future and hence the expense incurred to date (which would have been paid out of the resultant debenture issue if the work had been done) must now be budgeted for.

Holy Rosary CWL Plans 1st Communion

The regular March meeting of the C.W.L. of Holy Rosary Parish was held on Tuesday with 23 members present.

After the opening prayer the minutes were read and followed by reports from the various committee heads.

Father Michael had a short informal talk with the members.

A nominating committee was appointed as follows: Mrs. Darlington, Mrs. Walsh and Mrs. Hogan.

On behalf of all, Mrs. Smith thanked the first president, Mrs. Brown, and extended to her best wishes in her new home.

May 19 is the date set for the first Communion breakfast to be held at the Queen's Motel.

Mrs. George Whalen, from St. Joseph's, spoke on "Study Clubs", and gave the leaders a lot of valuable tips.

A cheque was turned over to Father Michael for the parish.

The meeting was adjourned and Father Michael said the closing prayer.

Women's H.A. Holds Fine Panel Discussion

The "Dessert Meeting" which is becoming increasingly popular with women's groups, was the form of meeting chosen by the auxiliary for March. There was a record attendance and on hand to welcome everyone were the president, Mrs. W. H. Finkle and vice-president, Mrs. B. E. Burley. Following the pleasant social hour the business session ensued with reports being read by the various officers and convenors.

Mrs. F. Beeby, reporting on the "Opportunity Shop" which is housed in the market building and open to the general public on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 2 until 4 p.m. and Friday evening from 7 until 9 p.m., and Saturday from 9.30 until 4, stated that the shop has been attractively re-decorated and the demand for dishes an spring clothing continues. Donations of new and used articles are most welcome and articles on consignment basis also are gratefully received. The Opportunity Shop is a continuing source of revenue for the Auxiliary, and the staff is to be commended for its untiring efforts.

"COFFEE SHOP"

Mrs. E. L. Scott reports that the "Coffee Shop" on the first floor of the hospital, is doing well and larger numbers of patrons have are taking advantage of this service which the Women's Hospital Auxiliary is providing for the public.

Miss Ivy L. Dickens will arrange for Easter treats for the indigent and pediatric patients in hospital.

Mrs. J. E. Buchan, provincial president of Women's Hospital Auxiliaries Association announced the competition open to all members of affiliated auxiliaries. A prize will be given for the best article entitled, "What Hospital Work has given to Me," of approximately 250 words. Entries are to be forwarded to Mrs. H. Ramsay Park, R.R. 4, Trenton, not later than June 30th, 1957. The prize will be presented at convention, October 1957, in Toronto.

Auxiliary members heard with regret of the injuries sustained recently by Mrs. A. B. Mitchell, a valued member of long standing.

PANEL DISCUSSION

An interesting panel discussion followed the business session. Panelists included Mrs. J. L. Smith, Mrs. F. Beeby, Mrs. H. J. Fuke, Mrs. G. B. Scott and Mrs. W. H. Finkle as moderator.

Three questions were dealt with by each in turn: the first, "In your opinion what type of meeting attracts the majority of members?"; "In what way could we interest all groups, including church groups and Women's Institutes in the area?"; and "Would you consider work meetings an advantage?"

The concensus was that meetings should be varied to include speakers, panel discussions, films, with an occasional work meeting if it is well organized and ready to whirl from the outset. It was felt that personal contact with women's church groups and Institutes through representation from each to the Auxiliary and vice-versa, was the best way to maintain interest.

Representatives to carry back reports from each meeting and encourage larger membership in the Auxiliary, which is, after all, a service organization functioning in the interests of the hospital and all the citizens of city and county.

'Education Needed In Industry' Talk St. Michael's PTA

The regular monthly meeting of the Parent Teachers Association of St. Michael's High School was held in the assembly room Monday, Mr. Ernest Cook presided and the Reverend Sister Mary Theresa opened the meeting with prayer.

Mr. Cook announced that the association will sponsor a showing of the film, "The Silver Chalice," in the auditorium of St. Michael's Academy in April. This will take the place of the April meeting. The next regular meeting will be on Monday, May 20.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mr. H. Brown introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. William Jarvah, accounting and personnel superintendent for the Northern Electric Company of Belleville.

Mr. Jarvah's chosen topic was, "The Educational Requirements of Industry." He stated that many young people applying for positions today are not measuring up to the requirements of industry. The opinion that, in the present age of automation, a good education is no longer a necessity, is a false one. Actually, the reverse is true. Business is advancing at a pace unheard of 20 years ago. There are continual new developments and only those with a sufficient background of specialized education can hope to achieve success in industry.

Mr. Jarvah urged parents of girls and boys, and more especially boys, to encourage their children to further efforts in their studies, not to be satisfied with a mediocre education that can lead only to a mediocre job.

In the past it had been possible for a young person with a grade school education to join a company at an early age and gradually acquire enough education through the years to fit himself for a reasonably good position. But this has changed and industry is actually seeking college graduates.

Mrs. Donoghue paid fitting tribute to Mr. Jarvah for his excellent address and regretted the small number of parents present to hear him.

Mr. Cook also expressed his appreciation and conveyed his personal thanks.

The meeting adjourned and closed with a prayer by Rev. Sister Mary Theresa.

When you use baking soda for leavening in a recipe, add the soda to the flour and not directly to the liquid as this will not begin to act until the liquid is added.

Uniondale W.I. Enjoys Talk on Korean People

The members and their families of Uniondale Women's Institute and Junior Farmer members recently held a pot-luck supper in the Scott's United Church hall. This was in place of a regular meeting.

There were 100 who sat down to a bountiful supper. Grace was sung, led by the president, Mrs. Herrington.

After the repast, the program was held in the church.

The guest speaker, Mrs. McMullen was introduced by Mrs. M. Sine. The theme of her talk was the custom, dress, personality and the struggles of the Korean people to gain in body and soul and to understand the love and Bible readings taught by the missionaries. The McMullens were in Korea for 14 years and their son was brought up and dressed in the garb of the Koreans.

This was a most interesting talk and in appreciation Mrs. McMullen was presented with a cup and saucer from Uniondale Women's Institute.

Mrs. A. Martyn and Mrs. M. Grills favored with two solo selections; Miss Helen Burkitt and Mrs. Bob Burkitt a piano duet and Miss Bernice Grills of Meadowdale School, a solo.

Mrs. Doug Harry showed slides of her trip to the Maritime provinces. They were both interesting and educational.

The Rev. W. McMullen gave a short address, wishing the Women's Institute every success in its efforts. He also closed the evening with a prayer. Thanks were tendered to all who helped in anyway with the successful evening.

IVANHOE W.I.

The March meeting of Ivanhoe W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. James MacMillan, Crookston, with an attendance of 26 members and five visitors.

The meeting was presided over by the first vice-president, Mrs. Keith Bray, with Mrs. Reg Haggerty at the organ.

During the business session, donations were given to the Stirling Hockey Rink, Mental Health Association and the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto.

Miss Jayne Gay, Mrs. Percy Downey and Mrs. Inerys Benson were named as a nominating committee to bring in the new slate of officers for the next year.

There is to be a short course at the hall on March 28 at 1.30 p.m. "Brighten your home with color" is the theme, and all ladies in the community are invited to attend.

PROGRAM

The program was presided over by Mrs. Hugh MacMillan, Home Economics and Health convener.

The motto was, "According to our vision today, so will be our achievement tomorrow," and was well given by Mrs. K. Bray.

Mrs. M. Shaw favored with an appropriate solo, "I'm In Love With An Irish Colleen". Readings were given by Miss Margaret Wright and Miss Edna Tanner.

Miss Jayne Gay gave a well-prepared paper on the subject, "How To Meet Emergencies In Sickness or Accident Until the Doctor Arrives."

Mrs. John Wright gave an interesting demonstration on aluminum etching and Mrs. Margaret Wright showed some of her paintings. Several of the members gave an exhibit of their winter hobbies, which included crochet work, glove making and aluminum etching.

Mrs. MacMillan and her assistants served refreshments.

Not Necessary to Spend Big Money on Coming-Out Dance

LONDON (CP) — Nineteen year-old Susan Hampshire, who has been through it all, says you can have a lot of fun being a debutante without spending thousands of pounds on a coming-out dance.

As things worked out, Susan didn't have an official ball when she came out two years ago. It was cancelled due to her father's illness—but she proved in other ways that a debut can be a relatively economical affair.

The whole idea of being a deb, says Susan wryly, "is to get a husband—possibly one with a title." But with her it was different as she was engaged to actor Emlyn Williams' son, Brook, before coming out.

Determined to be a successful actress—particularly in British—Susan decided marriage must wait a while, so she terminated her engagement.

A lithe, fawn-eyed blonde, Susan says she is irritated by people who spend £5,000 to £6,000 on a coming-out dance. "That is taking things too far."

She wasn't too upset when her ball was cancelled. She had a large cocktail party instead, plus lots of small parties. "I'm saving the really big one for my 21st birthday."

Her current beaux are Lord Johnny Laurence, Hon. George Baring and Hon. Michael Spring-Rice. "They're my rock 'n' roll partners at a jazz club in Kensington."

She has already spent a year with repertory companies in Britain to gain some acting experience, and admits she'd like a small part in a London show. "But you can't have it your own way," she says.

TOO TALL FOR BALLET

Although she planned to be a ballet dancer she says she grew too tall to take it up seriously, so she'd like to compromise and do musical comedies. Her mother, an ex-ballet dancer with the Sadler's Wells Ballet, now runs a drama school in Knightsbridge, where Susan trained.

In constant demand with boys of the "upper set," Susan often spends weekends at Earl Haig's country house in Gloucestershire. It was there a short while ago that she played soccer with the Duke of Kent and described him as the sort of person who doesn't mind his clothes getting a bit "mucked-up."

The girls do rather chase him though, she said. "And poor Edward has a hard time warding them off."

YOUR WARDROBE'S ROLE IN THE GROOMING PROGRAM

Closet will love this handy wardrobe bag which holds accessories of all types.

Some women always manage to present a smart appearance. No matter when you see them, at any time of the day, they look stunning. Other women marvel and wonder how they do it.

Well, the selection of their clothes comes first, of course. These women have a flair for line and style, also have fine color sense. Usually their figure is slim and trim, too, because it's hard for any woman to look smart if she bulges out in the wrong places.

Their clothes never lose their "zip," either. They always look immaculately clean and carefully pressed. And that's because they are. The truly well groomed woman as never neglects "little things." She mends hems and rips, replaces lost snaps or buttons immediately, never hangs her clothes in her wardrobe unless they are in perfect condition and ready at all times for immediate wear.

And, speaking of wardrobes, have you ever considered the importance of this article of furniture in your grooming schedule? After all, you can't expect clothes to keep their fresh looking appearance if wardrobe closets aren't roomy, or if they're so crammed that frocks become wrinkled five minutes after they're hung up.

So now that Spring cleaning time's upon us, why not give special thought to your clothes closet. See that you have an ample supply of hangers, all of the pretty accessories needed to keep hats, shoes, accessories of all types in perfect condition. These accessories not only keep your closet well organized, but they save space and keep your clothes clean and protected. Among the newest accessories are the hanger and the cover sets which consist of taffeta-ed clear plastic covers fitted with sturdy metal hangers. They are made in various sizes and shapes for suits, dresses, evening dresses, coats, blouses . . . and even for bouffant skirts. The skirt cover widens from a 16" top to a 36" bottom with a full six-inch zip-over on top. There's also a multiple skirt set which holds five to ten skirts, and a multiple blouse set which keeps five blouses fresh. And the clear visibility of the plastic eliminates fumbling for the garment you want. To assure the neatness of your closet and clothes, keep these plastic covers clean by wiping them occasionally with a soapy cloth, then rinse, and wipe dry.

While refurbishing your closets, don't neglect the guest room. A wardrobe accessory that your guests will love is a handy handbag holder which can be fastened to the inside of the door or hung on the rod. Both sides of the quilted plastic panel are equipped with horizontal compartments of clear plastic so that each guest can have a pocket to herself for gloves, purse, scarves, or small parcels. This eliminates that frantic scrambling for little accessories if they've been scattered over the bed. The holder comes in a range of ten popular colors so that you can mix or match your room shades. This gadget will come clean of soil and finger smudges with a sudsy cloth or sponge.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DON'T LISTEN TO HIM: IT'S NOT TRUE

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Because my parents came from a foreign country and so are very conservative, they are only allowing me, at the age of 16, to start dating boys.

Now I'm very confused, because the boy I've gone out with the most wants me to kiss and pet, and tells me all the girls in this country do that. If I don't I'm afraid he'll stop asking me out and I don't want that to happen, because I like him very much, yet I don't want to do anything I don't feel is right.

If I try to talk this over with my parents they wouldn't understand, and they would just forbid me to go out with this boy, so I hope you can help me. — H.T.

Dear H.T.:

It's not true that all the girls in this country go in for kissing and petting and that's all any boy says such a thing that you know it.

Many boys and girls today do indulge in this form of cheap behavior. I'm not trying to say, and take it for granted as an accepted part of boy-girl relationships. But no matter how they look at it, and no matter how innocent it may be, it's not for you. It's a very bad taste, to say the least, and petting, too often leads to serious trouble. Few boys and girls mean to do anything wrong, but petting frequently gets beyond their control, and then things happen which they bitterly regret.

Most girls who have been brought up to hold the right standards of conduct will not let down those standards by casual kissing and petting, and boys who, have also been brought up properly will respect the girl who refuses to do those things. So tell this boy, and any others who may make similar suggestions to you, that you just aren't that sort of girl. And if they're the sort of boy you should be going out with, they will like you just as much — even all the better.

BETTER HAVE OTHER DATES, TOO

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

For about two years, ever since I was 18, I've been going steady with a fellow who is now 21. He's asked me to marry him and I agreed, though we haven't yet announced my engagement.

He is a wonderful fellow and I know would make a very good husband, but the trouble is that sometimes when I'm out with my girl friends I'm introduced to boys who ask me for dates and I find myself thinking how nice it would be if I could accept. This makes me worry that, perhaps I'm not really in love.

What do you think? — Mary L.

Dear Mary L.:

The fact that you would like to go out with other boys certainly makes it obvious that this one doesn't hold all your interest, no matter how much you may think of him.

What you ought to do is to talk the whole thing over with your boy friend quite frankly, tell him you've become uncertain of your feelings and that you think it would be wiser for both of you to feel free to go out with others for awhile before committing yourself definitely.

This shouldn't mean that you'd give up seeing each other entire-

QUERY L.W.

Recently my husband was appointed refreshment convener for an "At Home" . . . expect 75 couples . . . sandwiches, small cakes, buying large squares to cut, ice cream, pickles, coffee, cream, sugar. Would you please give us an idea of amount to buy. . . . . Mrs. G.A.B.

ANSWER

I am mailing to you 3 former releases on sandwiches for wedding reception that appeared here last Spring at this time. They will help you with amounts. Large sheet cakes 21 x 14 inches, frosted, will cut into 60 squares, so you will need at least three. You should have at least 20 dozen small cakes. Five gallons ice cream scooped from gallon container will serve 150. The amount of pickles you provide is optional. Buy a few pickles or olives, serve them in dish with the carrot curls. Some chefs say 5 lbs. carrot curls are ample. Coffee: 3 1/2 lbs. very fine grind; cream, mixture of 1 quart each 18 % cream and homogenized milk and 3 1-lb. cans evaporated milk; sugar; 2 lbs. cube.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

PARTY IN HONOR OF THEIR SON AND HIS WIFE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My son, who is with the Army in Germany, has been there for almost three years. He met a very lovely German girl, and they were married in July, 1955, at an Army Chapel in Germany. Now they have received his Alert Orders, and they will be home in a short time. She has no family, and I am wondering if it would be proper for me to announce their marriage. They did not have a wedding reception, and shortly after their return, we would like to give a party in their honor, and to introduce our daughter-in-law to our family and relatives and friends.

Can we give this party without being criticized? (Would it still be in good taste for us to give this party? (I would have written to us, there is a possibility that our daughter - in - law is pregnant? About this they are not yet sure.)

2. I would like to use white streamers and large wedding bell in the decorations at our Town Hall, where we would like to have the reception. Will this be all right? For refreshments can I serve Wedding Cake, coffee and fruit punch?

3. I would like to write personal notes of invitation to our relatives and close friends. Please tell me how these should be worded? — M.L.

1. A splendid idea . . . for you to give this party in honor of your son and his wife, to give them loving welcome and warm welcome-home, and to introduce to your relatives and friends "Elsa, Bill's wife, our beloved new daughter." Do plan to give this all-important party as soon as possible after their arrival, so that they will at once feel "at home." And since they arrive so very soon, I suggest you wait until they come and then send to the society editor of your local newspaper the invitation about their marriage in Germany, with all the details you wrote in your letter to me, (her maiden name, birthplace, date and place of the wedding). Then add the news about the welcoming party you are planning to give, the date, place, and so forth. (It is indeed good taste for you to give this party, whether or not your daughter-in-law is pregnant. Yes, Ma'am!)

2. I heartily approve of your thought to make this reception actually the Wedding Reception they were not able to have after the ceremony. They will, I am sure, be thrilled with this idea. Have the decorations in the Town Hall as wedding-like as possible. And do have as handsome a Wedding Cake as you can afford (have the couple cut the first slice together, his right hand over her right hand, and have the rest of the cake served to the guests. Serve fruit punch, for the drinking of the toasts that will be proposed. And a generous supply of hot coffee, of course. You'll also, I think, need a supplement to the Wedding Cake: small cakes and/or interesting confections of various kinds. Small sandwiches with simple fillings if you wish. And, a good idea for this kind of occasion, such "nibblers" as salted nuts, potato chips and popcorn, perhaps small squares of cheese on tooth picks, delicious packaged tidbits, mints or other candies.

3. Your notes of invitation may read somewhat like this:

Dear Edith,

Our Bill and his wife, Elsa, have just arrived here, and we are giving a Welcoming Party in their honor in the Town Hall on Saturday, March 30th, at eight o'clock. You and Bob will make us all happy if you will come to "greet" Bill after his service in Germany, and to "meet" his wife, our beloved new daughter. It will be really wonderful to have all our relatives and friends with us on this occasion. So do tell us "Yes, we'll be there!"

Dearest love to both of you from all here!" — Devotedly,

THEIR BIG MOMENT

MARMORA—This hockey-mad village, with two title-questing teams, may have a slight division of loyalty, but "smile-podner" when you as much as infer anything against either when you're in this mid-Hastings community.

The loyal burghers of Reeve William Shannon's ball-wick boast two of the hottest teams extant at the moment, the "Millionaires," champions of the northern division OHA intermediate "C" group, and the OMHA midget "C" young-sters who have reached the Ontario finals.

The intermediates are slated to meet the starry Napanee Arena, winner of the southern division for the group cham-pionship and the right to move into the OHA playdowns.

However, the youngsters are providing hundreds of village and district supporters with thrills and cracker-barrel gossip for the summer months. And tonight and Saturday they meet their toughest test when they hook up with the Port Elgin youngsters in the first two games of the OMHA championship series. The next two tilts will be played in Marmora on March 25 and 26.

Manager Charlie O'Neill and coach Glen Lavender are justifiably proud of their young puck-chasing proteges. Half of the squad are "veterans" of last season's midget team with the balance made up of local assistant graduates. O'Neill and Lavender have welded the boys into a fine hockey machine, one which it is hoped, will bring Marmora it's first minor hockey provincial title.

The midgets, after a successful schedule season, eliminated Stirling in the group playoffs and defeated Thornhill in a goals-to-count semi-final thriller barely edging the Toronto district team by a lone goal. They're still talking about that last-second winning goal scored by Marmora in the Thornhill final — and how the "old" nearly blew off the arena.

The midgets boast a powerful scoring first line in Dean Lavender, Harold Maloney and Peewee Holland, while back-ing them up in the second set of shock troops are Jim Shan-non, Dan Bateman and Bob Aitken. The third line is com-prised of Mike Holland and Gary Unlacke.

Dave Bedore is the Jacques Plante of the squad and the goalie is rated one of the best in his class in the district.In front of him is a stalwart defence corps consisting of Bev Osborne, Don Be-dore, Fred O'Neill and Johnnie Hall.

Not any do the boys of Marmora rest on its midget team for the 1957 championship but also those of this part of the OMHA's eastern Ontario district. Practically every other team in this immediate area has been eliminated in the playdowns. Kingston has bantam and midget teams still in the hunt, and they round out "Lower Canada's" quota of title-seeking aspirants.

They tell me not a few of the Marmora supporters accom-panied the midgets to Port Elgin where they play tonight and tomorrow night. Right, by the way, is in the Kincardine district on which the breezes of Lake Huron blow.

Win, lose or draw, arrangements are already under way for the reception of the Port Elgin team next weekend. Marmora folks are going all out to look after the visiting youngsters and give them a taste of the well-known village hospitality. OMHA executive member Doug Patterson of Stirling is arranging a tour of the Trenton air station for the visiting team and its officials.

WELLINGTON HERE SATURDAY

Championship hockey will be on the bill of fare in Me-morial Arena Saturday night when the Wellington Dukes meet the Alliston squad in the second game of their OHA Junior "D" finals series. Alliston took the first game on Tuesday night at home by an 8-3 score.

But the crew from Reeve Clare Flatt's lakeside village are not disheartened by their inaugural setback. They won the OMHA midget championship last year — and know what it is to win titular baubles the hard way. Coach Bill Yandt has a hard-fighting fast-skating bevy of puckchasers and the youngsters from Alliston will know they've been in a hockey game by Saturday curfew.

The Dukes, who drew a bye in the OHA playdowns, dis-posed of the district opposition and went on to take the semi-final series from the strong Orono team in four games out of a best-of-seven series. However, the Alliston club, like all of a best-of-seven series. However, the Alliston club, like all of a best-of-seven series, probably will be tough nuts to crack and Sat-urday night's game here should be a thriller.

The village populace is solidly behind its team of youthful puckchasers and a large crowd of Jack Ogilvy's faithful will likely be on hand to cheer their youngsters to their first finals victory. And it won't hurt you city slickers either to go down and watch two fine teams of young hockey players battle it out for championship honors.

Can't Finish Worse Than 3rd Not Afraid of Habs, Wings; Besides They've Got Labine

By KENNEDY WELLS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Boston Bruins, the upstarts of the National Hockey League, have strong reasons for regarding themselves as favorites to win the Stanley Cup.

The Bruins, whose rags-to-riches story is one of the NHL's most surprising in years, lifted them-selves into a second-place tie with the Montreal Canadiens Thursday night when they shut out the Red Wings in Detroit, 2-0.

Bruins can now finish no worse than third. A year ago they ended up in fifth place.

Detroit and Montreal are re-garded by most observers as co-favorites to win the Stanley Cup, but on the basis of their peform-ance against those same two teams this season, Bruins are the logical choice.

Their victory Thursday was their seventh over Red Wings this year, against four losses and three ties. Their record against Montreal is the same.

The hero, as he has been so frequently since he stepped into the great Terry Sawchuk's skates last January, was 25-year-old Don Simmons of Port Colborne.

Facing one of the league's highest-scoring teams, Simmons kicked out 29 shots, 11 of them in each of the first two periods. Glenn Hall made 23 saves in the Detroit net.

Leo Labine scored the first goal after only 24 seconds had elapsed in the game. Labine took passes from Real Chevrefils and Don McKenney.

At 6:29 of the second, Chevre-fils scored his 31st goal. McKen-ney and Labine drew assists.

WINGS HIS "COUSINS"

The shutout was Simmons' fourth in 25 games, and two of them have been against the Red Wings.

Should Boston finish third, they must play Detroit in the semi-finals, while Canadiens would meet the fourth-place New York Rangers, the outside choice of the four.

That set-up should suit the Bruins, since Rangers are the only team which has been con-sistently able to beat them.

Ottawa Bowler Regains Lead In Tournament

TORONTO (CP)—Wally Souchen of Ottawa rolled games of 327 and 568 Thursday to lead the way into the semi-final round of the east-ern Canada men's five-pin bowl-ing championship.

Souchen's 10-game two-day total was 2768.

Teddy Souchen will face Ron Williams of Kitchener, who fin-ished with a 10-game total of 2-558. Lodge Nazwaski of Thorold will meet Len Chubenousse of Toronto. Nazwaski hit 2,703 over 10 games.

Charles Thoms of Kirkland Lake was defeated by Nazwaski by 202 pins.

Vera Ward of Hamilton contin-ued to lead the ladies' competi-tion, and enters the semi-final against Muriel Rivers of Tweed.

Bea Ross of Chatham and Dor-othy Bigelow of Midland were elim-inated earlier.

Braves Start Apple-Smiting Two Hit Six Homers in Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Johnny Logan, star Braves shortstop, may have been thinking of John Wesley Covington the other day when he suggested Mil-waukee's National League pennant chances would brighten considera-bly "if the guys in left field" would improve their batting aver-ages.

On the other hand, Logan and manager Fred Haney also may be putting the old squeeze play on Bobby Thomson, so the former New York Giant will start worry-ing about his job.

Wes Covington, who as a rookie in 1956 appeared mainly in pinch-hit roles but played 25 games in the outfield, undoubtedly is keep-ing his antenna tuned in on the situation. Covington socked three homers Thursday as did Logan, each connecting in five runs as the Braves overpowered Chicago White Sox 10-7.

Seventy years ago Haney, who has Hank Aaron in right and Bill Bruton in center, said his left-fielder hadn't been decided upon. He just might make it an A-B-C combination. Covington sup-plying the needed power if he can handle the fielding chores.

"All I ask is a .285 hitter in left," Haney said.

The Braves averages show Thom-son batted .235 and Covington .283 in 75 games.

In other exhibitions, New York Giants defeated Baltimore Orioles 2-1; St. Louis Cardinals ended a four-game losing streak at the ex-pense of New York Yankees, 9-2; Chicago Cubs edged Cleveland In-dians 5-4; Brooklyn Dodgers rall-ied to turn back Kansas City 6-3; Detroit Tigers whipped Washing-ton Senators 8-5, and Cincinnati Redlegs had their second big day in a row, thumping Philadelphia Phillies 13-10.

The Redlegs, who drubbed the Yankees 20-6 Wednesday with 25 hits, collected 22 against the Phils, including a homer by Roy Bova, Ted Kazanski, Roy Smalley, John Kennedy and Joe Lonnett homered for the Phils.

Frank Bolling slammed a three-run homer and two-run triple for Detroit, and Frank Lary held the Senators scoreless with three-hit ball for six frames.

Herm Wehmeier, Larry Jack-son and Hoyt Wilhelm limited the Yankees to five hits, while the Cards scored six unearned runs on three errors.

A triple by Eddie Bressoud with a mate aboard, and a sacrifice fly broke up a scoreless game in the seventh between the Giants and Orioles.

Homers accounted for all five Cub runs against Cleveland. Ernie Banks drove in three runs with two round trippers, and Gene Baker hit a two-run homer. Al Smith and Sam Mele homered for Cleveland.

Charlie Neal and Don Zimmer each hit a two-run homer in the seventh to wipe out a 2-0 Athletic lead and the Dodgers added two more in the eighth. Lou Skizas homered for Kansas City.

'Hey Mateys Watch 'the Villa'

By KEN METHERAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—British soccer fans call Aston Villa the "mud-larkers" of the Midlands—a dis-paraging term for a team that relies on brute force rather than skill.

The description does less than justice to manager Eric Houghton and his squad, which has just played both spirit and technical skill in reaching Saturday's semi-final round of the Football Asso-ciation Challenge Cup.

Houghton also considers the present villa side has a determin-ation and team spirit worthy of the almost legendary Aston Villa team that brought off the double of the league championship and FA Cup in the 1896-7 season—the last time it was achieved.

"Make no mistake, we are out to defend that record," says Houghton.

It will be a difficult task. First Villa must turn back the well-balanced West Bromwich Albion side Saturday to be in a position to block the growing threat from Manchester United to the 60-year-old Villa record.

The second semi - final pits United, which already has all but clinched the league title against Birmingham City. Few give the city eleven much chance of reach-ing the final.

Aston Villa dominated the Brit-ish soccer scene for about 12 years winning the league title four years running from 1893 to 1896. They have won both the league and the cup six times.

But in recent years Villa fans have had little but the memories of old glories to thrive on. Last year only a determined late-sea-son drive saved Villa from relo-gation to the second division.

This year Villa is safely en-sconced in the middle of the league table, three points behind its Saturday rivals.

Lopez Speaking

Indians Will Defeat Yankees If Youngsters Can Make Good

By JOE REICHLER

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Al Lopez, who beat New York Yankees only once in six tries with Cleveland, thinks he can do it in his first season as manager of Chicago White Sox—with a little luck.

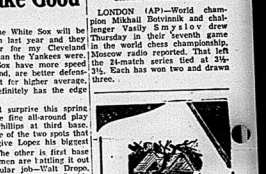
Amiable Al, known as Understim-ate the Yankees, Yet he firmly be-lieves his team "can go all the way," as he puts it, if some of the youngsters make good.

"This is a club that has finished third the last five years," Lopez pointed out, "so it doesn't need very much to move up and maybe go all the way. If some of those kids like Jim Landis, Roger How-ard and Earl Battey, who have looked real good up to now, can continue to improve, our chances will be that much better."

Landis, a 22-year-old outfielder, has led the team with a .409 aver-age through the first seven games. Howard, 25, a richhanded pitcher recently released from the army, invited the Yankees to his and Brooklyn Dodgers to one in three-game series Saturday. Bat-tery-mate, 200 - pound catcher, up from Toronto Leafs, who has im-pressed with his hitting and throw-ing.

"With Sherman Lollar behind the plate, our good pitching, Nellie Fox and Luis Aparicio around sec-ond and Larry Doby in centre field, we yield to nobody on the line from home plate to the flag pole," says Lopez.

"I think the White Sox will be stronger than last year and they were tougher for my Cleveland club in '56 than the Yankees were. The White Sox have more speed than Cleveland, are better defens-ively and hit for higher average. Cleveland definitely has the edge in pitching."



A pleasant surprise this spring has been the fine all-around play of Bubba Phillips at third base. This was one of the two spots that figured to give Lopez his biggest headache. The other is first base where four men are battling it out for the regular job—Walt Dropo, Bonnie Jackson, Norman Larkin and Jim Marshall.

Doby, who paced the club with 24 home runs and 102 runs batted in, and Minnie Minoso, the team's leading hitter, (.316), have a lock on two-thirds of the outfield. Lan-dis is pressing veteran Jim Rivera for the regular right field spot.

Lopez intends to open the sea-son with 12 pitchers, a total that may be reduced to 10 at the May 15 outdown date. He named left-handers Billy Pierce (20-9) and Dick Hacker (15-11) and right-handers Jim Wilson (13-14) and Dick Donovan (12-10) as his big four with Bob Keegan (5-7) and Gerry Staley (6-3) as his spot pitchers. Paul LaPalme (2-4), El-ia Hunder (2-0) and Dixie Howell (5-6) will form the bullpen.

CHESS SERIES TIED

LONDON (AP)—World cham-pion Mikhail Botvinnik and chal-lenger Vasily Smyslov drew Thursday in the first seven games of the world chess championship, Moscow radio reported. That left the 26-inch series tied at 3½-3½. Each has won two and drawn three.

Edmonton Can Be Called Sports Capital of Country

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Edmonton can well afford to stick out its chest and holler to the rest of Canada that it is the sports capital of the country. The city has a remarkable record going for it.

The instance, Sudbury is the Canadian curling championships by Matt Baldwin's Edmonton rink brought to Alberta, capital's place in sport into sharp focus. Its record in national championships in the last few years has been the best in the country but Edmontonians with long memories don't stop there.

For instance, Sports Editor Hat Pawson of the Edmonton Journal jogs memories about one of Canada's most famous teams, the Edmonton Grads girl basketball team of Sunderland era.

ALBERTA HIGHLIGHTS

Here's what Pawson has to say in his 'Sporting Periscope' column:

"As far as the rest of Canada is concerned, three main things have put Alberta on the map — Social Credit 'funny money' in the 1935 era, oil in the past decade, and sport. . . .

"The Baldwin rink's victory is an example. And three straight Grey Cups for the Eskimos (1954-55-56) speak for themselves, and still are speaking. But this sort of achievement is nothing new.

"None brought more athletic honor to Edmonton than the Edmonton Grads, and the girls kept bringing this city honor for 22 years starting in 1915."

Pawson let it ride there but he could have mentioned that Percy Page coached Grads teams to dozens of championships in the 1920s and 1930s.

The Grads ruled Canadian girls basketball from the time the Dominion championship series started in 1922 until the team disbanded in 1940.

They played 120 games in international competition against American clubs, winning 114 and losing six. They won all 18 Canadian matches they played on three European tours and lost only two of nine games against men's teams.

Pawson probably spoke for all Edmontonians when he wrote: "Without being smug, let's face it. It is a nice feeling."

Milt (Toronto Star) Dunnell quotes Centre Ted Kennedy as saying he is not sorry he tried a comeback. "All I ever did feel I was the solution" to the sorry plight of Toronto Maple Leafs who finished out of the Stanley Cup playoffs this season.

"It's after all the work of trying to get back into condition. . . and after my three-game comeback trial. . . I still figured I wasn't the answer to the Leafs' problems," Kennedy said.

Dunnell says that Kennedy should have gone out with the Hart Trophy, symbol of election as the game's most valuable player.

"That's what he had when he skated out of the Gardens the first time."

Boxer Freed of Morals Charge

CHICAGO (AP)—Maxie Rosenbloom, former light heavyweight boxing champion, was freed Thursday of a morals charge based on a story told by a 13-year-old girl.

Judge William M. Barth dismissed a charge that Rosenbloom, now a night club entertainer, had contributed to the delinquency of a minor.

Rosenbloom testified the girl had come to his hotel room only to obtain an autographed picture of him. He said that when she told him she was calling for the picture he urged her to bring an adult. When she appeared alone, he said, he tried in vain to summon a bellboy.

The girl testified she had admired Rosenbloom since seeing him on TV in January and telephoned him daily until going to his room Jan. 14. The girl's father laid the complaint.

Aragon Gets Jail Sentence; Will Appeal

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Art Aragon, 29, onetime thirty-ranking welterweight, was sentenced Thursday to from one to five years for offering a $500 bribe to fix a fight.

His lawyer, Jules Covey, who had asked or a new trial for Aragon, said he will appeal to a higher court.

In rejecting a motion for a new trial, Judge Herbert V. Walker said he felt the jury verdict finding Aragon guilty of offering a bribe to Dick Goldstein was "perfectly proper and perfectly supported by the evidence."

Judge Walker also rejected a recommendation by the probation department that Aragon be sentenced to prison.

"Probation normally is given to an individual who shows some recognition that he has done wrong," he said.

"In this probation report there is not one scintilla of evidence that this defendant recognizes that he committed a crime."

Goldstein was not in court. It was largely on Goldstein's testimony that Aragon offered to pay him to "take a dive" in the fourth round of a bout scheduled for San Antonio, Tex., last December that Aragon was convicted. The bout was cancelled after Aragon became ill.

Cupid Blasts Iron Curtain

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Cupid's arrow punctured the Iron Curtain Thursday, freeing the way for a pretty Czech girl to marry an American world champion athlete.

Suddenly it was spring for 22-year-old Olga Fikotova and Harold Connolly, 26, when the Czechslovak government gave its permission for the two Olympic Gold Medal winners to marry and settle in the United States.

Olga won the discus event, for Czechoslovakia's only gold medal at Melbourne, while Connolly won the hammer throw. They met at the Games and romance blossomed quickly.

She disclosed that Connolly, forced to leave Czechoslovakia when his visa expired March 9 before he could obtain government approval to wed, returned here with a new visa two days ago. The couple are staying with Olga's parents near Prague.

The two spent Thursday afternoon on a shopping spree before leaving the country. They will be married in Prague next Saturday. There will be three separate ceremonies — Roman Catholic (Connolly's faith), Protestant (Olga's) and civil.

Olga plans to retain her Czech citizenship.

Stan Mikita and John McKenzie scored for Teepees.

Marlboros held a 41-27 margin in shots during the game.

Airwaves Will Pay Baseball Nearly 10 Million

NEW YORK (AP)—Organized baseball, with only Milwaukee Braves and Kansas City As out of the picture, will collect a record $3,300,000 this year for the rights to broadcast and telecast major league games.

This represents an increase of 50 per cent or $3,100,000 compared to 1956.

A survey by the magazine Television Age in its March 25 issue showed that Brooklyn Dodgers will televise more games than any other team, a total of 108, all 77 home games and 25 on the road. The Dodgers and New York Yankees will televise the final game Saturday against Chicago he will also miss a chance to better his own record of 43 assists by a defenceman in a season. Harvey set the mark two seasons ago and in Wednesday's game in Toronto reached 42. His teammates

Left winger Bert Olmstead, out for four games because of a hailline fracture, got an ankle and razor blade companies make up the remainder. Only pay out $21,800,000 for the regular season games, the all-star game, the Canada series and pre-game and post-game shows.

Of the $21,800,000 to be spent by the advertisers, an estimated $22,500,000 will go for non-baseball expenses such as payments to announcers, advertising agencies, station realty, wire rentals, etc. That leaves $9,300,000 for baseball.

The survey disclosed 833 games will be aired this season as compared with 860 in 1956.

Trenton Comets Oust Oshawa With 11-3 Win

Trenton Quinte Comets ousted Oshawa All-Stars from OHA International "A" playdown competition last night in Bowmanville by whipping the Stars 11-3.

Trenton took the series four games to one, dropping only the first contest, and will now meet the winners of the Lakeshore League.

The Comets never trailed last night as they built a 4-0 lead in the first period and made it 7-0 in the second. Oshawa finally hit the twine for three in the third while Trenton added four to the total.

Bob Taylor spearheaded the winner's attack, scoring four goals and assisting on another pair for six points. Ivan Istead helped the cause with two goals and one assist.

Bill Foster, Moe Jonas, Pat Scott and Brien Mulvihill each registered a goal and one assist while Austin Scott bagged the other marker. Lou Schmidt and Bob Campney each drew a brace of assists.

Al Barber tallied twice and assisted on Bouckley's marker while Al Lawrence helped on all three goals.

Blake Worried Doug Harvey Has A Gimpy Leg

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Toe Blake, preparing his Montreal Canadiens for the windup of the National Hockey League schedule and the post-season Stanley Cup series, took on a new worry Thursday when he learned defenceman Doug Harvey has a gimpy leg.

Harvey pulled the leg muscle Wednesday against the Maple Leafs, won by Canadiens.

Polders of Holland to Grow When Zuider Zee Is Drained

By Raymond Canon

As you can well imagine, Holland is not often called the Lowlands for nothing, since about one-fifth of the country lies below the average sea-level, and a considerably larger area would be flooded during storms if there were no dykes to protect it. The Dutch have been busy draining and reclaiming land for seven centuries, which has led one Frenchman to exclaim that "God created the world, with the exception of Holland, which was created by the Dutchmen themselves." A bit exaggerated, but I think you see what he meant.

By far the biggest effort up until now at reclaiming land is in the Zuider Zee, but in the nineteenth century, the Dutch undertook what for those times was an extremely difficult task in draining a large lake south of Amsterdam. A total of 45,000 acres of farm land was regained, most of it very fertile, and today the huge international airport at Schiphol is situated on the bottom of this former lake.

IMMENSE TASK

But getting back to the Zuider Zee works, I had no idea how immense the task was until I went to see it for myself. Up until the present century the whole Zee was a shallow bay of the North Sea. Due to the increasing shortage of land in Holland it was decided in 1918 to drain by far the larger part of this bay. This first step in this undertaking was the construction of an enclosing dam across the top of the lake off from the North Sea. This dam is no less than 30 long miles. I say long miles since I once cycled across it most of the time into a head wind, and each mile seemed an eternity. But anyway, this dam created a large fresh-water lake which was not subject to the tidal movements of the North Sea, and so permitted faster progress on the rest of the project.

The first section of 50,000 acres was completed in 1930 after 6 or 7 months of pumping water from the area. More than 500 farms were created on this section as well as three villages. Towards the end of the last war the whole section was inundated by the Germans to a depth of about 12 feet, and the incoming swell knocked down most of the barns and houses. However, as soon as the war was over, the Dutch got busy on it in a hurry, and this time it only took four months to pump all the water out. Since the water came from the newly-created lake, it was not salt and so crops were able to be sown in 1946.

The North-East Polder was the next part to be reclaimed. This has an interesting history in that it was pumped dry in 1942 after the country had been overrun by the Germans. Some idea of the immensity of the task can be obtained by the fact that a total of 330,000,000,000 gallons of water were pumped from an area of 119,000 acres. Today this whole area is being cultivated — villages have sprung up everywhere, and it is expected that about 50,000 people will be living there when construction is completed. Needless to say this area has the only straight streets I've seen in all Europe.

FUTURE PLANS

With all this experience in poldering behind them, the Dutch are now going ahead with plans for three others — all of which will be carved out of the old Zuider Zee. This will mean draining a total area of 377,000 acres, and in fact part of this area has already been drained. When all this has been completed there will still remain a lake of considerable size which will provide fresh water to the surrounding district during periods of dry weather.

Before any of this land can be reclaimed, a dyke has to be built around the whole area. Building a dyke is quite a fascinating study, and I was fortunate in that I was able to have a look at it, close hand, and ask as many questions as I liked. I still don't consider myself an expert in dyke-building, but I will pass on what I learned in case anyone might like to take up dyke construction as a hobby.

First of all, the soft layers of dirt at the base of the dyke have to be dredged out and replaced with sand, which is in turn covered with hard clay. The slopes of the dyke below the water level are protected by layers of willow brushwork which are interwoven into the whole framework of the dyke. Above the level of the water the outer surface is covered with loosely interlocking stones, or if stone is not used it is covered with clay upon which grass is sowed. Sometimes asphalt slabs are used instead of the brushwork, but when I asked which was better, I was told that this depended on the nature of the dyke.

Draining the Zuider Zee will keep the Dutch busy for quite some time yet, but I rather hope that when this is finished they will find some other place to drain. It would certainly be a shame to let all that talent go to waste.

Publisher Refuses to Handle Book by Randolph Churchill

LONDON (CP) — Randolph Churchill has written a naughty book about the press, and there's going to be a row over it.

Britain's biggest distributor of newspapers and books, W. H. Smith and Son, has refused to handle the outspoken volume. Churchill has formed his own company to muscle in on the trade.

Sir Winston's irrepressible son, as controversial in journalism as his father was in politics, has also referred the case to the General Council of the Press, watchdog of newspaper morals.

"It is true that Mr. Churchill has brought the matter to our attention," a press council spokesman said today. "I cannot say whether it will be referred to in our next report."

The book, "What I Said About the Press," (Weidenfeld and Nicholson) consists of lectures Churchill has delivered in the past, lashing out at Britain's press lords and the "personality" cult whereby individual privacy is sacrificed in the interests of sensationalism.

Churchill also has been critical of pornography in newspapers.

W. H. Smith and Son, whose bookstalls are part of the scene at railway stations in most parts of Britain, has declined to distribute the book. A spokesman said the ban was imposed on legal advice.

Churchill has retaliated by forming a company, called Country Bumpkins, Limited, with headquarters in East Bergholt, Suffolk, the agricultural area where Churchill makes his home.

Fleet Street expert Francis Williams, writing in the New Statesman, says the episode seems to raise questions of the gravest public interest. He says he thinks Churchill's case, though occasionally exaggerated, is in the main well founded, and "it seems to me a shocking thing that it should be made so very difficult for the ordinary reading public to hear it."

The Spectator, discussing the ban at the bookstalls, says whatever the rights and wrong of the decision by the Smith company, "they must surely be regretting it, and wishing that instead they had bought a hundred copies of the book and then quietly burnt them."

Churchill's company hopes to set up bookstalls in such stations as Paddington and Liverpool Street.

Churchill, 45, recently won £5,000 damages in a libel suit against a newspaper.

Later, he registered a major scoop by forecasting that Harold Macmillan, rather than R. A. Butler, would succeed Sir Anthony Eden as prime minister. Most commentators chose Butler.

Must Have Been Lean Winter For Seagulls

VANCOUVER (CP)—It has been a lean winter for seagulls hereabouts.

Apartment dwellers in a west end block complained that water was leaking in through the aluminum-framed windows.

Contractors checked and caulked the frames but still complaints came in.

A sharp-eyed resident discovered the reason.

Seagulls had eaten away the caulking.

Doctors' Pay Low

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative Gordon K. Fraser charged Thursday the federal health department pays doctors only 50 cents to $1 for hospital visits to Indians.

During the Commons question period, the member for Peterborough said he knows of one case where a doctor was paid an average 61½ cents for each hospital visit to Indians.

Health Minister Martin said he would be happy to look into the merits of the particular case.

Declines to Say If Federal Govt. Will Enter Case

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Garson declined Thursday to say immediately whether the federal government will take part in the case of three newspapers, the CBC and radio station CKEY, charged in Toronto with violation of the Lord's Day Act Sunday observances.

He was asked in the Commons by Margaret Aitken (PC—York Humber), Toronto Telegram columnist, whether the federal government will take part in the action, either in defence of the act or as an observer.

Mr. Garson replied that he would take the question as notice and reply later, instead of giving an immediate offhand opinion.

The court test of Sunday publication and broadcasting was announced Tuesday by Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario when he said he had instructed that a charge be preferred against the Toronto Telegram, based on publication, sale and distribution of The Sunday Telegram March 17.
